The prettiest Dolls' House ever seen in Canada will be that on exhibition at the Peterborough Summer Fair. There will be dolls of every kind and complexion; every style of dress and architecture (speaking from a physical doll's point of view) white dolls, darkey dolls, boy dolls, girl dolls, baby dolls, sailor dolls, dirty dolls, fairy dolls, chauffeur dolls and Campbell kids; dolls in cradles, dolls in beds, dolls in hammocks. The greatest display of dolls hats ever seen—lace hats, muslin hats, velvet hats, seal skin hats; dolls' carpet sweepers, dolls' hand mirrors. In fact everything the children love will be in the dolls' house at the Fair.

THE GAME OF KNAPPAN.

A Murderous, Skull Cracking Sport That Gave Us Football.

George Owen, lord of Kemes, a Welsh gentleman who lived in Pembrokeshire 300 years ago, has left a description of the extraordinary game of "knappan," which seems to have been the forefather of Rugby football.

Two thousand foot, besides horsemen, he tells us, were frequently engaged, and, as for the ground, it was a stretch of open country at least two miles long and often much more. The umpires who watched the goals were mounted on swift horses.

There appear to have been no side boundaries and no rules in particular, except that it was not etiquette to commit murder. The game was started at 2 in the afternoon and lasted until one side got a goal or until darkness fell.

The game began as follows:

"The combatants having come together, a crye is made, when all proceed to divest themselves of their clothing, save only a thin pair of breeches. If the player have but a shirt on his back, in the fury of the game it is torn to pieces."

The ball was small and made of wood, but the game resembled Rugby in that the players ran with the ball and when collared passed to another of their own side.

The man with the ball ran till tackled; then, if he could not pass, he was summoned three times to deliver the ball. If he refused his head was punched until he gave in. Our chronicler hints that, instead of the mere fist, stones were sometimes used if the player proved obstinate.

"At times," says the writer, "the players fall by the ears, soe that sometimes you shall see five or six hundred naked men beating in a cluster together as fast as fists can goe, soe that you shall see two brothers, the one beating the other, the man the master, the friend against friend."

Spectators had to be uncommonly careful, for if one got meshed in the titanic combat he was at once made a player by "lending him half a dozen cuffes."

Most extraordinary scenes occurred at times. On one occasion a mounted player got away with the ball and won the match for his side and so much honor and glory that he was anxious to repeat the performance.

But at the next match, much to his chagrin, no one would or could pass the ball to him, so presently he resolved on a stratagem. He suddenly broke from the crowd and began galloping away as fast as he could, pretending that he had the knappan in his grasp.

A score or so of the opposing cavaliers, deceived by his trick, followed him, and apparently he was not so well mounted as on the previous occasion, for they caught him and demanded the ball. They flatly refused to believe his protests that he had not got it and beat him sorely. He was struck to the ground and every stitch of clothes torn from his bruised body, and he was left to lament the entire failure of his smart scheme.

All the horsemen in the game of knappan carried heavy cudgels, and blows were exchanged which would have killed men less hard than the players of that wonderful age.—Pearson's Weekly.

Mocking Munchausen.

A gentleman once boasted to Charles Bannister that he had destroyed 500 men with his own hands. "Sir," said Charles, "I have killed a few in my time also. Let me see—five at Madrid, ten at Lisbon, twenty at Paris, thirty at Vienna and double the number at The Hague. At length, coming over from Calais to Dover I had scarce disembarked when a desperate Irishman killed me." "Killed you?" said the gentleman. "What do you mean by that?" "Sir," replied the wit, "I did not dispute your veracity, and why should you question mine?"

Laughed Out of His Name.

It is hard to be laughed out of one's surname. That is what occurred to an inoffensive English gentleman, Charles Sainsbury Pickwick, Esq., who, after the publication of Dickens' famous novel, felt constrained to advertise in the London Times informing the world that owing to its having been brought into ridicule and made a byword by the novelist he intended to abandon his name forever. This was the more hard in his case because he proudly traced his name to a knightly origin — from "Piques vite" — "spur fast."

Between Lawyers.

A young Pittsburgh attorney is starting in with very high ideals.

"I won't defend a man whom I believe to be guilty," he was declaring at the club the other day.

An older lawyer smiled tolerantly.

"Now, my boy," he said, "you mustn't set your judgment up against that of the majority. I have defended plenty of men whom I believed to be guilty, but the jury decided otherwise."—Kansas City Journal.

Helping the Vicar.

Deacon (to vicar in vestry)—Are you suffering from a cold, sir? Vicar—No. Why do you ask? Deacon—Well, there's about a dozen cough lozenges in the collection plate.—London Opinion.

Money and Friends.

Sillicus—Which would you rather lose, your money or your friends? Cynicus—What difference does it make? You can't lose one and keep the other. —Philadelphia Record.

He alone has energy who cannot be deprived of it.—Lavater.

If You Had a Million.

By the above we refer to the series of letters asked for, in response to an article that will appear in these columns on Saturday. We are going to ask replies to the question, "If I had a million dollars, what would I do?" We ask our readers, and the public in general, to let us know what they would individually do for charity, manufacturing, mercantile, or other objects. Your replies cost nothing to print and will be of interest to our readers.

A STUDY IN SMOKE.

Beauties That Greet the Eye From Any of Pittsburgh's Hills.

Robert Haven Schauffler, writing in the Metropolitan, says: "I never come within range of the unique spell of modern Pittsburgh without wishing that I might personally conduct thither the sage who so mendaciously declared that there is nothing new under the sun, for Pittsburgh is something new.

"From any of the city's hundred hills one can enjoy more varieties of smoke in an hour than there are kinds of cloud in a month. These range all the way from fairy shavings of ice and curls of driven snow, through geological strata of pure cream, mischievous, evanescent ringlets of bluish white, smudges faintly tinged with olive, aerial bushes of delicate rose, trees of orange and rusty red, through a hundred tones of gray, from the most ethereal fawn to sheer brutal dirt, then deepening to a black as rich as the glossy, tarry coal from which it sprang.

"One convenient thing about the smokescape is that you can enjoy some part of it wherever you happen to be. Looking west in the canyon of Fourth avenue one morning, the lower parts of the office buildings were quite obliterated by a dense, low lying bank of soft, dusky smoke. But as the eye traveled upward this cloud began to thin until, when it reached the cornices, every detail of them stood out sharply in the sunlight against a sky of pale sapphire. Such effects are as interesting as they are characteristic of the place."

IRON AND POWER.

The Link Between the Metal and the Great Nations.

In the sixteenth century the greatest iron making nations were Spain, France and England, and beyond all fear of contradiction these were the three countries which were then reckoned greatest, says the London Telegraph.

While Cortes was carrying the flag of Spain into the then unknown world and while the great galleons were bringing home to that favored nation treasures beyond the wildest hopes of the adventurers the myriad forges were alight in Catalonia and the armor of Castile was enabling a handful of men to seize the riches protected by many thousands of natives who had reached a high state of civilization, but knew not the methods of manufacture of iron.

And so it ever was, and, much as we may in theory and in sentiment regret the fact, so it is today. We hear a great deal about the reasons for the rise of modern Germany as a world power. It is worth noting that that country has risen rapidly into prominence as the iron and steel output has increased by leaps and bounds.

In the olden days it was the same. The Romans carried into Spain the knowledge of working iron and steel, and upon that foundation Spain rose to the might and majesty of a great world power.

Not Extraordinary.

On a Broadway surface car two well dressed women were highly amused at a woman with a baby. As the conductor came along the woman with the child said:

"Hold the baby a minute; I want to tie my shoestring."

He took the youngster and the woman tied the string. Then the conductor gave the baby back to her. As he passed the two well dressed women one of them said:

"You have all sorts of queer passengers on your car, don't you?"

"Yes," he replied.

"Imagine that woman asking you to hold her baby! Wasn't that a crazy thing for her to do?"

"Oh, I don't know," replied the conductor quietly. "That's my baby. The woman's my wife."—New York Telegraph.

Philosophy of the Loafer.

In the Blue Blanket, an Edinburgh civic paper, Dr. Mackenzie describes, somewhat unkindly, the Glasgow loafer under the title "Civic Ideals." "Why should I save?" asked the loafer. "I make enough to keep me going. I make enough to feed me. I have enough over to let me drink up to 10 o'clock. Why should I save? If I grew sick you must take me to the hospital. If I spend all my money and have nothing to eat you must take me to the poorhouse. If I get drunk on the streets you must take me to the police office and the prison. You've got to do it. What is the good of saving?"

Hoping For the Best.

"I expect to be able in about five years to retire and live on the interest of my investments."

"That's fine. But I didn't know you were making investments. What are they?"

"I haven't made any so far, but I have three very beautiful daughters growing up."—Chicago Record-Herald.

Disappointed.

"You say he was disappointed in love?"

"He certainly was."

"But I thought he married the girl he loved."

"So he did. And then he found that two cannot live as cheaply as one."—Houston Post.

Easy Promise.

THRIFT IN FRANCE.

The Saving System That Is Directed by the Government.

The resources of the French people have always been a surprise to the rest of the world. The country has repeatedly recovered from most exhausting wars apparently through the very small savings accumulated by its lower classes. The peasants of France are landowners to an extent hardly equaled in any other country. The saving system known as the Credit Foncier, which is sanctioned and directed by the French government, is to a certain extent responsible for the thrifty spirit shown throughout France.

The plan provides that a man may borrow on his land very close to the complete value by arranging in advance the number of years that he will take to pay back the loan. His interest payments are then arranged at so much per year, the amount being greater or less, depending on how soon he intends that these payments should completely pay off his debt. If the payments are to continue for fifty years the payments are very small. If the whole mortgage is to be paid off in a shorter period the yearly payments are larger.

There is an added feature which would not be considered possible in this country—viz, an occasional lottery drawing, by which the man who draws the lucky ticket has his mortgage entirely canceled. The system provides an absolutely safe means of saving and is an encouragement to buy and pay for real estate. Against these bonds and mortgages the Credit Foncier issues its bonds in small amounts bearing interest at 3 per cent or less, which are sold in large quantities to investors of moderate means.

We have had nothing like it in America, and as a result our people have grown up to a very careless scale of expenditure.—J. Wray Cleveland in Leslie's Weekly.

FREAKS AMONG FISH.

Weird Sea Life In Bartlett's Deep, Off the Cuban Coast.

Cuba ends to the south in a huge hammer of mountains 8,000 feet high and steeping sheer into the sea. The wall does not end there, but continues its precipitous descent into the 700 mile long abyss called Bartlett's deep. This gigantic submarine valley is nearly four miles deep and eighty miles wide.

At a mile and a half the pressure of the water is nearly two tons to the square inch. The ooze that comes up from such a depth, though the equator runs overhead, is cold as hoarfrost. It is ten times certain that no vegetation can grow there.

As in our world none but the vegetables are able to make food, it ought to follow that in the depths of the sea there should be no animal life. As a matter of fact, these glooms are inhabited by the most grotesque and chimerical of all fishes. It would seem as though in the darkness life had taken every imaginable license to be ugly and bizarre. Cannibalism is evidently the only method of life, and its equipment runs to every kind of extravagance.

There are fish with teeth so long that they cannot close their mouths, fish that draw their stomachs over prey larger than themselves, fish with no more mouth than a leech and getting their living as leeches, fish with huge myopic eyes and fish frankly blind. Probably none of them comes from depths quite beyond the region of light, though a great many of them go poking about their ghoulish business furnished with lanterns of the glowworm type.—London Nation.

Old Time Prices.

Perhaps the housewife of today with a turn for economics would like to know what the quaint Dutch vrouws paid for their household supplies in 1675, when bears roamed over Manhattan island not far north of the present city hall and lambs bleated in the meadows around Wall street. Well, pork was 3 pence a pound, beef 2 pence, butter 6 pence, beer 2 pence a mug. Lodging was 2 pence a night, meals 6 pence and board by the week 5 shillings. But then it must be remembered that labor brought only 2 shillings 6 pence a day.—New York Tribune.

Troublesome Account.

"My husband has given me a checking account."

"Isn't that lovely? Now you can buy anything you want and just write out a check for it."

"Yes. I'm rather sorry on one account, though. It seems such a lot of trouble to have to write out a check for one's car fare, especially when the cars are crowded or when you have to pay as you enter."—Chicago Record-Herald.

The Lynx.

The lynx is a great yellow, long legged cat nearly the size of a collie dog, with a stumpy tail and camel's hair pencils on the tips of his ears. His weapons are his claws, and they are terrible weapons, sharp as razors and so large that the imprint of a lynx's paw in the snow is actually almost the size of that of a bear.

Frost.

White frost is the ordinary frozen dew or hoarfrost. Black frost occurs when the cold is so intense as to freeze vegetation and cause it to turn black without the formation of hoarfrost.

Her Influence Outlived Her.

"Why did the widower break his engagement to be married?"

"He feared that he hadn't picked out the kind of woman to suit his first wife."—New York Press.

A SOUND INVESTMENT IN TORONTO REAL ESTATE.

This is what we are offering the readers of "The Times" in our newest Sub-Division:

"CALEDONIA PARK"

Anyone familiar with Toronto will agree with us when we say that the best part of the city for investment to-day is the NORTH-WEST SECTION.

In "CALEDONIA PARK" you may purchase land where the district east, west, and south, is almost entirely built up.

The St. Clair Avenue car line will be in operation in about eight months, as the rails are now laid past our property. This, of course, will cause a decided enhancement in land values in the St. Clair Avenue district. "CALEDONIA PARK" lying just two blocks (about four minutes' walk) north of St. Clair, will naturally benefit very much.

The entire block is RESTRICTED to solid brick, or brick veneer houses, which will provide a district absolutely first class, and where houses will sell from $2700 to $4000 each.

A new brick school is just being completed at a cost of about $100,000, on the south side of INNES AVENUE, ONE OF THE STREETS IN "CALEDONIA PARK."

A local builder has just purchased a large strip of land and SIX solid brick houses will be commenced in a very short time.

Toronto investors, men who know values, are purchasing in "Caledonia Park," as they know there is money to be made at the opening low prices of—

$14 to $25 Per Foot

Write us for complete information. We will gladly forward plans and descriptive folder to any address. We know what we are offering, and can, with confidence, recommend "CALEDONIA PARK" lots to the Investor. Ten days' selling has disposed of $60,000.00 worth of lots.

WE REPEAT—We will refund the railroad fare to any purchaser within 150 miles of Toronto.

You can buy in "CALEDONIA PARK" on VERY EASY TERMS: 20 per cent. down and 20 per cent. every six months.

One feature worthy of note is that these lots are DEEP. We are aware that some properties on the market at the present time are only about eighty feet deep. OUR LOTS AVERAGE 124 FEET IN DEPTH TO A WIDE LANE.

Reservations may be made without risk to the purchaser. We will hold for three days what we consider the best available land. You can look the property over yourself, and if absolutely satisfied, make the purchase. We have many clients who act upon our judgment. They have realized splendid profits. You can do the same.

ROSEDALE LOTS

Most citizens of Peterboro' are aware that Rosedale, of Toronto, is the High Class Residential District of that city. Where naught but blue blood is to be found, and where residence therein is a passport to high society. It was sub-divided and put on the market by a Scotch syndicate about 35 years ago, at $20.00 per front foot, and it is now selling at from $75.00 to $250.00 per foot. About the same time the high class citizens of Peterboro' determined to keep step with Toronto, quickly selected and sub-divided that beautiful block of land north of Smith Street, east of Jackson Park, west from Normal School, and Chemong Road. Having gone so far, they wearied of well-doing, leaving the task of putting on the market to your humble servant, in the late afternoon of life, and because of that lateness, and of the superior High Class Property, I am offering at a fraction of it's value five years hence. I most respectfully solicit your early investigation, believing that when you see the property, hear my price and terms, you will be pleased to accept at once. And as I want the assistance of every good man and woman in this meritorious work of furnishing home-foundations and the safest and most profitable way to invest and save, small or large sums of money. And in return for this assistance I agree to pay 5 per cent. of the net price, at which each lot is sold, to the Treasurer of the Church to which the buyer belongs. I will do this as a precedent for others to follow my example. Payable out of half money received from buyer. Bear in mind, I only own 38 lots in what I have properly named "The Heart of Rosedale", and you or your descendants will buy that property soon, or later at 5 or 10 times my price. Is it not in your interest to buy now, and use or sell later at big profits as many others have done? It is always safe to buy wheat or gold dollars, when they are offered at half value, and that is what you are doing when you buy lots in "The Heart of Rosedale."

Unavoidable delay compels me to name June 5th, as the opening day for sale of those lots. In the meantime, I suggest that every auto owner in the city, in his own interests, not only to go himself, but his big friends with him, to carefully inspect and fully verify my statements.

How to find it—Second block north of Smith St. and west of Dixon, marked by small flags, and five minutes' walk from car line at Jackson's Park.

Plans, and further information will be available in a few days.

THE IMPERIAL BANK.

The Imperial Bank of Canada at its 37th annual General Meeting, demonstrated that such Canadian financial institutions compare a little more than favorably with banks of other countries. The Imperial Bank, during the past fiscal year, has had the most successful record since its inception. It is possible that a further issue of stock may be made. The Bank has found it necessary to deny applications from many places applying for new branches. The general statement of the Bank shows that their securities are of the highest character, the most conservative form of investment and the class that ensures every shareholder that his dollar is worth one hundred cents at least. The staff of the Imperial Bank of Canada has been well selected and is composed of men of the highest standing in Canadian financial circle.

Winnipeg. Man., May 27th, 1912.

GENTLEMEN:—
Is your money earning you THREE HUNDRED PER CENT?

Each one of us is striving towards the goal of self-improvement, the chief factor of which is FINANCIAL INDEPENDENCE.

To those who desire to invest their money in an absolutely safe way with a certain prospect of splendid returns, we can offer an exceptionally good proposition.

The SAINT VITAL SECURITY COMPANY, LIMITED, has recently been incorporated and have purchased a well-located piece of property in SOUTH WINNIPEG in the Parish of Saint Vital, to be immediately sub-divded into lots and placed on the market, netting 300 per cent. on money invested.

So far it has been operating privately, and the amount already subscribed exceeds our most sanguine expectations, but there are still a few shares left, which we can now offer to the public.

If business men recognize it as a sane and safe investment, there can be no question as to its bona-fideness.

The price of each share is One Hundred Dollars ($100).
If you are interested, write for further information. We court the fullest inquiries

Yours truly,

MUSIC AND MISERY.

Ills, Aches and Pains With Which Performers Have to Contend.

Pianist's cramp is more painful than writer's cramp and is the bane of all virtuosos. It is caused by the constant contraction and expansion of the muscles controlling the fingers. It becomes chronic when not guarded against, and many a promising virtuoso's career has been blighted in this way. The only remedy is to rest the overtaxed muscles and then work them up gradually to meet the strain of constant playing.

All concert pianists are subject to split finger tips. The constant stroke of the balls of the fingers on the hard ivory makes the flesh so delicate and tender that frequently playing becomes acute agony.

Violinists suffer a great deal of physical inconvenience. Most of us have an idea that the violin is held against the neck and shoulder by the player's left hand, which grasps the arm of the instrument. All great violin teachers insist that the left hand be left entirely free, and to achieve this the violin is actually held by the player's chin. In this attitude his head is held in a distorted position, and this, working against the elevation of the left arm and shoulder, causes compression of the heart and lungs and curvature of the spine.

Performers on wind instruments suffer many inconveniences, and in some instances their work leads to permanent physical disability. Bulbar paralysis from continued use of the tongue and lips is an ever present danger. Doctors have a fearsome name for the commonest result of wind playing. In plain language it is overdistention of the lungs. This stretching of the lungs from constantly heavy inflation leads to engorgement of the blood in the right cavities of the heart, and this produces dilation of the heart and hypertrophy.

Mental peculiarities of oboe players are traditional in the orchestral world, in spite of the fact that most oboe players are normal. Some explain that the oboe player is mentally affected by the fact that he is forced to blow through an exceedingly small aperture and the expiration is unusually prolonged. Others insist that the peculiarly melancholy quality of the tone produced and the invariable character of the music written for the oboe are responsible for any peculiarities displayed by its executants.

After this somewhat grewsome recital it is cheering to know that one instrument at least can be counted on to bring health and longevity to those who practice it. This is the flute. Doctors recommend it for incipient consumptives, as the operation of playing the instrument involves the precise motion of the lungs of most benefit to the consumptive—that is, full inspiration, not too full or strained, followed by slow and gentle delivery of the breath.—John Warren in Washington Star.

Simplify Your Home Grounds.

Don't inclose your property with hedges. Irregular borders of trees and shrubs are better. Hedges cut up a landscape and ruin it with their hard, artificial lines. Borders harmonize with the environment, have variety and give interest the year round.

Don't bisect your lawn with a drive or avenue.

Don't set trees and shrubs in straight lines except where absolutely necessary, as on streets; group them.

Don't make a circle in the lawn around every shrub. Plant bushes in borders or beds.

Don't trim every bush into a ball, cube or pyramid. Allow trees and shrubs to assume natural forms.—Country Life in America.

Nearly Shot by Proxy.

In 1862 M. Clemenceau served two months' imprisonment for shouting "Vive la Republique!" and in 1871 he was very nearly shot by proxy. He returned to Paris from a provincial speechmaking tour on the day on which Thiers and the Versailiais succeeded in entering the city. Blood was up, and his enemies were looking for him. A young Brazilian who resembled him was arrested in mistake for him and conducted to La Pelniere to be executed. Happily, however, he shouted for the Brazilian consul, and the Brazilian consul turned up in time to rescue him.

Why Sniffle and Sneeze With Catarrhal Cold?

By Breathing the Healing Vapor of Catarrhozone You Can Get Relief in Ten Minutes.

Every second person that you meet seems to have a sneeze and stuffed feeling in the forehead and nostrils. To cure promptly, say, in half an hour, there is nothing worth using except Catarrhozone. You inhale its balsamic vapor, and feel as if you were among the Norway pines. This is because Catarrhozone contains a healing medicine, light as pine air, which is breathed straight into the lungs and bronchial tubes. Away goes the cold; sneezing and catarrhal cough cease, bronchial irritation stops; in short, you are cured of catarrh by a pleasant, simple remedy, free from sedatives and irritants.

That Catarrhozone is a swift, certain means of destroying colds and catarrh is proved by the following statement of Mr. Pulos, one of Brockville's best known merchants:

"In the fall of 1908," writes Mr. Pulos, under date of June 10th, 1910, "I contracted a very severe cold, which developed into catarrh. At that time I was living in New York State and treated with four different physicians, who afforded me no relief. On coming to Brockville I was advised by a friend to try Catarrhozone. I bought the dollar outfit and was gratified by the results. I was completely cured by Catarrhozone, and have used it since to check a cold with unfailing results. It is the grandest medicine in existence, and I hope my testimony will be of some use to other fellow-sufferers."

(Signed) George Pulos.

An ideal protection for the chest, lungs, nose, and throat is the frequent use of Catarrhozone. Two months' treatment (the large size) costs $1.00, medium sizes 50c.; at all dealers or the Catarrhozone Co., Buffalo, N. Y., and Kingston, Canada.

The "Castle" went.

A few of the features of last night's entertainment at the Summer Fair, were the Cafe Chantant, under direction of Mr. Devey, the organist of St. John's church. LITTLE LOCAL LINES

Rain and rubber coats were about the only things seen in Peterborough yesterday.

Good Ceasar's Ghost! What do you think? The probs for to-day are frost early in the morning.

A new mail train is to be put on between Toronto and Montreal, that will furnish Peterborough with a quicker service.

"Slide, Kelly, Slide!" Kelly could easily slide from the home plate right around the whole diamond at Riverside Park now.

Kill that caterpillar, kill him quick. If he lives for 24 hours more it means about 26,000 leaves eaten from trees and shrubs in Peterborough and vicinity.

The local ladies in charge of Peterborough's Summer Fair, and the Peterborough Baseball Club, are both "up against it." Probs is no respector of persons.

The baseball fans for the past two days, must have attended their respective places of business, instead of yelling "Lift her over the brewery fence, Bill!"

Among the "exhibits" captured at the Sunday night raid on the George street "Chinese Laundry," were two opium pipes and a number of opium pills.

A local medical man yesterday, in conversation with That Times regarding the subject of "race suicide" conversation with The Times remarked "Providence knows its business!"

It was generally remarked yesterday that Hon. Col. Sam. Hughes has the unusual gift, for so prominent a politician, of saying more in five minutes than the average orator would get rid of in as many hours.

Curious Results When Tea and Coffee Drinking are Abandoned.

It is almost as hard for an old tea or coffee toper to quit as it is for a whiskey or tobacco fiend to break off, except that the tea or coffee user can quit and take up Postum without any feeling of a loss of the morning beverage.

When Postum is well made and served with cream, it is really better in point of flavor than most of the coffee served nowadays. To the taste of the connoisseur it is like the flavor of fine mild Java.

A great transformation takes place in the body within ten days or two weeks after the tea or coffee is left off and Postum used. The reason is that the poison to the nerves—caffeine—has been discontinued and in its place is taken a liquid food that contains the most powerful elements of nourishment.

It is easy to make this test and prove these statements by changing to Postum. Read "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs.

GOVERNMENT MONEY FOR YOU!!!

Here is what the Hon. F. D. Monk says

Ottawa, May 11th, 1912.

Montreal.

"The Government having again heard you, as well as other delegates on the important question of the Montreal tunnel, has approved of the project, and the matter of bond guarantees has been referred for the consideration of the consulting engineer of the Department of Railways, to whom the documents and other information have been immediately forwarded.

BELLEVILLE

ST. LAMBERT

Positively Adjoins the Tunnel Co.'s Property

Every man who buys a Lot at Belleville at to-day's opening prices, will see the Government increasing the value of his property with every spadeful of earth excavated. But does not rely on the tunnel or the bridge of the near future for its transportation or its present day value.

To-day the Montreal and Southern Counties Railway runs to within a few yards of Belleville. Get off at Coteau Rouge road and follow the signs.

To-day the new electric line is complete along the whole of one side of Belleville, and only awaits the turning on of the electric current for cars to run there.

To-day men are busily at work enlarging the South Shore Subway in order that a still better service may be given to Belleville.

Belleville lots actually adjoin the town of St. Lambert. We mention this because some people consider the South Shore anywhere between Montreal and Boston.

Belleville lots are all GUARANTEED to be the highest and driest anywhere near St. Lambert. Our sidewalks, for instance, will not have to be two feet above the ground level to keep your feet out of the water.

Belleville adjoins a well populated part of St. Lambert, many beautiful HOMES being built right up to the property.

Belleville has churches, schools, and post-office adjoining it.

Belleville is ripe for you to build on to-day, if you wish, and if you want to invest in a safe, sound, profitable real estate.

Belleville—Suppose you fill in the coupon and mail it to us, or bring it to our office and get plans, details, and free car tickets. You ought to see Belleville to-morrow afternoon or Sunday, when you will speedily realize that Belleville is the finest investment on the market.

The late Mr. Atwood is survived by a sorrowing widow, two sons and four daughters. The sons are Messrs. C. A. S. Atwood, Grand Forks, B.C., and G. E. Atwood, of this city, who recently disposed of his interests in the No-veltie Co., of Peterborough. The daughters are, Mrs. Lingwood, Toronto, and the Misses Atwood of Lakefield.

The funeral will be held to-day.

THE TITANIC

"Bend Down In Tenderest Pity And Take Us Unto Thee."

(Published by Request.)

A gallant ship was sinking, and cries of dark despair,
Of frantic pain and terror, rose on the midnight air.
Her decks were thickly crowded, men, women, children there;
Hope's star had shone before them and life had seemed so fair;
But now stern death confronts them, death 'neath the icy waves.
And many there must perish, for none can help or save.

There's wealth aboard that vessel and youth and beauty rare,
And men endowed with talent, and courage, too, are there;
But now amidst this terror, all earthly help must fail,
The arts of men must perish, and only God avail.
Husbands from wives are parting, with grief no words can tell,
And children scream with terror, and hearts with anguish swell.
And some, perhaps, are fighting for life in mad despair,
While some on God are calling in humble hope and prayer.

But hark! what strains of music fall on the listening ear,
Above the wild confusion, telling of hope and cheer;
"Nearer, My God, to Thee," O blessed heavenly strain;
It triumphs over grief and fear, and turneth wrath to gain;
And drooping souls are lifted, and fainting hearts gain cheer;
Though things on earth may fail them, the mighty God is near.

The ship is sinking swiftly, the last faint hope is gone,
Yet, as the waves engulf them, those dauntless men play on.
O little band of heroes: O stout of heart and brave,
The sting from death is taken; ye triumph o'er the grave;
And though our tears fall thickly and hearts are wrung with pain,
By faith we catch the echo of that triumphant strain.

O may we as a nation, bow 'neath the chastening rod,
And may the cross laid on us still draw us nearer God.
And when to each there cometh the end of all things here,
Let faith then rise triumphant, o'ercoming doubt and fear.
Then, Lord of love and mercy, let us thy goodness see;
Bend down in tenderest pity and take us unto Thee.

VOL. XXXIX, NO. 136 PETERBOROUGH, ONTARIO, FRIDAY, MAY 31, 1912 PRICE, TWO CENTS.

THE PROVINCE OF ONTARIO FAVOURS A GENERAL MARRIAGE LAW FOR THE DOMINION, IF AUTHORIZED

EDWARD BLAKE IN FAVOUR OF QUEBEC'S STANDPOINT

I. F. Hellmuth Argues That The Late Constitutional Lawyer Upheld Power of Provinces.

Ottawa, May 30.—The expectation to-day is that the conclusion of the argument in the reference to the Supreme Court by the Dominion Government of the questions on the Lancaster Marriage Bill will be reached before Court rises this afternoon.

Mr. I. F. Hellmuth, K.C., Toronto who yesterday began his argument for the opponents of the bill on the constitutional and jurisdictional aspects of the questions, resumed when court opened this morning. The two Quebec representatives, Messrs. R. C. Smith, K.C., and Aimee Geoffrion, K.C., of Montreal, follow in the argument, which will be concluded with replies from Hon. Mr. Nesbitt, K.C., and Mr. Eugene Lafleur, K.C., for the promoters.

When court resumed this morning, Justice Idington questioned Mr. Hellmuth as to the appointment of Church of England clergymen in Canada after the conquest in 1769.

Mr. Hellmuth: "They were appointed by the Crown and the Bishop of London."

Counsel continued that solemnization was a very important part in making for the validity of a marriage. He then proceeded to read an excerpt from the speech of the late Hon. Edward Blake, delivered when the deceased's wife's sister bill was before the Canadian Parliament on February 27, 1880.

Sir Louis Davies: "Are you quoting from the original?"

Mr. Hellmuth: "No, I could not secure the Hansard containing the speech, so I am reading from Hansard of January 22, 1912, in which the quotation was made."

The Chief Justice: "I am afraid I am the culprit. I have the original in my room."

Blake Backed Provinces.

Hon. Mr. Blake's opinion as stated in his speech, was to the effect that nothing should be done to interfere with the rights of the Provinces to solemnize marriage. "This is the opinion of a great constitutional lawyer," Mr. Hellmuth declared.

Justice Idington: "Yes, but made in opposition to another speech."

Mr. Hellmuth: "Hon. Mr. Blake was a great constitutional lawyer, and it was not likely in the Dominion Parliament he would waive any right of that Parliament at that time. He recognized that the requisites of marriage stood with the Provinces."

Counsel then quoted extensively from the laws of England relating to the marriage of Jews and Quakers. "The Parliament of England recognized in 1836 and subsequently with regard to Quakers and Jews," he said, "that the validity of their marriages depended on the religion of the persons married and the person performing the ceremony. I contend that all religions came under the same laws in this regard."

"This act may be of very little offence," Mr. Hellmuth stated, "but it does offend against the rights of the Provinces in subject matter. I can't say what great or little harm it may do, but it infringes on the Provincial ground and will apply to future Acts of the Provinces for which local conditions may necessitate legislation. There is absolutely no regard to the religious belief of the parties in the Act."

Rabbi Could Marry All.

Justice Duff—"Then in your opinion any Anglican or Roman Catholic could be legally married by a Jewish rabbi or any other minister under the Act?"

Mr. Hellmuth—"Certainly, my Lord. It would be one marriage law for anybody and the minister or rabbi could marry any one."

In reply to Justice Duff who assumed the case of the marriage of a Chinaman and a Canadian woman, Mr. Hellmuth said it only made his case stronger for Provincial Dominance in solemnization.

DUKE BROUGHT TEARS TO "BOYS" AT PRISON FARM

Guelph, May 30.—The special train conveying the Royal party arrived here at 3 o'clock this morning. The party remained on the train at the station until 10, when the train was run to the prison farm, where an inspection of the buildings under the course of construction was made.

When the "boys" of the farm filed into dinner, his Royal Highness addressed them briefly. From the prison farm the party proceeded in autos to the Agricultural College. Luncheon was served to the party, and to the heads of the departments of the college, after which an inspection of the Experimental Farm was made, under charge of Dr. Creelman, president of the college.

Were Moved to Tears.

Silence that was almost tense fell on the 270 prisoners in the assembly when the Duke commenced to speak. He stood out in the open aisle between the rows of long tables, lined by the diners, and in simple, sincere language, expressed his sentiments at meeting the men gathered around him. The prisoners had been greatly impressed by the freedom with which he and the members of the party had moved about among them, conversing with this one and that. The Duke's words, unpremeditated, went straight to the hearts of the prisoners. As he spoke, eyes filled with tears, and three young men wept, so touched were they by the message of the Governor-General.

"Mr. Hanna has invited me to say a few words to you and I am glad of the opportunity," said his Royal Highness. "I have been greatly impressed by what I have seen here this morning. This establishment seems to me to be worked on such lines that it cannot crush out the self-respect of any of you here.

"However far astray many of you may have been led, you are all treated here with human sympathy, are taught a trade or profession, and turned out into the world perhaps more useful men than when you entered.

Hope for the Future.

"All of us have two sides to our character, the weak and the strong. In some of us the weak side gets the better, others are able to make the strong prevail. I hope all of you will leave here stronger men. Nothing gives one in authority more pain than to be compelled to be an instrument of oppression to one's fellowmen. But in your case, the law has truly been tempered with mercy, while the ends of justice still are met.

"I will not say that I hope to meet you here again, but I will say that I hope to see you in distant parts of Canada, living as free and self-respecting men, citizens of this great country, sharing in all the rights and privileges of free men under the British flag."

DAUGHTERS OF EMPIRE TAKE A NEW NAME TO THEMSELVES

Toronto, May 30.—Imperial Order Daughters of the Empire, until today the "Imperial Order of the Daughters of the Empire," convened at the Foresters' Hall, College street at 10.30 this morning, and began a revision of the Constitution. Seventy eight delegates, from coast to coast had registered by noon, and the number may be doubled by to-morrow, when the annual meeting proper will take place.

When President, Mrs. A. E. Gooderham took the chair this morning, she made a statement referring to unofficial circulars sent out.

"Before we go into the constitution I want to call the attention of the delegates to the fact that since last October there have been at least five unofficial documents sent to the various chapters without the knowledge of the National Chapter. They were sent to the National Chapter by interested members of the order. It is not my intention to refer at any length to these documents, but it is felt by the national executive that some reference must be made to those referring to the policy of the I.O.D.E., and they wish me to say that this present executive, which has been directing the affairs of the order for the past seven months, has not departed in the slightest degree from the policy of the last twelve years."

Time is Needed.

Going into detail, Mrs. Gooderham added:

"In reference to No. 1 on the Leaflet: That there shall be Provincial Chapters formed at once in every Province, we have made every effort to form Provincial Chapters in two Provinces, but it was decided by the Chapters themselves that as the constitution was being revised, the completion of these Chapters should be delayed until after the annual meeting. We feel that it is hardly fair to expect the National Chapter to do in six months what has not been done in eleven years."

THE CATHOLIC REGISTER

Another Broadside From the Organ in Toronto.

Below we publish a number of extracts taken from the Catholic Register, of Toronto, which will no doubt be read with interest. Our contemporary evidently has little use for the Orange Order:

"'Christians first and Presbyterians afterwards' is the slogan of the Rev. Dr. Chapman, who is trying to wean the Ruthenians of Newark away from their faith. He evidently believes that Presbyterianism is a brand of religion which can be taken by the new-converted in homeopathic doses only.

* * * * *

"The best we can wish our neighbors across the way is that the "Guardians of Liberty" will assume serious proportions. There is nothing that stirs the fighting blood of Catholics like an A. P. Ape movement. So here's hoping that the back stairs conspirators will become strong enough to trouble their slumbers and stir up those who will fight for their religion sooner than practise it.

* * * * *

"General Bernhardi says that his country (Germany) intends to make war on England, when convenient. About the time that the Orangemen of Ulster are out in arms against England will be Germany's choice opportunity. But will that time ever come and will not the South Tipperary Militia by themselves be able to "pacify" the Orangemen? We trow yes, and the boys are badly in need of a bit of "divarshion," too.

* * * * *

"'Ulster threatens to rend Empire,' is the announcement made in a despatch from the mother-country. Ulster 'loyalty' has been a good deal of a joke for a long time. First it tried to deprive Queen Victoria of the right to the English throne; later on it threatened to kick her crown into the Boyne, and to-day it is buying revolvers to resist the King's troops. If this thing keeps up we may be forced to send a dozen Toronto policemen, armed with bladders, to put down the Ulster rebellion. The 'treason' of the Ulster wind-bags is as harmless as the anti-clericalism of our own fire-eating contemporary, the Toronto Telegram.

* * * * *

A certain James Hines, of Brandon, Manitoba, asks for detailed information about Catholic extension, through the columns of the Northwest Review. On close inspection of our books we fail to find that the inquisitive James is not represented on our list of donors. If he be a church-goer, and in any way interested in what the good Brandon redemptorists are doing among the Ruthenians, he would have found that Extension has aided them considerably without his assistance. James is probably one of the long-eared species whose religious efforts are confined entirely to braying.

* * * * *

Does it ever occur to the congregations of these fire-eating, calumniating preachers that they are responsible for their utterances, and that the false and malicious statements made about their Catholic brothers compromise them everyone equally seriously. Would any decent Protestant like to repeat of his Catholic neighbors what these people say of them? No, decided no; and still they will imagine that they are not held to reprove their preachers whom they do not believe, whom they declare to be ignorant and narrow-minded, or the vile and malicious traducers whom they hear in private or public places revile Catholicity and its adherents. The day has come when honest non-Catholics, for their own vindication, must reprove the unwarranted attacks against their fellow-citizens and their dearest possession, the Catholic religion. Cities like Toronto, too, are too long known for blatant ignorance and fanaticism.

THE TREATING LAW.

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—The Ontario Government is going to pass a law to prevent a man from treating his friend and to prevent a man accepting a drink from a friend. There is no getting round the fact that the treating system of this country leads to a lot of useless and senseless drinking. Still, if the liberty of a British subject is to be respected, it seems to me that Mr. Whitney's proposed law is ultra vires and unconstitutional.

THE GAMES OF CHANCE.

Editor Morning Times

Sir,—I see, in a local contemporary, a letter taking exception to the cigarette booth and the "Fortune Teller's" stand at the local Summer Fair. This epistle was signed visitor and he must only have visited Warsaw or Norwood in his whole existence, or his mind would be broader. If in a Summer Fair like that held in Peterborough this week, two or three ladies of high standing in the social community give their time to tell fortunes, where's the harm. Any reasonable man, woman, or child going in to get his or her fortune told, knows that he or she is only taking part in a joke. That the trifling sum paid goes to charity. Why should visitor make this kick?

MADE MILLIONS SELLING PLANTS TO STEEL TRUST.

JOHN STEVENSON, JR

John Stevenson, Jr., Scottish by birth, wit and accent, about whom Andrew Carnegie once said, "He's the only man who ever refused to go into partnership with me," delved into the prosaic subject of steel at the government's suit being pushed in New York to dissolve the Steel Trust and told how he had rolled up millions by selling steel companies to men of the type of John W. Gates in such droll fashion that he kept counsel and spectators in a constant roar of merriment.

Mr. Stevenson lives in Sharon, Pa. Having accumulated a fortune large enough to place him among the "big men" of the country by his adroit manipulation of steel plants, he has retired and, as he put it, "sits by like friend 'Andy' watchin' the other fellows [illegible] 'bout terrible."

BOTH GOVERNMENTS WILL HAVE THEIR INDIVIDUAL UNITS

Ottawa, May 30.—The announcement that Premier Borden will leave on June 26th for England along with Hon. J. D. Hazen and one other Minister to consult the Admiralty in regard to a naval policy, has started a number of rumors as to proposed schemes. Plan which it is said, will be submitted to the admiralty for approval is that Great Britain maintain naval units of two Dreadnoughts, four cruisers, torpedo and auxiliaries, on both the Atlantic and the Pacific. Canada would pay for the upkeep and build drydocks. Mr. Borden denied that anything definite had been decided. It is probable that this scheme as well as others, will be discussed by the Canadian Ministers with the Admiralty.

It is the aim of the Government to establish a broad and advanced policy which will have the approval of all loyal Canadians.

GRAND TRUNK TO TAKE BACK ALL THE MEN WHO STRUCK

Ottawa, Ont., May 30.—Hon. T. W. Crothers, Minister of Labor, has definite assurances that the new management of the Grand Trunk Railway will give employment to all men engaged in the strike of 1910, not heretofore taken back, whose case was favorably reported by Judge Barron, and who may apply to their local superintendent for work.

While they may not be able at this date to put all such men in their old places, the best possible will be done for them, as the new management is honestly disposed to establish the most friendly relations with their employes.

A HOTEL FOR SUICIDES

Count Boni Has Brilliant Plan to Enable Those So Desiring to Shuffle off Easily.

Troy, N. Y., May 30.—Arguing that death was prolonged slumber, and that a man had a perfect right to seek slumber whenever he pleased, Count August Seymore, who boasts that he is the first cousin of Count Boni de Castellane, declared at the Rensselaer Hotel, Troy, last night that his one ambition in life was to establish a hotel where people might commit suicide whenever and however they chose.

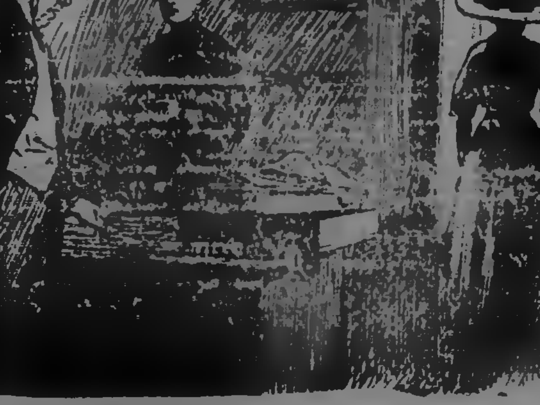
"This is my plan," the count said. "I open a hotel, we call it 'Paradise Found,' or some other beautiful name. The man who is tired of life comes here. He enters the hotel and registers.

"The clerk asks, 'A room with or without, sir.' He means with or without cremation. Very well, the guest wants it with. The clerk remarks, 'That will be $175—yes, in advance, please.'

"The guest knows all about the place, and why he has come there. He goes to his room—then pouff!"

WORKMAN UNCOVERED LOOT

Boston, May 30.—A workman digging a post hole at Monmouth Beach yesterday unearthed a tin pail containing $12,000 worth of jewelry, part of a loot taken by a burglar on a raid through the summer colony there last September.



PROPRIETOR OF MILLINERY SHOP—"Why didn't that lady buy anything?"
NEW ASSISTANT—"Because we hadn't got what she wanted."
PROPRIETOR—"You'll kindly remember in future, Miss, that you're here to sell what we keep, and not what people want."

ONTARIO GOVERNMENT KNEW NOTHING OF THE BANK

Col. Matheson Was Misled by Monthly Reports, Which Showed a Strong Financial Position.

Toronto, May 30.—At the resumed inquiry into the affairs of the Farmers Bank this morning, Mr. Clarkson the liquidator, stated that The Toronto World account had been paid off in full yesterday.

Before proceeding to the details of the account and The World's deposit with the bank, Mr. Clarkson asked permission to correct certain statements in the daily press credited to him.

He denied that he had ever said or believed that the Keeley mine was worthless. On the contrary, before the collapse of the bank, about $30,000 had been produced by the mine. He believed that further development would result in benefit to the shareholders of the bank. But the expense of liquidating the bank, he said would be heavy.

"Not two out of the five securities but have been under litigation. Very few of the securities that were taken by the bank were worth taking. Mr. Travers was the only man capable of knowing which were good; his staff was not.

Directors Were Incapable.

"As for the original directorate, I regard them as having been totally incapable of managing the affairs of any bank."

Mr. Hodgins then addressed himself to a further inquiry into the account of The Toronto World, interrogating Mr. Travers. The latter said that he was personally acquainted with Mr. W. H. Greenwood, former managing director of The World, but knew Mr. Maclean, the proprietor only by sight.

Mr. Hodgins—"What about the deposit? Was there any improper pressure brought to bear?"

Mr. Travers—"No, I got the deposit because I did not want my reserve depleted."

Mr. Hodgins—"Was the borrowing account large?"

Mr. Travers—"About $16,000."

Mr. Hodgins—"Did you believe it safe?"

Mr. Travers—"Yes, I believed that Mr. Maclean was good for it."

"Looking at the liability ledger of the Toronto branch I find that the first transaction of the World Newspaper Company was made Jan. 10, 1908, and I cannot connect the two," declared Mr. Travers, referring to a letter from Mr. Greenwood written in 1907.

"That was the first loan to The World Newspaper Company?" asked Mr. Hodgins.

"Yes, that was the first advance—a discount of $200."

AT LEAST ONE FIRE SUB-STATION MUST BE PROVIDED

CITY FIRE, WATER AND LIGHT COMMITTEE IN BUSINESS SESSION.

Satisfactory Understanding Between Water Commissioners and C.G.E. Reached—Committee Will Not Send Delegation to Convention of Fire Chiefs at Denver, Col.—Princess Street Will Be Allowed a Hydrant—New Uniforms and Caps for Firemen to be Advertised.

The City's Fire, Water and Light Committee met last night. There were present Mayor W. H. Bradburn, Chairman Ald. Johnston, Aldermen Anderson, Morgan and Gordon.

Messrs. T. F. Matthews and W. H. Moore, Water Commissioners were present, and contended that in connection with the conveyance of that part of Townsend street west of Park to the C.G.E. for extension purposes, the company in lieu thereof to convey to the city a strip of land north of their property, the C.G.E. should pay the Water Commissioners $1067, the cost of the water main and two hydrants laid on the portion of Townsend street in question, for protection of the C.G.E. premises. Mr. Matthews thought it would be only just for the company to convey to the corporation a street upon which there are the same improvements as on that part of Townsend street acquired by them. This view would be met by the company purchasing outright the main and hydrants acquired by them in the present deal. The cash thus obtained could be applied to laying a main and hydrants on the street conveyed to the city by the C.G.E. Co.

Mr. E. G. Patterson, manager of the C.G.E. Co., did not agree with the Water Commissioners. He offered that several years ago, the company agreed with the city to put up a building in this locality and employ more hands. This agreement included a clause providing for the laying of a water main with two hydrants, for fire protection purposes. And the very minute this property is conveyed to the C.G.E., the company will be charged rental for the water main and hydrants in question. The city, by the interchange of land, will get in the new street a continuance of Wolfe street, which will encourage the erection of new residences, thus ensuring a growth in revenue to the Water Commissioners for water service. Mr. Patterson in conclusion contended that in any event the estimated cost of $1.20 a foot for the water main is excessive. However, he was willing to meet the Water Commissioners' views in any reasonable way.

A brief consideration of the situation resulted in Mr. Patterson consenting to enter into arrangement with the Water Commissioners based upon one of the two following conditions: First—That the C.G.E. Co. pay interest and sinking fund—6½ per cent.—on the actual cost of the laying of this water main and hydrants, until the debentures are retired. These debentures have about 20 years to run. Secondly—That the company purchase outright, at any time, the main and the two hydrants in question.

In entering into either of the above arrangements, the company will be free from any rental to the Water Commissioners for this main and connected hydrants.

Convention of Fire Chiefs.

Fire Chief Howard asked that he and the chairman and one member of the Fire, Water and Light Committee be delegates to attend the annual convention of Fire Chiefs at Denver, Colorado, September 17th to 20th.

Moved by Ald. Anderson, seconded by the Mayor.—That no action be taken.—Carried.

Ald. Anderson said the sending of such a delegation to so distant a point would be a waste of money.

The Fire Chief—"Will you gentlemen not agree that I attend this convention, even if the city does not shoulder the entire expense? Allow me the same amount as last year—$100, and I'll pay the balance out of my own pocket."

The committee did feel warranted in consenting even to this, but promised to give the matter subsequent consideration.

Hydrant for Princess St.

Moved by Mayor Bradburn, seconded by Ald. Morgan.—That a hydrant for Princess street be granted, the chairman to define its location.—Carried.

Building By-law.

This measure came up for informal discussion. The question of extending the fire limits, and possibly making the by-law broader in its provisions was also gone into. Committee regretted that in past years favoritism had prevailed in regard to the erection of prohibited structures within the fire limits, and that prosecution had not followed deliberate violation of the building by-law. The committee will at an early date take up the by-law with a view to making what they consider needed improvements, after which the measure will be strictly enforced.

Fire Sub-Station.

The committee is agreed that at least one fire sub-station is urgently needed—particularly in south city for the more adequate protection of our manufacturers—and the scheme is under earnest consideration for early action. The Fire Underwriters are also urging such improvement in our fire protection system.

New Uniforms.

The committee will invite tenders for new firemen's uniforms and caps.

DOURO ELECTS REEVE

Mr. Bat Leahy is Elected Over Mr. Sullivan to Succeed Mr. Moher, By 32 Majority.

Yesterday an election was held in the fair township of Douro to determine its new Reeve. It will be remembered that Mr. Frank Moher, the former Reeve, recently resigned his position to move to the west, where, as previously noted in The Times he has gone. The election yesterday was somewhat quiet, possibly on account of the recent continuous rain. The candidates for the Reeveship were Messrs. B. Leahy and M. D. Sullivan. Mr. Leahy was the choice of the township, by a majority of 32.

GEORGE STREET CHURCH CHOIR AT THE FAIR

Although the ladies who put forth such splendid effort over the Summer Fair have been handicapped, all week, by the continuous wet weather, there was a good attendance present last night. A leading feature of the evening was the splendid concert given by George street Methodist church choir and orchestra, under leadership of Mr. W. H. Cunningham. Among the most notable features presented were the choruses, including the "Soldiers' Chorus," by Gounod, "In this Hour of Softened Splendor," selections from the Bohemian Girl, and the Viking song. The solo parts were ably taken by Miss I. Sanderson and Mrs. J. H. Renwick. "The Old Brigade" by the male quartette, was received with great applause. Miss Moss gave a very interesting reading. Messrs. J. and W. Miller gave that ever popular "Life's Dream is O'er." Miss Pearl McKee acted as pianist in good style.

PINE TAR CORDIAL

NUGENT'S SARSAPARILLA—PRICE FOR large bottle, 100 full doses, 85c, and well worth it, too. It's better to take no medicine at all than to depend upon cheap concoctions that are compounded to sell at a low price and a big profit just because there is a large demand for certain remedies at certain seasons of the year. There are socalled Sarsaparillas offered to us to sell to our customers at 75c a bottle that would bring us a larger profit than Nugent's Sarsaparilla sold at 85c. Nugent's Sarsaparilla purifies the blood, arouses the torpid liver, drives out all impurities, cleanses and tones up the system, and helps Nature throw off the dullness that comes from the indoor life of winter. It arouses energy, brightens the eye, clears the brain, gives lightness to the movements. Nugent's Sarsaparilla is not the only thing you will find in this drug store. We make a specialty of Nugent's Remedies. Nugent Drug Co., 380 George St. directly opposite Creeman's store.

HIDDEN TREASURE.

An Ancient Church That Is Said to Guard a Precious Secret.

A small building popularly known as "The Church of Hidden Treasure" stands in the little town of Bareias, N. M. During the Mexican war many of the richest families in the neighborhood hid their gold and valuables in all sorts of curious places.

Senor Sandoval, a very rich landowner, chose the thick walls of the village church as his treasure vault, according to a writer in the Wide World, and tradition says that the precious hoard has never been removed.

Only a few years ago several groups of men, armed with pickaxes, crowbars and other implements, besieged the place in search of the fabulous wealth said to be concealed somewhere on the premises. The treasure is believed to be contained in a large wooden chest, such as most of the wealthy Mexicans formerly possessed. It is claimed that the box contained thousands of dollars in gold, besides emeralds, diamonds and pearls, set in pure native gold.

The Sandoval family, however, guard the place most carefully, while they in turn are jealously watched to see that they do not disturb the church property. Bold and daring plans are sometimes laid, but nothing seems to come of them, and the ancient building still guards its precious secret.

Utah's Lofty Mountains.

The Uinta range is one of the most impressive in the United States. King's peaks tower above great canyons and capacious amphitheaters, reaching a height of 13,496 and 13,498 feet. Mount Emmons is but slightly less elevated, with an altitude of 13,428 feet, while many other peaks rise above 13,000 feet. Considered in its past and present, the region of the Uinta mountains is a wonderful country, deeply interesting geologically, of great economic importance, picturesque and beautiful. Traveling westward after long miles of commonplace scenery, the Uintas loom up grandly, while features of beauty are the innumerable lakes and meadows made possible by the glacial scouring. From the summit of Bald mountain, for instance, four great basins extend before the eye. Nestling among the pine forests at least seventy lakes may be counted. Scattered throughout the forests there are also numerous meadows. Above the forests rise some of the most majestic peaks of the Uintas.—Guy Elliott Mitchell, United States Geological Survey, in Leslie's.

Distasteful Taffy.

The late Senator Hoar of Massachusetts was dining at his hotel in Washington when an effusive stranger sat down near him. The stranger introduced himself to Senator Hoar and immediately launched into a eulogy of the senator in the most glowing terms. He taffied the senator for ten minutes, much to that statesman's apparent discomfort.

Finally he said:

"Why, only the other day, senator, a man with whom I was traveling told me you are the greatest patriot and the greatest orator and the greatest statesman New England ever sent to the senate! He was a well informed man. I met him only the other day when he was on his way—on his way—to—odd, I can't remember—on his way to"—

"A lunatic asylum?" snapped Hoar.—Saturday Evening Post.

The Oldest Bank.

The Palazzo San Giorgio on the Piazza Caricamento, Genoa, has played an important role in the history of this Italian city and of the world of business. It was built in 1260 by order of Guglielmo Boccanegra, captain of the republic of Genoa, and, after serving as his residence, was the headquarters of the celebrated company and bank of St. George. Our modern system of banking sprang from this historic edifice, and the Societa delle Compere di San Giorgio was the first limited liability company. The architect of the place was a monk named Oliviero. Although its architecture has undergone a number of changes the facade still speaks eloquently of the thirteenth century. Its arcades with pointed arches and its windows formed of little columns are exceedingly charming.—Wide World.

When Leather Was Money.

Leather was very early used as a currency, the Romans employing it for this purpose before either gold, silver or brass came into common use. History is full of references showing that leather was used by the ancients as a sort of circulating medium of exchange. It is said on good authority that so late as during the reign of Louis XII. of France the country became so impoverished and as a consequence money was so scarce that little pieces of leather with a small silver nail driven through each were in general use as money. Some few specimens of this leather money are still in existence, but are only to be found in the possession of numismatists, by whom they are highly prized.

Malleability of Gold.

The malleability of gold is so great that a single grain may be divided into 2,000,000 parts and a cubic inch into [illegible] parts, each of which may be distinctly seen by the naked eye. A grain and a half of gold may be beaten into leaves of one inch square, which, if intersected by parallel lines drawn at right angles to each other and distance only the one-hundredth part of an inch, will produce 25,000,000 little squares, each of which may be distinctly seen without the aid of a glass.

Crooks Avoid This City.

The swindler, Roland C. M. Douglas, who was sentenced last Monday by his Honor Judge Roger at Cobourg, to two years in Kingston Penitentiary, is the man who some time ago operated in Lindsay. Such crooks seem to avoid Peterborough as steadily and conscientiously as does a tramp pass by a threshing bee. "There is a reason," and its name is Deffetive Newhall and the Peterborough police.

SENATOR VANCE'S WIT.

The Trick He Turned on a Rival In a Campaign Meeting.

The late Senator Vance used to say that his liveliest campaign for the governorship of North Carolina was that in which Judge Settle ran against him. They stumped the state in joint debate. All the white Democrats turned out to hear Vance and all the colored Republicans to hear Settle. On one occasion Vance was informed that some young ladies desired to testify their devotion to the Democratic party by kissing the Democratic candidate for governor. Nothing loath, Vance descended from the platform and kissed a dozen or so of the young beauties and then paused long enough to turn around toward his competitor and shout, "Settle, I'm kissing my girls; now kiss yours."

When he married the second time he said to his wife on their wedding day: "My dear, I'm a stubborn fellow, and you may anticipate trouble. Now, in the beginning, while I am submissive I want to give you one piece of advice. If you follow it we'll get on mighty well. It is this: Make me do just as I darned please."

A newspaper man who was about starting for a rather out of the way portion of Vance's own state was asking him one day what kind of accommodation he was likely to find. "They'll give you some of their fried hog and eggs," the senator replied. "That's better than nothing," said the newspaper man. "I don't know—I don't know," the senator answered in a dubious tone. "I've tried both."—Argonaut.

KEEN SIGHTED GULLS.

Tests That Proved the Wonderful Vision of the Birds.

There is perhaps no other bird of land or sea so keen of sight as the common gull. To convince a skeptical friend of this, an American naturalist once made some interesting experiments.

The two men were passengers on a steamer where the spring ebb aided them to run twenty miles an hour. A dozen gulls followed them in the steamer's wake without apparent effort and circled in graceful curves over the water.

Breaking a cracker biscuit into four parts less than an inch square each, the naturalist handed one piece to his friend and told him to drop it into the seething waters on the starboard.

Immediately the bit of biscuit became invisible to human eyes, and yet before it had gone thirty yards astern a gull detected it and, dipping into the foam, secured it. One by one it picked up the other bits of biscuit, though neither of the two men could see them.

Tearing off a postage stamp from an old envelope, the naturalist dropped it overboard. The gull detected the waif and made as if to pick it up. But when within a yard or so of it the bird saw that it was nothing in his line and glided upward again to his favorite station on a line with the topmost truck.—New York Tribune.

Bizet's Red Ribbon.

Bizet, the author of the popular opera "Carmen," who died a month after its first production, was not at any time a lucky man. He was even decorated through a mistake, says a writer, "for his friends, presaging the failure of 'Carmen,' bombarded the minister before the production and begged a decoration for M. George Bizet. 'Bizet?' asked the minister. 'Who is Bizet?' 'A remarkable genius,' was the reply, 'who has already produced several extraordinarily fine works. Among them the most popular is perhaps "L'Arlesienne."' '"L'Arlesienne?"' interrupted the minister. 'Why, it is a perfectly fascinating book. I read it with extreme pleasure. Tell your friends that the thing is done.' The minister was not musical, but he had read a novel by Alphonse Daudet, and Bizet won his red ribbon."

Real Chivalry.

Men passengers in the old horse omnibuses of years ago had greater opportunities than at present of showing their politeness to women, especially on wet nights. One remembers the conductor's request as he swung his dripping form from the "monkey board" to the doorway.

"Will any gentleman ride outside to oblige a woman?" And there was always the gentleman whose chivalry prompted him to give up his seat, climb the steep steps to the "knife board" on top and complete his journey in the pouring rain.—London Standard.

Nature.

Nature is the armory of genius. Cities serve it poorly, books and colleges at second hand. The eye craves the spectacle of the horizon, of mountain, ocean, river and plain, the clouds and stars, actual contact with the elements, sympathy with the seasons as they rise and roll.—Alcott.

One Idea of Entertainment.

"Isn't that Mrs. Templeton-Brown the most entertaining creature?"

"I noticed the crowd around her. What was she talking about?"

"Why, about the awful things that happened to her when she was in the hospital."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Only Fault.

"Is your husband a good man?"

"Yes. He's a good man. I can't complain. But he always sneaks out the back way whenever the minister calls."—Washington Herald.

What the superior man seeks is in himself. What the small man seeks is in others.—Confucius.

WM. J. BALDWIN, ESQ., Mayor of the Town of Aurora.
W. PERCY GILLESPIE, ESQ., W. Percy Gillespie & Co., Investment Brokers, Toronto, Ont.

In offering these shares for investment, we feel that we are inviting the public to purchase stock in an industry in which the profits are very large, and the demand for the product is ever increasing.

It is a well known fact that the shares of our Canadian Tanneries are very closely held, and the public seldom have an opportunity of procuring any.

On March 11th, 1912, the Burgesses of the Town of Aurora voted in favor of granting The Collis Leather Company, Limited, a cash bonus of Ten Thousand Dollars, the Company's property is exempt from Taxation for Ten Years (except school tax) and it has also been granted water from the Town free for all time.

The factory is now under construction, to be completed on or before the 1st Day of July, 1912, and will be 150 feet long by 50 feet wide, and four storys high.

The Company's specialty will be the manufacture of calf leather.

Mr. Walter Collis has had over Thirty Years' experience as a tanner, and thoroughly understands all departments of the business. Mr. Collis will have direct charge of the Tannery.

The capacity of the factory will be Eighteen Hundred calfskins per day, or an average of Eighteen Thousand Feet per day. A most conservative estimate of the net profit is one-half cents per foot.

Estimated Net Profits:

18,000 ft. per day, one-half cent per foot, $90.00, with 300 working days per year ...	$27,000.00
Less business insurance and depreciation per year	7,000.00
Or approximately 20 per cent on entire issued capital.	$20,000.00

The Company has purchased from Mr. Collis all his Tanning formula, and will issue in payment thereof One Hundred shares of fully paid up stock.

Of the total amount of shares offered for sale, the Directors have subscribed for more than one-third.

The terms are 25 per cent on application, 25 per cent in Thirty, 25 per cent in Sixty, and 25 per cent in Ninety days.

We reserve the right to allot only such applications, and for such amounts as may be approved; the application lists may be closed without notice.

IMPERIAL DEFENCE

In spite of the British Government's repeated overtures for a mutual scaling down of armaments Germany has again increased the number of warships which it is laying down. Great Britain's reply is three-fold. (1) It has re-arranged its defensive forces so as to draw an especially strong cordon of torpedo craft along that portion of its coast which borders on the North Sea. (2) It has announced its determination to keep ahead of Germany in the construction of battleships. (3) It has appealed to Canada and the other oversea dominions to join effectively in Imperial defence.

The News says that as First Lord of the Admiralty Mr. Churchill has drawn an admirable outline of the situation. England faces a fresh struggle for that mastery of the sea that is essential to its continued existence as a free nation and equally essential to the welfare of the world-wide British Empire. At present England has its hands full in concentrating its strength in decisive theatres in European waters. The heart of the Empire has to be successfully defended or the whole will go to pieces and be at the mercy of an aggressive foreign power. In case of danger in outlying portions of the King's domains the Mother Country is prepared to despatch emergency expeditions to their aid. Squadrons of battle ships will be sent out in defence of Canada or any other portion of the Empire that may be menaced or whose vital interests may be threatened.

The Old Country will not hesitate to make great sacrifices for the protection of this and other British Dominions, but Mr. Churchill thinks, and Canadians will agree, that a corresponding obligation rests upon the self-governing colonies. "Here," says the First Lord, "is the great opportunity for the overseas dominions, those strong young nations, which have grown up under the shelter of the British flag, and by the stimulus of its protection. They have already begun to seize it. Already we have seen the development in Australia of a strong modern fleet unit. New Zealand has contributed a noble ship to the general service of the British navy."

Canadian Ministers, he adds, will be in London almost immediately to consult with the Admiralty concerning adequate naval defence, and he expects the next few years to see such a development of sea strength on the part of the daughter states as will ensure the security of the Empire against all comers. Throughout this Dominion there will be a warm response to this clear presentation of a situation fraught with vital import to the Empire at large. From the Prime Minister of Canada, now visiting Toronto, we have had clear indications that his Government means to do its whole duty by Canada and the Empire, and the next few months should witness announcements from Ottawa and Westminster that will convince all foreign nations that on the sea, as elsewhere, the British Empire stands united, not for aggressive purposes, but for the effective defence of all its parts upon whatever ocean they are located.

ELECTRIFICATION OF ROADS.

The press of the United States claim that the government should lose no time in getting together on a plan for the electrification of the steam railroads hereabouts. Although it is pretty certain that an electrification bill, duly safeguarding the public interests, would go through, there is a danger of its falling to the ground on account of his insistence on coupling with the measure provision for a public utilities commission. The result is likely to be that we shall have neither a public utilities board nor electrification. And the obstacles in the way of the former are well-nigh insuperable.

It would be just as well for present purposes to assure a stronger railroad commission, clothed with the powers which the proposed public utilities commission would exercise over all public service corporations. Half a loaf is better than no bread. The metropolitan public insists upon electrification. It has waited patiently five years. If there is a further delay, under the plea of more time, or reference to other commissions for more investigations after three commissions have already considered the questions, there is no telling when we would ever get down to business. The people of metropolitan Boston will look with no little vexation upon the rapid progress of electrification in other cities while we are deprived of the benefits of the expenditures proposed here.

WOMEN'S AILMENTS CAUSED BY NEGLECT

Are Quickly Cured and Robust Sound Health Restored by Dr. Hamilton's Pills.

Women are on the whole more sickly than men. One reason is that their system is more complicated; another and more important reason is that they put off measures of relief too long. At the beginning, constipation is the cause of nine-tenths of women's ailments. The blood becomes weakened and polluted — the nerves suffer, and a run-down condition takes root.

Because of their mildness of action as a system regulator, because of their undoubted power to remove constipation, irregularities, no medicine for women can compare with Dr. Hamilton's Pills. The kidneys quickly respond to the remedial action of Dr. Hamilton's Pills and the result is as you would expect—pain in the back and side, shortness of breath and bad color disappear—the functions of the body then operate naturally, congestion and pain are prevented and perfect health returns.

Thousands of happy women say Dr Hamilton's Pills are the greatest and best blood-purifier, the finest complexion renewer; the most certain regulating medicine known. All dealers, in 25c boxes, or the Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Canada.

LADY BACHELORS.

There is a crusade in London against the word spinster. Like our phrase "old maid" it carries with it something of reproach, and the modern unmarried woman will have nothing to do with either term. The crusade is not carried on openly, for that would defeat the end in view. It would simply accent the offense, and might also add the word "crank" to the original epithet. Very quietly these women are proposing to substitute for spinster the more dignified term "lady bachelor."

Why not adopt the American form, "bachelor maid?" Lady bachelor has a toplofty, diagreeable air, an affectation that is pretentious and hints of prudery, while bachelor maid is suggestive of healthy, artistic womanhood, independent in a truly feminine way. Where the spinster and old maid repel, the bachelor maid attracts. Where the former seem dependent and obliged to be thankful for any favors thrown to them, the latter is magnetic and full of resources. Her instinct for home leads her to create one, cozy, inviting, tempting enough to make a man fall on his knees and offer himself at once.

There is no more charming character to-day than the American bachelor maid. If English spinsters wish the same transfiguration they must be very careful about the name they adopt. Insignificant as words seem to be, they have a mystical spell of their own and can work enchantment or the reverse. "Lady bachelors" will neither command nor win respect.

Our esteemed contemporary, The Literary Digest, ever in search of useful information asks, Is Alcohol a Food? In extreme cases it may rank in the breakfast food class, with a cigaret and a few kind words to pad out the dejeuner menu. But, on the other hand some people use it as a nightcap, and others again treat it as a bath.

PUBLIC OPINION

opium pipes" were seized. I have often read of such pipes but never knew what they are like. Would you kindly tell me, through your columns, what an opium pipe is like? Does it resemble, and is it used like an ordinary tobacco pipe?

—Enquirer.

Reply.—The kind of opium pipe used by the Chinese in no ways follows the description of a regular pipe as smoked by white people. The bowl is generally made of stone and is flat on top with a hole about the size of a marrow-fat pea. This bowl is generallo about two inches broad and about three-quarters of an inch deep. The stem is of hollow bamboo, about an inch in diameter. When the Chinaman "cooks" his pill of opium he places it at the little opening of the bowl. The pill is then thrust over the uame of a little lamp burning peanut oil. Mr. Chinaman does not "puff, puff, puff," at the mouthpiece of his pipe, as does a tobacco user. He simply takes one long drawn inhalation and draws the smoke of the poppy extract right into his lungs, and thence into his general system. The drug costs too much to "puff" at the pipe.—Ed Times.

CHINA TO BE CHRISTIAN

Prof. Beal Declares World Will Eventually Turn to East for Inspiration.

Boston, Mass., May 31.—"China will some time be the great exponent of Christianity, and we shall turn to her for its best examples," is the prediction of Prof. Frank P. Beal, made at the Berkeley Street Scenic Temple last evening in his lecture on the "Awakening of China." Prof. Beal is connected with Pei Yang University, Tientsin, whence he has just returned.

He began by enumerating the causes which in the last five months brought about a revolution, overturning the conditions existing for centuries. First among these causes comes hatred of the Manchus, who have ruled the native Chinese as foreign conquerors for 300 years. Then the attempt of the imperial government to nationalize the railroads of China, thus infringing on the rights of the several provinces, had its effect, but most important of all was the influence of the missionaries.

Prof. Beal spoke of the devastation caused by the war. Nearly every village, he said, had been occupied by troops and many of the large cities had been looted and burned. Great sections of the latter had been destroyed and many of the people were homeless and destitute. The conflagration in Hankow was comparable to that of Chicago or San Francisco.

"The missionaries were well guarded everywhere by the native authorities," he continued, "and in the main foreign property was not harmed. Almost the only bright color in the gruesome picture was furnished by the work of the Red Cross societies, both Chinese and foreign. Many students from America were leaders in the rebellion."

THE MARKETS

Liverpool Wheat Futures Close Higher, Chicago Lower—Live Stock—Latest Quotations.

CHICAGO, May 29. — Statements from Kansas and Nebraska bankers, that crops would be all right if rain came within the next six or seven days, tended to make wheat speculators go slow to-day regarding sensational despatches sent in by field experts. Largely in consequence the market closed weak, with prices ranging from 1-8c to 5-8c net decline to 1-8c up. Corn showed a loss of 1-8c to 1-2c from last night. Oats were off 1-4c to 1-2c, and provisions finished irregular, varying from 7 1-2c down to a gain of a shade.

The Liverpool market closed to-day on wheat ⅝d to 1¼d higher than yesterday, and on corn ⅛d to ⅛d lower. At Antwerp wheat closed unchanged; at Berlin, ⅛c higher, and at Buda Pest, 1⅛c higher.

The market for good to choice butcher cows was stronger, owing to increased demand and smaller offerings. Bulls were firmer and choice sold at $6.75 to $7; good at $5.25 to $6.50, and common, from $4.25 to $5.50 per cwt.

Hogs were weak, owing to the large supply and prices declined 25c to 50c per cwt., with sales of selected lots at $9.25 to $9.50 per cwt., weighed off the cars, but even at this reduction some were left over.

LINEMAN KILLED AS AS THEY GRASPED WIRE

Boston, Mass., May 28.—Two men met death by electrocution yesterday one in Stoneham and the other in North Reading, in accidents which were strangely similar.

Arthur Roberts, 28 years old, an employe of the Reading Municipal lighting plant, fell from the top of a pole at Mill and Park streets, North Reading, while fixing a transformer in front of a house.

Supt. A. G. Sias was inside the house, and some one ran in and told him the other man had fallen from the pole. Sias found Roberts unconscious, his hands being badly burned. Mr. Sias hurried him to the office of E. D. Richmond, in Reading, but he died without recovering consciousness Roberts lived with his wife and two children on High street, Reading.

While fixing wires at the top of a pole in front of the Stoneham Tanning Company's plant, Martin Kelley an employe of the contracting firm of E. T. Ley & Co., of South Boston, was electrocuted when he inadvertently grasped the broken end of a live wire. He received a shock of 2300 volts. Willing hands cut the wires and saved the body from burning. Dr. M. D. Sheehan was summoned, but when he arrived the man was beyond medical aid. Kelley was 32 years old, unmarried, and lived at 946 Parker street, Roxbury.

—Night Riders are Once More Acti

Frankfort, Ky., May 28.—Imminent danger of another night rider outbreak in the "Black Patch" of western Kentucky is threatened, according to information received by Gov. McCreary, who is taking active steps to suppress incipient lawlessness.

The state has offered a reward of $400 for the arrest and conviction of any one guilty of scraping tobacco plant beds, and the county of Trigg has added $200 more.

Trigg county is one of those affected by the former night rider trouble.

Maj. Bassett, who was a conspicuous figure in the pursuit of the Hopkinsville raiders a few years ago, informed the Governor yesterday that more plant beds have been scraped than the newspapers reported.

BRANDON, MAN., GOING TO GROW GREAT CITY

The eyes of the world, but especially those in the heads of intelligent and progressive Canadians, are turning towards the far and fair Western Provinces. Farmers, mechanics, manufacturers, capitalists, laborering men—men, in short, of every condition in life, are going West. The fertile prairies of Manitoba are raising grain and other products of the farm in immense quantities. With the present high cost of living, the World has to look to our Western Provinces for its grain and beef. The greatest city of the West, next to Winnipeg in size, is Brandon, Man. Brandon has attained her great size and popularity through merit, not by the too common western "Boom" methods. Brandon's present and her future are assured. It is no fancy vision to look westwards and see Brandon with a million population. Even now the price o, building lots in, or adjacent to Brandon, are rapidly increasing in value. In another column of this issue appears the advertisement of Mr. H. J. Dignem, Room 2, Burchell Blk., In this are offered both choice building sites in Brandon and farms in Manitoba, Alberta and Saskatchewan. The prices quoted therein are very alluring. Those who think of going west, or are looking for a safe and lucrative investment should read the above noted ad. carefully.

INVESTORS WHO BUY NOW in NORTH TRANSCONA

WILL MAKE TREMENDOUS PROFITS

They will repeat the achievements of those who bought in Old Transcona and other Western towns that have developed unusually fast.

NORTH TRANSCONA will grow at a rate that will be a record even in Western Canada.

During the past two years a few manufacturers, recognizing the strategic importance of this location and the inevitable development of Transportation facilities at this point, erected plants which are now in active operation.

But the greatest development projects have been outlined and made public during the past few months, and in consequence a modern city will spring up in the immediate future in NORTH TRANSCONA.

The Canadian Pacific Railway have commenced actual construction of the largest individual railroad yards in the world. Roundhouses, shops, elevators and other necessary buildings will be erected.

Foley, Welch & Stewart have been awarded the contract for the first ninety-five miles of yard trackage to be completed this year.

The contract has been awarded for the construction of the first of the enormous elevators, which will be the largest in the world.

The Manitoba Bridge and Iron Works have started construction of their immense plant.

AEROPLANE ACCIDENT.

German Army Lieutenant, Whilst Passenger on Flying Machine, Was Killed.

Johannisthal, Germany, May 29.—Lieut. Schlichting was killed and Aviator Fokker slightly injured when the aeroplane in which they were making a flight yesterday dashed to the ground. Lieut. Schlichting was a passenger.

CHEMICALS IN WOOD.

Why Timber Cut In Winter Is Better Than That Cut In Summer.

Timber cut in spring and in summer is not so durable as that cut in winter. The durability depends not only upon the greater or less density, but also upon the presence of certain chemical constituents in the wood.

Thus a large proportion of resinous matter increases the durability, while the presence of easily soluble carbohydrates diminishes it considerably.

During the growing season the wood of trees contains sulphuric acid and potassium, both of which are solvents of carbohydrates, starch, resins and gums. They are known to soften also the ligneous tissue to a considerable degree.

During the summer months the wood of living trees contains eight times as much sulphuric acid and five times as much potassium as it does during the winter months. The presence of these two chemical substances during the growing season constitutes the chief factor in dissolving the natural preservatives within the wood and in preparing the wood for the different kinds of wood destroying fungi.—Scientific American.

An Age of Great Gamblers.

The eighteenth century was the age of the great gamblers. On Feb. 6, 1772, there was a debate in the house of commons on the thirty-nine articles, and it was noticed that Fox spoke very indifferently.

Horace Walpole suggests an explanation: "He had sat up playing at hazard at Almack's from Tuesday evening, the 4th, till 5 in the afternoon of Wednesday, 5th. An hour before he had recovered £12,000 that he had lost, and by dinner, which was at 5 o'clock, he had ended losing £11,000. On the Thursday he spoke in the above debate, went to dinner at 11:30 at night, from there to White's, when he drank till 7 the next morning; thence to Almack's, where he won £6,000, and between 3 and 4 in the afternoon he set out for Newmarket."

A Blade of Grass.

As an English writer has written! "Whenever you can find a single blade of grass, however small, there you stand face to face with the mystery of life and all the responsibilities of existence. It is of more interest than many of the stars, for, if astronomy is right, some stars are ceaselessly burning, and therefore, beautiful as they are from a distance, life upon them (in the sense in which we understand life) is impossible. The roots of the humblest blade of grass go down to the beginning of life in the world, and its tip points to the sky. If you should chance to find a blade of grass withering in a rocky place carry it a little water for the sake of the thoughts that spring from it."

Horrible Examples.

Slang not only becomes English, but sound English becomes slang. When Landor was reading "Aurora Leigh" he wrote to John Forster that it was a great poem, "but there are a few flies on its surface." From that it is some distance to the contemporary lyric:

There are no flies on me.
There may be on you
A bushel or two.
There are no flies on me.

So when the poet Henley complained "there is a wheel within my head" he little knew what a horrific future his metaphor was to see.—Collier's.

For Appearance's Sake.

Hub (suddenly waking at midnight)—What in the world was that noise? Wife (entering room)—It's all right, dear. The people are coming home from the opera, and I slipped down and gave the front door a slam, so the neighbors would think we were there.—Boston Transcript.

Hereditary.

"Is genius hereditary?" asks a scientific journal.

An editor replies: "We have not time to investigate the subject, but we are inclined to think that it is. At all events our youngsters are wonderfully smart."

Gold is proved with fire, friendship in need.—Danish.

A Troubled Conscience.

"I had a horrible dream last night," said Huddleston when he came down to breakfast the other morning.

"What was it?" asked his wife.

"I dreamed that I was in purgatory and was made to do all the things I had told my friends I would do if I were in their places."

Logical Reasoning.

The law imposing a tax on bachelors had gone into effect.

One morning a little baldheaded man appeared before the tax commissioners.

"I've just married my fourth wife," he said. "I'm entitled to a bounty, ain't I?"—Exchange.

The Ideal.

It is in making endless additions to self, in the endless expansion of its powers, in endless growth in wisdom and beauty, that the spirit of the human race finds its ideal. To reach this ideal culture is an indispensable aid, and that is the true value of culture.

One of These Questions.

"Pop!"

"Well, what is it now?"

"Say, pop, did the dog star ever have the dipper tied to its tail?"—Philadelphia Record.

Riches have wings, and grandeur is a dream.—Cooper.

A POOR TYPE OF CITIZEN.

The Good Man Who Lives by and Exclusively For Himself.

I know a certain type of man who poses as a good citizen, says Bert Walker. He breaks no laws, lives morally, pays his honest debts and is never tangled up in lawsuits. But he lives of himself, by himself and for himself only.

When a call is issued for volunteers to take hold of the car of progress and give a lift he never answers. When calamity has befallen people in a certain locality and charitable humanity flies to their rescue he is never one of their number. When money is needed to gild the spire of public enterprise his name is never on the list. When he sees some neighbor stuck in the mud he goes around to avoid him. In fact, were he standing on the shore and should observe the ship of state fast sinking in the surf, never a life line would he throw. He didn't bore the hole in the side of the vessel that lets in the water, so it is none of his concern what happens.

But were all mankind made of this kind of clay have you ever thought what would happen? There would be no churches, no hospitals for the sick, no institutions for the unfortunate nor rest rooms for the weary. Civilization would roam in jungles and the strongest would rule. He is not a good citizen, but gets mad if you say so.—Kansas City Journal.

ADVERTISE IN THE TIMES.

Wagers In an Old Betting Book.

Many events of human life figure in the old betting book of Brooks'. The frequency of bets on births is illustrated by Lord Mountford's answer when he was asked whether his daughter was going to present him with a grandchild: "Upon my word, I do not know. I have no bet upon it." Eight bets running in Sheridan's name range from the question whether the French had occupied Amsterdam to the question whether the shortest way from one house to another was by Sackville street or Bond street. There are fifty guineas on the double event that Lord Ilchester gives his first vote in opposition and hits eight out of his first ten pheasants, and "Lord Clermont has given Mr. Crawford ten guineas upon the condition of receiving £500 from him whenever Mr. Charles Fox shall be worth £100,000 clear of debts."—London Chronicle.

A Surprised Ventriloquist.

"The biggest surprise I ever got in my business," said a ventriloquist, "was in England when playing at a little theater in the outskirts of London.

"When I came on the stage I threw my voice up in the rafters and inquired 'What are you doing up there?' To my surprise a small voice answered, 'I came here to see the people and hear the music.' 'Very well,' said I; 'stay there and don't let any one see you.'"

Then I bowed to the audience amid thunderous applause.—Columbus Dispatch.

He Would Indeed.

"What's this word, pa?" asked Willie, pointing it out in his book.

"Phenomenon," replied pa.

"Well, what is that?"

"That, my son, is exactly what you would be if you never disturbed your father with questions."—Catholic Standard and Times.

THE ADOPTION DANCE.

Curious Ceremonial of Taking a Child Into a Shawnee Tribe.

The adoption dance is one of the ceremonial dances of the Shawnees. This is quite different from any one of the festive dances. They come many miles around and camp. Their faces are painted and their persons decorated with beads.

They dance all day and night without eating. A bonfire is built in the center of the camp, and they dance around this. The fire is kept burning about the same all the time. This serves also as their light.

The adoption dance is rather quiet, more so than the other dances. The women do most of the singing, says a writer in the Red Man, and sing very low. They dance around the circle in twos. The men dance together in front and the women together in the rear.

The two leaders in front are usually the ones who are adopting the child. They carry tin pails. In these are rubber balls, which bounce and keep time with the drummer. This is all the music they have to dance by. If a large crowd is assembled they may have two or three drums.

At these dances good order is kept. No drunkenness is allowed. The dance is in a grove, and if any one does not behave decently they tie him to a tree for the rest of the dance. After the dance they have a great feast, which lasts all day, and visitors and all others who attend the dance are invited to partake of the feast.

MUCH OF LITTLE.

A London Sign That Seems Queer, but Is Entirely Correct.

The stranger in any city half a hundred years old, if he knew nothing of the city's history, would learn from many of the business signs that the second and third generations had succeeded to the business of father and grandfather.

A Londoner who had strolled about the streets of Gotham with a New Yorker, who called his attention to some of the signs of sons, agreed that in this respect New York was very like London, but in neither city was there any such sign as he saw in one of the old English towns a few hours' run from the British capital. The sign reads:

JOHN LITTLEJOHN'S SONS AND LITTLE (LITTLE LITTLEJOHN, DOOLITTLE LITTLEJOHN AND JOHN LITTLE).

Heredity Among Musicians.

Heredity was perhaps never better exemplified than in the case of the famous composer Beethoven, the son of a tenor, who was the son of a bass. Bach came of a family of humble musicians, beginning, it is said, with a miller. Haydn's father was an amateur harpist in humble life. Mozart was the son of an ordinary capellmeister and teacher of the violin. The father of Rossini was a horn player in a strolling company.

Their Relationship.

Grandma—Well, Charley, you're an uncle now, and I suppose you are proud of it. Small Charley—You are mistaken, grandma. I'm not an uncle. Grandma (in surprise)—Why not? Small Charley—'Cause sister's baby is a girl. So I must be an aunt.—Chicago News.

A Mean Friend.

"Will you loan me $2?"

"No."

"Then will you loan me your revolver to commit suicide with?"

"No. You'd pawn it and get your $2 that way."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

It is a lucky eel that escapes skinning. The best happiness will be to escape the worst misery.—George Eliot.

Napoleon's Carriage.

The carriage in which Napoleon I. made his famous retreat from Moscow and in which he as emperor general set out from Paris in the campaign which closed at Waterloo is preserved in London by the trustees of the Wellington estate, the relic having formerly been the property of the "Iron Duke." It is a two seated conveyance, with the top and sides lined with iron. There is also a front "curtain" of iron that can be raised and lowered at will. The wheels are large and heavy, and the steps are finished in curious battle designs done in silver. The emperor used the back seat and kept his pillows and blanket under it. The back of the front seat was used as a cupboard and was provided with all sorts of culinary articles and a small spirit or oil stove.

Planet Peculiarities.

The irregularities of the great group of minor planets forming a ring between Mars and Jupiter are sensational. Several hundred of them are now known to follow their normal orbits between the two great planets. But in 1898 one of them—now called Eros—was found to cross the orbit of Mars, coming nearer to the earth's orbit than any other body, except the moon. In 1906 one of the planets was discovered going beyond the orbit of Jupiter, and now four with this peculiarity are known and have been named Achilles, Hector, Patroclus and Nestor.

Good Grounds.

"Why do you wish to be divorced from your husband, madam?"

"Well, for one thing, he comes home nearly every day of his life smelling of limburger cheese."

"And you don't like the odor?"

"It isn't that. He never brings any of the cheese home."—Chicago Tribune.

One of the most interesting characters in the Porcupine district is Mary Van Geer, known as plain "Mary" to the bulk of the population. She is a Dutch girl who blew in from "outside" some time before the fire and did heroic rescue work during that devastating experience. She is six feet tall and very strong physically, and many stories are told of her muscular prowess. She keeps a stationary and fancy store which enjoys favor with the community, and if an intoxicated man comes into her shop it is no effort for her to throw him out. "Mary" mixes with the male population of the camp on a unique footing of absolute equality and yet possesses the universal respect of the entire community. Her fine open countenance and ability to look everybody straight in the eye prejudices the visitor in her favor, and with all her ability to take care of herself, there is nothing masculine about her. But Mary is moving on. She likes the frontier life and Porcupine has become less attractive to her since it got a railway and the telephone and electric lights. She has the old Viking blood in her veins. She is possessed by the wanderlust and one of these days she will turn up in Ungava or at the mouth of the MacKenzie river, and Porcupine will know her no more.

Worthy Its Name.

Mr. Bacon—Something wrong with this hash this morning, dear.

Mrs. Bacon—Why?

"I don't know. It needs something."

"I can't think what it can be. I put in everything I could find."—Yonkers Statesman.

Fitness of Things.

"Yes, sir; I can marry you and the girl, all right, but I am not a regular pastor. I'm a traveling preacher."

"Suits me all the better. I'm a traveling man."—Chicago Tribune.

Occasions do not make a man either strong or weak, but they show what he is.—Thomas a Kempis.

SOILED POSTAGE STAMPS.

If They Are Ink Splashed They Won't Do to Put on Letters.

"How dirty can a postage stamp become and still retain its usefulness in the eyes of the government?" was a question propounded to muddle the already overworked brain of a busy man. Happening to meet a postman who was collecting mail, the man handed him a stamped letter.

"That won't go," said the postman. "Stamp's dirty."

As was his wont on special occasions the busy man resorted to sarcasm.

"Since when," he demanded, "did the United States government become so immaculate that it requires none but unsullied stamps stuck on its letters?"

"Well, they've always been pretty particular," returned the unperturbed postman, "but there are some kinds of dirt that count for more than others. That stamp's got ink on it. Inky stamps don't go because an ink spot could be used to disguise a canceled stamp."

"Then I suppose every stamp I happen to drop a speck of ink on is wasted?"

"Oh, no. Turn it in to the office where you bought it, and after a certain period you will get your money back."

"How long will that take?" the man asked.

"About three months."

"I'm afraid I can't wait," said the man, and over the discredited stamp he stuck a spotless stamp.—New York Times.

SCARS THAT STAY.

They Come From Cuts That Go Down to the True Skin.

There are people who tell you that everything in the body is changed every seven years and that there is no part of it which was there seven years ago. This does not mean that we slough the whole thing off at once, as a snake does its skin or a deer its antlers, but simply that the innumerable and tiny atoms which are used up by the daily wear and tear are replaced by fresh atoms supplied by our food and drink, which keeps the body going, just as coal and water keep the steam engine at work.

But these changes are so minute and gradual that the form of the body remains the same, although such things as scars take a long time to disappear, and sometimes they remain for life, although they always lose a great deal of their prominence.

You have noticed that if you cut your finger slightly it will soon heal up and the scar will soon disappear, just as the marks of a superficial burn will gradually go away, but if the cut is deep the scar remains. This is because it went down to what is called the true skin. Any cuts or burns on the outer skin are gradually pushed up and worn or washed off, just as the hair on the back of your head wears off without your cutting it and grows again, but anything that goes down to the true skin, like tattoo marks, always remains.—New York Sun.

Punishing Bachelors.

This punishment of the bachelor has been common in many ages and countries and extended down to the early days of our own history. In Connecticut in 1636 a law was passed which would not "allow any young unmarried man to keep house," and Hartford taxed "lone men 20 shillings a week" for the "selfish luxury of solitary living." In 1682 a special town order gave permission for two bachelors to keep house together, "so they carry themselves soberly and do not entertain idle persons to the evil expense of time by day or night," while as late as the eighteenth century a general statute of Connecticut forbade any householder under penalty of a fine to "give entertainment or habitation to single persons without special allowance of the selectmen."—Forum.

First Come, First Served.

A woman was in a New York elevator which also had some men passengers.

"Ninth," said one of the men after the car was fairly started.

"Sixth," said the woman.

The car sped by the sixth floor and was halted at the ninth.

On the way back the woman asked: "Why didn't you stop at the sixth floor? The sixth floor is lower than the ninth."

"I know that," said the elevator boy. "But the man said ninth first."—Ladies' Home Journal.

Breaking a Will.

"So you were successful in your efforts to break your uncle's will in which he left you only $20,000?"

"Yes, I won out easily."

"And how much did you finally get?"

"After paying the lawyers I took down $3,500."—Detroit Free Press.

Not So Bad.

"Did you tell the landlord what an awful leak there was in the roof?"

"Yes, I told him."

"What did he say?"

"He said he'd fix the roof as soon as you pay the rent you owe."

"Did he? I guess it ain't much of a leak."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

New Mail Train.

Mr. Edgar, the recently appointed local postmaster, who has made great efforts to improve the local postal service, yesterday communicated to The Times the pleasing intelligence that the C.P.R. is putting on a new mail train, between Toronto and Montreal, which going east will arrive at this city at 10.50 a.m. and going west at 4.48 p.m.

If the ladies in charge of Peterborough's Fair could only get hold of the weather man, the latter would look cheaper than a cancelled postage stamp.

A SOUND INVESTMENT IN TORONTO REAL ESTATE.

This is what we are offering the readers of "The Times" in our newest Sub-Division:

"CALEDONIA PARK"

Anyone familiar with Toronto will agree with us when we say that the best part of the city for investment to-day is the NORTH-WEST SECTION.

In "CALEDONIA PARK" you may purchase land where the district east, west, and south, is almost entirely built up.

The St. Clair Avenue car line will be in operation in about eight months, as the rails are now laid past our property. This, of course, will cause a decided enhancement in land values in the St. Clair Avenue district. "CALEDONIA PARK" lying just two blocks (about four minutes' walk) north of St. Clair, will naturally benefit very much.

The entire block is RESTRICTED to solid brick, or brick veneer houses, which will provide a district absolutely first class, and where houses will sell from $2700 to $4000 each.

A new brick school is just being completed at a cost of about $100,000, on the south side of INNES AVENUE, ONE OF THE STREETS IN "CALEDONIA PARK."

A local builder has just purchased a large strip of land and SIX solid brick houses will be commenced in a very short time.

Toronto investors, men who know values, are purchasing in "Caledonia Park," as they know there is money to be made at the opening low prices of—

$14 to $25 Per Foot

Write us for complete information. We will gladly forward plans and descriptive folder to any address. We know what we are offering, and can, with confidence, recommend "CALEDONIA PARK" lots to the Investor. Ten days' selling has disposed of $60,000.00 worth of lots.

WE REPEAT—We will refund the railroad fare to any purchaser within 150 miles of Toronto.

You can buy in "CALEDONIA PARK" on VERY EASY TERMS: 20 per cent. down and 20 per cent. every six months.

One feature worthy of note is that these lots are DEEP. We are aware that some properties on the market at the present time are only about eighty feet deep. OUR LOTS AVERAGE 124 FEET IN DEPTH TO A WIDE LANE.

Reservations may be made without risk to the purchaser. We will hold for three days what we consider the best available land. You can look the property over yourself, and if absolutely satisfied, make the purchase. We have many clients who act upon our judgment. They have realised splendid profits. You can do the same.

ROSEDALE
LOTS

Most citizens of Peterboro' are aware that Rosedale, of Toronto, is the High Class Residential District of that city. Where naught but blue blood is to be found, and where residence therein is a passport to high society. It was sub-divided and put on the market by a Scotch syndicate about 35 years ago, at $20.00 per front foot, and it is now selling at from $75.00 to $250.00 per foot. About the same time the high class citizens of Peterboro' determined to keep step with Toronto, quickly selected and sub-divided that beautiful block of land north of Smith Street, east of Jackson Park, west from Normal School, and Chemong Road. Having gone so far, they wearied of well-doing, leaving the task of putting on the market to your humble servant, in the late afternoon of life, and because of that lateness, and of the superior High Class Property, I am offering at a fraction of it's value five years hence. I most respectfully solicit your early investigation, believing that when you see the property, hear my price and terms, you will be pleased to accept at once. And as I want the assistance of every good man and woman in this meritorious work of furnishing home-foundations and the safest and most profitable way to invest and save, small or large sums of money. And in return for this assistance I agree to pay 5 per cent. of the net price, at which each lot is sold, to the Treasurer of the Church to which the buyer belongs. I will do this as a precedent for others to follow my example. Payable out of half money received from buyer. Bear in mind, I only own 38 lots in what I have properly named "The Heart of Rosedale", and you or your descendants will buy that property soon, or later at 5 or 10 times my price. Is it not in your interest to buy now, and use or sell later at big profits as many others have done? It is always safe to buy wheat or gold dollars, when they are offered at half value, and that is what you are doing when you buy lots in "The Heart of Rosedale."

Unavoidable delay compels me to name June 5th, as the opening day for sale of those lots. In the meantime, I suggest that every auto owner in the city, in his own interests, not only to go himself, but to take all his big friends with him, to carefully inspect and fully verify my statements.

How to find it—Second block north of Smith St. and west of Dixon, marked by small flags, and five minutes' walk from car line at Jackson's Park.

Plans, and further information will be available in a few days.

SPLIT THE BRIBES.

Humorous Aspects of Vote Buying in the Island of Guadeloupe.

M. Gerault-Richards, according to Le Cri de Paris, freely communicates the processes employed in securing the election of a deputy in the island of Guadeloupe, where the population is almost entirely negro, to the French chamber of deputies.

"A little commerce with the electors of Guadeloupe," he said, "demonstrated to me that if the least confidence was given to the promises of these fellows I should be duped. I soon found out that to retain the interest of these electors I should give but half the present in advance, the second half to be given after the election in case of success. Following this arrangement, they were given one of a pair of shoes, the pair not to be completed until they had voted. The women of some lords of importance received their earrings in two installments.

"A superb pair of pantaloons of white linen bordered with red were shown one influential elector. The pantaloons were then cut in two in the middle, one leg being given to the voter and the other retained, to be given after he had done his duty.

"That same evening," said M. Gerault-Richards, "I met my good man proudly promenading the street clothed in one leg of the pantaloons. No one ridiculed his appearance. Some of his friends even complimented him."

Barefooted Children.

People who visit Mrs. R. for the first time usually look surprised, and some have been known to make hysterical exclamations if while they are under the hospitable roof they get a glimpse of the children, a boy of five and a girl about two years younger. To the friends of the family they are known as the "little barefoots," for they have never worn shoes or stockings except when they are in the street. When the boy was learning to walk, the mother explains often, he showed a tendency to "toe in," and by the advice of a physician the baby shoes were cast off. The remedy was so effective that shoes are now used for street wear only. "The children take them off," said the mother, "when they come in the house, as we do our gloves, and we all think they are better for doing so."—New York Tribune.

It Pleased the Composer.

A curious story is told as to how the Rothschilds supported Carafa, the composer. The latter was far from rich. His principal income was derived from a snuffbox. And this was the way of it: The snuffbox was given to the author of "La Prison d'Edinbourgh" by Baron James de Rothschild as a token of esteem. Carafa sold it twenty-four hours later for 75 napoleons to the same jeweler from whom it had been bought. This became known to Rothschild, who gave it again to the musician on the following year. The next day it returned to the jeweler. This traffic continued till the death of the banker and longer still, for his sons kept up the tradition, to the great satisfaction of Carafa.

Reversed the Terms.

An old negro who lived on a southern plantation went to the nearby city for a visit and while there went to see his young "marster," who was living in the city at the time. On his return the young man's mother asked if he was in good spirits.

"Well, mum," responded the old negro, "I reckon I'll 'spress it a little diffunt an' say de good speerits was in Marse Jeems."—Exchange.

Her Banking Plan.

"I should like to open an account at this bank, if you please."

"We shall be glad to accommodate you, madam. What amount do you wish to deposit?"

"Oh, but I mean a charge account, such as I have at the big dry goods stores."—Chicago Tribune.

Canal Officials to Get a Chance.

It is rumored that the decision of the Department with respect to Messrs. Clegg and Fairen will be of an indulgent character. However, there is nothing certain about it, and the Department's judgment will not be out for a few days.

Fair Weather at Last.

Good Old Sol smiled on the Summer Fair yesterday afternoon. His bright rays cheered the drooping hearts of our citizens whose clothes, homes, wood piles, raincoats, etc., have been soaked for days. At this writing it is hoped that a bumper crowd attended the Fair last night.

Floating Dock Drifts Away.

The high water yesterday tore away a floating wharf from its fastenings, adjacent to the boat house, at the end of the street car line, and drifted away with a boat attached. Mr. A. A. Haskill discovered it tied to another wharf in the vicinity. The wharf, however, is lost.

Bobcaygeon Lumber Mills Burned.

The Bobcaygeon Lumber mill burned down a few days ago. The fire is supposed to have originated from an electric storm that raged there for several hours. The storm was so severe that the twenty men working at the mill quit work at 3 p.m. The mill was a modern structure and the proprietors, as well as the village, are heavy losers by the conflagration.

Traffic on Trent Canal.

The Dominion Government Blue Book, giving canal statistics for the year 1911, has just been issued. This shows that 857,290 tons of freight passed through the Trent Canal last year. This partly consisted of 298 tons of vegetable products, 766 tons of animal products, 8,672 tons of manufactures and 35,849 produce of the forest.

Immigrants Coming to the City.

The local immigration office was a busy spot yesterday. The tide of immigration from the shores of England certainly seems to flow towards Peterborough. Mr. Jas. Watley conducted a large sized party to Peterborough on Wednesday. They sailed from Liverpool on the steamship Tunisian, and after a sea voyage of eleven days, docked at Quebec Monday morning. The party contained a number of experienced farm laborers and these were quickly disposed of.

Miss Seward's Bright Future.

A letter has been received from Mrs. Roger Collins, the first teacher of Miss Gladys Seward, stating that her former pupil is making great progress in Germany. The letter intimates that the former Peterborough girl gives every promise of becoming a great musician. The letter says in pact: "I wish personally to thank those who, by contriqutions of money, and by kind words of encouragement have helped in the good work of giving a great gift of chance to develop. On behalf of Mrs. Seward also, I thank most heartily all those who have helped her clever daughter to begin a great career."

Victim of Chronic Catarrh Cured

I contracted a severe cold while following my occupation of furniture travelling, and eventually it developed into Catarrh. The desultory mode of life I was following gave me very little chance to attend to the Catarrh condition, and at last I became a victim of Catarrh. I bought a large package of Catarrhozone, used it as per directions, and have never been bothered since. I will be only too glad to give any information I [illegible] to any person suffering from the disease that was the bane of my life for two years.

Pat Lavery Let Go.

On Wednesday, Patrick Lavery was tried before His Honor Judge Huycke with having interferred with a policeman, whilst the latter was engaged on duty. Mr. G. N. Gordon acted on behalf of the prisoner and the Crown was represented by Crown Attorney Wood. P. C. Kane testified that on the evening of May 14, and while in the act of arresting William Lavery, who was drunk, Lavery attacked him. His Honor found the prisoner guilty, and allowed him to go on suspended sentence.

The Ball Grounds Flooded.

Riverside Park is under water again, the continuous rain and the consequent rise in the Otonabee, has caused the local baseball park to resemble the plunge of a Turkish bath. The only portion of the diamond in sight is the pitchers' mound, while centre and right fields are buried completely. Out in centre where Jimmy Beard has been grabbing off difficult chances, a flock of ducks were disporting themselves yesterday morning. Fortunately the club has no games at home this week, and it is expected that the field will be in shape by Monday, when Brantford come here for three games.

SOCIAL AND PERSONAL

Mr. Lester Green, of Toronto, is in the city for a day or two.

Mr. J. C. Baldwin, of Vancouver, is the guest of Mrs. Perks, "Oakhurst," Gilmour street.

Mr. M. M. McGill, of Lindsay, was the guest of his son-in-law, Mr. F. R. MacPherson, over night.

Mrs. J. L. Wood has gone to Toronto. Mr. and Mrs. Wood will reside in Toronto for some time.

Mr. M. Hampton left yesterday morning and will sail for England per steamer Empress of Britain.

Mr. Albert New, of Peterborough, left yesterday for a trip to the British Isles. He will return in August.

Mr. W. Parker, president of the Guelph Trades and Labor Council, who was here last week, has written a letter highly commending Chief Howard of the Peterborough Fire Brigade.

The Times had a pleasure call yesterday from Mr. J. T. Paul, representing the Edwardsburg Starch Company, Limited, Montreal. Mr. Paul has a happy faculty of making friends wherever he goes, Peterborough being no exception to the rule.

Miss May Gordon was the guest of honour at a surprise party given Wednesday evening, at the home of her parents, Perry street, in celebration of her birthday anniversary. There were about twenty-five visitors present and a pleasant evening was spent in music, singing and dancing.

LITTLE LOCAL LINES

The probs for to-day are fair with slightly higher temperature.

This is hard luck weather for stockholders in the Peterborough Baseball Club.

Lindsay's Firemen have procured new uniforms of blue, with gilt ornaments.

The Local Option people are working hard in Port Hope to carry the measure next January.

The large unoccupied woolen mill at Garden Hill was struck by lightning on May 26th, and totally destroyed.

It's a SMALL man who will ask the city garbage man to remove a LARGE pile of last year's furnace ashes.

A Peterborough man was heard to say yesterday, "I never told a lie." He has George Washington and Capt. Cook trimmed to a finish.

The Art Loan Exhibit at the Peterborough Summer Fair contains an interesting collection and is well worth the price of admission.

Well, there's one consolation! If Peterborough's Fair has had hard luck by the three day's rain, think of the good it will do the crops in this district.

A concert will be held in St. John's school house at 8 p.m., on Monday, June 3rd, in aid of St. John's Athletic Club. Members are requested to be present at 7.30 for transacting business.

Fortunately, the citizens of Peterborough can snap their fingers at Jupiter Pluvius. With all his outpour of rain, he could not stop the Summer Fair's success.

The North American Life Assurance Co. issues policies second to none. The profits given to policyholders are equal to those of the very best. Insure your life in the North American Life Assurance Co. Office, 187 Charlotte Street. (6t-A5t18)

John D. Rockefeller's income is $140 a minutes. John ought to get a new wig, a new suit, a pleasant smile and come to Peterborough to finance her baseball team through the wet weather.

Garbage in Peterborough these days is as serious a proposition as living. High prices prevent the average man from getting a proper supply of vegetables, and the "non est" scavenger prevents him from disposing of the remains.

The Peterborough Light & Power Company's Show Room will be open on Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday evenings during May and June, from 8 to 10 p.m. for the convenience of those wishing to secure gas appliances or to arrange for gas connections.

NOTICE

Owing to the continuous rain the water is very high in the river between Lakefield and Hastings, in fact, all over the whole watershed of the Trent Waterway. In order to keep the water at a reasonable height in Little Lake it has been necessary to take all the stop-logs out at the Peterborough Locks dam, and it is now very dangerous for people to attempt to go down over the Peterborough locks with canoes, gasoline launches or other small boats at the present time. The side current is so strong there that it would be almost impossible for any small boat to keep the channel without being drawn into the dam. Owing to the danger at these locks, gasoline launches, or other small craft will not be locked through until further notice.

"The Government having again heard you, as well as other delegates on the important question of the Montreal tunnel, has approved of the project, and the matter of bond guarantees has been referred for the consideration of the consulting engineer of the Department of Railways, to whom the documents and other information have been immediately forwarded.

BELLEVILLE

ST. LAMBERT

Positively Adjoins the Tunnel Co.'s Property

Every man who buys a Lot at Belleville at to-day's opening prices, will see the Government increasing the value of his property with every spadeful of earth excavated. But does not rely on the tunnel or the bridge of the near future for its transportation or its present day value.

To-day the Montreal and Southern Counties Railway runs to within a few yards of Belleville. Get off at Coteau Rouge road and follow the signs.

To-day the new electric line is complete along the whole of one side of Belleville, and only awaits the turning on of the electric current for cars to run there.

To-day men are busily at work enlarging the South Shore Subway in order that a still better service may be given to Belleville.

Belleville lots actually adjoin the town of St. Lambert. We mention this because some people consider the South Shore anywhere between Montreal and Boston.

Belleville lots are all GUARANTEED to be the highest and driest anywhere near St. Lambert. Our sidewalks, for instance, will not have to be two feet above the ground level to keep your feet out of the water.

Belleville adjoins a well populated part of St. Lambert, many beautiful HOMES being built right up to the property.

Belleville has churches, schools, and post-office adjoining it.

Belleville is ripe for you to build on to-day, if you wish, and if you want to invest in a safe, sound, profitable real estate.

Belleville—Suppose you fill in the coupon and mail it to us, or bring it to our office and get plans, details, and free car tickets. You ought to see Belleville to-morrow afternoon or Sunday, when you will speedily realize that Belleville is the finest investment on the market.

SERVANT GIRLS SWINDLED

Over $4000 Known to Have Been Taken by Couple Operating in Boston's Swell Section.

Boston, Mass., May 31—Charged with the larceny of more than $4000 from credulous Back Bay and Brookline servant girls, Harry Moore, 35 years, of 172 Carew street, Springfield, was arrested by the police of that city for the Boston authorities yesterday. He was brought to Boston last night by Inspector Patterson of police headquarters.

While the specific charges allege the larceny of money amounting to $4287, the police believe the total profits from the scheme of which Moore was the prime mover will reach a much larger sum. At present there are only eight counts against Moore, but it is anticipated other complaints will be made when the news of his arrest is made public.

In connection with the case the police are searching for a woman known as Mrs. Frances Moore. Mrs. Moore, the police say, wore peculiar clothes, and in her unusual garb would visit servants' quarters in the Back Bay. She would tell fortunes, predict bright futures, and in this way succeeded in gaining the confidence of her victims. Then she would ask them to visit her at her home, 163 Massachusetts avenue, promising a trance session for a small fee.

Mrs. Moore claimed to be possessed of clairvoyant powers and when she was in a trance would tell her victims among other things, that they were to become rich. She suggested in the course of the trance that they invest their money in stock.

"How did you like my reading?" she would inquire usually after a trance, and, receiving a favorable reply, would suggest that they talk with Mr. Moore. Then Moore would appear on the scene with a proposition to purchase stock of the Knickerbocker Copper Company of Arizona. He told an extended story and many of the women had faith in the concern when it followed the predictions of the seeress.

An appointment would follow and the women would return with bank books and cash, in return for which would be given fictitious certificates of stock. The girls in many of the cases became suspicious after a time and on investigating found that the concern was a myth.

The known victims and the amount of money claimed to have been lost, are:

Nora Lavene, 74 Bay State road, $500, March 7; Mary E. Moselle, 378 Marlboro street, $500, March 15; Josephine Ericson, 378 Marlboro street, $200, Jan. 25; Annie Cornell, 336 Beacon street, $2000, March 29; Clara Larson, 433 Marlboro street, $727, March 15; Tilly Ericson, 78 Upland Road, Brookline, $250, Feb. 16; Mary Dunmille, 110 Beacon street, $243, Jan. 25, and Carrie Pinckney, 325 Beacon street, $12.

Moore and his confederate went to Springfield and were traced to that city. The arrest was made on an indictment warrant.

Cambridge, Mass., May 30.—That he is selling pipes worth 75c apiece for $2.50 and up, in order to complete his college education, is the charge made against a young man who, it is alleged, has been canvassing Boston and vicinity of late.

As the result of a conference with the young man by several college graduates, certain papers used as introductions were destroyed. When not engaged peddling pipes at advanced prices the student sometimes sells telephone attachments.

CHAMBERS STREET TO BE PAVED AT AN EARLY DATE

Seven Men Busy Three Weeks In An Effort To Pump The Little Lake Out Of Romaine Street Sewers.

The City's Board of Works met last night, Chairman Ald. Buller presiding. There were also present Mayor Bradburn, Aldermen, Johnston, Anderson, Gillespie and Graham.

Messrs. J. J. Lynch, Lech and Eastwood were a deputation to enquire into the delay in paving Chambers street and laying a sidewalk thereon, in compliance with the sufficiently signed petition to this effect. The work was ordered to be done last year.

The committee promised that this work will be proceeded with at an early date and will ask Council on Monday night to recommend what class of pavement shall be used.

A wooden crossing will be laid across Park street, on a line with Bonaccord street.

A petition for a wooden walk on south side of Dublin street, 336 feet east of Park, was referred to the Engineer to report. His worship favors a permanent cement walk.

Romaine Street White Elephant.

Ald. Buller reported that Mr. Armstrong, sent down here by Engineer Chipman of Toronto, to investigate the cause for stoppage in the Romaine street sewer, has now had seven men working the past three weeks to no effect. This is costing the city some $15 aday, and Ald. Buller advised that as the lake is so high that a 20 horse power engine would not pump the water out of the sewer, it had better be fenced in for a month or two until conditions are more favorable for relieving the pipes.

Mr. Armstrong was present, and agreed that it is just now a waste of time and money to continue the work. One manhole has sunk three inches since being built. The committee agreed to advise Mr. Chipman that the city is going to stop work on this sewerblockage until a dry season arrives, when the city will not risk bankruptcy in an effort to pump out the little lake.

Mr. Armstrong will await his chief's instructions, but will stop all work to-day other than that of cleaning up and protecting the excavation.

This work was done under the supervision of Engineer Chipman of Toronto, who assumed responsibility for opening the sewer to ascertain the cause of the blockage, AT THE CITY'S EXPENSE apparently. The cost of investigation so far has run up somewhere within the neighborhood of $270.

Want More Wages.

The City's teamsters asked for an increase in wages to $4 for a day of nine hours. Their present rate is $3.65. This matter was referred to another meeting of the Board.

More Poles.

The Bell Telephone Co. was granted permission to erect additional poles.

Conduit Drainage.

The Bell Telephone Co. asked permission to drain their 15 conduit manholes into the city's sewer; the company to pay cost of constructing connections, and leave the streets in same condition as they find them. This question was left in abeyance pending securing information as to what course is pursued in other cities in this regard.

Soundings For New Bridge.

Moved by Ald. Graham, seconded by Ald. Anderson, That the cost of taking soundings for new bridge across the river be taken out of the Board of Work's appropriation. Carried.

This Year's Sewer Work.

City Engineer Hay recommended a big list of sewer work to be executed this year. This includes a main trunk sewer up Harvey street to serve Waterford street, in lieu of the septic tank asked for the past two years by the Dickson Co.; such latter work would cost the city $2,000 to be raised by a general tax as a portion of the work would of necessity duplicate present sewers, in the interest of Waterford street property.

The sewers sufficiently petitioned for and advertised, and sections recommended by the Board of Health will be proceeded with. The Harvey street trunk sewer will receive further consideration at Monday night's Council meeting. An effort will probably be made to get the Board of Health to recommend this work, and thus strengthen Council's hands in the matter.

Sidewalks Petitioned For.

S. W. Soxby's petition for a sidewalk on west side of Downie street, from Smith to Victoria avenue, was granted.

A petition for a concrete walk on west side of Alfred street was granted the walk will be laid inside the tree line.

Sidewalks to Be Built.

The City Engineer submitted a list of sidewalks to be constructed as advertised.

The question of a walk on Princess street here again came up. This work was granted on petition in May, but was opposed at the June regul. Council meeting by Messrs. Overend and Sons.

His worship said that he would move that this walk be added to the list to be constructed notwithstanding the opposition of the Overends. He moved to this effect seconded by Ald. Johnston. The vote, however, showed adeadlock Aldermen Anderson and Duffus declining to vote, and Ald. Graham opposing the resolution.

Ald. Anderson said he would not oppose the Princess street walk were others as badly needed provided for.

Ald. Graham did not think the Princess street walk very urgently in demand.

His worship, the chairman and Ald. Johnston were apparently anxious that the Overend's opposition should not have the effect of forcing the Board to repudiate its former action re Princess street sidewalk, and encouraged their opposing colleagues to name the sidewalk work they would accept in return for their acquiescence in the Princess street proposition.

The opposition took advantage of this opportunity and—

CITIZENS SHOULD HELP COUNCIL FIGHT CATERPILLER PLAGUE

Last evening Mayor Bradburn suggested to the Board of Works that two or three men be employed to clear the city's street trees of caterpillars, which threaten to prove a worse plague this year than ever. This was considered favorably, although no definite action was taken. The question will, however, come up again at Monday's Council meeting, when some means of combatting the pests will be devised.

In this connection, his worship respectfully requests all citizens to do their part in ridding their trees of caterpillars now, and not wait until the pests begin to leave their nests and travel. Otherwise any precaution taken by the Council to protect trees on the street line will prove practically useless.

DUMMY CORPSE WAS INTERRED

Squay On Indian Reserve Disappointed Tries To Fool Authorities And Her Relations

Portage La Prairie, Man., May 31.—The Provincial Police have made a thorough investigation into the rumors which suggested a charge of infanticide against a squaw on the Fairford reserve, who claimed to have had a still born child. When the grave was opened it was found to contain a dummy body, and rumors of infanticide followed.

The investigation of the provincial police discloses the fact that the squaw, who has not had a child for nine years, reported to her friends that she was to have another child. When her hopes were disappointed, and no child was born, her shame was such that with her mother's assistance she made a dummy body and gave out the report that the child had been stillborn.

HALIFAX MAN SHOT DOWN FOR A FEW DOLLARS IN HIS HOUSE

Halifax, May 31.—Thomas S. Donaldson, one of the best known men in Halifax, was murdered in his shop on the Bedford Road at two o'clock yesterday afternoon. At 8 o'clock last night a man who is believed to be the murderer was arrested at Windsor, 40 miles from the city. The murder was one of the most [illegible] in the annals of crime in Halifax. Donaldson kept a roadside shop [illegible] miles out of the city. There is a back room to his shop in which is a bed. Donaldson was reclining on this bed and in the shop in front was an employe whose name is Edward Cody.

A young man came along and looked into the shop, and as it was raining Cody asked him in. The newcomer talked for a few minutes about fishing, and then said "Where is the tall fellow?" alluding to a man whom he had seen in the shop early in the forenoon, and who had sold him some biscuits, for he had visited the place about 8 o'clock yesterday morning.

"I do not know," was the reply and Cody proceeded to enter the back room.

"Do not move," said the visitor who whipped out two revolvers and shot Cody in the arm.

Then Donaldson rose from the bed and a shot was sent into his right breast. He fell and rose again and a second shot was sent into his left lung and he fell back dead.

A small amount of money was taken from the till. The man arrested had $23.10 in silver in his pockets, and he said his name was Stanley.

MOVING PICTURE HOUSES

The awful holocaust in Spain a few days ago, caused by a fire in a moving picture theatre, emphasizes the necessity of enforcing the law regarding these places. The Times would have the regulations amended so as to provide larger and freer exits than at present are to be found in many of these show houses throughout the country, and especially in this city. We venture to say that if a fire occurred in any one of the local moving picture houses at a time when it was filled with men, women and children—mostly the latter—the results would be appaling.

It is said that the local managers are now observing the law, which provides for exits and aisles of not less than a certain width, and permits no crowding in the building or corridors. But this is not sufficient. The exits and aisles should be double the present size if ample protection is to be assured.

The Ontario Government is giving more attention to this matter than they formerly did, and have instructed their inspector to visit the moving picture houses of the Province. Mr. Newman, who has this duty to perform, will in due course, come to Peterborough, when, he will, we trust, insist on radical changes, in order to provide against any possible loss of life in case of a fire or panic. The Times is sending a marked copy of this article to Mr. Newman, and also to the members of the Ontario Government.

THE TREATY OF PARIS AND THE RIGHTS OF QUEBEC CIVIL CODE RE MARRIAGES.

(Editor Morning Times.)

Sir,—The issue before the Supreme Court as to the rights of this Dominion to enact a uniform Marriage Law such as the Lancaster Bill provides, is intensely interesting to all lovers of liberty, Catholic and Protestant alike. In Thursday's Times appears an account of the arguments by Mr. Magnault, wherein it is plain he tries to show the conquest of New France, and the consequent secession of that country to England, made no difference in the civil laws of Quebec. I refer especially now to Justice Idington's question to him and his answer to it. Question: "Has the Church of England any right to marry Roman Catholics, in your contention?" Answer: "No authority can be cited in favor of that proposition. It involves the consideration of what was the law after the conquest. THERE IS NO EVIDENCE THAT THE ENGLISH LAW EXCEPTING CRIMINAL WAS INTRODUCED INTO THE PROVINCE OF QUEBEC."

Now, sir, all students of history are aware that when France ceded N. France, a treaty was signed at Paris in 1763. In this treaty France cedes to Great Britain Nova Scotia, Canada, with all its dependencies, the island of Cape Breton, and all the other islands and coasts, etc., in the Gulf of St. Lawrence, etc. After the French King has ceded all these lands etc., the British King agrees, and here are the exact words of the treaty, viz.:

"His Brittanic Majesty, on his side, agrees to grant the liberty of the Catholic religion to the inhabitants of Canada; he will consequently give the most precise and most effectual orders that his new Roman Catholic subjects may profess the worship of their religion, according to the rites of the Romish Church, AS FAR AS THE LAWS OF GREAT BRITAIN PERMIT."

Now, sir, how can Mr. Magnault prove that only the English criminal law was in force in Quebec after the conquest? If further proof that the laws of England superceded the laws of Quebec after the conquest we quote the following paragraph from the 14th Geo. III, cap 83, A. D. 1774, an Act to make MORE EFFECTUAL provision for the Government of Quebec:

Section 5.—"It is hereby declared, that His Majesty's subjects, professing the religion of the Church of Rome, of, and in the said PROVINCE OF QUEBEC, may have, hold, and enjoy the free exercises of the religion of the Church of Rome, SUBJECT TO THE KING'S SUPREMACY, declared and established by an Act made in the first year of the reign of Queen Elizabeth

QUESTION IN MARRIAGE CASE MADE SUB-JUDICE IN CASE

Argument Concluded Today And Judgment Reserved By Supreme Court.

Ottawa, May 31.—Argument in the reference by the Dominion Government to the Supreme Court of questions with regard to its jurisdiction in enacting the Lancaster Marriage Bill was concluded at one o'clock this afternoon, after a hearing of four days and a half. Judgment is not likely to be rendered for some time.

The right of the Dominion Government to ask the questions submitted in the reference, and its right to insist on a reply, was presented to the court at the closing session by E. L. Newcombe, Deputy Minister of Justice. He asked the court to answer all the questions, and also if the question as to the jurisdiction is not answered in the affirmative that the court suggest or advise the Government in the matter.

Mr. Lafleur, K.C., for the promoters of the bill, followed Mr. Newcombe and closed the argument.

Sir Louis Davies suggested that the court had no power to answer Question Two, as the Hebert case made it sub-judice. At its conclusion the Chief Justice said that the court was extremely indebted to the leaders of the bar participating in the argument and stated that the court greatly admired the splendid courtesy which prevailed during the hearing.

W. F. MACLEAN TELLS OF HIS DEALINGS WITH FARMERS BANK

Toronto, May 31.—W. F. Maclean, M.P., took the stand at this afternoon's session of the Farmers Bank inquiry and told the story of his dealings with Travers and the Farmers Bank. He denied in emphatic terms that there was any hint, suggestion, understanding, or agreement to the effect that he or the Toronto World should be advanced any money in return for the World's influence in securing deposits for the bank from the Provincial Treasurer.

Mr. Maclean told Mr. Hodgins that he was Vice-President of The World Publishing Co., and at the time of the dealings with the bank Mr. W. H. Greenwood, managing editor, was in complete charge.

When Mr. Hodgins asked for particulars about the World's accounts and Mr. Maclean did not seem to be able to give details Sir William Meredith remarked that he could not expect a man who was "chronically hard up" to remember details.

"Awful crime, isn't it?" said Mr. Maclean, laughing.

Needed Money for Wages.

"You are in need of money?"

"Oh yes."

"Money for wages, etc.?"

"Yes."

Mr. Hodgins asked if the starting of an account with the Farmers Bank would not be a subject for discussion between Maclean and Greenwood.

"It might be."

"Why did you pick the Farmers Bank?"

"Probably because we could not get money in the bank we were dealing with. Our account was often overdrawn, and it was hard sometimes to get our notes discounted."

"Did you know Travers?"

"I met him at the bank when I went there."

Questioned regarding the efforts to get Hon. Col. Matheson to deposit Provincial money in the Farmers Bank the M.P. said he "might have heard from Greenwood that Travers had asked him to try to get Provincial deposits."

"That sounds quite casual."

"Well, he probably told me."

"What had you to do with the Provincial Treasurer's deposits?"

"Nothing that I know of."

Did Not See Sir James.

He asserted that he had not seen Sir James Whitney oftener than three times since the change of Government and Col. Matheson not more than twice.

Mr. Maclean emphatically denied that any promise of Provincial deposits had been made to Travers in order to get advances from the bank.

CITIZENS MUST NOT CROSS LONDON STREET DAM

The Board Of Works Considering The Advisability Of Making Old Bridge Safe For Pedestrian Traffic.

At last night's meeting of the Board of Works, his worship reported that unless the city makes the old bridge at London street safe for pedestrian traffic, the Quaker Oats Co. will clear the structure away. In such an event the company would positively prohibit people from walking across the new dam at London street. On motion of the Mayor, the City Engineer and the Street Commissioner were instructed to examine the old bridge and report if it would be advisable to repair it for foot travel, and the cost of such a course. Immediate action will be taken in this regard as the company must know the city's intention without unnecessary delay.

May Purchase Light Standards.

Mr. E. G. Patterson of the C.G.E. has offered the four electric light standards in use at the Summer Fair to the city at $50 each. This proposition will be acted on at Monday night's Council meeting.

CITY VOTES $300 FOR FIRST OF JULY CELEBRATION

The City's Finance Committee last night voted $300 to a committee composed of the members of the 57th Regiment, Board of Trade and the Canadian Club, said grant to aid in celebrating July 1st in a fitting and patriotic manner. His Worship and Chairman Anderson of the Finance Committee to represent the city.

The White Elephant.

Ald. Buller's white elephant, the South City Pumping Station, is costing the city $35.66 a month for power and light. The Finance Committee were appalled at this bill of expense and his worship, Chairman Ald. Anderson, and Aldermen Buller, chairman of the Board of Works, will negotiate for a reduction in this respect if possible.

BANK SCANDAL IS DISCLOSED

In Connection With a Local Water Power.

NEAR BURLEGH FALLS.

Property Leased for Nominal Sum and Sold for About $200,000 — Liberal Government; Responsible For Loss to the People.

A rank political scandal seems to be in the hatching. Under the Liberal government the splendid water power at Perry's Creek, Burleigh Falls, was leased to Mr. J. A. Culverwell for $1 a year. Mr. Culverwell can hardly be blamed for taking plums that fall into his pocket. Still, the water power, that will soon be turning factory wheels many miles away, and lighting hundreds of residences, was sold by him for approximately $200,000. Why did the guardians of the people's rights lease for half a century a power of such value for 10 cents a month. To be sure there is a stipulation to the effect that the lessee shall not at any time during the said term assign, sublet or transfer these presents, nor any rights hereunder without the consent thereto of the Minister of Railways and Canals for the time being, and no assignment, sub-letting or transfer shall be valid or effectual, or binding, on the lessor, without such consent.

This seems only a political quibble. The whole point for consideration is that the people who owned that water power get ten cents a month whilst the lessee draws interest in a fifth of a million dollars. This seems to be a most striking proof that a change of government was required, and came none too soon. The Times understands that the Hon. Mr. Cochrane, the present Minister of Railways and Canals, is investigating the matter, but as all the conditions attached to the practical sale of the property have been complied with by Mr. Culverwell and the late government, it would seem that nothing can be done.

FISHING FOR CROCODILES.

Pointed Bars of Baited Wood Used For Hooking the Reptiles.

Under ordinary circumstances the Dyaks of Borneo ask nothing more of the crocodiles that infest their rivers than to be left alone. Nobody thinks of catching or disturbing any of the creatures until one of them has begun to display a taste for human flesh. Then the professional crocodile catcher is called in, and crocodiles are caught and killed until the discovery of some of the brass arm ornaments, which every Dyak wears, in the stomach of one of the victims shows that the man-eater has at last been caught. E. H. Gomes in The National Geographic Magazine describes the curious way of hooking the great reptiles.

A piece of hard wood ten inches long and an inch or so in diameter is sharpened to a point at both ends. A length of plaited baru bark some eight feet long is tied to a shallow notch in the middle of this piece of wood, and a single rattan forty or fifty feet long is tied to the end of the bark rope, forming a long line.

The most irresistible bait is the carcass of a monkey, although the body of a dog or snake is often used. The more overpowering the stench the better—the crocodile will eat only putrefying flesh. The bait is securely lashed to the pointed bar and one of the ends of the bar is tied with a few turns of cotton thread to the bark rope, bringing bar and rope into the same straight line.

Next the bait is suspended from the bough of a tree overhanging the river. The rattan line is left lying on the ground, one end of it firmly fixed in the soil.

Attracted either by smell or sight, a crocodile raises himself from the water and snaps at the bundle, the slack line making no resistance till the bait is swallowed and the animal begins to swim off. Then the planted end of the lines holds till the thread binding the pointed stick to the bark rope snaps. The stick at once returns to its natural position at right angles to the rope and becomes jammed across the crocodiles' stomach, the two points fixing themselves in the flesh.

A firm pull will soon bring the crocodile to the surface and so on shore, for the pain which every pull at the rope causes constrains him to follow docilely after the drag of the rope.

As soon as he is landed the animal is addressed by the catcher in most eulogistic language, that he may be beguiled into offering no resistance. He is called "a rajah among animals" and told that he has come on a friendly visit and must conduct himself accordingly.

First the creature's jaws are tied up, not a very difficult thing to do. Then the crocodile catcher, still pouring forth compliments upon his prey, tells him he will give him rings for his fingers—and binds the creature's hind legs fast behind his back, so as to deprive him of his grip on the ground and his ability to use his powerful tail. This takes no little courage and skill. Finally the fore legs are tied in the same way, a stout pole is passed under the legs, and Master Crocodile is carried off to the nearest government station, where the bounty is paid.

The moment the crocodile is safely bound the language of flattery and compliment ceases, and the Dyaks begin to howl and jeer at him, deriding him for his stupidity and helplessness.

How and Why It Rains.

Rain is an accumulation of the tiny particles of the vapor of the atmosphere into drops. These drops, first small of size, attract others of their kind and become drops of such magnitude that they fall to the earth because of their weight. There is a limit to the quantity of water which the air is capable of absorbing and retaining as invisible vapor. Warm air is able to hold more than cold air; hence when the air which is saturated with moisture becomes cold for any reason whatever it can no longer retain its moisture. A portion must under such condition accumulate into drops. These fall to the earth in the shape of rain.

Wants a Rainy Wedding Day.

The Swedish girl prays for a rainy day on which to get married. Then before she goes to the ceremony attired in her wedding clothes she milks the cow, feeds the calf and steals a breast feather from the hen. That is to bring her husband good luck. The Swedish bride wears loose shoes, unbuttoned and untied, at her wedding. In one is a silver coin, in the other a gold one. This is to bring her the necessaries and luxuries of life.

Paternal Confidence.

The Young Man (with some embarrassment)—There is one question you haven't asked me yet Mr. Hurpop. You haven't wanted to know whether or not I think I can make a living for your daughter.

The Other Man—That isn't necessary, Henry. She'll see that you make the living, all right, if she's at all like her mother, and I think she is.

Fond of Their Own Music.

"I should think some of these speechmakers would get tired of hearing themselves," said the proprietor of the village store.

"Human nature's the same in politics as 'tis anywheres else," replied old Joe Struthers. "A man don't mind listenin' to the worst noise a cornet kin make, provided he's the feller that's doin' the practicin'."

A Sacrifice.

"An' that ungrateful boy of mine," whimpered the man in the prisoner's dock. "After all the sacrifices I've made for him he refuses to pay my fine."

"What sacrifices did you make for him?" asked the attorney.

"What sacrifices? Didn't I let him earn his way through college?"

Canal Officials to Get a Chance.

It is rumored that the decision of the Department with respect to Messrs. Clegg and Fairen will be of an indulgent character. However, there is nothing certain about it, and the Department's judgment will not be out for a few days.

The Local Option people are working hard in Port Hope to carry the measure next January.

OLD BERLIN.

It Is a Terrible Contrast to Much Lauded New City.

With 600,000 of the 2,500,000 population of the Kaiser's capital crowded into one-room dwellings at the rate of from five to ten persons to a room, the authorities of Berlin are seriously concerned with the problem that confronts them. Rapid as has been the building in Berlin, it has not kept pace with the growth of the city, and erection of new houses has been almost entirely confined to the better residence section of West Berlin.

Berlin is known the world over as the one large city without tenements. It is indisputably the most modern and up-to-date city of Europe. Visitors readily concede that the artistic exteriors of the blocks and blocks of flats, with their large inner courts, and the cleanliness of the streets, have not been exaggerated. Sociologists hold up Berlin as a model, particularly in America.

And so it is. Probably in no other city are the streets literally "scrubbed" daily. Electrically propelled water wagons with rotary thin wire brushes pass over the streets. The streets are flooded with the water; immediately behind come the stiff brushes.

Following the combined water and scrub wagons come men with long hand scrapers lined with rubber, similar to those used by window cleaners. These they push along before them, removing whatever water and dirt may have been left by the big rotary brushes.

When they get through the streets are as clean as a fine parlor floor. Small armies of men are employed in tending the trees and flowers, and in the parks.

But this is so-called "New Berlin." It is the Berlin of the very progressive municipal administration under the present Emperor. It is the Berlin that the visitors, tourists and sociologists see and praise. There is another Berlin which comparatively few tourists visit, and of which many sociologists do not know.

Across the river on the east and the north is "Old Berlin"—the Berlin of Frederick the Great. There the Berlin authorities have the same sociological problems that confront the authorities of other cities.

There are some 8,000 to 10,000 flats, ranging from two to nine rooms, in "New Berlin." In old Berlin as high as thirteen persons have been found living in one room. The construction of modern flat buildings has been confined to the new town, and they have been put up for dividends.

Fairly moderate as the rentals, ranging from $20 to $60 for three to six-room steam-heated flats, might be considered by Americans no German workman, street car or railroad employe, earning but $30 to $35 a month can pay such rents.

Accompanied by a physician, the writer made a short tour of investigation in the north side. It was noon, but no one would suspect it in the dim light of the basement room into which we stepped. On a very soiled bed of rags was a woman and her young baby.

The rooms were kitchen, dining room, sleeping room and living room all in one. The family consisted of the husband, wife, four children, the eldest girl being sixteen. At night they divided the one room with two young workingmen, to whom they rented sleeping space on the floor.

On another street we came to a place in the second court back of one room and a tiny kitchen. They were occupied by a man and wife and eight children. There were three beds for the ten. There was no heat.

The two windows and the door were kept closed against the cold. Moisture ran down the walls. These two places were typical of a dozen that were visited. The death rate, is very high from these sections of the city. Privacy and morality is impossible under such conditions.

A proposition will be laid before the Diet to appropriate at least $1,000,000 for "small dwellings," to be rented at a rate within reach of the working man.

Just How He Felt.

Mr. Meekins was habitually all that the first syllable of his name might imply, but a day came when the worm turned at last and spoke his mind freely to that other member of the domestic firm who had assumed leadership. Mrs. M stood aghast and then remarked ominously.

"Timothy, you'd regret those words if you should suddenly lose your wife."

"Oh, I don't want to lose her," came the cheerful retort, "but there are times when I'd like very much to mislay her for a few hours."

The Turkish Bride.

The Turkish bride spends about a week in dancing and wild, happy life before her marriage. Then when she leaves her father's house she kisses his hands and feet. She goes to the groom's home and on his arrival kisses his hand. Then the paint with which her face has been daubed in the week of dancing and frivolity is wiped off and she drinks coffee with her husband—and they are happy ever after.

His First Intimation.

"How did you find out you could draw?" inquired the admirer of the celebrated illustrator.

"By the marks I received in school for the excellence and fidelity of my work," replied the eminent one. "My work was a caricature of my beloved teacher on the blackboard, and the marks came from the teacher's cane."

Disappointed.

"I dreamed last night that I went to your funeral."

"And that is why you are looking so glum? Good boy!"

"Yes—because it was a dream."

Team Work.

"How do Jack and Joanne ever manage to scrape a living?"

"Why, he makes the money first, and she makes it last."

Bobcaygeon Lumber Mills Burned.

The Bobcaygeon Lumber mill burned down a few days ago. The fire is supposed to have originated from an electric storm that raged there for several hours. The storm was so severe that the twenty men working at the mill quit work at 3 p.m. The mill was a modern structure and the proprietors, as well as the village, are heavy losers by the conflagration.

In offering these shares for investment, we feel that we are inviting the public to purchase stock in an industry in which the profits are very large, and the demand for the product is ever increasing.

THE MONTH OF MARRIAGES.

While in this city, as throughout the land, the wedding bells will ring right merrily many times this month, the fact remains that June is losing its supremacy as the month of marriages. Among the ancient Romans June was considered the most propitious month for brides, the particularly favorable seasons being at full moon and at the conjunction of the sun and moon. This idea was prevalent in the Europe of the middle ages, and has not yet died out but it is gradually losing its sway. England began the departure from the custom. Statistics which are dry things to mention in connection with romance show that in Great Britain the June bride is in the minority when compared with the September bride. September heads the list, with December second, and poor old June is relegated to third place. In the United States and Canada the same conditions do not yet prevail, but it is likely to be a matter of only a few years until June is sent to the rear. If Cupid and Hymen are losing their preference for June, the same cannot be said of the stork. In England this month leads in the number of births, as a rule, with March usually second, September third and December fourth.

A glory of which June cannot be robbed is that it is the month of the rose, the period when that most charming of the flowers spreads its petals and attains its greatest beauty. In the days when Persia ruled the world, and was not a mere bone of contention for the Powers to squabble over, her poets sang of the loveliness of the "red, red, rose," and ever since the world has been held captive by the blushing beauty except those pessimists who can see only the thorns. In Northwestern America the rose has reached its greatest beauty, and rose festivals have become very popular in Portland, Ore., and other cities where the worship of the queen of flowers is almost a cult. This month the Oregon metropolis holds forth the lure to tourists of a fiesta that shall surpass all its predecessors. Another interesting Feast of Roses takes place annually in early June at Manheim, Pa. The founder of the town, Baron Henry William Stiegel, of Manheim, Germany, in 1772 presented to the congregation of the Zion Lutheran Church at Manheim a site for their sacred edifice, with the stipulation of an annual rental of 'one red rose, payable in June, when the same shall be lawfully demanded." For years the rose has been paid each year to some descendant of the Baron, with appropriate ceremonies.

This week will see the beginning of the annual June rush to Paris. Great Britain and continental Europe, South America, the United States and Canada help to swell the human tide that flows toward the City of Light. Last year visitors from the United States and Canada alone, during the months of June and July, spent in Paris a total of fifteen million good American dollars. It is estimated that no less than 20,000 Nord-Ameriques will be registered at Parisian hotels and pensions during the two months to come. London gets only about $7,500,000 from American "trippers" during the season, or only about half of the amount expended in the French metropolis. The average season's expenditure of Americans in Europe is about $60,000,000, so Paris gets a quarter of the total. It is doubtful if Paris has more real attractions than many other European cities, but its citizens have at least learned the art of publicity. [illegible]

WILL ABOLISH A.M. AND P.M.

Time in its flight has always been subject to cumbersome and stupid systems of reckoning, but there are signs that indicate that better "times" are coming. To-day the French government legislated the absurd A.M. and P.M. divisions of the day out of existence and put into effect a system whereby the hours are numbered from one to twenty-four, from midnight to midnight. This novel and logical arrangement applies only to the railways and the postal and telegraph services of France, but it has already been taken up generally. Anticipating the twenty-four hour system, the ladies of Paris have for weeks been having tea at seventeen o'clock instead of five p.m. The plan has also been given a test in the telegraph offices with satisfactory results, and the way has been paved for bringing about its general adoption to-day without confusion on the part of employes or public. Clocks are on sale all over France which are guaranteed to strike up to twenty-four o'clock without missing a stroke, and it is likely that thousands of Parisians will stay up to-night to hear the clocks toll the "dread hour of midnight." That is the hour when ghosts are supposed to roam about, but it is safe to say that no spook would be brave enough to stay in the same neighborhood with a cuckoo clock cuckooing twenty-four times. New timetables have been printed for all the French railroads, and postmarks have also been changed. Incidentally, eleven o'clock under the new system becomes twenty-three, and if the significance of that number is understood in France it should serve as a striking reminder to French beaux, when calling upon their beloved, that it is time to "skiddoo."

After all, there is nothing new under the sun. The twenty-four hour system was put in effect several years ago on the transcontinental service of the Canadian Pacific Railway.

Having reformed the day, the French government might do well to turn its attention to those other reprehensible characters, the week, the month and the year. The times are out of joint there even more than in the day. Numerous schemes for reforming the calendar have been proposed for centuries past, but to secure their adoption is another matter. Robert Harcourt, a Liberal member of the British Parliament, recently introduced a bill for doing away with some of the objectionable features of the calendar. He proposed that the business year be made to consist of four quarters of ninety-one days each, or exactly thirteen weeks. In ordinary years the calendar, both weekly and monthly, would thus be symmetrical for each of the four quarters. In leap years the calendars for the first and second quarters and for the third and fourth quarters would be symmetrical. In favor of this system, Mr. Harcourt claims that the calculation of apportionable payments, the keeping and auditing of accounts, and the tabulating of statistical returns would be greatly simplified.

Editorial Notes

Owing to a recent sad experience the Hon. Bill Taft's friends will be tempted to speak of Ohio as the Blackeye State.

The voluntary elimination of the Lorimer Senators from public life would indicate that they had recognized the dawning of a new era with whose aspirations and purposes they have no sympathy.

"What the Republican party needs," says the Hon. Bill Taft, "is conservatism which is progressive." In view of the ripped-up condition of the party a great many people believe that its real need is a doctor.

To-day is the thirtieth anniversary of the death of Garibaldi, the famous Italian patriot and soldier. A son of the hero took part in the Mexican revolution last year, while his daughter was a delegate to the Methodist conference held in Minneapolis in May.

Vice President Sherman journeyed from Washington to Chicago in order to quietly inform the Hon. Bill Lorimer that if he did not get out of the United States Senate he could be pushed out. It is said that the Hon. Bill will resign, and if he does those Senators who voted to keep him in his seat should do likewise, for their usefulness is also at an end.

At a club meeting the women were discussing the pros and cons of equal suffrage. When an anti had finished giving her views, a woman who is known for her wealth and poor taste in dress arose and said: "It's all very well for such a fashionably dressed woman as you to be opposed to women voting, but—" Here the anti interrupted with: "It's just as easy to be fashionably dressed as to look like a dowd. Madame, the front of your gown is atrocious, and I am perfectly willing to give you my dressmaker's card. She'd never allow you to wear a thing like that."

BOYS IN DANGER.

Stole Dynamite and Smeared Cat's Face with Dangerous Explosive.

Orange, May 30.—Three boys, the oldest 10 years old, sat down to-day to a luncheon of dynamite sticks stolen from a box car. After finding the explosive unpalatable they broke a stick of it and smeared it over a cat's face. The boys hid their booty in a sewer when the cat refused it, and later guided two policemen to the spot. The bluecoats recovered eight pounds of the explosive.

DENIES EXTRAVAGANCE.

Roosevelt Declares His Administration Rolled up Surplus for Canal.

Morristown, N. J., May 30.—The last day of Col. Roosevelt's campaign in New Jersey began with a speech in Morristown, in which the former President took up the assertion that during his administration there had been extravagant expenditures of public funds. He said that the statement was far from the mark, and that while he was President such a huge surplus was rolled up that a large portion of the funds expended upon the Panama canal was provided from the treasury without the appropriation of money by Congress.

"Recently Mr. Taft has dwelt upon the fact that my administration has left a deficit," said the colonel.

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

Negro Frightened by Cries of Lynch Him, Draws Knife and Goes Wild.

New York, May 31.—Cries of Lynch him, after he had refused to allow two young men to force their way through one of the Bowery entrances to Steeplechase Park, Coney Island, Sunday night so terrified Aaron Nelson, a negro gate-keeper that Nelson, drawing a knife with a 5-inch blade, made a dash for liberty which resulted in the serious wounding of two men who unconsciously stood in the path of the frenzied man. Women and children were knocked over in his mad rush, and a crowd of several hundred persons had joined in the pursuit when the police finally captured Nelson.

SEEK BURGLAR.

Freight Trains Entering New York Searched for Burglar Who Was Shot.

New York, June 1.—Freight trains on the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad were searched to-day for the body of a burglar who was shot last night while trying to escape from the police. The wounded man ran to the railroad tracks and threw himself from the top of a cut upon a moving freight train, but was so badly injured the police believe he could not recover.

Five shots were fired at the burglar by the police in a running duel between a cafe he sought to rob and the railroad station, a distance of more than 100 yards. The police believe that the train was a through freight, and have wired to Stamforth Ct., requesting that it be searched for his body.

ONE MORE ADDED TO THE GREAT ARMY

WHO ARE SHOUTING THE PRAISES OF DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS.

Chiswick man's Kidney Trouble developed into rheumatism, and finally into Diabetes—Story of his complete cure.

Chiswick, Ont., May 31.—(Special.)—Rheumatism, which developed into Diabetes, had made life a burden to Octave Labracque of this place. Dodd's Kidney Pills cured him and he is added to that great army of Canadians who glory in telling their neighbors that Dodd's Kidney Pills are the one sure remedy for all kidney ills.

"My limbs would swell and I had a dragging sensation across the loins," Mr. Labracque says, in giving his experience. "I could not attend to my work properly as I had to keep resting and I was troubled with rheumatism, and my troubles finally developed into Diabetes.

"I tried different medicines and doctors but got little relief till I began to use Dodd's Kidney Pills. Ten boxes made a new man of me."

All Mr. Labracque's troubles come from diseased kidneys. They speedily ceased when he commenced to use the one sure cure for diseased kidneys—Dodd's Kidney Pills.

The Great London Shows Differ From Other Shows

There are many ways in which the Great London Consolidated Shows differ from other circuses and a visit to this monster tented enterprise when it comes to Peterborough on Thursday, June 6th, will cause people who have been complaining that all shows were alike to qualify this statement by adding "excepting the London Show."

The union of two large circuses resembles other tented enterprises inasmuch as the performance is given under a tent. When it comes to the circus acts themselves it differs widely from other institutions which are heralded as "great" shows.

The menagerie is more than twice as large as that carried by other circuses. The only mandrill in captivity is in this department. The only hybrid lion-tiger, with the lion's stripes on the tiger's skin, is another rare feature.

A grand street parade is given in every city visited. And the turn-out of the Dublin International Prize Winning Champions with any circus of the present day.

GRAND TRUNK RY. NOTES

May 31st, 1912.

Great satisfaction with the development with the work was expressed by Mr. F. J. Chamberlain, Acting President of the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway, in a recent Fort William interview after inspecting the terminal improvements in progress there.

"There is the making here of the future largest city in America," he is reported to have remarked, "and if the people here and elsewhere only recognize their opportunities it will be made so. It is not the work of a generation or two, but it is possible within a wonderfully short time." Mr. Chamberlain expressed surprise at the attitude of property owners on Empire Ave., which was holding back all the company's efforts to open up a passenger service into the city, particularly as the entry of the road into the Union station would result in a material increase in adjoining land values. No other method of making an entrance has been considered, but as soon as a satisfactory decision was reached the tracks to the station would be laid with all possible speed. On the Mission River itself a big work was to be done. Eleven tracks were being laid side by side, with the main line and two very commodious bunk houses had been erected near the elevator that would quarter 150 men employed in and around it.

The office of the Division Freight Agent, and also of the City Freight Department, has been moved from the Grand Trunk General Offices on McGill street to Room 414 of the Canadian Express Building, directly opposite.

The first of the Grand Trunk's Muskoka express trains left Toronto at 10.15 last Saturday morning and arrived at Muskoka wharf at 1.40 p.m., connecting with the lake steamers. This inaugurates the summer service to this popular resort.

A gang of workmen are at present engaged in making improvements along the Belleville Junction line of the G.T.R., old ties being replaced and heavier rails laid down.

* * * * *

Following on the announcement of the Grand Trunk Pacific that a first-class daily train service between Winnipeg and Regina would shortly be inaugurated, an effort is being made by authorities of the latter city to arrange an excursion of business men from all the towns between Regina and Yorkton to Regina upon the first train, whilst a monster banquet in the Saskatchewan Capital is also planned to crown the event.

Superintendent W. R. Davidson of the Grand Trunk, whose headquarters are in London, met with a painful injury in Hamilton recently when a heavy steel rail dropped upon his foot. Medical assistance fortunately showed that no serious harm would result from the experience.

THE WALK ACROSS CENTRAL PARK.

(Editor Morning Times.)

Sir: I am informed that a diagonal walk is to be laid across Central Park, not in the position of the present beaten path, but in a rather more north easterly position, and quite contrary to the judgment of the general public who by their action in following the present beaten path have plainly decided where, in their opinion, the walk should be.

The only reason the public will have of keeping on the new walk will be the fear of the law, and why should such conditions be made to exist? Would it not be far better to place the walk where everyone would be mutually pleased to follow it?

The material of which this walk is to be constructed, considering the location and purpose of it, is no less objectionable than the location. Have we not enough hard concrete walks to travel on without placing this material across the parks also? Would not a concrete curb on either side filled in and rounded slightly above the general surface, with good, clean gravel and sifted cinders be much more suitable than the concrete walk. I do not mean to use the dirt from the foundry, such as was used on the Victoria Park, but good, clean, sifted clinker material.

I sometimes wonder, Mr. Editor, if the time will ever come when a reasonable amount of brains will be displayed in the doing of things?

Yours, etc.,

—Observer.

crete walks both sides of Hunter street from the bridge to Burnham street, on north side of Clifton from Concession to Rogers streets, a section on west side of Concession street, all in East City.

Ald. Duffus wanted a walk on west side of Donegal street, from railway track to McDonnel street.

Ald. Graham and Johnston asked for a walk south of Hilliard street, from George to Water streets.

Ald. Johnston thought he might as well have a concrete walk laid on the north side of Edinburgh street, from the railway track to Aylmer street.

All of these walks were accordingly added to the list, as were several others which subsequently cropped up here and there during a three hours' session, and will be advertised.

It was understood, however, that they may not be built till late in the year. Walks more urgently needed may take precedence.

Boundary Roads Maintenance.

Moved by Mayor Bradburn, seconded by Ald. Johnston, That the Clerk be authorized to write North Monaghan Council that the Board of Works will be pleased to meet them when they hold a session in town, with a view to entering into satisfactory arrangements for a joint maintenance of the boundary roads.—Carried.

South City Flooded.

Many South City premises are flooded through the backing up of the water in the sewer, including the C.G.E. premises and Mitchell's and Matthews-Laing's cellars at corner of Sherbrooke and Park streets, and Mayor Bradburn moved, seconded by Ald. Johnston, That the City Engineer be authorized to make relief connections from the manhole of the Rink street sewer to the drain.—Carried.

Concrete Crossing Granted.

A concrete crossing to St. Luke's church was granted.

The Street Railway Co. was granted permission to connect their catch-basin at Wolfe street with the city's surface drainage system.

Smith Street Ry. Curve.

Moved by Ald. Duffus, seconded by Ald. Gillespie, That the City Solicitor report as to the city's position in asking for a change of curve in the street railway at the corner of Smith and George streets.—Carried.

Street Signs.

The clerk was instructed to write the Trades and Labor Council in appreciation of the latter's suggestion that the names of streets be shown on signs at street corners, and state that Council will take this matter up later. Ald. Johnston and Duffus moved this.

More Surface Water Trouble.

Moved by Ald. Graham, seconded by Ald. Gillespie, That the catch-basin at the corner of Park and Sherbrooke streets be connected with the surface drainage in this vicinity.—Carried.

Foreman Appointed.

On motion of Ald. Johnston and Graham, Wm. Ball was appointed foreman of sewer work at $3 a day. If two gangs are needed Mr. Neary will be employed on the same terms.—Carried.

Poor Street Watering.

Ald. Duffus complained that the street watering is not being properly done. Last Monday, for instance, the dust flying in the main section of the city and north was simply awful.

His worship endorsed this complaint so far as last Monday was concerned.

More attention to this work will be enforced.

POLICE TAKE STEPS TO STOP STREET FLIRTING

—Police Take Steps to Stop Street Washington, June 1.—The Washington police have applied the third degree to flirting.

The police have set themselves to the herculean task of stopping flirting on F street. Proportioned to the smaller population and police force of Washington this is about as big a job as stopping flirting on Broadway. A member of the "skirt squad" caught wireless signals between a pretty girl and a man on F street Saturday night. The couple met around the corner and were arrested.

The girl said she was Miss Vivian Earle and she did not know her companion's name. She was released upon depositing $10 collateral for appearance in police court. The man, who said he was John Franklin, a cotton broker, of Houston, Texas, paid a fine of $25.

HUSBAND-BEATER GETS THREE MONTHS BEHIND IRON BARS

Binghamton, N.Y., May 31.—Mrs. Mary Dubal, of this city, is believed to be the first suffragette in the United States to be given a penitentiary sentence for husband beating. She was arrested on a warrant obtained by Mr. Dubal, who complained that in a fit of rage she gave him a sound beating. City Judge Albert Hotchkiss found her guilty and declared that if women desired men's prerogatives they should also have men's punishment when found guilty of violation of law. He always dealt severely with wife-beaters, he said, and accordingly he sentenced her to three months in the penitentiary.

BULLETS CAUSE A PANIC

Broadway Theatres Crowds In Midst of Riot.

RESERAES CALLED OUT

Much Disorder Caused by Strike of Broadway Waiters — Strikers in Pitched Battle With the Police.

New York, May 31. Disorders developed to-night in connection with the hotel waiters' strike, and theatre-going crowds on Broadway were panic-stricken at one disturbance during which shots were fired.

While the Hotel Men's Association of New York and the Allied Waiters' Associations, which includes in its membership 40 per cent of the employes in the leading hotels and restaurants, reached an agreement to-night, the strike of the waiters affiliated with the International Hotel Workers' Union spread to the Holland House, in Fifth avenue, and Churchill's in Broadway. More than 160 waiters and cooks left these two places during the luncheon and dinner hours.

After the strike at Churchill's, which is an all night restaurant, there was a serious riot at Broadway and Forty-ninth street. Strikers engaged in a battle with the police when an effort was made to disperse them. Persons leaving the restaurant and others on their way to theatres in the vicinity were knocked down. In an effort to restore order a detective of Inspector Hayes's staff fired two shots into the air.

A panic followed among the thousands who had gathered in front of the restaurant, and police reserves were called. Seventy-five waiters and cooks left Churchill's during the dinner hour, and the restaurant was closed at 8 o'clock, but was opened when demands were acceded.

Police were stationed at half a score of the large hotels. Hundreds of strike sympathizers marched to several such hotels, but without any serious developments. Five waiters were arrested near Churchill's and three near the Manhattan Hotel.

STOLE DYING GIRLS MONEY, HE WAS JAILED

Boston, Mass., May 30.—Michael J. Chadapouskis, 35, of the West end, for alleged theft of a dying girl's savings for five years was yesterday sentenced to 18 months in the house of correction by Judge Wentworth in the municipal court. He appealed.

Chadapouskis, collector for an insurance company, stole, it is alleged, $288 from Miss Anna Taky while she was lying at death's door in the City Hospital. She had saved the money by five years' work as a dish washer.

In court Chadapouskis offered to pay [illegible] the money [illegible] that the $50 he [illegible]. Judge Wentworth said he thought it was a clear case of larceny, and refused such a compromise.

BEATEN BY COP.

San Diego, Cal., May 31.—Within two minutes after A. B. Carson, a Socialist, had stepped upon a box at Seventh and E streets and begun speaking in accordance with a plan of the I. W. W. to test the "free speech" ordinance, he was knocked off the box by a policeman and beaten over the head.

Vigilantes arrived, headed by J. W. Porter. It is charged they encouraged the patrolman and that he kicked Carson several times.

ELECTROCUTION BARRED

Mass Meeting in Faneuil Hall Protest Against Sentence of Hull Murderers.

Boston, Mass., June 1.—A mass meeting at Faneuil Hall last night voted to memorialize the Governor and council to commute the sentence of death in the cases of Mrs. Lena Cusmano and Enrico Mascioli. The meeting was under the auspices of the Cusmano committee, of which Atty. Joseph Santosuosso, who presided at the meeting, is the chairman. The council will give a hearing to-day. The following resolutions were unanimously adopted:

"Whereas, we are opposed to capital punishment, it being a relic of barbarism, and

"Whereas, it is contrary to the well-established tradition of this commonwealth to execute a woman and a mother, and

"Whereas, the evidence submitted at the trial of Lena Cusmano and Enrico Mascioli warranted an acquittal of the crime with which they were charged, and

"Whereas, the conviction of the said Lena Cusmano and Enrico Mascioli was obtained largely upon the evidence of a child of the said Lena Cusmano, who is now and has been for some time an inmate of an institution for feeble minded persons, therefore

"Resolved, That we, residents and citizens of Massachusetts, hereby protest against the electrocution of the said Lena Cusmano and Enrico Mascioli, and by unanimous vote in mass meeting assembled in the Cradle of Liberty, instruct and direct the officers of this meeting to present this resolve before His Excellency the Governor of our beloved Commonwealth."

Chairman Santosuosso, in opening the meeting, declared he felt he was voicing the sentiment of the public when he said that the death sentence should not obtain in the cases of Lena Cusmano and Enrico Mascioli. He concluded by stating he did not believe that the Governor and council would desecrate the dignity and good name of the Old Bay state by sending to the electric chair a woman.

Publicity and Active Work Are Doing Wonders.

Nova Scotia is reaping the fruits of publicity in the matter of immigration, according to a recent interview with Arthur S. Barnstead, secretary of Industries and Immigration for that province.

"Four years ago, Premier Murray took steps to organize a provincial immigration service which at the same time acts as a publicity bureau," said Mr Barnstead. "Mainly the operations have been extended to the British Isles where it was felt conditions would serve in drawing the attention of a part of the many thousands who yearly come to Canada to the attractions and opportunities of Canada's East—which, after all, is capable of fuller exploitation and has not shared as much as we should have liked in the great Canada awakening of the last decade or so. The industrial life of the province has made it possible for Nova Scotia to show a substantial increase of population, amounting to 7.13 per cent. We had last summer 492,338 people in Nova Scotia, which is 32,764 more than we had in 1900. We have suffered alike with other parts of older Canada in the rural to urban migration.

"It was not always so, perhaps, but 1912 is not 1882. In the life of a generation the face of the province has changed in many ways, but changed, we believe to the great advantage of Nova Scotians and offering the openings for our young men and women that were non-existent in the earlier years of confederation. So while endeavoring to let our own people see these facts, we are by means of our agency in London, and with the aid of literature, advertising, and the use of lecturers in the Mother Country at the same time proclaiming them to the great millions of British peoples who are crowded in their, and our, home-land."

"A number of people from the British Isles have come to us. Some natives have returned to their old farms after absence in the United States for some years. Others have come in to labor in the industrial centres. Altogether immigration has increased the population of the province by about 20,000 people.

"An average of about 250 to 300 a year, say 1,200 in all, went to the farms. Some of these were farm laborers who worked for a while with our farmers and subsequently moved away. Those who had sufficient capital purchased farms while many who would have located and had acquired the necessary acquaintance with local conditions combined with previous agricultural experience were deterred from doing so, owing to lack of capital.

"The needs of this class have been recognized and the Government has been endeavoring to secure a suitable method whereby assistance would be rendered in certain cases. Since I left the city, Hon. Premier Murray has introduced a bill into the Legislature to effect this very object. It is, briefly, an act for the encouragement of settlement on farm lands. The aid is made available not only for selected farmers from the British Isles or elsewhere who wish to acquire land of their own, but are unable to do so but the like assistance is open to Nova Scotians who have the necessary agricultural qualifications.

"Provision is made for the lending of an amount up to 80 per cent. of the appraised or actual value of the land. There is a limit set on the amount which may be loaned on any one property. I think it is $5,000. The Governor-in-Council is also authorized to purchase out of a fund of $200,000, lands that will be suitable for the purpose, sub-divide it into lots, if need be, and resell it on agreed terms for the repayment of principal and interest. By utilizing existing loan societies or companies to aid us in this work we think we have hit upon a method that will provide in a safe way, the necessary funds and machinery for collection and help to solve the important problem of the resettlement of many of the unoccupied and untilled farms that are to be found in too frequent numbers in our province."

Beating Speaker.

Col. Henry R. Smith, Sergeant-at-Arms of the Dominion Parliament since 1872, has some good stories to tell concerning the expedients employed by members of the House of Commons to question the truthfulness of other honorable members without being called upon by the Speaker to retract.

A Westerner once called a fellow-member a liar in the House, and when urged to retract remarked that he would withdraw the expression out of respect to the Speaker, but added that he would certainly call the member a liar outside the precincts of the chamber. But in most cases attacks on veracity are more cleverly clothed in verbiage.

The most artistic effort in this direction recalled by Col. Smith was that of a wit who, after listening to a speech from the benches opposite, said: "The statements of the honorable member just stated force me to the conclusion that if he had lived in the days of Sapphira that lady would have preferred him to Ananias as a husband."

Honor for Glace Bay.

The people of Glace Bay, N.S., are happy, for that place is to be very much in the limelight in the coming summer. The Sloane aeroplane is to start from there in August on its attempt to cross the Atlantic. That in itself is enough to give prominence in the news columns of a whole country's papers, but Glace Bay is to have the additional honor of having the Duke of Connaught and Premier Borden there as official starters for the aeroplane.

New Mail Train.

Mr. Edgar, the recently appointed local postmaster, who has made great efforts to improve the local postal service, yesterday communicated to The Times the pleasing intelligence that the C.P.R. is putting on a new mail train, between Toronto and Montreal, which going east will arrive at this city at 10.50 a.m. and going west at 4.48 p.m.

If the ladies in charge of Peterborough's Fair could only get hold of the weather man, the latter would look cheaper than a cancelled postage stamp.

SPOTS ON THE SUN

They Indicate the Aging of Our Orb of Life and Light.

THE GREAT SOLAR TRAGEDY.

A Grim Play In Which the "Star" Is Fighting For Existence, Has Absolutely No Chance to Win and Whose Death Means the End of the World.

Life is a tragedy, the earth a stage, men and women the actors, the "gods" the audience. Some pessimists believe that this great play of life is more comic than tragic in the opinion of the spectators.

However this may be, there is another, vastly greater, tragedy of life at which man himself is an onlooker, although, unfortunately, his own ultimate fate is bound up with the denouement of the play.

It is the life drama of the solar system. Its chief actor is the sun, and men are beginning to rub their eyes and wipe the specks from their glasses as they perceive more and more plainly indications that the "star" of the play is aging.

The fact is becoming only too clear that for him this is no sport, but real, deadly tragedy. He is not acting a part, but fighting for life. He cannot win; he can only prolong the struggle, and when he falls exhausted the stage, the theater, actors, spectators, pit and galleries will go with him in one universal ruin.

Until recently we were only troubled a little in mind by the sun spots. It was evident that they must cut off some radiation, but the amount appeared to be trifling, and their maxima are far apart, ten or eleven years. But now we are confronted by a much more disquieting phenomenon. The sun appears to "fluctuate at irregular intervals of several days and sometimes of several months."

Here is the crux of the whole matter. What does the recognition of the fact that the sun is a veritable star mean? What may it mean to the earth and its inhabitants? These questions can best be answered by considering other variable stars.

Let us take an extreme example. There is in the constellation of the Whale a famous variable star known as Mira the Wonderful. In a period of about ten mouths on the average it changes from the third—sometimes the second—magnitude to about the ninth and then back again.

That means, in the extreme, a probable difference of between two and three hundred times in the amount of light and heat which it radiates around it at maximum and at minimum.

When it is faintest it cannot be seen with the naked eye; when it is brightest it is a conspicuous object. As it fades it turns reddish in color, and when it brightens it blazes with brilliant spectroscopic lines.

It is probably a sun at least as great as our sun, and it has recently been found that its spectrum resembles in some striking peculiarities the spectra of sun spots.

Did it ever have any worlds to light and nourish? If so think of the condition of those worlds now.

A sun is like a living organism—it wears out. As it ages it becomes more and more variable. It maintains itself and its planets while its radiant power lasts, but it cannot do so forever. It contracts, flickers, struggles, fades and goes out. Its lifetime is millions of years, but it has an end.

A SOUND INVESTMENT IN TORONTO REAL ESTATE.

This is what we are offering the readers of "The Times" in our newest Sub-Division!

"CALEDONIA PARK"

Anyone familiar with Toronto will agree with us when we say that the best part of the city for investment to-day is the NORTH-WEST SECTION.

In "CALEDONIA PARK" you may purchase land where the district east, west, and south, is almost entirely built up.

The St. Clair Avenue car line will be in operation in about eight months, as the rails are now laid past our property. This, of course, will cause a decided enhancement in land values in the St. Clair Avenue district. "CALEDONIA PARK" lying just two blocks (about four minutes' walk) north of St. Clair, will naturally benefit very much.

The entire block is RESTRICTED to solid brick, or brick veneer houses, which will provide a district absolutely first class, and where houses will sell from $2700 to $4000 each.

A new brick school is just being completed at a cost of about $100,000, on the south side of INNES AVENUE, ONE OF THE STREETS IN "CALEDONIA PARK."

A local builder has just purchased a large strip of land and SIX solid brick houses will be commenced in a very short time.

Toronto investors, men who know values, are purchasing in "Caledonia Park," as they know there is money to be made at the opening low prices of—

$14 to $25 Per Foot

Write us for complete information. We will gladly forward plans and descriptive folder to any address. We know what we are offering, and can, with confidence, recommend "CALEDONIA PARK" lots to the Investor. Ten days' selling has disposed of $60,000.00 worth of lots.

WE REPEAT—We will refund the railroad fare to any purchaser within 150 miles of Toronto.

You can buy in "CALEDONIA PARK" on VERY EASY TERMS: 20 per cent. down and 20 per cent. every six months.

One feature worthy of note is that these lots are DEEP. We are aware that some properties on the market at the present time are only about eighty feet deep. OUR LOTS AVERAGE 124 FEET IN DEPTH TO A WIDE LANE.

Reservations may be made without risk to the purchaser. We will hold for three days what we consider the best available land. You can look the property over yourself, and if absolutely satisfied, make the purchase. We have many clients who act upon our judgment. They have realized splendid profits. You can do the same.

ROSEDALE LOTS

Most citizens of Peterboro' are aware that Rosedale, of Toronto, is the High Class Residential District of that city. Where naught but blue blood is to be found, and where residence therein is a passport to high society. It was sub-divided and put on the market by a Scotch syndicate about 35 years ago, at $20.00 per front foot, and it is now selling at from $75.00 to $250.00 per foot. About the same time the high class citizens of Peterboro' determined to keep step with Toronto, quickly selected and sub-divided that beautiful block of land north of Smith Street, east of Jackson Park, west from Normal School, and Chemong Road. Having gone so far, they wearied of well-doing, leaving the task of putting on the market to your humble servant, in the late afternoon of life, and because of that lateness, and of the superior High Class Property, I am offering at a fraction of it's value five years hence. I most respectfully solicit your early investigation, believing that when you see the property, hear my price and terms, you will be pleased to accept at once. And as I want the assistance of every good man and woman in this meritorious work of furnishing home-foundations and the safest and most profitable way to invest and save, small or large sums of money. And in return for this assistance I agree to pay 5 per cent. of the net price, at which each lot is sold, to the Treasurer of the Church to which the buyer belongs. I will do this as a precedent for others to follow my example. Payable out of half money received from buyer. Bear in mind, I only own 38 lots in what I have properly named "The Heart of Rosedale", and you or your descendants will buy that property soon, or later at 5 or 10 times my price. Is it not in your interest to buy now, and use or sell later at big profits as many others have done? It is always safe to buy wheat or gold dollars, when they are offered at half value, and that is what you are doing when you buy lots in "The Heart of Rosedale."

Unavoidable delay compels me to name June 5th, as the opening day for sale of those lots. In the meantime, I suggest that every auto owner in the city, in his own interests, not only to go himself, but to take all his big friends with him, to carefully inspect and fully verify my statements.

How to find it—Second block north of Smith St. and west of Dixon, marked by small flags, and five minutes' walk from car line at Jackson's Park.

Plans, and further information will be available in a few days.

Cures Old Folk's Coughs

Doesn't Disturb the Stomach, Eases at Once and Cures Thoroughly.

"CATARRHOZONE" A BOON TO MANY THOUSANDS.

Because you are old is no reason for suffering with everlasting coughing—those terrible chest troubles and difficult breathing can be thoroughly cured with Catarrhozone. You simply breathe the healing vapor of Catarrhozone and instantly its rich balsamic fumes are carried by your breath into the tiniest recesses of the nose, throat chest, bronchial tubes and lungs.

Just think of it—a direct breathable medicine, full of soothing antiseptic pine essences that reaches every sore, congested membrane in two seconds. No drugs to take, nothing to harm or sicken the stomach, because Catarrhozone is the purest, safest cough, catarrh and cold remedy ever devised.

"For many years," writes Richard McCallum, Stirling, Ont. "I have suffered from Catarrh, and continually hawked and coughed, so that my throat was always in an inflamed, irritable condition.

"Doctors' medicine did not help me in the least, and all other remedies I used were quite useless. In one case it was time wasted in snuffing powder up the nose; in another using a gr[illegible] and so on. Not one of them was the least bit of good.

"I heard Catarrhozone favorably spoken of, and tried it. Really, it benefitted me more in a few hours than years of treatment with doctors' and other so-called remedies.

"Receiving such immense benefit, I continued using Catarrhozone and in a few weeks I was completely cured of Catarrh and throat trouble."

Get Catarrhozone to-day. Large size costs $1.00 and lasts two months. Smaller sizes 25c and 50c. All dealers or the Catarrhozone Company, Buffalo, N.Y., and Kingston, Ont.

Lindsay Has a Flood.

The South Ward of Lindsay is flooded. Telegraph poles are floating around on a lot near the G. T. R. freight sheds; the place has the appearance of a floom holding logs in abeyance for the advent of a saw mill. Several of the householders on Glenelg st., west of the G.T.R. track, were compelled to build rafts, and float out to the chicken coops and outhouses.

The marriage will take place very quietly towards the end of June."

A Double Barrelled Egg.

A Belleville man has a hen that seems bound to assist in making provisions cheaper. A few days ago Mr. Latta, of that city, was surprised to find a freak egg on Thursday. An egg, supposedly double yoked, was boiled for a meal, and when the shell was broken, what was his amazement to find, instead of the second yolk, an egg the size of a bantams' and covered with a thick shell.

Englishmen Here for Business:

Messrs. G. and C. Naish of Southampton, England, are in the city, visiting their brother, Mr. H. Naish, 201 Murray street. The Messrs. Naish brothers propose to enter into business in Canada at an early date, and with that object in view are looking over the ground. Before returning to England, they will visit different parts of Canada and the United States for the same purpose, as noted, and incidentally to visit friends.

A New Mission.

A new Undenominational Gospel Mission Hall was opened last night in Mr. F. Mason's store on the corner of Brock and Water sts. Pastor R. E. McAllister, of Ottawa, was present and delivered a stirring address. He will remain next week. He is considered by both clergy and laity wherever he goes to be one of the most scriptural and inspiring Bible teachers known. Meetings will be held every night at 8 o'clock, except Saturday, and three meetings on Sunday. No collection will be taken in this place.

How Local Immigrants are Treated.

A Times representative had a chat with Mr. Howson, local Immigration Agent yesterday. In response to our reporter's questions, Mr. Howson said he had to make returns of every immigrant arriving in the city. The steamship company sends him notices of immigrants en route, giving their respective names, ages, occupations. When John Smith or William Jones arrives Mr. Howson has his pedigree and future prospects in Canada all outlined. He then tells a few [illegible] that are sent to the Immigration Department at Ottawa for statistical purposes.

A Correction.

In our report of the concert given by the splendid choir of the George Street Methodist Church in the Armouries on Wednesday evening which appeared in yesterday's issue of the Times the name of Mr. J. W. Renwick, the talented leader of the choir, was unfortunately omitted. The high class programme presented was altogether due to the indefatigable efforts of Mr. and Mrs. Renwick, assisted by the members of the choir, and those who were fortunate enough to be present at the Summer Fair on that occasion were delighted with the musical treat afforded.

New Gospel Hall Opened.

Last night a few people opened a house of prayer. They are in most absolute earnestness in their desire to forward the Lord's cause. The people referred to are those who last night inaugurated a new place of worship "The Full Gospel Hall," in the premises at the corner of Brock and Water streets, recently vacated by Mr. Howson, the local Immigration Agent. A Times reporter dropped in for a few moments and saw that an earnestness of purpose and a belief in their profession marked every stage of the proceedings. No collection was taken up. The service was for God's cause not that of the almighty dollar. Pastor R. E. McAllister, of Ottawa, will be present next week.

OBITUARY.

Mrs. (Hon.) Robert Hamilton.

Yesterday Peterborough lost one of its best known, most generally respected and beloved residents, in the person of Mrs. (Hon.) Robert Hamilton. It might be mention, incidentally, that the title "Honourable" was a life title granted to the late Robert Hamilton for services rendered the Hudson Bay Co., the pioneers of the Great Western Country.

The late Mrs. Hamilton had been ill for some two months. She closed up her beautiful home at "Auburn" owing to her illness and went to the Oriental Hotel, where she passed away at 4 o'clock yesterday morning. Mrs. Hamilton was third daughter of the late Robert Seabourne, who was Chief Factor of the Hudson Bay Co.

The deceased was married to her husband, the Hon. Robert Hamilton at Moose Factory, on June 23rd, 1863 by His Lordship Bishop John Horden, the first Bishop appointed in that district. His Lordship confirmed nearly all of the large family, including Mrs. Steele, New York, Mrs. W. Hamilton, Belleville, and Mrs. Robert Crawford, "Hornincroft," Brockville. The late Mrs. Hamilton leaves to mourn her loss, besides the sisters mentioned, her sons Max, who holds an important position with the Hudson Bay Co., at Norway House, Sask.; Miles, manager of Bank of Montreal at Fenelon Falls, William, at Nelson, B.C., and Mrs. Cyril Hill, of this city.

Mr. and Mrs. Hamilton came to Peterborough in 1876, with their children, settling at Auburn.

In the death of Mrs. Hamilton, Peterborough loses one of its leaders of Society, one of the kindest and most open hearted ladies the city ever held and one of the greatest patrons of art, music, sports or anything that could interest the public.

The funeral will be held from "Auburn" at 2.30 on Sunday afternoon, to St. Luke's church and thence to Little Lake cemetery.

Big Crowd at Armouries.

Last night a man, at about 8.16, remembered he had an important engagement. He was in the Armouries. He rushed to the entrance door and tried to get out. His efforts in that respect were about as successful as though he had tried to swim up Niagara Falls. Last night the leading feature of the Summer Fair was the procession. This was one of the prettiest and most ornately gotten up organization ever seen in Peterborough. In fact, it might not be exaggeration to say that the parade round the Armouries, was not only the prettiest spectacle, but the best organized, most appropriately drilled, dressed and marshalled spectacle ever presented by local talent. The little tots in their white uniforms, crowns and stars, mounted wands attracted much attention. "Britannia," suitably attired to represent British power and protection was followed by admirals, soldiers and midshipmen. The Provinces were well represented. Nova Scotia, New Brunswick, Quebec, Ontario, British Columbia, Saskatchewan, the North west Territories and the Yukon, were all well represented. The ladies so gallantly, in sweet charity's sake, waiting on the booths also joined in making a procession that must have been half a mile long. It was led by Buglers Geo. East and Arthur Rue of the Bugle Band. If the Fair could only be continued for a week or two longer, what an amount those self-sacrificing ladies would take in.

BOY KILLED BY CAR.

Winnipeg Lad Mangled to Death in Front of His Own Father Who Was in a Car.

Winnipeg, Man., May 30.—In full sight of his father, who sat in his automobile unable to render any assistance, Dalton Anderson, ten years old, son of Dr. D. A. Anderson, of suite 6, Rosetta block, was knocked off his bicycle at Broadway and Sherbrooke by a street car at 6 o'clock Saturday, receiving injuries from which he died at 2 o'clock Sunday morning. The boys' right arm was terribly mangled, but it is thought that it was principally the shock that caused his death, as the injuries received affected no vital parts.

REACTIONARIES BUSY.

Republican Officials Get Ready to Fly by Night for Safety.

London, May 30.—Reports have reached Tien Tsin, China, that the reactionary movement is gaining strength in the vicinity of Wu Chang, where General Li Yuen-Hing, vice-president of the Chinese Republic, has his headquarters. According to a despatch from Tien Tsin Monday morning the republican officials in Wu Chang are growing very apprehensive, and are preparing secretly for flight.

The districts surrounding Hankow are seething with anarchy. Wholesale executions are taking place their daily.

MOORS REPULSED

French Drove Back Ten Thousand Who Made Attack on City of Fez.

Paris, May 30.—The Minister of War declares a report of an attack by 10,000 Moors on the French camp at Merada, near the Algerian frontier, is untrue.

Wireless reports received at the ministry of war from Fez say another attack has been made on the city and was silenced by the French artillery.

A force of 5000 more French troops is to be rushed forward to protect the route between Rabat and Fez.

LYNCHERS FOILED.

Texas Negro in Penitentiary for Safe Keeping, Mob Walks Home.

Waco, Tex., May 30.—Telephone messages from Axtell, ten miles east of Waco, say members of the Tyler mob who left for Waco Saturday night as the result of a report that George Price implicated in the attack on Miss Carrie Johnson, was in custody there, are walking home, St. Louis Southwestern railway officials refusing to let them ride free. Dan Davis, another negro, was burned at Tyler Saturday for the same offence.

When the mob arrived at Waco it was found that Price had been taken to the Rusk penitentiary for safe keeping.

NEGRO RIDDLED BY BULLETS OF A MOB

Nashville, May 30.—Jake Samuels, a negro charged with criminally assaulting Mrs. Walter Ramsey, wife of a Robertson county farmer Saturday night, was taken from officers early Sunday morning by an angry mob of citizens and riddled with bullets.

Farmer Ramsey left his wife and two small children at home alone on Saturday night to go to Orlinda, a mile away, to buy some provisions. En route he met the negro, Samuels. Knowing that Mrs. Ramsey was alone, it is alleged the negro went direct to her home and assaulted her. She was dragged from her bed into the yard, and when the negro fled she walked half a mile to give the alarm.

Samuels' arrest and identification followed. Having been identified as the assailant he was taken from the officers, carried into a field and riddled with a hundred bullets.

A Sad Case at the Shelter.

Mr. Henry, Superintendent of the Children's Shelter, remarked yesterday to a Times' representative that he has about one-half of the acre and a half garden there planted. He has been greatly retarded by the wet weather. Mr. Henry is very proud of his flower garden, and says it is one of the prettiest in Peterborough. There are twelve children now in the Home, who range from two years to twelve in age. The boys are in the majority. The Society is anxious to place these children for adoption in good homes, so as to make room for new comers. As an illustration of the necessity for finding homes for the children, the Times man, after speaking with Mr. Henry, met Mr. Geo. Cochrane, general agent for the Society. This gentleman showed the reporter a big bill for board for the children. Mr. Henry boards them and boards them well for $2 a week. Mr. Cochrane pointed out the sad case of one boy, with webbed fingers and thus prevented from the ordinary channels of laboring life, who had been over three years in the Shelter. Mr. Cochrane remarked "This is a sad case. This boy can only gain a livelihood by means of the power given by education. You might ask the readers of the Times to interest themselves in such cases."

NOTICE

Owing to the continuous rain the water is very high in the river between Lakefield and Hastings, in fact, all over the whole watershed of the Trent Waterway. In order to keep the water at a reasonable height in Little Lake it has been necessary to take all the stop-logs out at the Peterborough Locks dam, and it is now very dangerous for people to attempt to go down over the Peterborough locks with canoes, gasoline launches or other small boats at the present time. The side current is so strong there that it would be almost impossible for any small boat to keep the channel without being drawn into the dam. Owing to the danger at these locks, gasoline launches, or other small craft will not be locked through until further notice.

MADE IN CANADA TRAIN VISITED BY 100,000

Western Canada Being Impressed With Need For Establishment of Local Factories.

Brandon, Man., June 1.—A conservative estimate of the number of people who have visited the "Made in Canada" Exhibition train is 84,000, which does not include the large number who passed through the train here, bringing the number close to 100,000. The train this far has been a continuous round of success, the project meeting with emphatic endorsement all along the line.

At every point official recognition has been given this "special" by Cabinet Ministers, Municipal Councils and Boards of Trade, who have without exception complimented the Canadian Home Market Association on their enterprise in seeking to impress upon the people the fact that the product of the Canadian artisan is not excelled by that of foreign manufacture, that the more we make in Canada the better for the entire Dominion and that the two great interwoven factors of the Canadian Home Market are the factory and the farm. "It is important that every standpoint," says the Winnipeg Telegram, "that our people should not only have a pride in their own works but that they should manifest a deep interest in our country in every department."

Winnipeg showed its sympathetic interest in the unique method of emphasizing things Canadian.

Prominent Men Impressed.

The daily papers devoted much space to a description of the train and commended its object.

Hon. George Lawrence, Minister of Agriculture, boarded the "special" at Killarney, inspected the exhibits minutely, and gave his seal of approval. "There are many of our people who have no idea of what is being done in Canada," he said.

Dr. Schafner, M.P., visited the special at Boissevain, and said the exhibition undoubtedly created the right atmosphere among the people. Dr. McConnell, M.P., who saw the exhibit at Morden said that no point of Canada welcomed the train more than Southern Manitoba. An American delegation from North Dakota were among the most interested spectators at Cartwright, which is seven miles from the border. At nearly all places at Southern Manitoba, farmers with their families drove as far as twenty-five miles to see the exhibit. They asked questions, and obtained much information on "Made in Canada" goods.

Mayor Sutherland, manager of the Union Bank at Hartney, believed the tour would result in the stimulus or establishing of local industries all along the route. Mayor Hughes of Souris, said his town would have an exhibit on the next train.

One of the most notable features of the tour thus far has been the great number of children who have passed through the train, and to no class of visitors does the management extend a more welcome hand. The buyers and sellers of the future, are the children of to-day, and there is no better way of developing the "Made in Canada" idea than by inculating it in the minds of the children.

THE FIRST WOMAN IS IN THE STATE DEATH CELL.

Boston, Mass., June 1.—Sensational new evidence, which is claimed will force the Governor's Council to commute the death sentence of Mrs. Lena Cusumano, will be made public to-day or to-morrow by Attorneys Grady and Coughlan, who represent the woman and her lover, Harry Marshall, both of whom are at the Charlestown prison, awaiting summons to the electric chair for murdering the woman's husband.

Grady would only say to-day that he and his colleague have unearthed a startling story of depravity that will throw an entirely new light on testimony of various witnesses who were related by blood or marriage to Mrs. Cusumano.

Mrs. Cusumano, who is the first woman to occupy a death cell in the history of Massachusetts and the first to be sentenced to death in 134 years, spent last night resting. Both she and Marshall awakened at seven o'clock. As has been the case since Mrs. Cusumano was taken to Charlestown, Marshall, from his cell, called a cheery greeting in Italian to the woman immediately upon waking. They are allowed to talk during the day, although they cannot see each other.

THE SUMMER FAIR REALIZED ABOUT FOUR THOUSAND DOLLARS

Saturday night ended the first week of Peterborough's Summer Fair. The ladies who inaugurated and so ably organized this undertaking, were handicapped for the first few days, by a continuous downpour of rain. Despite the inclement weather, the Armouries every afternoon and evening contained a good attendance. When the doors of the Fair closed Saturday night the gross receipts of the Fair were approximately four thousand dollars. Whilst the accounts have not yet been fully checked up, The Times was yesterday told by Mrs. Travers, that it expected the expenses would amount to about six hundred dollars. This leaves a nice little balance of some $3400 or $3500 towards the maintenance of a trained nurse for local tuberculous patients. The Fair will be open again to-day and to-morrow. This should add a substantial sum to that already in hand. Mrs. Jas. Kendry, Mrs. R. W. Travers, Mrs. Dunsford, in short all the ladies of the city who either originated or assisted in making the Fair so splendid a success, in the face of adverse conditions have reason for congratulation.

THE WEATHER.

Not much change in temperature.

Two Aviators Will Carry U. S. Mail

Boston, Mass., June 1.—Acting under the sanction of the United States postal authorities, Aviators Lincoln Beachey and Beckwith Havens will to-morrow begin an aerial postal service, when mail will be collected from the special sub-station at Rockingham Park, just out of Salem N. H., and be taken by aeroplane to Lawrence, Mass., where it will be dropped to waiting clerks from the Lawrence office.

Postmaster George Buxton of Salem, N.H., has been ordered by Second Asst. Postmaster General Stewart to open the special station at Rockingham Park to-morrow afternoon, and to deliver the mail to the aviators. The latter will then start for Lawrence, and when at a point directly above the intersection of Broadway and Common street, they will descend until within 60 feet of the ground and drop the mail bags. Postmaster Kempton L. S. Cox, of the Lawrence office, will have clerks stationed in the vicinity of Broadway and Common street, bearing an American flag which he will wave at the approach of the aeroplane.

IS INSANITY GO ING TO STOP?

Alarming Increase In Insanity In Annual Lunacy Report.

WHAT THE CAUSES ARE

Influx of Aliens and Growing Appetite for Liquor are Largely Responsible.

London May 31.—As a nation, we are growing madder and madder. This, unfortunately, is proved beyond a doubt by the appaling figures of the new annual report of the Lunacy Commissioners.

Whereas in 1859 there was one insane person to every 536 sane, there is now only one to every 293. And the average annual increase of insanity in London has now attained the enormous figure of 500. All roads lead to London—but that way madness lies.

What is the cause? What the remedy? No one in London is better qualified to answer these questions than Dr. Ernest W. White, who has just been elected President of the Medico-Psychological Association.

He is Professor of Psychological Medicine at King's College, London, and has done a vast work in the asylums of London to solve the hidden mysteries of the origin and cure of insanity—the greatest of all human ills.

Dr. White recently spoke with the voice of authority on the matter, and his argument is deeply interesting. He points out that not only is insanity on the increase, but during the last thirty years there has been no material advance in the recovery of the insane. This, in spite of [illegible] rational principles of treatment.

He [illegible] a cause in the change that has come over the [illegible] character on account of the [illegible]tion of aliens.

Undesirable Immigrants.

With the increase of population the best kind of aliens have not been encouraged to settle in London, to intermarry with our people, and to infuse new blood into the race.

On the other hand we have received unlimited numbers of the worst kind of aliens needy [illegible] with poor bodies and poorer minds sapped often by disease; of the [illegible]

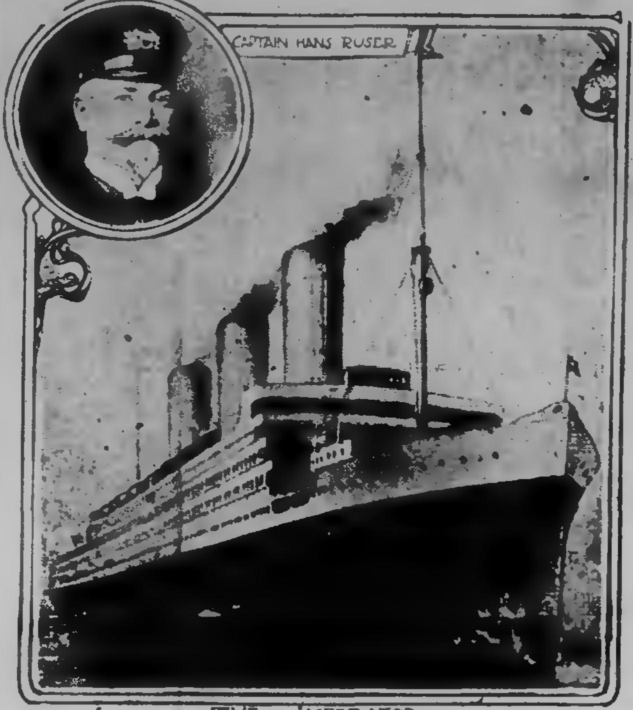
57 REGIMENT IN A CHURCH PARADE

Yesterday morning a few minutes before ten o'clock, the sound of martial music enlivened the city. The 57th Regiment, about two hundred and sixty strong headed by the bugle and brass bands, escortin the colors and accompanied by Chaplain Davidson in full uniform, marched down George street to Hunter street, and thence to St. John's church, to attend a special service. The Union Jack flew over the tower of this grand old ivy clad sacred edifice, in honor of the event. As the Regiment marched in columns of two down George street, the bands were far past Brock street before the officers in the rear left Central Park. Chaplain Davidson, gave an appropriate and patriotic sermon.

KAISER IS SPONSOR FOR NEW SEA GIANTESS JUST LAUNCHED



THE IMPERATOR.

The Hamburg-American line's new mammoth transatlantic steamship, the Imperator, the biggest vessel in the world, was successfully launched at Hamburg. Emperor William was sponsor.

The launching weight of the Imperator was 29,775 tons, but when completed it is believed she will displace about 52,000 tons.

The command of the Imperator is to be intrusted to the line's veteran, Captain Hans Ruser. Probably no captain is better known to transatlantic passengers or enjoys a fuller measure of confidence. Captain Ruser has been fitted for this highly coveted position by a long and arduous apprenticeship. Born in 1862, he made his first voyage at the age of fourteen, serving aboard several deep water ocean vessels and later in the German navy and entering the employ of the Hamburg-American line in 1890.

The Imperator is one of the largest objects ever constructed by the hands of man. Were it possible to set her down beside the Capitol at Washington it would be found that she was 100 feet longer than this immense building. The Washington Monument, again, has often been used as a standard of comparison. The Imperator's length is 328 feet greater than the height of the monument.

ADMIRALTY IS BLAMED FOR WRECK OF THE TITANIC

Responsibility For Titanic Is Placed Upon Authorities At Whitehall By English Paper.

New York, June 1.—A London cable says: The scientific Journal, Nature, calls attention to the fact that the non-use of searchlights by merchant ships is due to the action of the British Admiralty.

The great value of searchlights for navigation was reported to the Lords Commissioners of the Admiralty by Admiral Sir Beauchamp Seymour in 1876. Dr. Henry White, F.R.S., had previously submitted certain inventions to the Admiralty, and a number of battleships were equipped with searchlights. When an attempt were made later to establish searchlights on merchant ships, the Admiralty intervened and claimed the exclusive right to use the searchlights on the alleged ground that their brilliancy interferred with the navigation of other ships. The result is that to-day none of the Atlantic liners are equipped with searchlights.

In a paper read before the Literary and Philosophical Society, Dr. Wade said referring to the loss of the Titanic:

It was repeatedly stated in evidence that at the time of the collision, and for some hours afterward, the atmosphere was perfectly clear; so much so that the stars were seen brightly in the horizon. If, therefore, the Titanic had been equipped with an efficient searchlight, the iceberg would have shone out by reflection at a distance of several miles (visible to all persons on deck) and the collision therewith would have been easily averted.

"The ultimate responsibility therefore, for the calamity, which we all deplore, rests upon the naval authorities at Whitehall, through their blind policy of excluding searchlights from the mercantile marine."

GOD SAVE THE KING.

To-day the British people, at home and in "the dominions beyond the seas," will celebrate the forty-seventh birthday of King George V. Born on June 3, 1865, at Marlborough House in London, the ruler of the empire on which the sun never sets was christened George Frederick Ernest Albert. As a youth he was known as "Archer," from his great liking for a bow and arrow, and in his young manhood was generally known as the "Sailor Prince," since he was never more at home than on the deck of a battleship. His liking for the sea has never left him, and not long ago he gratified his eager desire for a trip in a submarine.

To-day's observance of the King's birthday will be a quiet one for the royal family, as the court is in mourning for the late King Frederick of Denmark, uncle of King George. About three-fourths of George's reign has been marked by mourning. His reign necessarily began with a long period in black in memory of King Edward. There followed a brief season of social activity, ended by the death of Queen Mary's brother, Prince Francis of Teck. The period of mourning for King Frederick is the second this year, the first having been for the Duke of Fife, husband of Princess Louise, a sister of the King.

There is a theory, generally entertained on this side of the water, that King George has less real power than, for instance, the President of Costa Rica. This conception of the British monarch as a mere figurehead is entirely erroneous. During his brief reign the King has used his influence toward the settlement of many difficulties which Premier and Parliament found themselves unable to cope with.

Numerous and remarkable are the powers and privileges of King George, although many of them are of such a nature as to be more theoretical than practical. For instance, George V., by ancient law still in full effect, is the guardian of all the idiots of the kingdom. Literally and actually, the King can do no wrong, and cannot be held responsible for any crime. This provision, however, offers no attractions to one of King George's peaceful and philosophic temperament. The King, by law, is the sole and undisputed owner of the beds of all the tidal rivers of England. Theoretically, the King is always present at all sessions of law courts, and a criminal is an offender against the "King's peace," and as such the monarch has full power to pardon anyone he pleases. The sole right to print and publish the Bible in British realms is vested in the King. The motor cars of the monarch are not required to be numbered, and the speed limit, so far as the King is concerned, is null and void. George V., however, has given orders to his chauffers never to exceed the legal limit. Moreover, he has never taken advantage of the law by which he could travel on special trains on any railroad in the United Kingdom without cost. The King always pays all traveling expenses, and insists even upon paying for the royal box at theatres.

King George's hobby is philately and his collection of postage stamps is one of the finest and most valuable in the world. The recent proposal to substitute a new machine for postage stamps was effectually squelched by His Royal Highness. As a hunter King George, on the occasion of his recent visit to India, surpassed Col. Roosevelt's record, by bagging thirty tigers and thirteen rhinoceri.

MR. GEO. HATTON OFFERS SIX ACRES FOR NEW WEST CITY SCHOOL FOR $10,000

Saturday evening the Board of Education considered a proposition from Mr. Geo. Hatton to sell five or six acres of his property on the Monaghan Road for a site for the new West City School to be erected this year. This property lies south of Weller street on the North Monaghan side of the boundary. Mr. Hatton offers six axres for $10,000, or would sell five acres at $9,000. The other proposition as a site for this school, now before the Board is the Cox property, on the same side of the road (west), but north of Weller street, and on higher ground than is the Hatton property. Four acres of the Cox property is offered at $9,500.

The Board came to no decision as to these propositions, but will examine the lots before taking definite action.

It looks as though one of these sites will be selected for the new school, in which event the City Council will be asked to annex to Peterborough City whichever lot is

KEEP THE FAIR GOING.

(Editor Morning Times)

Sir.—When one saw the youth and beauty, the venerable residents and the active citizens of Peterborough thronging the Armouries for the past week, in the face of adverse weather why not keep the Fair open for another week? The small price of admission, as compared with the life, progress, "get up and get there" of the young people who took part. I would seriously advocate keeping the Fair open for another full week. Mr. Burnham, M.P., could easily arrange to get the Armouries free. Those having booths have had their initial expense, and it would cost them no more. Irrespective of the ultimate object of the Fair, viz., to procure a trained nurse to attend indigent tuberculosis patients, the merchants involved would reap a bigger advertisement and the City would get the Carnival spirit, the skirit that builds up young cities.

—J. R. Brenton

THE GARBAGE QUESTION.

(Editor Morning Times)

Sir.—As the Times takes great interest in local public matters, and publish good reports of Council and school meetings, I would ask a few lines' space to write about the garbage question. Some time ago the City Fathers passed a by-law employing city scavengers to remove the garbage of Peterborkugh. Many people, I among the number, previous to that by-law, had men remove garbage for nothing, to feed to their hogs. Since the new law come into force these hog raisers naturally stopped coming. Now no one is taking garbage. With hot weather coming on this is a serious proposition, and one that the City should settle at once, even if they pay more than the original contract price. The health of the people is the City's first consideration.

PINE TAR CORDIAL

NUGENT'S SARSAPARILLA—PRICE FOR large bottle, 100 full doses, 85c, and well worth it, too. It's better to take no medicine at all than to depend upon cheap concoctions that are compounded to sell at a low price and a big profit just because there is a large demand for certain remedies at certain seasons of the year. There are so called Sarsaparillas offered to us to sell to our customers at 75c a bottle that would bring us a larger profit than Nugent's Sarsaparilla sold at 85c. Nugent's Sarsaparilla purifies the blood, arouses the torpid liver, clears out all impurities, cleanses and tones up the system and helps Nature throw off the dullness that comes from the indoor life of winter. It arouses energy, brightens the eye, clears the brain, gives lightness to the movements. Nugent's Sarsaparilla is not the only thing you will find in this drug store. We make a specialty of Nugent's Remedies. Nugent Drug Co., 386 George St. directly opposite Crossman's store.

CANADA WAS FIRST.

Here Was the Premier Steamer to Cross the Atlantic.

It was the proud boast of those who designed and built the "mighty Titanic" that she was the "last word in marine engineering." That "last word" now lies at the bottom of the Atlantic, a shattered mass of steel and wood, surrounded in her vast sepulchre by many of the bodies of her helpless victims.

We have not the "last word" yet, but we have the first word, and it is interesting to look back and learn what it was.

To Canada belongs the honor of having constructed and navigated the first vessel to cross the Atlantic propelled wholly by steam power. That first of steamships was the Royal William, and its first trip across the Atlantic was made in 1833, twenty-four years after the St. Lawrence River was first navigated by steamboat, and three years before the earliest of Canadian railways was opened between Laprairie and St. Johns.

The Royal William was built by a joint stock company, and in the list of owners appear the names of the three brothers, Joseph, Henry and Samuel Cunard, of Halifax, N.S., founders of the famous Cunard Line. The Royal William was built at Quebec during the years 1830 to 1831, and the work was carried on in the yard of Campbell and Black, shipbuilders.

A native of Quebec designed the ship and superintended its construction. He was Mr. James Goudie, born in Quebec in 1809, and who died in 1892.

In the spring of 1831, the ship was launched with much ceremony. The dimensions were: Length, 176 feet; hold, 17 feet, nine inches; breadth outside, 44 feet; breadth between paddle-boxes, 28 feet. The ship was fitted with three masts, schooner rigged; and the builders' measurement was 1,370 tons, with accommodation for sixty passengers.

The launching having been successfully carried out, the vessel was towed to Montreal, where her machinery was put in and she was fitted out for sea. Her first voyage was from Montreal to Halifax, and for a time thereafter the ship traded between Montreal, Quebec and Boston.

Then came the voyage that gave the Royal William a permanent place in history — the voyage across the Atlantic. On August 5, 1833, the ship left Quebec for London, calling at Pictou, N.S., for coal, and to have machinery overhauled. She started again from Pictou on August 18 with seven passengers, 254 chaldrons of coal and a light cargo.

Off the banks of Newfoundland the Royal William encountered a severe gale which disabled one of the vessel's engines. However, the voyage was completed, the Royal William reaching London twenty-five days after leaving Pictou.

The subsequent career of the Royal William was out of the commonplace. Ten days after reaching London the Royal William was chartered by the Government of Portugal, and in the following year it was sold to Spain, and was converted into a war vessel, being given the name, Isabel Segunda, and was employed against the forces of Don Carlos, pretender to the Spanish throne.

In a paper read before the Canadian Institute, Toronto, in December, 1892, Sir Sandford Fleming asserted that "to his mind it is incontestably established that the memorable voyage of the Royal William in 1833 must be held to be the first passage across the Atlantic under steam. She undoubtedly proved to be the pioneer of Atlantic steamships."

During the meeting of the Intercolonial Conference in Ottawa, in June, 1894, a brass tablet was affixed to the wall of the corridor leading to the library of Parliament, the tablet being to the honor of the men who built and navigated the Royal William. The brass plate was the gift of the Royal Society, and the presentation was made by the secretary, the late Sir John Bourinot, clerk of the House of Commons.

The tablet was then unveiled by His Excellency, the Governor-General, the Earl of Aberdeen.

Recorder Weir.

Recorder Weir is to Montreal what Col. Denison is to Toronto and T. Mayne Daly was to Winnipeg—the dispenser of justice in the police court. He is known far and near for his "neatness and despatch"—particularly "despatch"—in dealing with prisoners. His reputation as a judge made him much sought after by debating societies in Montreal. A committee called him up over the phone to ask if he would be kind enough to render the award on a debate.

On the day of the debate the Recorder was unusually busy. He had sent various prisoners down for terms befitting the crimes. That evening he was on hand promptly at 8 o'clock. He heard the debate, analyzed the merits and demerits of the speakers, pointing out the various shortcomings and achievements of the sides, giving a point here and there for this or that argument, and rendered his decision accordingly. At the conclusion of his remarks the applause was loud and long-continued. The Recorder was forced to rise to his feet again.

"This is, I believe," he said, "the first time I ever received an encore. My decisions, you know, are not usually received with such favor." Then the Recorder resumed his seat amid loud laughter.

Brave Indian Child.

At Nut Lake, Sask., the heroism of a little Indian girl saved a young white woman from death. The latter, Miss Hamilton, with two Indian children, a boy and a girl, were asleep in the house of the Indian agent, when fire broke out. Sounding the alarm the little girl roused Miss Hamilton and her brother, and sent the latter for their father, Keekeshedues, on horseback. When the Indian man arrived he rushed into the house to rescue papers and was burned to death.

THE MANITOBA GOVERNMENT ELEVATORS

Urged on by its very large farming [illegible], the Manitoba Government, after proper consideration of the matter, two years ago decided upon a policy of Government-owned elevators, paying for them $852,000, and they erected ten more at a cost of $100,000. The [illegible] has now been on trial for two years, and has resulted in a loss of about $100,000. Premier Roblin asserts that the failure of the experiment must be laid at the door of the farmers, who refused to patronize the elevators as [illegible] had a right to expect. But the Grain Growers assert that the failure is due to the politicians and not to the farmers. When the Government proposed the elevators the Grain Growers' Association submitted a draft bill for the non-political management of the elevators, and this the Government refused to accept. Again, it is asserted that small and inefficient elevators were bought at a higher cost than those of larger build and better equipment. The lesson is one to which Ontario politicians and Toronto civic officials had better take heed. If the Ontario Hydro policy is to be made a permanent success it must be divorced from politics, and if Toronto is to have a civic administration of which it will have no reason to be ashamed it must be separated from party politics.

WITCHCRAFT RECALLED

The latest murderous outbreak in Kiev against the Jews in that city, which, like similar outrages in that and other cities in Russia and elsewhere in Eastern Europe, found its impulse in the accusation that the Jews had committed a "ritual murder" of Christian infants, has been made the occasion of a notable protest in Great Britain, signed by many eminent men in the public life of the country, including most of the [illegible]. It says:

"The 'blood accusation' is a relic of the [illegible] of witchcraft and black magic, a cruel and utterly baseless libel on Judaism, an insult to western culture, and a dishonor to the churches in whose name it has been falsely formulated by ignorant fanatics. Religious minorities other than the Jews, such as the early Christians, the Quakers, and Christian missionaries in China, have been victimized by it. It has been denounced by the best men of all ages and creeds. The Popes, the Founders of the Reformation, the Khalif of Islam, statesmen of every country, together with all the great seats of learning in Europe, have publicly repudiated it."

The memorial goes on to say that it is the more necessary that these testimonies should be renewed because among the ignorant and [illegible] populace of eastern Europe, the "blood accusation" has often given rise to terrible outbreaks of [illegible] against the Jews, and there is grave reason to fear that its present [illegible] may endanger many innocent lives in the crowded [illegible] quarters of Russia and other eastern European [illegible].

POTATO GROWERS WARNED.

A note of warning is being sounded from Ottawa in regard to a very dangerous potato disease that has been brought to Canada in tubers imported from Europe during the present year.

The disease which is known as Potato Cancer was recently discovered in an imported shipment. To warn Canadian farmers against the danger of planting imported seed, the Director of the Experimental Farms has issued a leaflet known as "Farmers' Circular No. 3," prepared by Mr. H. T. Gussow, the Dominion botanist.

This circular states that the only way in which the disease can be introduced is through the planting of infected tubers, that the use of diseased tubers for seed may, in the worst cases, result in the complete destruction of the entire crop, that when once introduced, the disease germ infests the soil for a period of eight years, which means that for at least eight years no sound potatoes can be raised on land thus infected, that none of the known remedies for other plant diseases will prevent the appearance of the disease, and, finally, that the disease is spread readily through infested soil, carried by wind, animals, farm implements, old bags or other means.

Attention is called to provisions under the Destructive Insect and Pest Act, which show that to use or sell for seed potatoes imported from Europe is illegal. Copies of this Farmers Circular may be obtained by applying to the Publications Branch, Department of Agriculture, Ottawa, Ont.

JUSTICE NOT LEGAL COBWEBS.

The press of Western Canada say their piece right out. The following is taken from the Vancouver World:

"Brushing away legal cobwebs with the sturdy common sense which frequently marks British decisions, the members of the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council have disposed once and for all of the pernicious contention that non-resident families of the victims of accidents in British Columbia could not claim compensation.

"In this case law is synonymous with justice. The wife in Scotland or Germany, in Nova Scotia or France, suffers just as much loss when the bread winner is killed as the wife in British Columbia who has had at least the poor consolation of looking a last time on the form stilled by death.

"Nay more, for she fails to receive the aid and comfort of friends and neighbors whose intimate [illegible] personal knowledge of the dead [illegible] has excited their warmest sympathies.

"But the decision secures justice not only for the widows and orphans but [illegible] those workers who have made British Columbia their home.

"Workmen's compensation is [illegible], a tax, however, which [illegible] ought to bear just as they bear the charges for fire insurance and other losses.

"If, then, by employing men who have left their wives and families in other parts of the world, employers could avoid this expense where a man was killed outright, we should find that the fact a man was married and had his family here with him would militate against his obtaining work and would bring into existence a class of employes who would have no interest in the province whatever beyond the contents of their pay envelopes.

"We have enough of that kind of people now. They come here from Asia. We do not want a premium put on more of them coming, nor do we want a class of white men creating who will be equally disadvantageous from an economic standpoint alike to the province and to the occupants of the homes which are grouped about every developed industrial undertaking in the country.

"The quibble, for it was a quibble, seeing that the legislature intended that no distinction should be made, was disposed of by the judge in the court of first instance, but a higher court took another view, the view which the Privy Council has effectually disposed of.

"Occasionally, when unpopular judgments are handed down in London, the cry goes up that appeals should not be carried across the Atlantic. In the present case it is rather fortunate that the workers of British Columbia could go direct to the foot of the throne."

Editorial Notes

Taft promises not to accept a third term as president. It looks as though he would avoid much trouble by promising not to accept a second term.

Already the big baseball league clubs are casting envious eyes on some of Ottawa's players. This is one of the penalties of having a winning team.

[illegible] Magnate Travis [illegible] that he is worrying over the [illegible] is watching from the [illegible] Commission. [illegible]

[illegible] limited his speech to twenty days. [illegible] but they surely do not deserve [illegible] talked to death.

[illegible] facts [illegible] out by the British investigation [illegible] the Titanic disaster which the Senate Committee did not uncover was [illegible] the captain and crew of the [illegible] only a few miles distant, failed to pay any attention to signals of distress. But for their criminal neglect it is quite possible that every soul on the ill-fated vessel could have been saved.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured.

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

DID CHANGED ARCTIC CAUSE WRECK?

Captain Johnson Claims Change in Arctic Current Caused Titanic Disaster.

Halifax, June 1.—Special.—Captain [illegible] of the Montmagny, in search of Titanic victims, reports a change in the Arctic current which formed a great pocket of water [illegible] the usual course of the Gulf stream where the Titanic was wrecked, which he believes misled Captain Smith of the Titanic and caused the disaster, [illegible] his position by the cold water pocket, Captain Smith, instead of following [illegible] on the steamship lane, which is used [illegible] reason for doing otherwise, he changed his course when he received the ice warnings going to the south and at the time of the accident was thirty miles south of the usual track.

inal type, and in many cases with neurotic inheritances. If no stop is put to this, the stability of the race mental as well as physical will be undermined.

Another great cause of our growing insanity cries aloud for State regulation, the marriages of those tainted with insanity. They are all too common.

Melancholia and Education.

Then chronic insanity often results from melancholia, which is so greatly on the increase that the asylums are inundated with cases. They have no definite cause, are of insidious onset and are very difficult to treat.

The strain of modern education is another factor. The strain, bearable by strong minds, breaks down the minds of our weaker brethren so that during the last few years there has been an enormous increase of patients of the middle and upper classes between eighteen and twenty [illegible] years of age.

In the upper classes late marriages and in the lower classes [illegible] early marriages are far commoner than they were fifty years ago, and either extreme in marriage is bad for the [illegible] generation. Another cause for the increased number of insane patients is found in the fact that the old tough law of survival of the fit test is not so forcible as formerly. Weaklings who would have died in infancy in olden days are now brought up to maturity and perpetuate the faulty stock.

If the Government cannot help this there is one direction in which it could move with great effect. It could see that the nation drank only pure spirits. For we are a spirit-drinking nation to-day though we were not fifty years ago, and in this fact Dr. White finds a most important cause for madness. Alcohol is both a cause and a symptom for madness. It is just because they are weak-minded that people crave for drink, cannot resist drink and so become down-right mad.

Plea for Pure Spirit.

There is no standard of purity for spirits, and so it is highly probable that the rawness and the [illegible] of many cheap whiskeys are responsible largely for our over-flowing asylums. Thus Dr. White [illegible] are sadly wanted to enforce the purity and the purity of all such like drinks.

If London's average yearly increase of 500 insane persons is to be lowered, Londoners must lead saner and healthier lives. The stress and strain of London life is one of the causes of that army of 500. There is [illegible] worry in the [illegible] much [illegible] excitement in the [illegible] too much [illegible] too much [illegible], eating and drinking.

Londoners must moderate the high pitch of their lives, seek the country more and more, [illegible] more exercise, [illegible] may have freer play, or London will become a city of the mad.

Seattle, May 31.—Mayor George F. Cotterill has vetoed the council bill known as the "anti-red flag ordinance" passed because of red flag demonstration on May Day.

Great London Parade

A street parade which will be a veritable horse fair, is promised by the Great London shows, which will exhibit at Peterborough on Thursday June 6th.

The pageant will leave the grounds promptly at 10 o'clock the day of the show, and follow a line of march to be announced later. First will come the World Famous Dublin Grays the $25,000 prize winners.

The band wagons, floats and other paraphrenalia will be drawn by 400 well groomed well matched dapple gray horses. The stock is all in the pink of condition. The racers are of undisputed lineage, the steeds attached to the Roman chariots are particularly beautiful, the Kentucky high school horses are the greatest equines on earth, and half a hundred Shetland ponies will delight the children.

When the show comes to this city the work of unloading will be well under way with the rising of the sun and there is little chance of the street display being late in leaving the grounds. Already choice locations for witnessing the display are in demand, and the chances are that the the streets, along which the parade will go, will be lined with admiring thousands cheering the handsomest parade ever seen with a circus, and the Great Dublin $25000 Prize Team will be an unusual feature to view.

GROUARD THE COMING CITY OF THE WEST

Now that the Spring has opened up and the weather conditions are favorable, great activity in railroad building, both by the Canadian Northern and the Edmonton Dunvegan & B.C. Railroad—now noticeable. Both of these roads are building out of Edmonton into the far-famed Peace River country, and their first objective point is the growing town of Grouard, situated at the western end of Lesser Slave Lake.

These roads, being built under Government bond [illegible] by the Province of Alberta, [illegible] a limited time in which to complete the construction. Settlers are now going in to the Peace River district and the important towns therein in large numbers. Land has been taken up in large [illegible] by some of the best class of farmers both from Eastern Canada and the Northern States. It is now a noticeable feature that script, which formerly was quite plentiful, especially in Alberta, with Edmonton as a centre, is almost impossible to obtain, and in fact anyone would be lucky who could purchase script at $20 per acre. Large amounts of land in the Peace River district have been taken up [illegible] script.

From its excellent location and natural advantages the town of Grouard is rapidly becoming the predominant feature of the Peace River country, and as the railway approaches this town great activity will be noticeable. [illegible] situated [illegible] the gateway and [illegible] of the Peace River [illegible] according to [illegible] the proven [illegible] district [illegible] America.

Within the last few days J. D. McArthur, President of the Edmonton Dunvegan & B.C. Railway, has been at Edmonton letting contracts for the supply of [illegible] and for the grade work of the Edmonton Dunvegan & B.C. Railway. Mr. McArthur states, according to newspaper reports, that before the snow flies next fall, they hope to have completed the first 170 miles of railway from Edmonton towards Grouard. This will bring their line in the proximity of Grouard this year, and thousands of men and hundreds of teams will be actively engaged in railroad construction. Mr. McArthur states that it is impossible to secure sufficient steel from the Canadian Mills, and has also placed large orders with the American steel mills for delivery this summer. The town of Grouard, as a result, is one of the most talked of places in Western Canada, and many Canadians, especially the Western people, are buying up the property in and around this town, well knowing the rapid growth and increase in values that takes place immediately the railroad reach it.

In addition to the above railroad, the Canadian Northern are building into Grouard, also the Pacific and Hudson's Bay from the West Coast has [illegible] Grouard, and for [illegible] for the erection of station, freight sheds, tracks, yards and the necessary local terminal buildings and round house.

The next few years will see wonderful growth of [illegible] in Grouard and the surrounding country. An advertisement of Messrs. Thompson & Co., Ltd., 406 Bank of Ottawa building, Vancouver, B.C., has appeared regarding Grouard property for sale.

The Great London Shows Differ From Other Shows

There are [illegible] in which the Great London Consolidated Shows differ from other circuses and [illegible] this [illegible] which comes to Peterborough on Thursday June 6th, will cause people who have been [illegible] alike to [illegible] London Shows.

The [illegible] of two large [illegible] enables [illegible] such as the performance [illegible] for a test. When it comes to the [illegible] is [illegible] from other [illegible] also [illegible].

The menagerie is more than twice as large as that carried by other [illegible]. The only [illegible] is in the department [illegible].

A grand street parade is given in every city visited. And the turnout of the Dublin International Prize Winning Champions with any circus of the present day.

ADVERTISE IN THE TIMES.

FUN IN COMMONS.

Past Session Has Shown a Renaissance of the Old Humor.

When the late lamented John Barr, the Shelburne doctor, and member for Dufferin, was found dead in bed three years ago, the wise ones who watch the proceedings of Parliament from the Press Gallery chronicled the passing of the last of the long line of humorists of the Laurier regime. A series of sessions, unrelieved by the sparkle of wit, was in sight. The turn of time's wheel, however, has brought into being a Parliament to which Barr is but a half-forgotten memory. A new line of youngsters wears the caps and bells.

The session just ended, the first of the Borden reign, has seen the development of humorists out of what was formerly regarded as somewhat raw material. In years gone by, Frank Oliver, for instance, was seldom taken seriously. With the load of the Interior Department lifted from his shoulders by the electors on September 21 last, the man from Edmonton has displayed a lightness of touch in debate and a delicacy of irony in retort which has astonished political friend and foe alike. It was Frank who referred to a speech of George Bradbury, as "a series of premeditated inexactitudes."

Before touching on the new men who have shown indications of turning into "Bill Nyes" and "George Ades," a further glance over the old-timers may be permitted. Emmerson, the bushy-haired man from Moncton, displayed endurance in debate which staggered the taciturn Frank Cochrane. Visitors to St. Vincent de Paul Penitentiary years ago who went to the cell of the Valleyfield murderer, Shortis (of happy Lady Aberdeen memory), will remember that that interesting gentleman used to offer for sale little pieces of round cardboard, the exact size of a ten cent piece, on which he had laboriously written the Lord's Prayer. If Shortis ever wants a change of copy, the Minister of Justice might send him the Unrevised Hansard of last session. The convict could easily copy the speeches of the new Minister of Railways on his little piece of cardboard.

Those who followed the proceedings will remember the prominent part played by Rodolphe Lemieux, the ex-Postmaster-General, and for a few weeks the Minister of Marine and Fisheries. Lemieux never sat in opposition before. He was born politically with a silver spoon in his mouth, at the general elections of 1896. "We are here, and you are there," as Mr Monk would say, makes all the difference in the world, and the polished Rodolphe has found little humor in the change. In the intervals between his incessant attacks on Messrs Pelletier and Monk the former Minister had one little tilt with A. C. Boyce, of West Algoma, which formed one of the spiciest "entre-actes" of the session. Boyce, who has been in the running for the vacant Solicitor-Generalship for some time, was twitting Lemieux on his short tenure of office as Minister of Marine.

"But," retorted Lemieux sweetly, "my hon. friend will admit that I was a minister of the crown. I was not merely a minister in the newspapers."

And everyone agreed that that was a good one on Arthur Cyril Boyce.—The Mace in Saturday Night.

HAYS' BIG MEN.

Chief Lieutenants Have All Been Mentioned to Succeed Him.

Three men have been mentioned as successors of the late Charles M. Hays as president of the Grand Trunk and Grand Trunk Pacific Railways—Mr. E. H. Fitzhugh, first vice-president of the G.T.R.; Mr. E. J. Chamberlin, vice-president and general manager of the Grand Trunk Pacific, and Mr. F. H. McGuigan, formerly one of Mr. Hays' right-hand men on the G.T.R.

Earl Hopkins Fitzhugh, who stood next to Mr. Hays and who had followed his chief through most of his career, was born in Missouri in 1853, started out as a banker, and then entered the service of the St. Louis, Kansas City, and Northern Railway as a clerk. When that road was absorbed by the Wabash he made the acquaintance of Mr. Hays, and when Hays went to the Grand Trunk he soon sent for Mr. Fitzhugh. The latter came to Toronto as superintendent of the middle division of the G.T.R., and won rapid promotion. He was one of the men brought in by Mr. Hays to galvanize the old road into action, and he helped a whole lot.

When Mr. Hays left the G.T.R. to become president of the Southern Pacific he took Fitzhugh with him, and brought him back when he returned to the G.T.R. in February, 1902. In 1904 Mr. Fitzhugh became third vice-president of the G.T.R., and in 1910, first vice-president.

Mr. Edson J. Chamberlin, who succeeded Mr. Frank W. Morse as vice-president and general manager of the Grand Trunk Pacific three years ago, is somewhat older than Mr. Fitzhugh. He is a native of New Hampshire, and was general manager of the Canada Atlantic when that road passed into the hands of the Grand Trunk. He has lived in Canada since 1886, and is an able, all-round railway man.

Mr. McGuigan, whose name has been mentioned in connection with the big appointment, is better known to the public than either Mr. Fitzhugh or Mr. Chamberlin, because of his rather picturesque qualities. He came up from the ranks, and he is the sort of man about whom many stories are told. It is said he called J. J. Hill a liar on the occasion of his rupture with that magnate when he left the Great Northern, after a very brief stay in St. Paul, after he severed his connection with the G.T.R. It is also said that he applied the same epithet personally to an Ontario Cabinet Minister in connection with the construction of the Hydro-Electric line, which he recently built.

Mr. McGuigan's success and the fact that he is looked upon as big enough to fill Mr. Hays' position may be traced to his persistence when young of always fitting himself for a better job than he held. One day when he was a boy carrying water on the Great Western down near St. Thomas there was talk of a strike. An engineer laughingly said to him:

"You'll lose your job, son, if the men go out."

"Oh, I guess not," said young McGuigan, "probably I'll get your job."

"What do you mean?" asked the engineer.

"Why, I'll drive your engine," was the reply.

"What do you know about the engine?" said the driver, "go ahead and show me."

Whereupon McGuigan, the water boy, took hold and ran the locomotive! He had kept his eyes open and found out all about it.

A Studholme Story.

Mr. Allan Studholme, M.P.P., the only Labor member in Ontario's Legislature, is a much better speaker than he was when he first entered the House. He used to play the very dickens with the English language.

The Labor member from Hamilton simply couldn't be kept from a front bench, which he now occupies. In his early, extra-ungrammatical days in the House, he was a back-bencher, but it was his habit as he warmed up in a speech to emphasize each good point he made by a step forward, landing finally at an empty front bench, from which he finished his oration. One day he had accomplished this advance movement, and was eloquently holding forth at some one else's seat, at the front. Likewise he was smashing the rules of grammar and pronunciation recklessly.

Hon. Richard Harcourt, as ex-Minister of Education, was one of those most affected by Mr. Studholme's language. At last he signalled a page, and the latter soon returned with an enormous book—the biggest dictionary in the Legislative Library—which he slammed down on the desk in front of Mr. Studholme. The latter glanced at the volume, and instantly noted the significance of its arrival. But he was not upset. With the good-natured complacence which, among other qualities, has endeared him to the press gallery, he merely remarked: "My language may be none of the best, but ," and continued with his speech.

Dearth of Seals.

A despatch from St. John's, Nfld., by wireless to Montreal, states that the sealing fleet off the east coast of Newfoundland reports the worst season in the history of the sealing industry. The total catch so far is only 50,000 seals, which is less than one boat secured in 1910.

The fleet sailed on March 14, and comprised 2,000 men and many vessels. On March 20 they struck an ice "pan," with 30,000 seals which they speedily slaughtered. Then followed a hunt by the steamers, plowing through the ice for the main herd, which usually floats down on ice from the Polar regions.

The search was kept up for hundreds of miles through the ice in every direction, but without success. The fleet is now sailing south, and hopes to find the main herd. The average catch is 300,000 skins, representing a million dollars. With the best luck it is not expected to exceed one-third this year.

Ham Experts.

In certain watering places of Europe men make fortunes in ham shops. There is said to be such a shop in Carlsbad, where a man in white garments slices the lean Prague ham or the fatter Westphalian for the people who are at the springs. It is said that none there are really judges of ham until they can argue every morning outside the shop for a quarter of an hour as to what breed of pig gives the most appetizing slice. At Marienbad the representatives of the most exclusive circles of society in the world lunch on lean ham.—Argonaut.

REPATRIATING N.S.

Publicity and Active Work Are Doing Wonders.

Nova Scotia is reaping the fruits of publicity in the matter of immigration, according to a recent interview with Arthur S. Barnstead, secretary of Industries and Immigration for that province.

"Four years ago, Premier Murray took steps to organize a provincial immigration service which at the same time acts as a publicity bureau," said Mr. Barnstead. "Mainly the operations have been extended to the British Isles where it was felt conditions would serve in drawing the attention of a part of the many thousands who yearly come to Canada to the attractions and opportunities of Canada's East—which, after all, is capable of fuller exploitation and has not shared as much as we should have liked in the great Canada awakening of the last decade or so. The industrial life of the province has made it possible for Nova Scotia to show a substantial increase of population, amounting to 7.13 per cent. We had last summer 492,338 people in Nova Scotia, which is 32,764 more than we had in 1900. We have suffered alike with other parts of older Canada in the rural to urban migration.

"It was not always so, perhaps, but 1912 is not 1882. In the life of a generation the face of the province has changed in many ways, but changed, we believe to the great advantage of Nova Scotians and offering the openings for our young men and women that were non-existent in the earlier years of confederation. So while endeavoring to let our own people see these facts, we are by means of our agency in London, and with the aid of literature, advertising, and the use of lecturers in the Mother Country at the same time proclaiming them to the great millions of British peoples who are crowded in their, and our, home-land."

"A number of people from the British Isles have come to us. Some natives have returned to their old farms after absence in the United States for some years. Others have come in to labor in the industrial centres. Altogether immigration has increased the population of the province by about 20,000 people.

"An average of about 250 to 300 a year, say 1,200 in all, went to the farms. Some of these were farm laborers who worked for a while with our farmers and subsequently moved away. Those who had sufficient capital purchased farms while many who would have located and had acquired the necessary acquaintance with local conditions combined with previous agricultural experience were deterred from doing so, owing to lack of capital.

"The needs of this class have been recognized and the Government has been endeavoring to secure a suitable method whereby assistance would be rendered in certain cases. Since I left the city, Hon. Premier Murray has introduced a bill into the Legislature to effect this very object. It is, briefly, an act for the encouragement of settlement on farm lands. The aid is made available not only for selected farmers from the British Isles or elsewhere who wish to acquire land of their own, but are unable to do so but the like assistance is open to Nova Scotians who have the necessary agricultural qualifications.

"Provision is made for the lending of an amount up to 50 per cent. of the appraised or actual value of the land. There is a limit set on the amount which may be loaned on any one property. I think it is $5,000. The Governor-in-Council is also authorized to purchase out of a fund of $200,000, lands that will be suitable for the purpose, subdivide it into lots, if need be, and resell it on agreed terms for the repayment of principal and interest. By utilizing existing loan societies or companies to aid us in this work we think we have hit upon a method that will provide in a safe way, the necessary funds and machinery for collection and help to solve the important problem of the resettlement of many of the unoccupied and untilled farms that are to be found in too frequent numbers in our province."

Beating Speaker.

Col. Henry R. Smith, Sergeant-at-Arms of the Dominion Parliament since 1872 has some good stories to tell concerning the expedients employed by members of the House of Commons to question the truthfulness of other honorable members without being called upon by the Speaker to retract.

A Westerner once called a fellow-member a liar in the House, and when urged to retract remarked that he would withdraw the expression out of respect to the Speaker, but added that he would certainly call the member a liar outside the precincts of the chamber. But in most cases attacks on veracity are more cleverly clothed in verbiage.

The most artistic effort in this direction recalled by Col. Smith was that of a wit who, after listening to a speech from the benches opposite, said: "The statements of the honorable member just stated force me to the conclusion that if he had lived in the days of Sapphira that lady would have preferred him to Ananias as a husband."

Honor for Glace Bay.

The people of Glace Bay, N.S., are happy, for that place is to be very much in the limelight in the coming summer. The [illegible] aeroplane is to start from there in August on its attempt to cross the Atlantic. That in itself is enough to give prominence in the news columns of a whole country's papers, but Glace Bay is to have the additional honor of having the Duke of Connaught and Premier Borden there as official starters for the aeroplane.

Te[illegible] Europe.

Canada is [illegible] out. It was not long ago that we stood open-mouthed at the luxury of Europe, and now we are teaching it things. The C.P.R. has invaded Austria. The company has made a contract with the Austrian Government to supply and operate a system of observation cars on the most picturesque sections of the Austrian State Railways, including the main route to Vienna via Zurich. The Swiss Government is also interested in the project. Concession has been obtained from Austria that Zurich shall be the eastern terminus. Great interest is shown in the innovation throughout the dual monarchy. Hungarian politicians are already demanding that the service be extended to Budapest.

Canadian Pacific engineers have been selected as being the most experienced in similar conditions prevailing in the Rocky Mountains of North America. The cars are already under construction and will be especially adapted to meet local conditions. They will have a length of 22 1-2 metres and will be the longest four-axle cars in Europe. The seating capacity of each car will be 32 passengers. Seats in these cars will cost a supplementary fare of only $1 and will be available for second-class as well as first-class passengers. This provision was adopted at the request of the Austrian Government, which desires to make the service a popular one.

B. C.'s Big Game.

With the exception of antelope and musk-ox, British Columbia has every species of big game that exists on the continent; even the rarest of them being found in fair quantities. In addition, there are wild fowl and game birds of various species, some native and others acclimatized, that furnish sport; while the waters afford the finest trout and salmon fishing in the world. It is probable that there are more moose to the square mile in the Canadian Rockies than in any other part of the continent, and every year their numbers seem to increase. So far, the country has never been hunted except by a few prospectors. Whether the horns attain the large size of the Cassier moose has yet to be determined, but some very fine heads have been seen. In this district, cariboo are very plentiful on the higher plateau, and in places both grizzly and black bear are numerous.

A Profitable Deal.

Twenty years ago Dr. Coleridge of Ingersoll gave a gold watch, an inexpensive one at that, for 1,600 feet of land on Soudan avenue, Toronto. The owner got tired carrying them and was quite willing to take $25 for the bunch, but as the doctor's watch was just what he wanted, the doctor got the lots.

Recently Dr. Coleridge sold the property for $11 a foot or [illegible]. And the man who bought them, a local operator, has had a half dozen chances to sell them again at $15 a foot.

BETWEEN TWO FIRES.

Curious Hare Hunt That Occurred at the Battle of Wagram.

At a certain stage of the battle of Wagram, which took place in 1809, the proceedings developed into a great hare hunt. There were 400,000 hunters, half French and half Austrians.

The plain was, it is related, covered with hares, which the long advance of the two armies had driven into a narrow space. Frightened by the guns of the French, they ran for their lives and continued to run until they reached the Austrian lines. There they were none the less terrified and came rushing back upon the French.

The soldiers were greatly interested by the frantic movements of the hares and could hardly be restrained from making after them.

There occurred a charge by the Austrian cavalry, which, of course, took no account of the hares. The horses plunged in among them, and they rushed in dismay among the ranks of the French soldiers, who, confused by so strange an attack, began bayoneting the hares. Other soldiers not immediately pressed by the onset of the enemy caught up the trembling animals in their hands.

There was that day a great slaughter of men and hares, and many a shot destined for the enemy struck one of these poor animals, who doubtless believed that the great armies had come there expressly to hunt them instead of to hunt each other.—Harper's.

PRESENCE OF MIND.

Ruse of a Woman Who Was Scared but Who Kept Her Wits.

The following is a true story of an incident that happened in an English village.

A husband had gone out for the evening and left his wife and child at home. The woman was about to retire for the night when, to her amazement, she perceived the foot of a man beneath the bed. Instead of calling for assistance, as some would have done, she coolly went to the child's cot and sat and sang till the child went to sleep. Two hours then remained before her husband came in. He was surprised to find her waiting up, but when his wife handed him an envelope, saying, "You might run and post this," the cause of her waiting was revealed. Instead of a letter the following was written on the envelope: "A burglar is under our bed. Run; fetch police." The husband returned in a minute with a policeman, and the man was arrested. The burglar when brought up before the magistrate remarked that he had come across a few brave women in his time, but this one must have had a nerve like iron, for she sat there for three solid hours. He had the impression that she didn't know he was there till the policeman pulled him out.—Exchange.

TALK TO YOUR HORSE.

It Will Make the Animal More Intelligent and More Friendly.

Talk to your horse and teach him to obey your voice as well as the reins. This may prove valuable if, as sometimes happens, the lines break or become unbuckled. Besides, the horse likes the sociability of it. He easily learns a dozen or more words, but be careful to use them only for exactly what you mean. For instance, "whoa" means to stop at once and stand perfectly still, "get up" to go straight ahead and at once, "back" to step backward, "easy" or "steady" to slow up.

These words the horse readily learns and takes kindly to. "Walk" means to change at once to a walk, and "all right," spoken in a calm, reassuring tone, means "don't be afraid—that won't hurt you," and it is wonderful to see what a calming effect it has. Speak firmly, but not sharply, to the horses, for they are nervous creatures. Talking to your horse will make him more intelligent and more friendly.—Spirit of the West.

Curious Power of Charcoal.

It has been found that the power of charcoal to absorb gases is vastly increased at very low temperatures, so that it can be employed for exhausting incandescent lamp bulbs and Crookes tubes and also for separating mixed gases. Experiment has shown that at the freezing point of water and at normal atmospheric pressure one gram of charcoal absorbs four cubic centimeters of hydrogen and eighteen cubic centimeters of oxygen, but that at 182 degrees centigrade, the temperature of boiling air, one gram of charcoal absorbs 135 cubic centimeters of hydrogen and 250 cubic centimeters of oxygen. When several gases are mixed the charcoal absorbs some of them much more freely than others, so that by multiplying the operation gases can be separated from mixtures in sufficient quantity for industrial uses.—Cincinnati Commercial Tribune.

Pieces of Eight and Doubloons.

The pieces of eight and the doubloon are indissolubly united with the traditions of the Spanish main and the old buccaneers. Pieces of eight were more properly called piasters—from the Greek and Latin, emplastron, "a plaster;" in the Romance languages, "anything spread out or flat, as a plate, a coin." The piece was silver and worth about $1. Being divided into eight silver reals, it was termed a piece of eight.

Doubloons were gold pieces, originally double the value of a pistole, and formerly coined in Spain and Spanish America. The name is derived from the Spanish doblon, "double." Prior to 1848 the doubloon was worth $15.75. The doblon de Isabel, coined in that year, was until 1868 equivalent only to $4.96.

Grocers Who Dressed In Colors.

In the early part of the fifteenth century it is recorded that the "grocers' guild appeared in livery of scarlet and green." A few years later scarlet and black were adopted. Funeral services of deceased members "were attended with much show of pageantry." At the burial of Sir Philip Sidney, who was a member of the grocers' guild, his worship the mayor, aldermen and other civic officials were present, "ryding in purple."—London Telegraph.

LEGEND OF ALUMINUM.

Story Told by Pliny of Tiberius and a Metal Worker.

If a certain incident in Roman history, as related by Pliny, be given full credence then it would seem that aluminum was formed by means of a secret process long before our time. The story is that there one day appeared [illegible] a cup made of a brilliant white metal [illegible] Tiberius [illegible] dropped it. [illegible] by the fall that it [illegible] dented, but the metal worker took a hammer, and in the presence of the court quickly repaired the damage. It was thus evident to all that the metal was not silver, though it presented an appearance as brilliant as that metal. Besides, it was more durable and much lighter.

The emperor, so Pliny relates, interrogated the metal worker, from whom it was learned that the mysterious metal had been extracted from an argillaceous earth, in all probability the clay known to modern chemists as alumina. Tiberius then asked whether any one but the metal worker knew of the process and received the reply that the secret was known only to the worker and Jupiter.

The answer was unfortunate, for reasoned the emperor, if it were possible to obtain such a metal from so common a substance as clay, would not the value of gold and silver be reduced? Tiberius, it would seem, was determined to avert such a catastrophe, for he commanded the workshops of the discoverer of the new metal to be destroyed and the luckless man himself to be decapitated so that the secret might die with him.

Did the cruelty of Tiberius deprive the world for centuries of the use of the metal aluminum?

Sequel to an Amusing Mistake.

An amusing story is told of Mr. McKinnon Wood, who succeeded in holding his own in the St. Rollox bye-election. The wife of "Mr. Speaker" introduced Mr. Wood, at a reception, to a lady, having previously mentioned that she was about to make him acquainted with the wife of a member of the Russian Duma.

Mr. McKinnon Wood, being unable to speak the language of the Slavs, felt somewhat embarrassed, and endeavored to explain, by signs and smiles, his lingual deficiency. The lady, somewhat to his surprise, though, perhaps, to his relief, said, "I would much prefer to converse in English," and added that she was Mrs. Austen Chamberlain. Mrs. Lowther, quite inadvertently, had introduced Mr. McKinnon Wood to the wrong lady.

It is not, perhaps, generally known that the member for the St. Rollox Division was originally intended for the Bar, but instead took up business as a merchant. He made his mark on the London County Council, and is rather "learned" having contributed several articles to the Encyclopaedia Britannica.

Middy's Trip.

The Earl of Bessborough, who has completed his sixty-first year, is a man of affairs, with a varied career. For some years he was in the royal navy, serving as a midshipman under the late Duke of Cambridge, and sailing round the world. Later he read for the Bar, to which he was called in 1879, and then took up Parliamentary secretarial work, serving in that capacity to Lord Stalbridge and Mr. Speaker Peel.

For many years past Lord Bessborough has been engaged in numerous business enterprises, and four years ago followed Lord Cottesloe as chairman of the London, Brighton, and South Coast Railway.

A SOUND INVESTMENT IN TORONTO REAL ESTATE.

This is what we are offering the readers of "The Times" in our newest Sub-Division:

"CALEDONIA PARK"

Anyone familiar with Toronto will agree with us when we say that the best part of the city for investment to-day is the NORTH-WEST SECTION.

In "CALEDONIA PARK" you may purchase land where the district east, west, and south, is almost entirely built up.

The St. Clair Avenue car line will be in operation in about eight months, as the rails are now laid past our property. This, of course, will cause a decided enhancement in land values in the St. Clair Avenue district. "CALEDONIA PARK" being just two blocks (about four minutes' walk) north of St. Clair, will naturally benefit very much.

The entire block is RESTRICTED to solid brick, or brick veneer houses, which will provide a district absolutely first class, and where houses will sell from $2700 to $4000 each.

A new brick school is just being completed at a cost of about $100,000, on the south side of INNES AVENUE, ONE OF THE STREETS IN "CALEDONIA PARK."

A local builder has just purchased a large strip of land and SIX solid brick houses will be commenced in a very short time.

Toronto investors, men who know values, are purchasing in "Caledonia Park," as they know there is money to be made at the opening low prices of—

$14 to $25 Per Foot

Write us for complete information. We will gladly forward plans and descriptive folder to any address. We know what we are offering, and can, with confidence, recommend "CALEDONIA PARK" lots to the Investor. Ten days' selling has disposed of $60,000.00 worth of lots.

WE REPEAT—We will refund the railroad fare to any purchaser within 150 miles of Toronto.

You can buy in "CALEDONIA PARK" on VERY EASY TERMS: 20 per cent. down and 20 per cent. every six months.

One feature worthy of note is that these lots are DEEP. We are aware that some properties on the market at the present time are only about eighty feet deep. OUR LOTS AVERAGE 121 FEET IN DEPTH TO A WIDE LANE.

Reservations may be made without risk to the purchaser. We will hold for three days what we consider the best available land. You can look the property over yourself, and if absolutely satisfied, make the purchase. We have many clients who act upon our judgment. They have realized splendid profits. You can do the same.

ROSEDALE
LOTS

Most citizens of Peterboro' are aware that Rosedale, of Toronto, is the High Class Residential District of that city. Where naught but blue blood is to be found, and where residence therein is a passport to high society. It was sub-divided and put on the market by a Scotch syndicate about 35 years ago, at $20.00 per front foot, and it is now selling at from $75.00 to $250.00 per foot. About the same time the high class citizens of Peterboro' determined to keep step with Toronto, quickly selected and sub-divided that beautiful block of land north of Smith Street, east of Jackson Park, west from Normal School, and Chemong Road. Having gone so far, they wearied of well-doing, leaving the task of putting on the market to your humble servant, in the late afternoon of life, and because of that lateness, and of the superior High Class Property, I am offering at a fraction of it's value five years hence. I most respectfully solicit your early investigation, believing that when you see the property, hear my price and terms, you will be pleased to accept at once. And as I want the assistance of every good man and woman in this meritorious work of furnishing home-foundations and the safest and most profitable way to invest and save, small or large sums of money. And in return for this assistance I agree to pay 5 per cent. of the net price, at which each lot is sold, to the Treasurer of the Church to which the buyer belongs. I will do this as a precedent for others to follow my example. Payable out of half money received from buyer. Bear in mind, I only own 38 lots in what I have properly named "The Heart of Rosedale", and you or your descendants will buy that property soon, or later at 5 or 10 times my price. Is it not in your interest to buy now, and use or sell later at big profits as many others have done? It is always safe to buy wheat or gold dollars, when they are offered at half value, and that is what you are doing when you buy lots in "The Heart of Rosedale."

Unavoidable delay compels me to name June 5th, as the opening day for sale of those lots. In the meantime, I suggest that every auto owner in the city, in his own interests, not only to go himself, but to take all his big friends with him, to carefully inspect and fully verify my statements.

How to find it—Second block north of Smith St. and west of Dixon, marked by small flags, and five minutes' walk from car line at Jackson's Park.

Plans, and further information will be available in a few days.

HEMING'S BOOK.

How the Canadian Artist Sold His First Literary Work.

Arthur Heming is known to a good many readers, not only as an illustrator, but as a writer of magazine stories and one book. The book, "Spirit Lake," which is all a story about the Ojibways towards Hudson Bay, has behind it a story, and a good one.

It was while he was wintering with Wm. Henry Howe, the cattle painter, at Bronxville, N.Y., that Heming conceived the notion that he would like to write the story of how the Ojibways put in their queer, weird lives from one winter to the next. This, of course, would mean a fresh winter trip to the north. He took a train down to the city, and went to The Outlook. Not knowing the name of the art editor or the heads of any departments, he asked the elevator man. Introducing himself to the head of the art department, he told him what he intended to do.

"But what do you expect us to do?" was the question.

"Write me an advance check for a thousand dollars, give me the serial rights on my stuff and I'll go north and get you material for the book."

This radical suggestion was conveyed to the chief, who, after listening to the much-in-earnest delivery of the Canadian artist, took him at his word, wrote the check and gave him the assignment.

From there Heming went to another magazine which had already handled a series of his drawings for Fraser's "Sa'zada Tales." To the editor of that he proposed to sell the serial rights of the same thing. The offer was accepted. Immediately Heming hied himself to an outfitter's emporium and made a deal for a complete camp outfit of most elegant proportions including everything a man can possibly lug into the wilderness and use to advantage. At another store he got a Mauser rifle and a hundred rounds of ammunition.

Thus equipped, the trailsman hit out for the far north. He was gone all winter. He got his material. He came back to civilization, and just before he started for England to study with Brangwyn he conceived the idea of throwing the whole thing into the form of short stories which could be combined to make the book.

Hence came the book "Spirit Lake," which was made nearly twenty years after Heming had gone his first snowshoe trip in the north from Mattawa to Temiskaming, and he sold the serial rights of "Spirit Lake" in four separate countries, England, France, the United States and Canada.

So he is a walking and enthusiastic encyclopaedia of the life on the unrailroaded edges of the north. He has studied most of the Indian tribes that pitch their camps between Montreal and Alaska; from the Sarcees down in the cow-hills to the Lochieux up the Peel in the Yukon. He knows the joys of the bull moose and the sorrows of the whale. He has burrowed after little game and gone stalking after the big. From the fur of a mink or the mound of a muskrat to the blubber of a bull whale just off the harpoon is the zoological range of his acquaintance with northern animals. He has bossed mining camps and come down with the river-drivers. And with whatsoever sort of crew he hit the river or the trail he took off his coat and his collar and put on his jeans and his blanket coat or his moccasins and got down to the brass tacks of genuine hard labor. —Augustus Bridle in The Globe.

Sir James' Humor.

A well-known newspaper man who writes the political leaders for a Bay street daily in Toronto tells the following story on himself.

The editorial writer has a familiar surname of the same class as Brown, but he has enough given names to fill a small clothes line. During the last provincial elections he had occasion to call up Sir James Whitney over the 'phone. Sir James is celebrated for his blunt, brusque manner of speech, and in the conversation which follows he was true to his reputation.

"This is Brown speaking," the editorial writer began—"Brown, Sir James; Mr. H. D. Y. P. Brown, Brown of The ——."

"What's that, what's that?" inquired the Premier, in rapid, sharp, brusque tones.

"This is Brown, editorial writer of The ——, Mr. H. D. Y. P. Brown, editorial writer—you know—H. D. Y. P. Brown, of The ——, you know," the newspaper man explained repeatedly and slowly.

"Brown, a-a-a-hem—Brown, you say—let me see, Brown, editorial—Oh, yes, Brown, of The ——, yes, yes, yes," said Sir James. "I suppose you use all your other names to DISINFECT the Brown, eh?"—Toronto Star Weekly.

Harvesting In April.

A news item that is unusual even for this big country of varied climate and lines of work was sent out from High River, Alta., early in April. It ran as follows:

Threshing is again under way in the High River district, although progress so far is not very satisfactory owing to the fields being too soft to move the heavy threshing outfits. The general opinion is that grain has wintered better than expected.

The unusual spectacle of harvesting a crop in April is seen in this district, where several farmers are now engaged in cutting oats. The grain is coming out in fairly good shape. The small acreage ready for spring crops is resulting in many power plowing outfits being bought, several being recently unloaded here.

A Manitoba Pioneer.

Jonathan Heaney died suddenly recently in a Winnipeg hospital after undergoing an operation for intestinal trouble. Mr. Heaney, who was 74 years of age, came to Manitoba from the neighborhood of Brampton, Ont., nearly 33 years ago, and settled in Meadow Lea, where he farmed for almost 26 years, later moving to Winnipeg.

Tennis Players, Attention!

Any player whose club is not represented on the executive committee should send their entries either to Mr. C. L. Whitby, care of Bank of Commerce, or to Mr. G. R. Langley, 291 Stewart street.

FORETOLD HIS END.

W. T. Stead's Prediction to Dr. Goldwin Smith.

It was at Toronto and to the late Dr. Goldwin Smith, in the course of a memorable interview at the Grange, that William T. Stead, the noted English editor, who was numbered among those who went down with the ill-fated Titanic, decreed the manner of his death.

The conference took place on the occasion of Mr. Stead's last visit to this city some six years ago. Dr. and Mrs. Goldwin Smith had invited the well-known journalist and his cousin, Mr. E. J. B. Duncan, of the legal firm of Proudfoot, Duncan, Grant & Skeans, to a typical English afternoon tea, served in the quaint and richly stocked library at the Grange. Smith and Stead had known one another for years and in a couple of hours of illuminating conversation the two men — both of world-wide note — discussed world figures and world events with a rare and intimate knowledge. The veteran philosopher sat in his arm chair by the cheery and typically English fireside; the younger publicist paced the floor with almost nervous energy as he spoke. Dr. Smith finally raised his hand in protest. The constant dynamic activity of the visitor drew forth a physician's warning.

"Have no fear, doctor," quoth Stead with characteristic directness. "There has come to me the assurance that I shall live every moment of my days. I shall be wiped out at the end—sometimes it is borne upon me that I shall be kicked and beaten to death by a mob on the streets of old London, at other times I seem to realize my end as one of the victims in a great disaster which will wipe out hundreds."

"Strange idea," was Dr. Goldwin Smith's quiet and only comment.

"I shall know when the end comes. Till then I have my work to do," replied the fatalist. And other conversation proceeded.

How Times Have Changed!

In these days of elections and rumors of elections it is interesting to glance back to the time when there wasn't so much election machinery in Canada. For instance, on March 29, 1862, The Victoria Colonist had the following account of the election proceedings as Esquimalt.

At 12 o'clock yesterday the returning officer, Sheriff Naylor, proceeded to the election of a member to represent the town of Esquimalt in the assembly. There were about fifty persons present in front of the Royal Oak Hotel. After the usual preliminaries, the returning officer called upon the electors to nominate their candidates, whereupon W. Sellick, Esq., nominated Thomas Harris, Esq., as a fit and proper person to represent the town of Esquimalt. F. Williams, Esq., seconded the nomination with a few appropriate remarks. No other candidates being proposed, the returning officers declared Thomas Harris, Esq., duly elected a member of the assembly, which announcement was received with cheers.

The member-elect then mounted the platform and addressed the electors, pledging himself to further the interests of his constituents in particular, and the colony in general. He also assured the electors that whenever there was any public question raised, in any way affecting their interests, he would call them together and take their views upon it in order to fully represent them in the Legislature. His remarks did not occupy in the delivery more than ten minues, but were warmly received, ending in loud cheers.

A Canadian Invention.

A most original and valuable invention, which will benefit the children of the elementary and secondary education classes, was demonstrated at the Royal Astronomical Society of Canada at a recent meeting.

The invention consists of three globes, representing the sun, earth and moon so mounted and mechanically fixed that by simply turning a handle not only the correct motions of the heavenly bodies are automatically produced, but what is the most striking feature of all, the phenomena resulting therefrom are most beautifully represented. For instance, the observer actually sees the correct position of the sun at any time of the year, the sun or moon partially or totally eclipsed day or night, changes in the length of day or night at all places on the earth's surface, the phases of the moon and all the other related phenomena.

The simplicity of this instrument, its completeness, and its effectiveness may be realized when it is seen that all these motions and phenomena are brought about by the simple method of turning a handle.

Numerous attempts have been made by inventors to perfect an instrument simple and automatic for the teaching of astronomical, mathematical and physical geography in schools and colleges and the demonstration proves that a Canadian in Mr. Park of Brantford has at last succeeded where others have failed.

Dr. Shearer's View.

Rev. Dr. J. G. Shearer, general secretary of the Moral and Social Reform Council of Canada, says that evangelization, law and education must all play a part in purity and reform work.

"Parents," he says, "have the first and chiefest responsibilty; next to them, physicians, preachers, pedagogues, pressmen." And in connection with this work, Dr. Shearer introduces a new term to describe a necessary Christian virtue. "The queen of all virtues in this relation," he says, "is sanctified pigheadedness. We must be undiscourageable. We must have buoyancy that will not down."

Costly Eggs.

In Fort George, B.C., on February 24 a dozen fresh eggs sold for three dollars. They were brought from Quesnel and apparently are more valuable than whiskey or real estate.

Lindsay Has a Flood.

The South Ward of Lindsay is flooded. Telegraph poles are floating around on a lot near the G. T. R. freight sheds; the place has the appearance of a floom holding logs in abeyance for the advent of a saw mill. Several of the householders on Glenelg-st., west of the G. T. R. track were compelled to build rafts, and float out to the chicken coops and outhouses.

Foresters at St. Paul's.

Yesterday evening St. Paul's Presbyterian church was attended by the local Canadian Order of Foresters. The pastor, Rev. Robert Pogue, gave an eloquent sermon on "The Church as a Brotherhood."

Havelock Man Killed at Cordova.

A former resident of Havelock, John Pressick, whilst working at the Cordova mines, lost his balance and fell into a shaft on Friday, sustaining injuries that led to his immediate death. The deceased was 28 years of age.

Heavy Fine For Illegal Fishing.

At Saturday's session of the Police Court, a man summoned by Fishery Inspector Jesse Airries, failed to appear. He was charged with illegal fishing. Evidence was heard and Magistrate Dumble imposed a fine of $50 and costs.

Took a Fit Yesterday.

Yesterday morning just as the congregation was leaving St. Peter's Cathedral, at early mass, some excitement was caused in front of the Conservatory of Music. A young man was seized with an epileptic fit. His friends were summoned and conveyed the sick man home.

Dam at Auburn Partly Gone.

Yesterday the old dam at Auburn Mills was partly washed away. The old small dam near where the fine new power house is being constructed. This dam is not on the route of the Trent Valley Canal, so its absence will cause little loss or inconvenience to navigation. The excessive rains raised the river to such a height the old structure could not withstand the immense pressure of water.

Baltimore Divine Spoke Yesterday.

Yesterday the new Murray street Baptist church was filled with a large congregation who heard Rev. Dr. Wallace, of Baltimore, Md. Dr. Wallace arrived in the city on Saturday morning. His eloquent and impassioned addresses were heard with deep feeling by all present.

Another Local Factory.

The Times has it on good authority that another new factory will be started in the central part of the city this week. Those financing the undertaking are hardly in a position yet to give full publicity to their operations. Full particulars will be given in a day or two. Even if our readers are "kept guessing," they have the satisfaction of knowing Peterborough has another industry.

Pigeons Released Yesterday.

Yesterday morning at 5 o'clock the baskets of "homing" pigeons, brought here from New Bedford, Mass., to Mr. Fred Skitch, of the Canadian Express Co., were released. Mr. Alf. J. Davidson is the sender of this year. As the hampers were opened the birds rose slowly in the air to a considerable height, poised themselves on their respective wings and then, as though by inspiration or wireless message, set off on their four hundred mile flight to New Bedford.

Saturday, 9 a.m. Boys' practice.

The anthems at both the morning and evening services yesterday were well rendered by the choir, viz "Holy Art Thou," and "Zadock, the Priest," both by Handel. The National Anthem was also sung after the offertory.

G.T.R. Horticultural Society.

At a meeting of the Horticultural Society of the Grand Trunk shops at Battle Creek, Mich., held recently the name of Mr. Chas. M. Hays was added to the memorial list of the Society. On the death of a member some special flower—generally known to have been a favorite with the person whose memory is to be honored—is selected to be grown as a memorial to the departed, and, at the Annual Exhibition prizes are awarded for these flowers. This is another indication of the place which the late President of the Grand Trunk System held in the hearts of the employees generally.

57th Leaves on Thursday.

Peterborough's crack regiment the 57th Rangers, will leave on Thursday evening for Barriefield. The parade is called for the Armouries at six o'clock and it is expected that the regiment will entrain at seven. By this arrangement the men can complete practically a day's work on Thursday, and will only be away from their employment Friday and Saturday, as the return trip will be made on Sunday instead of waiting till Monday. The regiment will therefore receive pay for five days and the pay will be received at camp. It is expected that about 260 officers and men will go to camp.

Funeral of Mrs. Robert Hamilton.

Yesterday afternoon a long cortege wended its way from "Auburn" the home of the late Mrs. (Hon.) Hamilton. It was noticable by, not only the attendance, but by the demeanour of those present that a great sorrow had fallen on the community. After a short service at "Auburn," the pall bearers, Messrs. G. W. Hatton, R. B. Rogers, J. D. Collins, N. O'Heron, Dr. Hammond, L. M. Hayes and R. W. Travers, with bowed heads and evident sorrow over their sad duty, carried out the late Mistress of Auburn. After a service at St. Luke's church, of which Mrs. Hamilton was always a consistent member, the long procession wended its way to the Little Lake cemetery, where Mrs. Hamilton was interred.

Judgment Reserved on Revision Case

It will be remembered that a financial difficulty arose, some months ago, between the city and His Honor Judge Huycke, Police Magistrate Dumble and Mr. W. G. Morrow, who acted as judges of the local court of Revision. It was a matter of fees. The case was tried before his honor Judge Harding of Lindsay.

The plaintiffs claimed recompense for services rendered to the city in [illegible] of [illegible] previous to the Provincial election. The City Council objected to the payment of the customary fee of $10 per day to [illegible] the Board on the ground that the latter departed and charged the city with the additional cost. City Solicitor [illegible] represented the city, and Mr. D. W. Dumble acted on behalf of the plaintiffs. His honor Judge Harding reserved judgment.

A Protest Lodged.

A protest has been entered to [illegible] The Times by a fond but disappointed mother against the qualifications of the three judges of the Baby Show at the Summer Fair. It is said that the only source of knowledge which Messrs. Wainwright, Morrow and Kerr, the gentlemen referred to, possess along this line is the fact that they were all babies themselves several years ago. [illegible] this is, our informant avers, hardly enough to give them a knowledge of babies sufficient for the purpose. They should at least have nursed each of the little ones for a few minutes, jumped them up and down, fed them and finally kissed each one. Each of the judges evidently forgot the fact that he himself, in his early days, spent long weary hours in a vain effort to get his big toe into his little mouthie, which is one of the best evidences of a playful and healthy youngster. The management of the Fair will no doubt look into the matter thoroughly.

Lipuid Cough Mixtures Can't Cure Bronchitis

But the healing Fumes of Catarrhozone, Which are Breathed to the Furthest Recesses of the Bronchial Tubes, Bring Quick Relief and Sure Cure.

Every sufferer from coughs, colds, bronchitis and all throat and chest ailments needs a soothing, healing medicine which goes direct to the breathing organs in the chest and lungs, attacks the trouble at the source, disperses the germs of disease, and cures the ailment thoroughly. And this medicine is "Catarrhozone."

The germ-killing balsamic vapor mixes with the breath, descends through the throat, down the bronchial tubes, and finally reaches the deepest air cells in the lungs. All parts are soothed with rich, pure, medicinal essences, whereas with a syrup the affected parts could not be reached, and harm would result through benumbing the stomach with drugs.

"I have been a chronic sufferer from Catarrh in the nose and throat for over eight years. I think I have spent four hundred dollars trying to get relief. I have spent but six dollars on Catarrhozone, and have been completely cured, and, in fact, have been well for some time. Catarrhozone is the only medicine I have been able to find that would not only give temporary relief, but will always cure permanently.

Yours sincerely,
(Signed), WILLIAM RAGAN,
Brockville, Ont.

For absolute, permanent cure use Catarrhozone. Two months' outfit costs $1.00; smaller size, 50c., at all dealers, or the Catarrhozone Company, Buffalo, N. Y., and Kingston, Canada.

Manufacturers and merchants who exhibited at the Summer Fair, all speak highly of results attained.

On Saturday the water in the northern lakes rose considerably as a result of the continuous rains.

The rains have been great for producing the long green grass. If they would only produce the long greens that pays bills what a blessing it would be.

Rev. Dr. Graham, of Toronto, is to speak here next Friday at the regular meeting of the Peterborough Protestant Federation. His subject will be "The Jesuits."

Those present at the baby show and prize awarding say that several young mothers of babies in the competition, wept tears of vexation because their darlings did not happen to be among the selected prize winners.

Peterborough seems in luck, as far as fire is concerned. Last May, the local brigade answered nine calls, with no damages; in May 1911 they had eleven calls with $28,125 damages as a result of fire.

The weather man seemed to have respected the King's colors at yesterday's parade. Shortly after the 57th Regiment had returned to the Armouries a downpour of rain recalled conditions, as existed last week.

It's a long road that has no turning. The Petes won at Ottawa on Saturday. Watch and see if they don't come pretty near carrying off the pennant by the end of the season.

THEATRE AT THE FAIR.

Don't Fail on the Fair's Last Night to See the "Pair of Lunatics."

This is the last night of Peterborough's big Summer Fair. It is expected that the attendance on the closing night will exceed all precedent. One of the leading attractions will be the theatre. The clever little farce, "A Pair of Lunatics," will be repeated, by request. Miss Helen Davidson and Mr. Gerald in the cast. After the play the bugle band of the minstrels will give a very entertaining number of selections. It is to be hoped that all who can will not only patronize the Fair to-night but also the very clever theatrical entertainment.

Nothing better in a subdivision is being offered at the present time than CALEDONIA PARK.

Situated in the north-west section, where wonderful development is taking place, with a street car line nearing completion, stores and churches in the vicinity, and the new CALEDONIA SCHOOL on Innes Avenue, facing our property.
We are extremely modest in our statement, when we say that the prices we are offering these lots at TO-DAY should be doubled in 12 MONTHS.

A gentleman was telling us of the big mistake he made in not buying in the Canada Foundry section a few years ago. Everybody knows what advances have taken place there, and when looking down over the Canada Foundry section from the splendid elevation at "CALEDONIA PARK," one can figure out a great future for investment in our property. Already our sales total $60,000.00, and good purchases have been made by out-of-town clients.

NOTE the location: Close to the St. Clair car line, just west of Lansdowne.

"IN THE SHADOWS."

About a year and a half ago there came a musical composition from England entitled "IN THE SHADOWS." The American Publishers, Jos. W. Stern & Co., New York, introduced it in this country, through the usual channels of bands and orchestras, but somehow the public did not seem to appreciate the merit of the piece. The publishers had about given up hopes of "putting it over," as they say in stage vernacular, when news came from London that King George V., in company with Emperor William, had sent a request from the royal box at the Drury Lane Theatre to the leader of the orchestra, who, by the way, is the composer of "IN THE SHADOWS," to play his composition. This seemingly trivial incident turned the tide, for immediately the whole musical world heard of it and the success of the piece was assured.

Mr. Lew Fields, the well-known comedian and theatrical manager, who happened to be in London at the time, secured the American singing rights for the song and introduced it with remarkable success in his musical play, "The Hen Pecks."

At present, "IN THE SHADOWS" is the biggest vocal and instrumental success in this country, having already sold almost one million copies.

PRIZE WINNERS AT PETERBOROUGH FAIR

On Saturday afternoon one of the most interesting features of Peterborough's Summer Fair was the Baby Show. There were 67 entries and the judges are unmarried men themselves, had a hard choice to make. There were thin babies, but very few, fat babies in large numbers, smiling babies, crying babies and babies of all degrees. The judges were Messrs. G. W. Morrow, F. D. Wainwright and F. D. Kerr. In class A, for babies up to six months old, the first prize was awarded to Ian, son of Mr. and Mrs. Barrie, 719 Bethune street; second prize to the baby of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Sherwood, 460 Sherbrooke street. In class B, babies from six months to one year old, the first prize was awarded to Donald Wood, 561 Weller street; second prize to the son of Mr. and Mrs. Price, 57 Olive avenue. In class C, babies from one year to two years of age, the first prize was awarded to the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. O. Northey, Lakefield; second prize to James Robert Houston, of Breresville. It might be added that the first prizes were silver cups and the second prizes, silver spoons. Mr. Fred Roy gave a special prize of a dozen photographs to the winner of class C. The judges presented each of the mothers who exhibited babies, a box of candies, thus possibly saving their lives at the hands of some of the losers.

WEDDING BELLS.

Cox—Dunning.

The marriage of Miss Ethel Gladys Dunning, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. Dunning, of Palmerston Boulevard, Toronto, and Mr. Frank Wallace Cox, son of the late Aaron Cox, of Peterborough, and of Mrs. Cox of Toronto, was solemnized at half past three o'clock Saturday afternoon in St. Stephens church, Toronto, which was prettily decorated with marguerites, lilacs, palms and ferns. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Jas. Broughall, assisted by Canon Broughall, Dr. Doward presiding at the organ. The bride, who was given away by her father, wore a suit of Copenhagen blue silk poplin and small cerise bonnet. She carried a bouquet of lily of the valley and American Beauty roses and wore the groom's gift, a five stone diamond ring. Miss Muriel Dunning, the bride's sister, was bridesmaid, and wore pink ninon over satin and white lingerie hat with a touch of pink. She carried pink roses and received a silver card case from the groom. Mr. Wilfred Cox was his brother's best man. Mr. and Mrs. Cox drove immediately to the station after the ceremony and left for a trip to Vancouver, Victoria and the Pacific Coast and on their return will reside in St. Andrew's Gardens, North Rosedale. The bride's mother wore a handsome gown of brown broadcloth with trimmings of brown silk and brown hat with golden plumes. Mrs. Cox, the groom's mother, was in lavender shot silk veiled in black embroidered marquisette and black.

Kidd—Todd.

On Saturday morning at 7 o'clock, an interesting ceremony was celebrated in St. Paul's church manse when former Police Constable Alexander Kidd married Miss Elizabeth Todd, of Perth, Scotland. The nuptial knot was tied by Rev. Robt. Pogue, in the presence of Mr. and Mrs. John Meharry. After the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Kidd left for Brampton, Ont., where Mr. Kidd has been appointed Chief of Police. The local force who lose a good officer in Mr. Kidd, presented him and his bride with a handsome Morris chair.

NOTICE

Owing to the continuous rain the water is very high in the river between Lakefield and Hastings, in fact, all over the whole watershed of the Trent Waterway. In order to keep the water at a reasonable height in Little Lake it has been necessary to take all the stop-logs out at the Peterborough Locks dam, and it is now very dangerous for people to attempt to go down over the Peterborough locks with canoes, gasoline launches or other small boats at the present time. The side current is so strong there that it would be almost impossible for any small boat to keep the channel without being drawn into the dam. Owing to the danger at these locks, gasoline launches, or other small craft will not be looked through until further notice.

VOL. XXXIX, NO. 139 PETERBOROUGH, ONTARIO. TUESDAY, JUNE 4, 1912 PRICE, TWO CENTS.

J. H. BURNHAM, M.P., HOLDS MEETTING IN N. MONAGHAN

Large Audience Hears The Member For West Peterboro Last Night.

Mr Burnham, M.P., held the first of his meetings with the electors of this riding last night in the Town Hall, North Monaghan. Reeve Howden occupied [illegible].

As announced on the bills the meeting was not strictly political; some [illegible] music added its charms to the occasion.

Mr. Burnham's Speech.

Mr. Burnham began his remarks by thanking the electors for the confidence they had reposed in him. He said that he was aware it was the cause that triumphed, but still he was desirous of thanking those who had worked and made that triumph possible. Following the precedent of preceding censuses there would be no general election again until the full term of Parliament expired. Redistribution had not been followed by an election before and would not be now.

The Marriage Law.

As they were awaite the "Question of the Day", most prominently before Canada just now was one that involved the right of the State to make its own laws. The right of the State to make laws respecting marriage was questioned by the famous Ne Temere decree. When this matter was brought to the attention of the Laurier government, that government decided that Parliament had no power. The Papal decree prevailed. At the elections the people of Ontario resented this condition of things. The question was then brought before the Borden government which took the opposite stand and decided that Parliament had power. Under the circumstances, in order to prevent endless appeals and confusion, the Borden government decided to refer the matter to the Supreme Court, and if necessary to the Privy Council in England. It is now before the Supreme Court, and if necessary, it will go to the Privy Council, which has already indicated its opinion that Canada has power to make her own laws as she sees fit. This intimation arose lately in the right to refer the questions to the court for solution. So far the Borden government has cleared the way and there can be little doubt notwithstanding the very strong stand taken by Quebec that the power of Parliament will be vindicated. It is the most important question ever before the people of Canada, as it involves the supremacy of the State. If the State has not the power in this matter, neither would it have in other matters, claimed to be under the jurisdiction of other powers. The decision of the Borden government to go to the Court and the decision of the Court is therefore of the utmost possible importance to the Protestants of Canada. The Lancaster Bill is the main point of contention.

Other Matters.

Mr Burnham also dwelt upon the "mistake" of the Laurier government in its agreement with the G.T.P. by which these magnates were enabled, under a recent judgment by the Privy Council, to demand ten millions extra from Parliament. There was no way out, and it was this huge blunder that limited the government's good intentions towards the veterans to $100.

The speaker excited laughter by saying that although the Liberal garrison tried to make out that the Nationalists were allies of the Conservatives, yet when the Nationalist resolution condemning the Government's attitude on the Manitoba boundaries was voted on no less than 17 out of 21 who voted for the resolution were members of the Opposition. The government benches resounded with ridicule when the vote was announced.

Sir Wilfrid also opposed the extension of Manitoba's boundaries unless they would guarantee Separate schools. He was consistent with his policy in Saskatchewan and Alberta, although not with his professions to the people in 1896.

The late Liberal banquet in Montreal was a fiasco in all but numbers. The Taft letter has pretty nearly killed the Liberal opposition at Ottawa. It is felt by the Liberals of Ontario that Sir Wilfrid has lost all prestige here while in Quebec he stands perhaps better than ever. He would retire if it was not for Quebec's influence.

1000 PEOPLE AT THE OVAL SEE TWO SPLENDID GAMES OF BALL

Yesterday afternaon about ten hundred people stood round on the wet grass at the neautiful Nicholls Oval, to see the White Caps go up against Brantford. It was a pretty sight to see the highly trained athletic young men working out in the great American game, within a circle of enthusiastic and yelling people. There is no doubt but what quite a percentage of those present went under, over or round the fence. During the third innings of the Petes, it looked as if they were going to score several runs. A strike to the box, with two on bases, was fumbled by the pitcher, but caught in time to put the pill to first. The White Caps, however, got in one run. In the fourth innings, Peterborough began by getting two bases on balls, a sacrifice, that led to a third base stolen before the ball got home, recovered himself by a long run, with the sun in his eyes and sent another visitor to his seat. In Peterborough's sixth, Templin got to base by being hit. In the seventh the visiting pitcher seemed to go up in the air, and two of the Petes got bases on balls. In the eighth inning, a throw from the plate was missed at first, the runner getting to second. The Petes at the bat, had, or should have had the game. It was evident by a case of hard luck, assisted by wet grounds.

The score by innings stood:
Peterborough 001000000
Brantford 100101000

The batteries on the first game were, Peterborough, Osborne and Mooney; Brantford, Conway and Lamont.

The umpire was Mr. R. L. Davis.

Shortly before the ninth innings was over, Mr. Denham, Mr. Patterson and others interested in the club arrived. The umpire, at Mr. Denham's suggestion, on conclusion of the first game, announced that the second would begin in ten minutes.

Most of those present waited for the second game, which also resulted against the Petes. The score stood.
Peterborough 000000000
Brantford 021210000

Peterborough's battery for the second game was Schaffer and Mooney.

PETERBOROUGH SUMMER FAIR IS NOW OVER

Last night, Peterborough's Summer Fair wound up most successfully. Some four thousand odd dollars, when expenses are settled were gathered in by the ladies in charge. The last night of the Fair was the evening of King George's birthday. A special attraction was put on in honor of the event. One of the special features of the Fair last night was the amateur theatre. Miss Helen Davidson and Mr. Gerald Rackham, in a clever comedietta, entitled, "A Pair of Lunatics," drew much applause. The Bugle Band of the Fair Minstrels also gave a good selection of attractive pieces. Taken altogether, considering that the first few days that the Fair opened, rain poured down, morning, noon and night. Mrs. Jas. Kendry, Mrs. R. W. Travers, Mrs. Dunsford and all the ladies who did such noble work, and earned over $4,000 for sweet charity's sake, have every reason for congratulation and have earned the everlasting gratitude of the people of Peterborough.

24TH FIELD BATTERY LEAVES ON JUNE 22ND

Seeing that the officers of the local regiments of horse, foot and artillery, are anxo.us to get their men away to camp, the local manufacturers and employers of labour have show their willingness to co-operate in the matter of permitting their employees to attend camp of instruction, and in many instances have signified their intention of allowing their men full pay. It has been finally decided that the 24th Field Battery will proceed to camp on June 22nd, under command of Major Young. A large number of men are looking forward to their annual two weeks training and it is expected that the Battery will muster in full strength.

THREE OF KAISERS SHIPS ARE WELCOMED BY PRESIDENT TAFT

Fort Monroe, Va., June 3.—President Taft's official welcome of the German warships here today began a round of festivities and official functions that will end only when the squadron weighs anchor for home.

The German Emperor's three big fighting machines that have come to the United States to return the American fleet's visit to Kiel last year, came up to Hampton Roads from Lynnhaven Bay early this morning, escorted by the warships of Admiral Winslow's naval division of the Atlantic fleet. Both squadrons roared out a twenty-one gun salute as the Mayflower steamed into the Roads with President Taft and the German Ambassador Count Von Bernstorff.

There are two sailor princes aboard the German squadron who will be the centres of much interest. One is Prince Henry of Reuss and the other is Prince Christ[illegible].

ENNISMORE POSTMASTER

Petition in Circulation Regarding the Postmastership. Big Row Said to Be On Amongst the Liberals of the Township.

It is understood that a petition is being circulated in Ennismore to the post office department, asking for the dismissal of the postmaster on account of offensive political partizanship. The Times is informed that the document is being largely signed. There may be an investigation, when the facts will doubtless be made public.

This is a matter, however, that practically concerns only one side of politics (Liberal) and religion.

—Seven Hurt in Head on Auto Collis

Andover, Mass., June 3—Two persons were injured seriously and five sustained minor injuries in Andover yesterday, when an automobile owned by the Mercer garage of Lowell, crashed head-on into a car of the Bay State street railway on the state road near Carter's Corner.

The most seriously injured is Miss Dorothy Hurd, who is at Dr. J. A. Leitch's Andover sanitarium, suffering, it is said, internal injuries. Her brother, Carl P. Hurd, is also at the sanitarium, but his condition is not dangerous. The other occupants of the car, Mr. and Mrs. Frank W. Hurd, parents of the injured persons, Mrs. Carl P. Hurd, D. W. Putnam and Andrew Monahan, the chauffeur, were treated at the office of Dr. C. W. Scott in Andover. All returned home except Mrs. Frank W. Hurd, who remained at the bedside of her daughter through the night.

A DISAPPOINTMENT

Montreal, June 3. Echoes of Sir Wilfrid Laurier's Wednesday night speech are still to be heard around the hotel corridors and other places where men are wont to foregather, says the Star. The dominant note in the comment of Liberal politicians is one of keen disappointment. As one of them put it:

"Sir Wilfrid disappointed us because we had looked to him in his speech to blaze the way to a new and winning policy for the party. We thought that President Taft's adjunct letter had given Sir Wilfrid his one opportunity to repudiate the entire reciprocity business and to announce a new policy. Instead of that the Chieftain tried, valiantly enough, to galvanize into life an issue that has been pronounced dead and buried beyond recall. It seems to me that he missed a splendid opportunity and that is what a good many of the Liberals with whom I have talked also seem to think."

HYDRO ELECTRIC COST

Editor Morning Times:—

The Municipal Ownership recites in its current number that the Hydro-Electric service in the Province of Ontario was in position to get a very favorable rate without regard to the cost of the service of the owner, because the private company operating a plant is in a country in which there is comparatively small demand. But notwithstanding that advantage and the imagined low price, it declares that the maximum demand in Toronto for the electric service of the commission has been no more than 2500 kilowatts in addition to the 3000 required for operating the waterworks.

Putting this kind of talk into plain English, the statement is definitely made that the city admits losing $100,000 yearly in operating expenses alone and it has an investment of $4,000,000 upon which to pay interest and provide for plant depreciation.

There is yet to be reported an instance in which municipal ownership on an extensive scale has succeeded in any city or in any country. It is notorious that the ferry service in New York which used to return a revenue to the city of between $40,000 and $50,000 a year under private ownership, now under municipal ownership, reports an annual loss of over $800,000.

The same thing is true of a like service in London under the management of the London County Council. The people have the satisfaction of feeling that they own the service, even if they have to go down in their pockets as taxpayers to make good the deficiency which inevitably follows a period of public ownership!

Why this is so every practical man knows, but the impracticable can never be persuaded that public ownership means ownership run by politics and that it is never to be avoided permanently.

The system works well as long as it works well. That is the best that can be said for it, but ultimately it makes a place for decayed politicians for men unable to work at full wages elsewhere and every such system becomes officially waterlogged and the taxpayer is required to make up the difference.

The Hydro-Electric Commission has made no report in nearly three years the conclusion being that it does not

MOTOR LEAGUE AGITATES FOR BETTER ROADS IN CITY

A meeting of the City Council was held last night with the following members present: Aldermen Morgan, Anderson, Johnston, Brown, Duffus, Gordon, Gillespie and Buller. Mayor Bradburn presided.

On motion the minutes of the last meeting were taken as read.

A communication from the Bonner Worth Co., asking to have a pipe installed at their factory for the purpose of drawing away surplus water in front of their establishment on McDonnel street, was referred to the Board of Works with power to act. The City Engineer figured that the cost of installing such a pipe would be about $35.00.

A petition from W. J. Henry largely signed was received, asking the widening of Babbs Lane, as that street served as the only connection between Homewood avenue and Gilmour street.

The Horticultural Society's application for a grant was referred to the Finance Committee.

W. J. Clatch, of Toronto applied for the position of Industrial Commissioner. This was referred to the Finance Committee.

Mr. Hannah complained that the gas works was a menace to the health of adjacent residents. This was referred to the Board of Health to be considered jointly with Council's Health Committee. Should the local boards not be able to force redress, the matter will be sent on to the Provincial Board of Health.

Dr. McNulty sent in his resignation of the Board of Health. Received.

J. W. Kelley, clerk of the Township of Smith, wrote that the garbage dumping ground is a nuisance to Smith residents, and asked for redress. This went to the Property Committee.

The City Clerk was authorized to attend the meeting of the Ontario municipalities in Toronto, June 18, and 19.

A Needed Improvement.

A deputation of South City citizens waited upon the Council and asked that Romaine street west of the railway be drained, so as to render this thoroughfare reasonably passable. It appears that there is no outlet for surface water at this point, which gathers in the shape of a miniature lake. One ratepayer offered that for the past three months water has been in his cellar, while the sidewalk resembles the road [illegible] floating bridge.

His worship explained that improvements at this point are on the Board of Works list for attention this season, but it is intended to extend the storm drainage beneath the Grand Trunk tracks if permission to do so can be obtained from the company.

Asked for Good Roads.

A deputation from the recently formed motor league was present and asked for improved road conditions, and that the approaches to the city be tended up somewhat. Messrs. E. G. Patterson and A. H. Stratton first addressed Council on the foregoing lines.

Mr. T. F. Matthews requested that the police be instructed to enforce the traffic by-law and insist that equestrians keep to the right side of the street.

Ald. Buller replied that he noticed some members of the motor league are city officials, in some part responsible for bad roads. He referred to Water Commissioner T. F. Matthews. When excavations are made for water mains and connections the streets are not left in a satisfactory condition.

Mr. Matthews: "Name them."

Ald. Buller did not reply to Mr. Matthew's request, but stuck to his contention. He hoped that in future both the Water Commissioners and the gas company would see to it that the streets upon which their men had been excavating are left in good condition which would materially strengthen the Board of Work's hands in regard to good roads. Then it must be borne in mind that the board is considerably handicapped in expediting road improvements by reason of the distance gravel has to be transported. It is impossible to get gravel fit for road purposes at any place less than six or eight miles from Peterborough. However, he is arranging for a systematic treatment of the roads.

Dr. Halliday offered that if needed repairs, such as filling up holes were done early in the season instead of in September as the case the past couple of years, the driving public would be better served.

His worship replied that frequent rains this year had delayed road work considerably. Then we have

GARBAGE COLLECTION PROBLEM IS A HARD NUT TO CRACK

The Mayor informed Council last night that as Mr. Scriver had quit collecting garbage under his contract he had authorized Sanitary Inspector Spence to employ men to collect same to the best advantage until such time as Council could formulate some other policy in regard to the matter.

Ald. Johnston—"This garbage business is in worse shape than ever."

It appears that Scriver could not get anyone to go on his papers, commenced operations without giving bonds, and thus cannot be held liable for not carrying out his contract.

Ald. Duffus pointed out that he had warned the Property Committee they would get into deep water by dealing with Scriver. He found fault with the Property committee for what they did not do in this connection.

Ald. Morgan replied that Ald. Duffus was one of those men who after a thing has occurred, say, "I told you so." The Property Committee were not at fault at all; they acted in the best possible manner according to conditions. Scriver was the only man in Peterborough who would tender on the work. And on looking into the situation, he (Ald. Morgan) concluded that no man could collect the garbage at Scriver's contract price. Outside one place on Water street, for instance, he had noticed a heap of garbage and ashes that one team would not draw. In conclusion he considered Scriver smart in getting the best of our Mayor, 10 Aldermen and a Sanitary Inspector.

Ald. Buller also contended that Scriver could not possibly do the work at the contract price. His idea was that the garbage, etc., be collected by men under the supervision of the Property Committee and Sanitary Inspector. Ashes, tins, etc. to be dumped in Spaulding's Bay and other spots needing filling, the animal matter and garbage to go where it would not prove a nuisance.

Ald. Morgan interjected that the garbage by-law is the greatest rent-raiser ever introduced. Landlords, in place of adding 15c a month raise the rents 50c.

The Mayor did not agree with the member from East City.

Inspector Spence here addressed Council and said that we will never have a satisfactory garbage system until an incinerator is installed. That must be the first consideration. Mr. Spence here went on to give an idea of what labor garbage collection actually represented. For an American city the average amount of garbage gathered daily from each 18,000 people is 57 cubic yards; in Toronto 50 cubic yards to 18,000 citizens, in Peterborough 50 cubic yards to 18,000 inhabitants. Our present system covers a quarter of the city which means that 12½ yards daily is to be collected within the given district. Three teams could do this work handily, taking three loads a day, and had Scriver been a good man the work could have been done satisfactorily. There are 1100 lbs. to a cubic yard.

It was here suggested and acquiesced in by Inspector Spence that were the city to engage three single horse rigs and employ two men to each rig, the work could be readily handled. Dump carts are the proper vehicles.

Ald. Buller moved, seconded by Ald. Brown,—That the Committee of the whole Council discuss this matter and devise ways and means for handling the garbage collection; ashes to be treated separately.—Carried.

Ald. Buller—"Garbage, included animal matter, might be collected by parties raising pigs."

Ald. Anderson—"Would you suggest that we start a piggery?"

Ald. Graham—"Perhaps you'd advise the city to buy pigs."

Moved by Ald. Buller, seconded by Ald. Johnston—That Chairman of the Property Committee have authority to hire three rigs and the necessary help to collect garbage for three days, pending further action.—Carried.

The Council will meet on this question Thursday night.

CAN'T AFFORD IT.

Ald. Anderson reported that publishing the assessment roll in the daily papers would cost in the neighborhood of $1,200, this matter was laid on the table indefinitely.

CITY FATHERS EARNEST AS TO PAVING CITY STREETS

The question of street paving came up again before the City Fathers last night. The Council is in earnest that such work will be undertaken this year.

Ald. Buller grew quite warm on this subject, and wanted the people to understand that Council has been busy in this connection. It has been agreed, he said, to have George street from McDonnel or Brock to the C.P.R.; and Charlotte street, from Water to the G.T.R. The Board of Works has arranged with the G.N.W. Telegraph Co. for the removal of their 14 poles from the west side of George street at a cost to the city of $350. The C.P.R. Co. has agreed to remove their cable poles south of Simcoe street on George as soon as they can get conduit cables. Mr. Munro of the Peterborough Light and Power Co., has agreed to remove their poles from off the east side of George and install iron poles for trolley power and store lighting; also to double track George street. All of this work has been considered necessary before George street is paved. Why the companies have not got busy he did not know. The Board of Works had done its part in this matter, in fact had been quite busy.

As to Charlotte street, poles of the Auburn Power Co., Peterborough Light & Power Co. and the Otonabee Power Co. are thick; all these poles are not needed now that we have but one power company in Peterborough.

GO TO FLORIDA FOR HEALTH AND wealth! The question is asked me repeatedly, "Why, if all that is claimed for the climate and [illegible] capacity of the land of Florida is true, is it that only a small percentage of its State's area is under cultivation?" It is a fair question, and the answer is a simple one. After the war between the North and the South Florida found herself in a deplorable condition financially. The State Government leased hundreds of thousands of acres of its best prairie and timber lands for periods running as high as 99 years. This latter period tied up the great Kissimmee Prairie until recently. It is now, however, in the hands of a splendid [illegible] company, whose selling agent [illegible] Land Company, Kissimmee [illegible] is in the Southern portion of [illegible] County and is noted for its fertility and [illegible] of soil. A PORCUPINE HERO.

The Act That Won Edward Bell His Albert Medal.

A London despatch reads: "The King has approved of the Albert medal of the second-class being conferred upon Edward Bell of the Canadian Copper Co. for gallantry in connection with the disastrous fire in South Porcupine."

Just as many of the records of the possessors of the Victoria Cross occupy in the official records but a few lines of space, so does this bald announcement of a richly-deserved honor fail to bring before the reader any conception of the scene where Edward Bell proved his manhood, says Ben Hughes in Toronto Globe. It is strange that, when so many apocryphal dramas of narrow escape were recorded during the horrible fire at Porcupine last July, nothing was said of the escape of the little knot of people round Mr. H. C. Meek's house at the Dome.

It is a matter of record now how from one end of northern Ontario to the other the people had to flee for their lives and equally a matter of knowledge how brave men refused to own that they were beaten, and so endangered and in many cases lost their lives. At the Dome the week before the fateful July 11 they had had a tough fight with fire and had dug a reservoir in the centre of the property to supply water for the pipes that had been laid from one end of the property to the other. When therefore the fire leaped down on the Dome from the bush that hot afternoon Mr. Meek and everyone else thought they were well prepared to meet it, and he and his staff fought it till the last gasp. He remained so long, in fact, that he did not arrive back at his own house, where his wife, his wife's mother, Mrs. Paddock, and his two children were, before the flames had leaped clear over the intervening space which had been cleared and set his house on fire. With him were F. Battersby, D. G. Bissett, L. H. Solman and a man named Cooper, all of the Dome staff.

The fire raged around them, cutting off every chance of escape and for what seemed eternities they huddled on the little grass plot near the rain-barrels. When all appeared to be over, Mr. Meek says that he can just remember seeing a face appear out of the smoke and a minute afterwards he felt a splash of water on his face. It was Edward Bell, who was ladling water out of the barrels with his old, soft felt hat. Then he lost consciousness. He learned from Bell afterwards, though the foreman carpenter of the Dome does not talk much about the incident, that when he arrived Mrs. Meek's skirt and foot were on fire, and that he first applied himself to putting it out. Then, coolly and calmly, while the fire swept all living organisms out of existence all around him and the hot air scorched the lungs, he continued to dip into the barrels, souse himself and distribute the water impartially over the prostrate figures round him.

The fire was at its height at two o'clock, at four the danger was over, and Edward Bell and a few square inches of grass had saved seven people. They had grazed death, but they were alive mainly because Edward Bell walked out a zone of comparative safety into a whirlwind of smoke and flame and for a full hour, never knowing when he would be roasted alive, with a level head and a steady hand, threw water out of his old hat wherever he saw a spark fall or a flame burst out on the exhausted figures round the water barrels.

Edward Bell still works at the Dome, and it is safe to say that the men who work for him and those who work with him know nothing of this story, for he is not that kind of man; he acts, he doesn't talk. But Mr. Meek did talk, and he talked to Mr. A. R. Turner, the general manager of the Canadian Copper Co. at Copper Cliff. Mr. Turner took the matter up whole-heartedly and laid the facts before the Carnegie Hero Fund and the British authorities. A few days ago the news despatches told of the honor Edward Bell had received at the hands of the King, and it is hard to see how it would be possible for a man to more deserve the reward and medal from Mr. Andrew Carnegie than Edward Bell.

Sutherland Coming Soon.

The Duke of Sutherland will leave for Canada very soon. He is said to be eager to be on the spot to guide the arrangements for the settlement of his holding in the West. The duchess will not accompany him. Another prominent Englishman we may expect to see in Canada is Sir Robert Lucas-Tooth, who has been contemplating buying land in New Ontario for some time. Sir Robert is chairman of the Bank of New South Wales in London. He has had extensive experience in Australia, and represented a constituency in the New South Wales Parliament.

The Marquis of Lorne when he was Governor-General of the Dominion appointed him Commissioner for Canada for the New South Wales Exhibition in 1879.

Sir Henry Blyth Hill will probably visit the Dominion on the same mission. He has had a distinguished career in the Egyptian army, and saw hot service in the Soudan campaign.

Canadian Globe-Trotters.

Canadians are rapidly acquiring the reputation of globe-trotters held for so long by their neighbors to the south. How large the volume of travelers from the Dominion has grown is illustrated by a story which a friend who has just returned from Cairo told the other day. A prominent Winnipeg man touring Europe and Africa had been surprised at the considerable number of fellow-countrymen he had met, and took the trouble to go over the hotel register. He found that on the day of his arrival there were at this one hotel in Egypt no less than thirty guests from the city of Winnipeg, besides a number from other points in Canada.—Star Weekly.

Another Local Factory.

The Times has it on good authority that another new factory will be started in the central part of the city this week. Those financing the undertaking are hardly in a position yet to give full publicity to their operations. Full particulars will be given in a day or two. Even if our readers are "kept guessing," they have the satisfaction of knowing Peterborough has another industry.

CANADIANS IN AVIATION

THE DOMINION HAS PRODUCED ENTHUSIASTIC BIRDMEN.

An Anglican Clergyman, Whose Name Has Been Forgotten But Who Lived at Three Rivers, Was One of the Pioneers In Aerial Experiments Back In 1840—Perron's Researches—Dr. Bell's Work.

Many years before the venerable Trowbridge had given to the world his "Darius Green and his Flying Machine," actual experiments, which had anticipated those set forth in this poem had been carried out in the particular field of gliding aerotechnics at Three Rivers, Que., by an Anglican clergyman, whose name is, unfortunately shrouded in mystery, and the exact date of his experiments is also unknown, although it has been determined that they took place sometime between 1835 and 1845.

This clergyman commenced his work by studying the flight of birds, and finally decided that it was well within the sphere of possibility, for man to successfully emulate the example of his feathered friends.

Accordingly he commenced by making experiments with gliders and plane surfaces, and gathered an immense amount of valuable data which, unfortunately, has been lost. From verbal accounts of some of these experiments, it seems possible, that he discovered the method of building aerofoils, according to the system later laid down by Phillips, and which method has been extensively introduced by the leading European manufacturers during the past year.

After having made numberless model gliders, this clergyman constructed a full sized glider, with which he succeeded in making a number of flights. In the lost notes he stated, that after he had accomplished his he felt certain that the air was destined to be navigated by heavier-than-air machines, and that it was not only possible, but highly probable before the close of the century. He stated also, that before anything could be done to accomplish this much desired end, a motor sufficiently powerful and yet sufficiently light would be required, and in many ways he forecasted the present day internal combustion motor. How truly his prophesies have come true, is familiar to everyone.

In 1872 a French-Canadian inventor in Quebec, by the name of Perron, made some experiments in aerotechnics, consisting of flights with gliders. What particularly distinguished the efforts of this man was the excellent workmanship which has come to be such a necessary factor in the construction of aeroplanes to-day. It is recorded that this inventor incurred the displeasure of some of his devout neighbors, because they thought he was endeavoring to prove false an old French-Canadian adage, that "pigs might fly," which was employed to urge the impossibility of a useless undertaking. He, however, ultimately gave up his experiments, partly on account of the opposition of his friends, who thought that he was making an effort to break into the realm of the occult, and partly, perhaps, because he was compelled to discontinue his efforts more from the necessity of an efficient motor which did not exist in his day. It is stated, however, that he was firmly convinced of the future of the aeroplane, and, like his clergyman predecessor, in the same field of endeavor, prophesied that power driven air craft would be a common sight within fifty years. No further effort of any importance to conquer the domain of the air was made in Canada until within the last ten years.

Away back in 1908, which is, indeed, ancient history in the development of the aeroplane, a society, which was known as the American Aeronautical Association, was formed which had for its object aero-technical experimentation. The organizer of this society was Dr. Alexander Graham Bell, the inventor of the telephone. Now Dr. Bell was by no means a young man, when he undertook this new work, and it was necessary for him to gather about him men younger in years and possessed of adequate practical and technical knowledge. The members of this society, which has long since been dissolved, have each become famous by their individual exploits in the aviation world. Two Canadians were J. D. McCurdy and J. A. Baldwin.

With a sound scientific mind like Dr. Bell's, who was a master, not only of the technical aspect of aerodynamics, but also a practical scientist to guide these two young men, it is no wonder that the researches which were made at Dr. Bell's summer residence at Baddeck, Nova Scotia, Cape Breton, should have borne such excellent fruit subsequently.

A whole summer was passed and many thousand dollars were spent in the construction of aeroplanes, according to the plans which were worked out by the members of the Association. Dr. Bell, with the aid of his young assistants, at last had an opportunity to try thoroughly his theory with regard to tetrahedral cells, which unfortunately did not work out in practice as he had anticipated. When, however, the celebrated inventor saw that it was not a success, he abandoned further experiments, and he and his assistants then directed their attention to the perfection of the simple plane type of machine.

The first machine which was built, was a somewhat crude looking apparatus, but it was found to be a step in the right direction, and was followed by several others, each of which was a distinct improvement over the other. The last one which was built by the association, before they were finally dissolved, made at least sixty successful flights over the frozen surface of the Bras d'Or lake. This machine was a biplane in type, and had a supporting surface of about five hundred square feet.

The rains have been great for producing the long green grass. If they would only produce the long greens that pays bills what a blessing it would be.

Those present at the baby show and prize awarding say that several young mothers of babies in the competition, wept tears of vexation because their darlings did not happen to be among the selected prize winners.

Bells and Bees.

It is a foolish notion to suppose that the ringing of bells or "tanging" of the pans will cause a swarm of bees to settle. The real origin of this custom dated back to the reign of Alfred the Great, who, in order to prevent disputes regarding the ownership of a swarm, ordered that the owner should always ring a bell when his bees swarmed, and ever since then the good farmer's wife has been rushing out with ringing bells whenever the bees swarmed, and the fact that they settled verified, in her own mind, the belief that the bell did it.—London Standard.

CHILDREN ON THE STAGE

Four years ago the American Congress passed a child labor law. While not without some unduly severe provisions, popular sentiment upheld the principle it involved.

When the law came to be enforced, however, it was found to apply with drastic force against child actors, professional and amateur. It absolutely forbade, under severe penalties, their presence on the stage, whatever their surroundings, and New Orleans was prevented from seeing some of the highest class of American productions, or saw them with near adults playing the juvenile parts, or saw them make a deliberate violation of the law for which theatrical managers submitted to punishment.

We believe we are not misstating the case when we say a majority of people of the city and State, of all classes, once the law was put in operation and its effects realized, felt that in it's application to stage children it was unnecessarily severe and might readily be modified without destroying the principle that children of tender age are entitled to be shielded by the law from hardships and improper influences. We know also that the General Assembly would not originally have enacted it if its full purport and effect had been known.

Two years ago a bill was offered seeking to amend the law so as to provide for strict regulation rather than total prohibition of child acting. The argument in its favor was so feebly presented that it was defeated.

Senator Clinton, however, has now offered a new bill drawn in harmony with the views of authorities identified with the national movement for the protection of child labor, including Judge Lindsey, and following the laws of some of the other States, which will the stage under such restrictions as permit children of genius to appear on will provide for their proper guardianship and safeguard them from immoral or demoralizing influences. The text of the law we have already printed in our legislative correspondence. It meets every reasonable requirement for the protection of the child.

The bill will, perhaps, be opposed by those who hold extreme views on the subject. But we hope the General Assembly will consider it from the broad standpoint of the interest of the child which lies not in prohibition but in regulation.

Many of the greatest of our actors began their careers as juveniles. Many of our present juveniles will become the great actors of the future. There is neither sense nor reason in attempting to deprive the people of Louisiana of the pleasure of enjoying the performances of child actors who are not restrained from appearing on the stage in other cities.

As a rule they are the children of actors themselves. They are very carefully reared and trained. They have comforts which the average child does not enjoy. They would themselves be the sufferers if laws general in the States forced them out of careers rich in the promise of rewards.

We believe there should be a law in Louisiana having for its purpose State guardianship of stage children. We believe it should be adequate to meet the conditions which naturally surround the stage. But the present law is unjust to the child and unjust to the public and it ought to give way to one embodying the principle advocated by Mr. Clinton, of State regulation.

ON THE BANK CLERK

It will doubtless be glad news to the bank clerks of Saskatchewan that they are not the most poorly paid of their set. Some delving statistician has discovered that in Belgium bank clerks are engaged at the magnificent remuneration of $13.51 per month, and after serving five years, receive a "salary" of $18 per month. A writer in a recent issue of the London Bankers' Magazine contributes an article which should be regarded in Canada as timely, in view of the numerous complaints of small pay emanating from bank clerks in the Dominion. The writer of the article explains first that the Canadian banks have preferred Scotsmen in distributing the appointments to positions on their staffs, and he hazards the guess that if a plebiscite were taken of the component parts of the Canadian bank staffs it would be found that the Scottish element accounted for two-thirds of the whole.

In the case of one bank in Canada, which engages a considerable number of men in the United Kingdom, it is stated that the commencing salary is $500 per annum. This would be for clerks with a few years' actual experience in Old Country banking, who would be capable of taking the positions of ledger-keeper, discount clerk, correspondence clerk, or perhaps the cash in a country office. In the case of another Canadian bank it is said to be the custom to start the juniors "in London or abroad" at $350 per year. The commencing salaries of clerks between 19 and 25 years of age are scaled according to experience and ability, and range from $250 to $500 per year in Eastern Canada, and if the clerk is sent to the west or to other especially expensive regions, an extra allowance of from $150 to $150 per year is made. In all these cases the bank pays the passage out, and the clerk agrees to serve two or three years.

Editorial Notes

Medals should be provided this year for the sweet girl graduates who cut out the standing on the threshold of life business.

An earnest effort is being made to find the author of the houn' dog song. If the search is successful many people will be glad to hear that he has been lynched.

If the Republicans put out two presidential tickets this year it will be the first time they ever permitted their eyes to stray from the main chance, at least so says a New Orleans paper.

As soon as the Hon. Ted makes the Hon. Bill "take the count" he will attend to the case of the California nature faker who discovered a fish that has eight legs and barks like a dog.

Champ Clark's decision to file his candidacy for a congressional seat for use in case he should fail to secure the presidential nomination shows that he is one of those old machine-broke politicians who plays safe at all stages of the game.

Dr. Lyman Abbott says the Hon. Ted Roosevelt drinks five or six glasses of milk at each meal. When the Hon. Bill Taft rubs the lumps on his classic brow he has a suspicion that it is tiger's milk.

Great care is taken that the Persian girl shall conform to the recognized standard of beauty, which requires her to have a cypress waist, a full moon face, gazelle eyes and eyebrows that meet, says a traveler. Her eyes, brows and hair must be black as night, her lips, cheeks and gums as red as blood, her skin and teeth as white as almonds and her back, [illegible] and fingers long. If these conditions are naturally absent, they are supplied, as far as possible, by art. Persian women are always painted, their eyes darkened with khol and their fingers stained with henna.

GRAND TRUNK RY. NOTES

Thursday, May 30, 1912

An automatic block signal system is being installed by the Grand Trunk Railway upon its main line between the points of Maynard and Grangers, Ind., a distance of some 50 miles, the contract for the work, which is to be completed by December 1st of this year, having been awarded to the Hall Signal Company. The type of signals to be used is the three positions, normal clear, the semaphore indications being in the upper right hand quadrant. All the signals are to be power operated. This type of installation is the latest approved practise of railroad signalling.

Where the G.T.R. is crossed by other railroads, interlocking plants are now in service, but many improvements are to be made to these which will become an integral part of the signal system. They will be equipped with power operated signals, route locking, calling-on arms, and tower indicators which will give an advance indication of the approach of trains. Switch boxes will be installed on all indicators of normal danger type are to be installed on all main line switches. The two short stretches of single track between Olivers and Studebacker and between Valparaiso and Sedley respectively, will be operated and controlled by manual system with track circuit.

Yesterday being Decoration Day in the United States the employees of the Grand Trunk shops at Battle Creek turned out in a body and placed flowers on the graves of former employees. Strong testimony as to the unusual character of the equipment of these shops which are among the best of the G.T.R. system, is found by the number of visitors who come from all parts of the country to inspect them. Quite recently a party made up of the teachers and pupils of the High School at Marshall, Mich., made the journey to Battle Creek and were shown over the plant by Mr. J. C. Garden, the Master Mechanic. Both teachers and pupils manifested the greatest possible interest in the shops and the methods employed in the work carried on there.

During the week His Royal Highness, the Duke of Connaught, Governor-General of Canada, visited Niagara Falls, London and Guelph, passing over the double track route of the Grand Trunk Railway System between the first two mentioned points. Mr. H. R. Charlton, of the Grand Trunk General Offices, accompanied the party on the Royal train and returned to Montreal yesterday morning. He left again last night to meet the party at Kingston and accompany them to Montreal, where they will arrive at the Bonaventure station this evening.

PUBEIC OPINION

care to let the public in to know just how matters stand. The local body in Toronto states officially that the scheme has not been at work long enough to know what it costs.

If one may take the report of three years ago by the Provincial Commission, it would seem that the investment of $3,225,000 in transmission plant calls for a yearly payment of interest and for an annual deposit of the credit of the sinking fund which added to the cost of operation and the correct estimate for depreciation makes the commission expend about $75 a year per horse power while the average income it receives is no more than $25 per horsepower annually and the last showing that has been made that looks authentic is to the effect that the commission is coming behind about $3,000,000 a year.

These figures are not asserted as beyond cavil, but no reply so far as the writer has found out, has been made to a showing of the pamphlet on the subject that has been widely circulated through the province and in addition to the pamphlet is the statement thus far without dispute, that the head of the Hydro Electric Commission, Mr. Adam Beck, has within a half year himself, installed a steam plant in one of his great factories!

Thanking you, Mr. Editor, I am,
Yours truly,
—J. E. Firman

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

WOMAN FIGHTS OFF BURGLAR

Mrs. Camp Cried for Help and Boarder Fired Twice at Intruder.

New Orleans, June 1.—The hands of a burglar about her neck, threatening to strangle her to death if she dared make any outcry, was the experience of Mrs. Elizabeth Camp, of 3743 St Bernard avenue, when she went into the kitchen of her home at 10 o'clock Monday night.

Mrs. Camp who is a powerful woman, when seen this morning, stated that she had little trouble in releasing the grip of the brute. She called to her son and Henry Ahsenmacher, a boarder, who came to her assistance, and the intruder fled. Mr. Ahsenmacher fired twice from a shotgun at the fleeing man, who succeeded in making his escape in the darkness. It is the opinion of Mr. Ahsenmacher that one of the loads of shot struck the man.

The Camp home, which is a raised cottage, the upper portion being occupied as sleeping apartments, while the under section is used as a kitchen and dining room, is located in a desolate section of the city.

"I went into the kitchen at 10 o'clock Monday night, after one of my children had returned from a nearby oyster saloon with an oyster loaf, for the purpose of securing a knife," said Mrs. Camp. "I was in the act of reaching for the knife when I felt the hands of a man around my neck. It did not frighten me for the moment, until the party whispered to me, saying he would strangle the life out of me if I made any outcry. I raised my hands to my neck and had no trouble in releasing myself from the brute. I stepped to the kitchen door and called to my son and Mr. Ahsenmacher, who immediately came to my assistance. The man then ran through the dining-room into the kitchen and made an exit through a window leading into a small alleyway in the rear of the house. Mr. Ahsenmacher fired one shot at him as he was running through the alley, and another as he was going over the back fence.

"It is a common occurrence for such instances as last night in this section of the city," declared Mrs. Camp. "Only two weeks ago a thief entered my home, and after securing but little valuables took the kitchen stove, which is an ordinary one from the kitchen and placed it in the back yard. Almost every week we are molested by thieves, but somehow they manage to escape.

It was learned Tuesday morning that Patrolman Gomez had fired a shot at a man who was in the vicinity, and who wore a mask, but who managed to escape.

The police are working on the case.

WINNIPEG BANK CLERK HAS SKULL FRACTURED

Winnipeg, Man. June 3.—William Galbraith, aged 24, a clerk in the Winnipeg main office of the Union Bank, was found last night about 12 o'clock on the floor of the residence of Mrs. E. C. Berry, 148 River ave., where he roomed in an unconscious condition. The apparently lifeless form was discovered by one of the lady roomers in the house. The woman, coming unexpectedly on the body, was greatly shocked and rushed to the room, where a man in the house was sleeping. He immediately telephoned for Dr. T. Beach, who on his arrival found that Galbraith had received a fracture on his skull which would prove fatal. The police were notified, an ambulance summoned and Galbraith was taken to St. Boniface hospital.

How Galbraith was injured is shrouded in mystery. From what can be learned from the people of the house, Galbraith met with foul play or had been run down by an automobile, the occupants of which took the above steps to escape detection. Another story is to the effect that Galbraith was taken home in an automobile by the chauffeur and another occupant. They took Galbraith from the machine into the hall of the house without informing the people within, leaving him there uncared for.

INSANE MAN RUNS SEVERAL BLOCKS WHILST QUITE NAKED

North Bay, Ont., June 3.—A premature blast on the C.N.R. line under construction near Verner Saturday, severely injured an Austrian laborer, who was brought to North Bay Hospital for treatment. The man suddenly went violently insane Sunday and terrorized the entire hospital staff. Leaving the building he ran several blocks in a nude state, and was brought back with great difficulty. Soon after he made another attempt to escape, but was captured and subdued at the door of the hospital by Dr. Brandon after a struggle.

It was necessary to menacle the man, who, although badly wounded from the blast, showed surprising strength and had to be kept under guard all night. Monday morning he escaped again and it required a posse to round him up and capture the wild man, who terrorized the neighborhood with his maniacal ravings, and roamed about without a stitch of clothing.

HUNDRED WITNESSES IN MURDER CASE

Shreveport, La., June 1. The Caddo grand jury is examining the case against Dr. C. M. Huckaby, of Vivian, a member of the Caddo school board, who is charged with the murder of Tom Morris, a barber, whom he shot to death at Vivian recently. About 100 witnesses are here, including relatives of Morris and Huckaby.

MOTOR LEAGUE AGITATES

76 miles of streets and it is difficult to cover them in repair work in a couple of months. The whole question, however, is in the Board of Works' hands, and will receive early attention.

Mr. A. E. Coulthard contended that there is not a railway crossing fit for a milk cart to travel over and asked if it was not possible to get the railway companies to give this matter attention.

His worship replied that Ald. Buller, chairman of the Board of Works would take this question up with the companies.

A Caterpillar Destroyer.

John Kamo, at this juncture, said he had a caterpillar destroyer which he could recommend as irresistably effective. He would like to demonstrate his process before representatives of the Council, with a view to its adoption by the city in its fight against the caterpillar plague.

This matter was referred to the Board of Works with power to act. Thursday night a systematic campaign against the caterpillar pest will be inaugurated.

Teamsters Will Get a Raise.

Robert Mitchell was spokesman for the city teamsters present in support of their request for a raise in wages to $4 a day.

Moved by Ald. Morgan seconded by Ald. Duffus,—That the city teamsters get a raise in wages from $3.65 a day to $4.00.

Moved by Ald. Gordon, seconded by Ald. Gillespie, in amendment, —That this matter be referred to the Board of Works with power to act. (The board will meet on Thursday night.)

This is the proper routine regarding such questions, as it gives the Aldermen apportunity to become conversant with the situation and thus vote intelligently.

The motion was here withdrawn, and the amendment carried. The teamsters present were assured that they need not attend the board's meeting on Thursday night, it being a foregone conclusion that their request will be granted.

The Princess Street Sidewalk.

Ald. Gordon moved, seconded by Ald. Duffus,—That the Board of Works report be amended by providing that the cement sidewalk on Princess street, south side, be only constructed from George street to Lock street. The report read from Park street to Lock street.

Ald. Gordon based his resolution on the ground that it would be manifestly unfair to certain property owners to lay a cement walk in front of a big vacant stretch of land to convenience a very few citizens.

The motion was lost and the clause carried as read.

Wanted Names Reversed.

Moved by Ald. Gordon, seconded by Ald. Duffus,—That the names in section 22 of the Board of Work's report be reversed to read that Mr. M. Neary be appointed foreman of the sewer construction and that should a second foreman be wanted, Mr. Wm. Ball receive the appointment.—Lost.

This means that Mr. M. Neary will take second place to Mr. Wm. Ball in regard to sewer construction.

In regard to the Committee of the Whole's report submitted by Ald. Morgan, Ald. Gordon suggested that the Finance Committee be empowered to ACT in, and not deal with the matter of paying for indigent patients received into the hospitals and thus avoid taking up much of the Council's time.

Ald. Anderson offered that the Finance Committee might formulate some policy in this connection for recommendation to the Committee of the Whole Council. The demands upon Council may be so frequent that it might be found advisable to appoint a special committee to deal with the demands as they arise, or an arrangement may be entered into with the hospitals for the acceptance of a lump sum to cover the maintenance of patients.

This matter here rested on the understanding that some concrete policy in regard to the foregoing will be adopted at an early date.

Other Committee's reports of business as before published in these columns were confirmed.

Conveyance to C.G.E.

A by-law authorizing the closing of that portion of Townsend street needed by the C.G.E. for extension purposes, and conveying same to the company, passed its several readings.

Infringement of Building By-law.

Ald. Buller reported that the city engineer had recommended that Thos. Rutherford be permitted to erect a frame brick veneered building across the creek on Hunter street, south side, for Mr. Isaacs. The structure will stand on steel girders.

Ald. Buller evidently is not in favor of the recommendation, and introduced the question for consideration in readiness for his committee's next meeting.

CITY FATHERS EARNEST

The Mayor: "It is three weeks since the C.P.R. inspector was here and arranged with us for the removal of this companies' cable poles."

Mr. Lytle, inspector of aerial and underground construction work was present, and offered that he had an agreement with the G.N.W. to remove their poles as soon as the city decides to street pave; he has also contracted with another company for similar work, but they say the Council is not going to do any paving this year. He wants an early understanding, otherwise he will have to leave town for other work.

Ald. Morgan did not see the object in paving Chambers street first; do the work on George street where it can be seen as a test for expansion in the street paving line.

His worship: "It's of no use paving George street until the poles are removed; the flow of water along the gutters would be impeded by the poles causing a blockage by debris thus gathered."

Ald. Gordon agreed with Ald. Morgan; the power company's franchise calls for their poles leaving the gutters free for a ready flow of water, and should be enforced.

Ald. Morgan: "Water would flow around the poles anyway."

Ald. Johnston: "How long are we to be figureheads, and cat-paws for these companies? Pave the streets and let them dig their poles out."

The Council here adjourned and went into Committee of the Whole on this subject. The press was barred, the inference being that important advices were to hand which it would be premature to make public.

J. R. Bass Puts in Claim of Self-Defence for Killing C. C. Sandford.

Vicksburg, Mass. June 1. Considerable interest is taken here in the result of the tragedy which C. C. Sandford, proprietor of the Dixie plantation, was the victim Monday, as a result of a quarrel between him and J. R. Bass, his bookkeeper at Valley Park, Issaquena county.

Sandford was shot off his horse by Bass, after he had first shot at the latter, according to the story told by Bass. After the shooting Bass gave himself up to Dr. J. B. Benton, the only magistrate at Valley Park. The remains of Mr. Sandford were taken to Rolling Fork, where the funeral took place today.

Both men visited here frequently, and are well known in this city. It is said that the dispute started over a freight shipment which was at Redwood, Sandford asking why it had not been gotten out. Bass said it was impossible to do so, because a barrel of lime had been broken and it was impossible to move it.

It is claimed that Sandford applied an epithet to Bass before firing. There were no eye witnesses. Sandford's body fell into eighteen inches of water when he was shot.

Sandford leaves two sisters, Mrs. C. M. Cockran, of Meridian and Mrs. H. C. Buchanan, of Rolling Fork and a brother, R. A. Sanford of Inverness.

WOMAN FIGHTS OFF BURGLAR

Mrs. Camp Cried for Help and Boarder Fired Twice at Intruder.

New Orleans, June 1.—The hands of a burglar about her neck, threatening to strangle her to death if she dared make any outcry, was the experience of Mrs. Elizabeth Camp, of 3743 St Bernard avenue, when she went into the kitchen of her home at 10 o'clock Monday night.

Mrs. Camp who is a powerful woman, when seen this morning, stated that she had little trouble in releasing the grip of the brute. She called to her son and Henry Ahsenmacher, a boarder, who came to her assistance, and the intruder fled. Mr. Ahsenmacher fired twice from a shotgun at the fleeing man, who succeeded in making his escape in the darkness. It is the opinion of Mr. Ahsenmacher that one of the loads of shot struck the man.

The Camp home, which is a raised cottage, the upper portion being occupied as sleeping apartments, while the under section is used as a kitchen and dining room, is located in a desolate section of the city.

"I went into the kitchen at 10 o'clock Monday night, after one of my children had returned from a nearby oyster saloon with an oyster loaf, for the purpose of securing a knife," said Mrs. Camp. "I was in the act of reaching for the knife when I felt the hands of a man around my neck. It did not frighten me for the moment, until the party whispered to me, saying he would strangle the life out of me i I made any outcry. I raised my hands to my neck and had no trouble in releasing myself from the brute I stepped to the kitchen door and called to my son and Mr. Ahsenmacher, who immediately came to my assistance. The man then ran through the dining-room into the kitchen and made an exit through a window leading into a small alleyway in the rear of the house. Mr. Ahsenmacher fired one shot at him as he was running through the alley, and another as he was going over the back fence.

"It is a common occurrence for such instances as last night in this section of the city," declared Mrs. Camp. "Only two weeks ago a thief entered my home, and after securing but little valuables took the kitchen stove, which is an ordinary one from the kitchen and placed it in the back yard Almost every week we are molested by thieves, but somehow they manage to escape.

It was learned Tuesday i morning that Patrolman Gomez had fired a shot at a man who was in the vicinity, and who wore a mask, but who managed to escape.

The police are working on the case.

WINNIPEG BANK CLERK HAS SKULL FRACTURED

Winnipeg, Man June 3.—William Galbraith, aged 24, a clerk in the Winnipeg main office of the Union Bank, was found last night about 12 o'clock on the floor of the residence of Mrs. E. C. Berry, 148 River ave., where he roomed, in an unconscious condition. The apparently lifeless form was discovered by one of the lady roomers in the house. The woman, coming unexpectedly on the body, was greatly shocked and rushed to the room, where a man in the house was sleeping. He immediately telephoned for Dr. T. Beach, who on his arrival found that Galbraith had received a fracture on his skull which would prove fatal. The police were notified, an ambulance summoned and Galbraith was taken to St. Boniface hospital.

How Galbraith was injured is shrouded in mystery. From what can be learned from the people of the house, Galbraith met with foul play or had been run down by an automobile, the occupants of which took the above steps to escape detection. Another story is to the effect that Galbraith was taken home in an automobile by the chauffeur and another occupant. They tool Galbraith from the machine into the hall of the house without informing the people within, leaving him there uncared for

Eorth Bay, Ont.1 June 3.—A premature blast on the C.N.R. line under construction near Verner Saturday, severely injured an Austrian laborer, who was brought to North Bay Hospital for treatment. The man suddenly went violently insane Sunday and terrorized the entire hospital staff. Leaving the building he ran several blocks in a nude state, and was brought back with great difficulty. Soon after he made another attempt to escape, but was captured and subdued at the door of the hospital by Dr. Brandon after a struggle.

It was necessary to menacle the man, who, although badly wounded from the blast, showed surprising strength and had to be kept under guard all night. Monday morning he escaped again and it required a posse to round him up and capture the wild man, who terrorized the neighborhood with his maniacal ravings, and roamed about without a stitch of clothing.

HUNDRED WITNESSES IN MURDER CASE

Shreveport, La., June 4.—The Caddo grand jury is examining the case against Dr. C. M. Huckaby, of Vivian, a member of the Caddo school board, who is charged with the murder of Tom Morris, a barber, whom he shot to death at Vivian recently. About 100 witnesses are here, including relatives of Morris and Huckaby.

76 miles of streets and it is difficult to cover them in repair work in a couple of months. The whole question, however, is in the Board of Works' hands, and will receive early attention.

Mr. A. E. Coulthard contended that there is not a railway crossing fit for a milk cart to travel over and asked if it was not possible to get the railway companies to give this matter attention.

His worship replied that Ald Buller, chairman of the Board of Works, would take this question up with the companies.

A Caterpillar Destroyer.

John Kamo, at this juncture, said he had a caterpillar destroyer which he could recommend as irresistably effective. He would like to demonstrate his process before representatives of the Council, with a view to its adoption by the city in its fight against the caterpillar plague.

This matter was referred to the Board of Works with power to act. Thursday night a systematic campaign against the caterpillar pest will be inaugurated.

Teamsters Will Get a Raise.

Robert Mitchell was spokesman for the city teamsters present in support of their request for a raise in wages to $4 a day.

Movedby Ald Morgan, seconded by Ald. Duffus,—That the city teamsters get a raise in wages from $3.65 a day to $4.00.

Moved by Ald. Gordon, seconded by Ald. Gillespie, in amendment, —That this matter be referred to the Board of Works with power to act." (The board will meet on Thursday night.)

This is the proper routine regarding such questions, as it gives the Aldermen apportunity to become conversant with the situation and thus vote intelligently.

The motion was here withdrawn, and the amendment carried. The teamsters present were assured that they need not attend the board's meeting on Thursday night, it being a foregone conclusion that their request will be granted.

The Princess Street Sidewalk.

Ald. Gordon moved, seconded by Ald. Duffus,—That the Board of Works report be amended by providing that the cement sidewalk on Princess street, south side, be only constructed from George street to Lock street. The report read from Park street to Lock street.

Ald. Gordon based his resolution on the ground that it would be manifestly unfair to certain property owners to lay a cement walk in front of a big vacant stretch of land to convenience a very few citizens.

The motion was lost and the clause carried as read.

Wanted Names Reversed.

Moved by Ald. Gordon seconded by Ald. Duffus,—That the names in section 22 of the Board of Work's report be reversed to read that Mr. M. Nearybe appointed foreman of the sewer construction and that should a second foreman be wanted, Mr. Wm. Ball receive the appointment.—Lost.

This means that Mr. M. Neary will take second place to Mr. Wm. Ball in regard to sewer construction.

In regard to the Committee of the Whole's report submitted by Ald. Morgan, Ald. Gordon suggested that the Finance Committee be empowered to ACT in, and not deal with the matter of paying for indigent patients received into the hospitals and thus avoid taking up much of the Council's time.

Ald. Anderson offered that the Finance Committee might formulate some policy in this connection for recommendation to the Committee of the Whole Council. The demands upon Council may be so frequent that it might be found advisable to appoint a special committee to deal with the demands as they arise, or an arrangement may be entered into with the hospitals for the acceptance of a lump sum to cover tae maintenance of patients.

This matter here rested on the understanding that some concrete policy in regard to the foregoing will be adopted at an early datef

Other Committee's reports of business as before published in these columns were confirmed

Conveyance to C.G.E.

A by-law authorizing the closing of that portion of Townsend street needed by the C.G.E. for extension purposes, and conveying same to the company, passed its several readings.

Infringement of Building By-law.

Ald Buller reported that the city engineer had recommended that Thos Rutherford be permitted to erect a frame brick veneered building across the creek on Hunter street, south side, for Mr Isaacs. The structure will stand on steel girders.

Ald. Buller evidently is not in favor of the recommendation, and introduced the question for consideration in readiness for his committee's next meeting.

The Mayor—"It is three weeks sinc the C.P.R. inspector was here and arranged with us for the removal of this companies' cable poles."

Mr Lytle, inspector of aerial and underground construction work was present, and offered that he had an agreement with the G.N.W. to remove their poles as soon as the city decides to street pave; he has also contracted with another company for similar work, but they say the Council is not going to do any paving this year. He wants an early understanding, otherwise he will have to leave town for other work.

Ald Morgan did not see the object in paving Chambers street first, do the work on George street where it can be seen as a test for expansion nthe street paving line.

His worship "It is of no use paving George street until the poles are removed; the flow of water along the gutters would be impeded by the poles causing a blockage by debris thus gathaered."

Ald. Gordon agreed with Ald. Morgan: the power company's franchise calls for their poles leaving the gutters free for a ready flow of water, and should be enforced

Ald. Morgan "Water would flow around the poles anyway."

Ald. Johnston—"How long are we to be figureheads, and cat-paws for these companies? Pave the streets and let them dig their poles out."

The Council here adjourned and went into Committee of the Whole on this subjectf The press was barred, the inference being that important advices were to hand which it would be premature to make public

J. R. Bass Puts in Claim of Self-Defence for Killing C. C. Sandford.

Vicksburg, Mass., June 1.—Considerable interest is taken here in the result of the tragedy which C. C. Sandford, proprietor of the Dixie plantation, was the victim Monday, as a result of a quarrel between him and J. R. Bass, his bookkeeper at Valley Park, Issaquena county.

Sandford was shot off his horse by Bass, after he had first shot at the latter, according to the story told by Bass. After the shooting Bass gave himself up to Dr. J. B Benton, the only magistrate at Valley Park. The remains of Mr. Sandford were taken to Rolling Fork, where the funeral took place to-day.

Both men visited here frequently, and are well known in this city. It is said that the dispute started over a freight shipment which was at Redwood. Sandford asking why it had not been gotten out. Bass said it was impossible to do so, because a barrel of lime had been broken and it was impossible to move it.

It is claimed that Sandford applied an epithet to Bass before firing. There were no eye witnesses. Sandford's body fell into eighteen inches of water when he was shot.

Sandford leaves two sisters, Mrs. C. M. Cockran, of Meridian and Mrs. H. C. Buchanan, of Rolling Park and a brother, R. A. Sanford of Inverness.

Missouri Horse Talk.

Speaker Champ Clark enjoys telling of an incident that occurred in a circuit court of Missouri during a "horse case" in which a horseman well known throughout the state for his expert knowledge was called as a witness.

"You saw this horse?" asked counsel for the defendant.

"Yes, sir, I"—

"What did you do?"

"I opened his mouth in order to ascertain how old he was, and I said to him, I said, 'Old fellow, I guess you're a good horse yet.'"

At this juncture opposing counsel leaped to his feet. "Your honor," he cried, "I object to the statement of any conversation between the witness and the horse when the plaintiff was not present."—Pittsburgh Chronicle.

Overdone.

The Attorney For the Defense—You see, your honor, my client is a foreigner who can't speak a word of English. He doesn't understand our laws. He didn't know it was wrong to carry a revolver.

"Two revolvers and a dirk," corrected the judge.

"Yes, and so, in view of his ignorance both of our customs and our language, I ask that he be discharged."

"Can't do it," said his honor, "but I'll let him off with a fine of $2."

The Ignorant One (across the table to his lawyer and jerking his thumb toward the judge)—I'll get him some dark night for that!—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

In Wildest India.

Lord Hindlip, who is one of Britain's richest peers, has compressed a good deal of adventure into the thirty-four years which he completed recently. He has traveled pretty nearly all over the world, made some notable sporting tours in Abyssinia and the White Nile country, has done exploration work in Central Africa, and has been after big game in some of the wildest jungles of India.

While Lord Brassey was Governor of Victoria, Australia, he acted as his aide-de-camp and took part in the South African war, during which he was present at the relief of Mafeking. Lady Hindlip was Miss Agatha Thynne, a kinswoman of Lord Bath, and since her marriage she has inherited a very large fortune from the late Mr. Charles Ellis. Lady Hindlip has won much praise as an amateur actress, and, like her husband, she is devoted to big game hunting. She is said to be the only lady in society who has shot a giraffe.—Ideas.

A Remarkable Fish Story.

Delivering an address at the Surveyors' Institution in London recently, Mr. Julian C. Rogers quoted the following from Kilburne's topography of Kent, published in 1667, a copy of which was in the library:

"A monstrous fish shot himself ashore (in Thanet), where from want of water he died, as fish sometimes do under such circumstances. His roaring was heard above a mile. His length was 22 yards, his nether jaw opening 12 feet. One of his eyes was more than a cart with six horses could draw, his tongue was 15 feet, and his liver two cart-loads.

Dickens and Miss Weller.

Dickens himself was once embarrassed by one of his names. This was when he was presented to a Miss Weller, whose beauty and talent delighted him. He described to a friend his mixed feelings at finding the name he had made grotesque borne by so gracious a lady. He afterwards introduced a friend, and a marriage followed in time. On the morning after that first meeting Dickens sent to this unforeseen kind of Weller some verses in which he protested his regret that he could not hope to change her name for he was married and "Pickwick" was published.

Carborundum In Furnaces.

Carborundum, the artificial substitute for emery, which is said to rival the diamond in hardness, is employed because of its extraordinary resistance to heat as a coating for the interior of furnaces. Finely powdered and made into a paste, it is applied with a brush, like paint, to the brick lining. It is said that a layer of only two millimeters in thickness will protect the bricks from the effects of the highest temperature that is produced in ordinary furnace combustion.

Carborundum is itself a product of the electric furnace, being composed of silica and carbon fused in the presence of salt and sawdust.

OLD RUSSIAN PROVERB.

Born of One of the Most Tragic Episodes in Muscovite History.

The Russian peasant has a saying which invariably puzzles the foreigner, "Too polite and die like Bekovitch."

The proverb refers to one of the most tragic episodes in Muscovite history.

In the early spring of 1717 Prince Bekovitch Cherseki led an armed expedition consisting of 4,000 infantry and 2,000 cavalry into the then almost unknown interior of south central Asia.

His ostensible object was to open up commercial relations with the khans of Khiva and Bokhara, his real one to see if it were possible to invade India from the north.

The prince, with whom were many officers of the imperial bodyguard, a brilliant company, marched his men across the arid steppes with difficulty and on Aug. 15 halted some eighty miles from the city of Khiva.

The Khivans, ignoring his professions of friendship, attacked in force, but were easily defeated by the better armed and better disciplined soldiers of the czar.

Their khan thereupon resorted to diplomacy. He visited the Russian camp in state, explained that the attack delivered by his people was all a mistake and invited Prince Bekovitch and his principal officers to visit his capital as his guests.

Two days later, at a grand entertainment, the khan toasted his "friends the Russians" and vowed eternal friendship. He also took the opportunity of requesting Prince Bekovitch to divide his army into small detachments for entertainment in the surrounding villages, regretting the inability of his capital to entertain so many guests.

The Russian commander politely agreed to the politely preferred request, the Russian force was broken up, and the khan laughed sardonically.

His turn had come. Early next day he killed Bekovitch and forwarded his head as a gift to the khan of Bokhara. Then he annihilated the Russian army.

Coined In Bedlam.

The phrase "to sham Abraham" was coined in Bedlam, or Bethlehem hospital, where there was at one time an Abraham ward, the inmates of which upon certain days were permitted to go out as licensed beggars on behalf of the hospital. These mendicant lunatics were known as "Abraham men," and their success in invoking the pity of the charitable was such that they had many unlicensed imitators, who, when discovered, were said "to have shammed Abraham."

Distance.

"The railroad business is pretty complicated."

"Yes," replied the traveling man. "I don't suppose I ever will be able to understand why two towns that look so close together on a railway map get so far apart when they come to measure up the distance with a mileage book."

Earliest Germ of Vitality.

The microscopic dot or earliest germ of vitality is the marvel of science today. Everything that lives, whether the giant oak or the monster animal, has each to begin its individual growth from this microscopic dot, which actually contains all the past story of the living growth and every part in miniature of its future frame.

The Bride's Pie.

The "wedding cake" of today was formerly called the "bride pie" and in some regions was regarded as so essential an adjunct to the marriage celebration that there was no prospect of happiness without it. It was always circular in shape, covered with a strong crust and garnished with sweetmeats. It was the proper thing for the bridegroom to wait on the bride in serving the cake; hence the term "bridegroom."

HE WAS A BIG MAN.

Editor Pays Eloquent Tribute to the Late Judge Mabee.

The first and dominant impression made by Judge Mabee, as presiding officer and directing genius of the Railway Commission was one of power. A man of magnificent physique, with a keen intellect and a faculty for epigrammatic expression, he was master of his court, and of every question and situation which came before it. Patient and considerate with the untried lawyer or the litigant without counsel, he was merciless in tearing to pieces any sophistical argument presented to him by counsel learned in the law. Lacking something perhaps of the patient industry and talent for analysis which distinguished his predecessor, the late Judge Killam, he brought to the work of the commission much of the spirit which animated the latter during his brief service and supplemented this with a boldness and originality peculiarly his own. He thoroughly grasped the underlying purpose of the railway act, namely, the establishment of a sympathetic tribunal to adjudicate the grievances of the plain people and the municipalities against the great public utility corporations.

While Judge Mabee, on the bench, brushed aside technicalities and stood in little awe of precedents, he was laborious and exact in all his investigations and many of his written opinions will long remain as monuments to his industry. His great faculty, however, was his immediate instinctive sense of right and justice. He was to some extent handicapped by the failure of Parliament to establish standards and principles for the guidance of the commission and was often compelled to limit his judgments by the somewhat arbitrary rates and classifications so elaborately built up by the railways of this continent and sanctioned by the United States Interstate Commerce Commission, a body also handicapped by the timidity of the national legislature. On the other hand, in certain cases, notably in the case of the Toronto viaduct, he entered decrees, knowing them to the ultra vires of the Railway Act, being confident that Parliament would ratify the same by curative legislation.

One of his last decisions was that rendered at Ottawa on April 16, which placed upon the railway companies the onus of justifying higher freight rates in the west than those prevailing in the east of Canada.

He last sat in the commission at the hearings in Toronto on April 29. He presided with his usual force and ability, holding counsel well in hand and expediting the business before him. One matter which came up was an application from a citizen in Locust Hill, who had several complaints to make about the railway company.

"This man," said an official, "has written about twenty letters making all sorts of complaints."

"Oh well," said the chairman smilingly, "he is evidently an Irishman and he is entitled to write all the letters he wants to."

It will be hard to replace Judge Mabee. When Judge Killam died many felt that the Government had a hard task before it in choosing his successor, but the Laurier Government measured up to the task superbly when it selected the late chairman.

There will be no division of sentiment throughout the country. He was a big man in every sense of the word, brave, able, and public-spirited. He adorned the bench and shed lustre upon the Railway Commission.—The Toronto World.

An Interesting Cemetery.

How many people know, asks The Standard of Empire, that in St. Paul's Cemetery, Halifax, is one of the most interesting graves in the continent of America? For there lies buried the remains of the man who captured Washington, the capital of the Federal Government of the United States.

Here is the inscription:—

Here
on the 21st Sept., 1814, was consigned
to the earth the body of
MAJOR-GEN ROSS,

who, having distinguished himself in all ranks as an officer in Egypt, Italy, Portugal, Spain, and America, was killed at the commencement of an action which resulted in the defeat and flight of the troops of the United States near Baltimore on the 12th September, 1814.

A gallant army under his conduct attacked and dispersed the Americans at Bladensburg, on the 24th August, 1814, and on the same day victoriously entered Washington, the capital of the United States.

G. P. G.'s Experience.

Even before the Hon. George P. Graham was known throughout Canada as a great after-dinner speaker, he showed his wit and resourcefulness. When the Hon. George (it was plain "George" then) was married, he found himself in the embarrassing position of being called upon for a speech without being prepared.

He was perplexed, but not dismayed, for his ready wit did not desert him. He said that he could not express himself better on this occasion than he did at the old Methodist experience meeting, when he said: "It is good to be here."—Star Weekly.

Our Hatcheries.

Hatching fish by artificial means to stock the waters of Canada is engaged in on a large scale by the Dominion Government. In 1909 the Dominion fish hatcheries planted no fewer than 1,024,282,000 fry in various waters throughout the country. In 1900 only 271,996,000 fry were planted by the Government fish hatcheries. The number of hatcheries has increased from 12 to 37. Of the 37 hatcheries now in operation, British Columbia and Quebec have eight each, Nova Scotia, New Brunswick and Ontario five each, and Manitoba and Prince Edward Island each have three.

ARE WATCHING TICKS.

British Columbia Insect Is Under Careful Expert Scrutiny.

In reference to the reported statement of J. W. Cockle of Kaslo, B.C., to the effect that the woodticks which abound in British Columbia carry germs which cause spinal meningitis and beri-beri, and that the bite of these insects is sometimes fatal, which statement has caused considerable alarm in British Columbia, Dr. C. Gordon Hewitt, Dominion entomologist, states:

"While I do not know what statement Mr. Cockle made, I can most emphatically state that the woodticks have not been shown to have any relation to either spinal meningitis or the tropical disease of beri-beri. The real facts are as follows: For some time the division of entomology has been investigating the distribution and habits of the Rocky Mountain spotted fever tick. Mr. Cockle has kindly sent, at my request, specimens of woodticks which I have identified as this species. Specimens of the same species have also been sent to me from other districts in British Columbia.

"This tick has been shown to be the carrier of the organism or germ which causes the disease known as Rocky Mountain spotted fever, prevalent in certain regions of Montana and Idaho, from 5 to 70 per cent. of the cases proving fatal, according to the locality.

"So far as I have been able to discover, no certain case of this disease has been reported in Canada, but the possibility of its introduction or discovery at any time made it desirable that the distribution and habits of this germ-bearing tick should be investigated, and such an investigation is now being carried on.

"I am anxious to have reports from any medical men of cases of diseases which they suspect of being traceable to the bites of ticks, and also specimens of woodticks, under which term several species are included."

Uncle Dan's Big Feet.

One of the prominent figures in the Canadian Senate is the Hon. Daniel Derbyshire, who stands over six feet and is broad in proportion. He has a buoyant manner and his interruptions when a member of the House of Commons and in committee created a great deal of mirth. Sir Wilfrid christened him "Uncle Dan," and the name stuck. As "Uncle Dan" he was introduced to Lord Roberts at the Tercentenary at Quebec, and Sir Wilfrid could not repress a smile when he saw Uncle Dan, with his six feet six, and Bobs, the diminutive hero of Kandahar and Pretoria, walking together.

Everyone acquainted with "Uncle Dan" knows that he is celebrated for his glad hand, cheery smile, large heart, and his big "understanding." Relating to this last, a good story is told of his earlier days. He was visiting cheese factories at Lyn, and meeting in with a friend, the latter accompanied him to the station. They reached the depot before the train was due, and filled in the time walking up and down oblivious to the curious glances of two Americans on the platform.

This tale relates to the days when boots were made with extension or grass edges, and Mr Derbyshire, who has a large foot, wore a pair of these, which were apparently size nineteen.

As soon as Mr Derbyshire left the station, the Americans approached the friend and inquired if the big gentleman lived across the St. Lawrence. "No," he answered. "Why?" They replied that they were sure he lived across the river, and that he had on a pair of scows to ferry him across.—Star Weekly.

Bachelor Parsons.

The young unmarried minister is the most carefully watched bachelor of them all. He has to guard his every move, or some one will start a story that he has at last fallen in love, or is engaged to marry some girl or other. He is also the victim of his friends' practical jokes, and sometimes he is his own victim. Last Sunday morning Rev W A Cameron of Bloor Street Baptist Church was responsible for a laugh on himself when he announced hymn No. 44 in the Baptist hymnal, and began to read it to the congregation. He got as far as the middle of the third verse, when he suddenly stopped, his face went crimson, and with more than usual vehemence he again announced "Hymn 44," while the whole audience smiled. The verse at which he balked reads thus:

"For the protected gift of life,
For reason; for home's sheltering bower,
For the strong love of child and wife,
We praise Thy power."

Parliamentary Wits.

There are some promising recruits to the select circle of humorists on both sides of the House of Commons. B. R. Hepburn, of Picton, who redeemed the county of Prince Edward for the Conservatives, came within an ace of breaking up the solemn proceedings attending the summoning of the Commons to the Senate Chamber for prorogation recently. Major Chambers, he of the Black Rod, knee breeches, silk stockings, and exquisite bows, had performed his duty in resonant English and faultless French, and Col. Harry Smith, with his gold chain of office, clanking sword, and glittering medals, swung the heavy mace to his shoulder. Hepburn was watching the time-honored ceremony with the curiosity of a new member, and just as the Sergeant-at-Arms shouldered the emblem of authority, he yelled out "Carried." Even Dr. Sproule—in a few moments to face royalty as the representative of the free and equal Commoners—could not refrain from smiling.—Saturday Night.

The Lost.

When a fellow has discovered that all his loose change has filtered through a hole in his trousers pocket it is nearly impossible to get him to accept the scientific proposition that nothing is ever lost.

"That was an annoying coincidence," said Mr. Biggins. "It took great tact to manage it."

PERFECT BOY CONDEMNED.

Usually Most Tiresome Youngsters Get Best Marks, Says Educator.

James L. Hughes, chief inspector of the Board of Education of Toronto, is a champion of the plain, everyday little boy who may, or may not, be known as a neighborhood nuisance, but who, at any rate, does not make any pretense of winning school prizes for good conduct or correct lessons.

"It is usually the deadest fellows who get the best marks," says Dr. Hughes. "The one who sat still and never did any harm got all the prizes. He was the model child, according to the stories. The one who had vigor, originality, and executive ability used to be looked upon in horror.

"Lots of times we say boys don't like to work, when, in reality, they don't like the kind of work we pick out for them to do. I would think any boy a piece of putty if he stood around to see what I had for him to do next. You've got to let the boy pick out his work. He's got to have some responsibility.

"One of the greatest modern tendencies is to develop power. We have establish parks and playgrounds to keep up the physical power of children. We have medical officers in the school to keep them healthy. We have open air schools for the subnormal. We are beginning to realize that book knowledge is not the chief function of our schools.

"That boys naturally take the right view of things is shown by their reverence for law. They may dispute whether or not a runner reached first base before the ball, but if it is a matter of rules, and some one has the latest rule book, they will follow unfalteringly what that rule book calls for."

Dr. Hughes thinks no child should be taught to read until 9 years old.

A Champion Hen.

Canadian chickens will have to take off their hats to the hens at the Ontario Agricultural College. That these classy fowls have got the whole wide world beaten in the matter of egg production is revealed in the report of the Minister of Agriculture for the year ending Oct. 31, 1911.

"It is a well-known fact," says the report, "that 200 eggs in a year from one hen is a splendid record and one seldom attained. Yet of 53 barred rock pullets of the bred-to-lay type 13, or nearly 25 per cent., surpassed this high mark. The top record was 282, the showing of the first half dozen being 282, 265, 252, 243, an average of 250.5 eggs in a year."

This record, it is understood, has not been surpassed anywhere on the continent, or, for that matter, in the world. For the whole 53 pullets the average for the year was 174, a total of 9,224 eggs.

"An experiment was carried on with a view to a comparison between 23 bred-to-lay pullets and 23 exhibition pullets. The bred-to-lay pullets laid 1,032 eggs more than the exhibition variety and at the same time consumed appreciably less food.

"Tests as to cost of feeding were made with 341 pullets. The final figures showed the average cost per dozen in the winter months to be 20.76 cents, in the summer 9 cents, an average of 12.48 for the 11 months. The average cost of feeding each hen in winter was 11.76 cents, in summer 10.03 cents, making an average of 10.90 for the 11 months."

Shops Named After Him.

The C.P.R., in accordance with its well-known plan of naming its new car shops after the veterans in its service, has struck a happy thought in designating its newest plant in the west Ogden. Since the spot which bears that name will, undoubtedly, prove one of those western centres where expansion is by no means slow, Vice-President Ogden, after whom it has been named, also has ground for self-satisfaction.

Vice-President I. G. Ogden is one of the old guard of the C.P.R., being a veteran of 31 years in the company's service. A New Yorker by birth, belonging to a family of financiers, his forefathers having been bankers, Mr. Ogden has spent the larger portion of his busy life in the finance departments of railways. In 1871 he became paymaster and accountant of the Chicago and Pacific Railway, and five years later was auditor of that company. The high reputation he gained with the Chicago and Pacific Railway attracted attention towards him, and at the birth of the Canadian Pacific Railway Co., in 1881, he was selected to take charge of the finances of the western division of the road, with headquarters at Winnipeg. Two years excellent work in the west was followed by his promotion to the position of chief auditor of the entire system, the higher title of controller being bestowed upon him in 1887. Other honors quickly followed, and in 1901 he was made vice-president of the company, with the finances of the large corporation particularly under his charge.

Indians Go to Hague.

Under the treaty of peace in 179 between the British and the United States Governments, the interests of the Cayuga Indians were marked for special protection. Two-thirds of this tribe left New York State when hostilities began in 1812 and threw in their lot with the British. Up to that time, under the treaty mentioned, the whole tribe had been receiving $2,300 a year from the United States authorities. The amount since they removed to Canada has never been paid, and as the result of much agitation, the matter will now go before the pecuniary claims convention in connection with The Hague Tribunal. Sir Charles Fitzpatrick will present the case.

The claim is for the whole amount with interest from 1812 to date and for continued future payment of $2,300 each year. The demand for the full amount is by reason of the fact that the third of the tribe who remained across the border have since become absorbed. The land given up by the tribe to Uncle Sam is now exceedingly valuable.

No Changes.

"Why don't you work up some improvements in this department?" demanded the proprietor.

"Well, sir, the work has always been done this way. Could I have an increase of salary?"

"Why should you? This job has always drawn $6 a week."

She Had Retired.

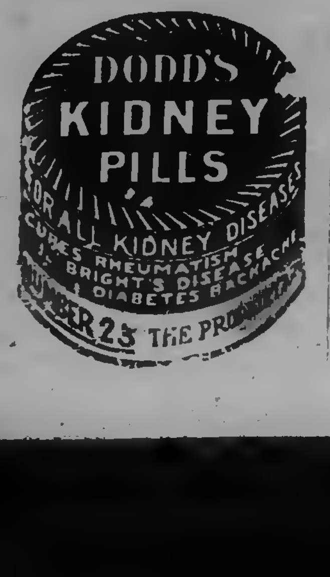
Good Work Given by Mr. Gliddon

The musical public of Peterborough is greatly indebted to Mr. Rupert Gliddon for the splendid services he has given during the past, more than a week, as leader of the Conservatory orchestra and a bandmaster of the 57th Regiment during the fine entertainments given at the Peterborough Summer Fair.



You Can't Cure Catarrh by Swallowing Drugs

Cough Syrup, Tablets and Sprays Sicken the Stomach But Don't Reach the Germs of Catarrh—Hence Their Failure to Help.

To cure an ailment in the throat or chest, to rout out Catarrh or Asthma, it is essential that the medicine be conveyed direct to the affected parts. This is why no other remedy has achieved such world-wide success as Catarrhozone, which alone can be breathed in one second to every air cell in the breathing organs. The healing vapors of Catarrhozone mix with the breath and descend through the throat, down the bronchial tubes, to the deepest air cells in the lungs—all parts are saturated with the rich, piney essences that ease, heal and cure.

Catarrhozone has entirely displaced the old-fashioned remedies, such as cough syrups, sprays, tablets, and sedative powders. It contains none of the opium, chloral and drowsy narcotics so commonly found in liquid cough and catarrhal remedies.

Couldn't Breathe—Catarrhozone Cured

"No one ever contracted a more obstinate attack of nasal catarrh than I suffered a month ago," writes Mr. G. E. Root, a well known resident of Bridgetown, W.I. "My head ached terrifically, I sneezed about every three minutes, but still my nostrils were entirely closed and I couldn't breathe through them. Ten minutes inhaling Catarrhozone gave me a little relief, so I continued to use Catarrhozone every hour, and before the day was out I had improved. Catarrhozone quickly cured me. I am well ever since."

There is no remedy so certain and safe as Catarrhozone, but being a good remedy it is imitated. Beware of the substitutor. Large Catarrhozone lasts two months, price $1.00; smaller sizes 25c and 50c. All reliable dealers or the Catarrhozone Co., Buffalo, N. Y., and Kingston, Canada.

Conditions As Bad Here.

The Toronto Star of last night, for its leading article has a big double-headed column introduction, reading, "The Man Who Owns the Home in Toronto, Pays the Paper." The editor that got out that startling article about Hogtown, should come down here and get acquainted.

Reduced Marriage Statistics.

Race suicide and matrimony on the decline are shown by the last months city report, as compared with that of the similar month of the preceding year, as follows:

	1911	1912
Births	45	31
Marriages	19	18
Deaths	20	42

How About Coal Prices?

A somewhat significant fact is that Port Hope coal dealers advertise receipt of fuel supplies of fresh mined coal. Now we in Peterborough do not kick if the coal has been mined yesterday or a year ago, before Cesar's birthday. What we would like here is the same prices paid for similar coal in Port Hope.

Social Evening at Knox Church.

The young members and friends of Knox church held a social evening in the assembly hall last night. Rev. Mr. Stewart, of Toronto, formerly of Hespeler, was present and gave an address to the young people. He is well and favorably known in Knox church. An attractive programme was rendered, and refreshments were served at the close.

Canal Not Affected by Auburn.

Mr. J. H. McClellan, Superintendent of the Trent Canal, when asked yesterday morning if the washout at Auburn dam, as described in Monday's issue, would have any effect on the canal or on navigation, laughed and replied "No, that dam is not in the course of the Canal, and if the whole thing went it would not affect the conservation of the Canal waters."

Teddy's Teeth Discounted.

Our Peterborough readers are used to seeing Teddy Roosevelt, particularly in Democratic papers, depicted with a set of teeth like old fashioned tombstones. In an American paper of last week is a picture of Ralph Craig the Michigan sprinter, just as he crossed the line. Teddy's molars and bicuspids fade from memory. Craig's jaws resemble what a close view of the lift lock would look like to a near sighted man.

Aged Man's Narrow Escape

An aged resident of the Township of Hope had a narrow escape a few nights ago. It seems that last spring one of the bridges over a stream between the 3rd and 4th concession of the Township was washed away and has not been replaced. Recently an aged resident of the township was returning home, and in the darkness drove over the road, and when coming to the creek the horse made a plunge and landed in the mud and water. The driver managed to reach the shore, but the horse was only extracted from the icy waters after many hours' hard work.

Mr. Attwood Leaves Soon.

Mr. Attwood, of the Novelti Co., Water street, leaves in three weeks for Grand Forks, to join his brother in the management of an imense nursery plantation. British Columbia and others parts of Western Canada are now beginning to raise large quantities of excellent fruit. It is to be expected that Mr. Attwood will make as big a success, and put as much snap, vim, vigor and brains that put so many travellers on the road for novel-ties. Whilst Mr. Attwood, as noted in the Times before, has been negotiating for the disposal of his interesrs in the Novel-ti Co., final arrangements may take a day or two yet. The Times wishes him every success in his new Western Home and business.

Jack Canuck Hates Peterborough.

Jack Canuck, an otherwise bright Canadian paper, printed in Toronto, seems to take a delight in digging into this city. In its last issue, under the caption "Provincial News," John Canuck says: "This city is ruled by a gang of females. Post office is dirty. Notices undecipherable." We will only deal with John Canuck's first charge. What village, hamlet, town or city exists but is ruled by women. God bless them! May they go on in their good work. Still John Canuck in his little petty crack in using the word "gang," continued by a criticism of Peterborough's post office, which is known here to be absolutely untrue, seems to lower his paper to expressing spite, because he does not sell enough papers here. Wake up, John Canuck. If you are going to express the sentiments of true Canadians, such petty tactics will hurt your paper.

OBITUARY

Mrs. Edward Flaherty.

The funeral of an old and highly respected resident will take place this afternoon, when the last mortal remains of Mrs. Edward Flaherty will be laid to rest. The late Mrs. Flaherty, who was born in Ennismore, some seventy-two years ago, passed away on Sunday, at 2.30 from the family residence, 115 Smith street. Mrs. Flaherty, who has not been in robust health for some time, took a turn for the worse on Thursday, which culminated in death. She is survived by her sorrowing husband four sons, James of Chicago; Jeremiah, of Chicago, Michael of Minneapolis and Edward, living at home. Two daughters, the Misses Minnie at home, and Winnie of Toronto. Mrs. Flaherty also leaves one surviving sister, Mrs. Thomas Flood, of Ennismore. The deceased was widely known and generally respected. She took great and active in the Sodality of St. Peter's and other church work. The funeral will take place this afternoon from the family residence, 115 Smith street to St. Peter's Cathedral and thence to the Roman Catholic cemetery for interment. All the surviving mourners, as noted above have arrived in the city to attend the obsequies.

CALEDONIA PARK
TORONTO.

$14 to $25 Per Foot

Nothing better in a subdivision is being offered at the present time than CALEDONIA PARK.

Situated in the north-west section, where wonderful development is taking place, with a street car line nearing completion, stores and churches in the vicinity, and the new CALEDONIA SCHOOL on Innes Avenue, facing our property.

We are extremely modest in our statement, when we say that the prices we are offering these lots at TO-DAY should be doubled in 12 MONTHS.

A gentleman was telling us of the big mistake he made in not buying in the Canada Foundry section a few years ago. Everybody knows what advances have taken place there, and when looking down over the Canada Foundry section from the splendid elevation at "CALEDONIA PARK," one can figure out a great future for investment in our property. Already our sales total $60,000.00, and good purchases have been made by out-of-town clients.

NOTE the location: Close to the St. Clair car line, just west of Lansdowne.

NOTICE

Owing to the continuous rain the water is very high in the river between Lakefield and Hastings, in fact, all over the whole watershed of the Trent Waterway. In order to keep the water at a reasonable height in Little Lake it has been necessary to take all the stop-logs out at the Peterborough Locks dam, and it is now very dangerous for people to attempt to go down over the Peterborough locks with canoes, gasoline launches or other small boats at the present time. The side current is so strong there that it would be almost impossible for any small boat to keep the channel without being drawn into the dam. Owing to the danger at these locks, gasoline launches, or other small craft will not be locked through until further notice.

MR. SHANKEL IS FOUND

Body of Respected Citizen Who Was Accidentally Drowned, Recovered

The body of Wilmot Shankel, of Stouffville, who disappeared three days ago, was found on Friday in Boyer's Pond near that village by a search party who had gone out to look for traces of the missing man. No signs of violence were found on the body, and it was quite evident that he had been drowned. His financial affairs were in good shape and his home life ideal. He was a prominent Mason and Orangeman, as well as a village councillor, and was respected throughout the countryside. It is believed that he committed suicide, probably when in a temporary aberration.

FOR SALLOW, WRINKLED, FRECKLED, PIMPLED SKIN.

(From the Woman's Home Journal.)

If you have any cutaneous blemish don't use paint, powder, or anything else to cover it up. Too often this only emphasizes the defect. Besides, its much easier to remove the disfigurement with ordinary mercolized wax. Applied nightly, the wax will gradually remove freckles, pimples, blackheads, moth-patches, sallowness red or yellow blotches, or any surface eruptions. The affected cuticle is absorbed, a little each day, until the clear, soft, youthful and beautiful skin beneath is brought wholly to view. Ask the druggist for an ounce of mercolized wax, and use this like you use cold cream. Remove in morning with soap and water. Many who have tried this simple and harmless treatment report astonishing results.

If bothered with wrinkles, sagging cheeks or double chin, a wash lotion made by dissolving an ounce of saxolite in a half-pint witch hazel will prove effectual.

AUTO RECORDS BEATEN AT INDIANAPOLIS

Speedway, Indianapolis, June 3.—Beating down world records with every mile, Ralph Depalma, driving a Mercedes car, led the field by a lap at the end of the first 150 miles of the 500-mile race at the Indianapolis speedway. His time for the distance was 1.49.02, as against the record of 1.57.15 set by Bruce-Brown in a Fiat last year.

Under the eyes of 75,000 people watching eagerly the 2½ mile course, the twenty-one cars that remained in the race at the 150-mile mark ground out the laps with clock-like regularity, Joe Dawson in a National was second to Depalma with Tetzlaff in a Fiat a close third. The field followed in a long string.

At daylight began the exodus from the city to Speedway Park, by train, trolley and touring car, and the sun found the grand stands on the outer edge and the parking spaces in the inner circuit of the brick oval beginning to fill with the enormous crowd that was to see famous drivers and cars battle for the honor and fortune of enjoying with Ray Haroun and the Marmon "Wasp" the classic title of winners of the greatest race of modern motordom.

DUTCHESS OF CONNAUGHT HAS ATTACK OF APPENDICITIS

But Her Highness Is Not at Present Seriously Ill---Special Train Was Rushed With Surgical Expert as a Precaution--Duke Is Keeping Engagements.

Quebec, June 4.—H.R.H. the Duke of Connaught and his household staff leave for Montreal this afternoon by special train, and all the Royal party's engagements in Quebec have been cancelled. His Royal Highness is accompanying the Duchess, and will remain in Montreal pending her recovery at the Royal Victoria Hospital.

The Duchess was first taken slightly ill yesterday morning, and towards evening became worse, and a slight fever set in which alarmed the Duke, who immediately decided to wire Dr. Garrow of Montreal to come to Quebec by special train, which was accordingly done. Dr. Garrow remained constantly with her Royal Highness after his arrival at 3 o'clock this morning and before noon advised the removal of his Royal patient to Montreal where he could have her under continual observation.

Reports at First Belittled.

Quebec, June 4.—Her Royal Highness the Duchess of Connaught, whose husband is King George's uncle, is ill with appendicitis. The attack is not acute, but as a precaution, a special train carrying Dr. Garrow, a surgical expert, was rushed here in record time during the night. When the surgeon arrived her Royal Highness was so much easier that she had gone to sleep.

The following bulletin was given out this morning by Lt.-Col. Lowther, military secretary to H.R.H. the Duke of Connaught:

"Her Royal Highness, the Duchess of Connaught is suffering from a mild attack of catarrhal appendicitis. Dr. Garrow was called in consultation and it has been decided to move her Royal Highness to the Royal Victoria Hospital, Montreal, today, for observation. (Signed) Lt.-Col. Lowther, Military Secretary, the Citadel, Quebec, 4th June, 1912."

The official statement is supposed to mean that the Duchess is likely to undergo an operation.

The Duchess is staying at the Citadel with the Duke and Princess Patricia. The report that she had appendicitis or was seriously unwell was at first denied, even now, in keeping with the custom of British Royalty, her illness is being belittled. It is said the Duchess is much relieved and possibly may be up later in the day, while the official plans for the Royal visitors will be practically unchanged. The Duke and Princess Patricia visited Laval University this morning, and the honorary degree of LL.D. was conferred on the Governor-General.

Dr. Garrow visited the Duchess this morning.

WOMAN HELD FOR ATTEMPT AT ARSON

Found in Vicinity of Fire Were Kerosene Used With Oil Soaked Clothes.

New Orleans, La., June 3.—Corporal Arthur L. Hattier and Patrolman Francis Bourgeois, attached to the Twelfth Precinct, stand suspended from the force, and Elizabeth Rollings, a negress of 2240 Eighth street is charged in the Criminal District Court in an information filed Thursday by District Attorney Adams with arson. This is the sequel of an attempt at Arson on the premises, 2309-11 First street, occupied jointly by Joseph King and John Walters, both negroes, at 2:30 o'clock Thursday morning.

That the attempt at Arson was not successful was due to the fact that Walters was awakened in time. At about 2:30 o'clock while in bed, his attention was attracted by the striking of a match in the front portion of his house, apparently on his gallery. He got up and looking through the blinds saw the front steps had been saturated with oil and were on fire. He extinguished the fire. Walters notified Patrolman Bourgeois on whose beat the fire occurred, and also Corporal Hattier. Neither of the officials made a report to their station. This became known to Inspector of Police Reynolds and the suspension of the two men followed.

The Rollings woman, who formerly lived in the home of Walters, was seen in the vicinity shortly after the fire was discovered and was acting in a suspicious manner. Walters and King, who occupied the house, took charge of the woman and brought her to the Twelfth Precinct Station. The woman's clothing was found to be wet from oil.

Many Great Features

Coming With Howe's Great London Circus.

The shake-ups to the nerves, the rag-time beat of your heart, the fear that someone will be hurt, with the accompanying apprehension that they may not, all of this—and this is the delight of the Great London Circus, to be here Thursday, June 6, must be given by the professionals who shake dice for their lives with fortune every performance.

The Great London Circus is high hygiene. It is a Yankee Doodle circus for Yankee Doodle kids from "six" to "sixty." One of the big acts is the Zanfretta Family. What this wonderful family do looks easy. Suppose you try it, and newspapers will write a story about it, with a diagram showing the place where your body struck.

Another of the best ever acts is the leaping contest. Fifty leapers take part. Charles Lumkin is the champion and does a double somersault over elephants, camels and horses. Marie McPhail, Riding Walletts and many other big acts are presented in many new riding stunts.

You will see the Ben Hur herd of Arabian stallions and the Black Hussar horses perform. They prove what a perfect world this would be if all men had as much intelligence as horses. You will see elephants waltz, teeter, play hide and see, and undress and go to bed like people. You will see dog shows and mule shows and countless clowns. The Howe circus is a great show, presenting magnificent good old barbarous sport that makes you happy in feeling that civilization has not eliminated all the traits your grand-dads of the stone age left you as a message. The $35,000 Dublin Gray Horses are also coming, and they are a show in themselves.

NEW TIME IN ORILLIA

Clocks Will be Moved Forward an Hour on June 22—Town Council Takes Necessary Steps.

Orillia, Ont., June 4.—At its regular meeting last evening the Town Council unanimously passed a resolution instructing the Mayor to issue a proclamation calling upon the citizens to put their clocks forward an hour for the summer months in accordance with "Orillia Times." The resolution was moved by Alderman A. B. Thomson and seconded by Reeve Church, as follows:

"That in accordance with the request of the Board of Trade and with a view to affording an additional hour of daylight in the evenings during the summer, His Worship, the Mayor, be requested to issue a proclamation calling upon the local citizens of Orillia to put forward their time pieces one hour before retiring on the night of Saturday, June 22, the local time thus established to govern in Orillia until the 31st of August proximo.

"That between the dates mentioned the town bell be rung at the usual hours, in accordance with "Orillia time" and that those in control of other bells and whistles within the corporation be requested to have them rung or blown by "Orillia time."

"His Worship the Mayor be requested to take in conjunction with the president of the Board of Trade such other steps as they may deem desirable to make the proposed change as widely known as possible and to obviate inconvenience in connection therewith."

GERMAN DIRIGIBLE MAKES LONG TRIP

Hamburg, Germany, Cune 1.— The new military airship, Zeppelin III arrived here at 9.36 o'clock this morning, having covered the course from Friedrichshaven to Hamburg, approximately 450 miles, in ten hours and 25 minutes. Count Zeppelin piloted the dirigible on its maiden voyage, which is over Basel, Frankfort-on-the Main, Goettingen, and Bremen. Making an average speed of about 43 miles an hour, the airship easily exceeded the requirements of her specifications, which called for a speed of 30 miles an hour. It had been generally expected, however, that she would equal or exceed the record of "Zeppelin II," the only other Zeppelin dirigible now in military service, and which has accomplished a speed of 48 miles.

A third military airship of the Zeppelin type has been ordered by the Government.

WHAT LOCAL HYDRO ELECTRIC POWER COSTS

By request, we publish again in part, the letter received from Hon. Adam Beck, re Peterborough's Hydro-Electric power deal. Our enquirers wanted to know particulars as to prices, taxation, etc., who had mislaid The Times of Tuesday. The communication reads practically as follows:

In compliance with the request of the City of Peterborough for an estimate of the amount of money necessary to enable the Council to submit a by-law to the ratepayers securing authority to issue debentures to acquire the system of the Peterborough Light and Power Company and change the present street lighting system to a series of Tungsten lamp system, it is estimated by the engineers of the Commission that this, with extensions, will cost $56,000, and to install an underground system in the business section of the city, with ornamental street lighting system, $30,000, or a total of $86,000. I may say that a large amount of the money necessary for the underground system could be covered by a local improvement tax on the district affected.

I regret that we have been unable to give you the estimates at an earlier date, appreciating the necessity of your requiring information, owing to the fact that you purpose doing some permanent paving and require to decide regarding the placing of the conduits underground in time to proceed with the work during the present season.

A. BECK.

The discussion of the Hydro-Electric question was held by the Council in committee behind closed doors.

STREET LOAFERS

(Editor Morning Times)

Sir.—Coming down on the train from Lindsay on Saturday night I happened to get hold of a copy of the Evening Post of that city. In this I read an article that might well be copied by the press of Peterborough. Such conditions as the Post complains of are only too prevalent here. The article said, in part,

"The worst habit that boys can fall into is that of loafing around on the streets at night. It is then they cast their lot in slippery places where at any moment they are likely to fall from grace. The boys who spend their evenings in the sacred precincts of home, with good books for their companions, are the future hope of the nation; they will fight our legislative and congretional halls and sit in judgment upon men and measures while the boys who run the streets will fill our penitentiaries almshouses and lunatic asylumns. Parents who are responsible for these broken laws of decency will have broken hearts and bowed heads in the awakening years that will inevitably follow.

"Lindsay has altogether too many street loafers."

I think, however, Mr. Editor, that the Post's article does not go far enough, or reach the root of the evil, excellent as it was. There are not only boy loafers ,but, whisper it "sub rosa" there are female loafers on our streets by night. I do not mean to insinuate that the female element of the street loafers is wrong, bad, immoral or even imprudent as far as their lights go. The fault is with the parents. Whilst father and mother are gossiping with neighbors, at the theatre, moving picture shows parties, bridge parties, or even spending the evenings in true Darby and Joan fashion at home, their daughters are parading up and down George street by the hour. It is needless to say the risk of insult, if not worse, they are thus exposed to. Still these little 15 to 19 or 20 year old girls are out "for fun," innocent fun They are only following the careless custom of a careless generation. In my firm belief, should insult or even harm come to these innocent little street loafers, who would be to blame? In 99 per cent of such possible cases, the fault and blame would rest with over indulgent and careless parents.

—Onlooker.

PAVING CHAMBERS STREET.

(Editor Morning Times)

Sir.—I saw a local contemporary of yours, in its issue of last Saturday, referred to Chambers street. This is not a nice or a kind way to refer to any central street of the city. At the same time are not both the evening papers located pretty close to that same Chambers street? Could not the paper referred to, long ago, have tried to have conditions improved, instead of waiting until Chambers street is going to be paved to call names? Still, Mr. Editor, I quite agree with the Council in deciding to pave that thoroughfare. Then merchants and residents will not dump ashes and garbage outside their respective places.

—Chambers Street Resident.

REV. MR. JOHNSTON WANTS DENIAL MADE UNDER OATH

Toronto, June 4. Rev. C. O. Johnston will not disclose the names of the married couple whose case he cited in Queen street Methodist church on Sunday until the authorities of St. Michael's Hospital give a definite denial, and are willing to back up their oath, to his charges of religious interference with Protestant patients there.

"The Hospital authorities are evading the issue. They are not meeting it fairly," said Mr. Johnston. "Let them come out fair and square and say that no such thing happened at the hospital. Let them put me to the proof of my statements.

"The man I mentioned is a hard-working, industrious fellow, and he and his wife do not wish to be disturbed or get any publicity until it is absolutely necessary for them to appear in the matter. Until there is a straight denial of my statements, a denial that can be made on oath, I am not inclined to disturb them.

"In the meantime the object I aimed at has been accomplished—the attention of the public has been drawn to St. Michael's Hospital."

WHAT THE HOSPITAL SAYS.

At the Hospital, the Mother Superior said:

"I do not want to enter into newspaper controversy with Mr. Johnston. We are not seeking publicity. We are trying to be more useful than we can be in talking for publication. At the same time I might say that 70 per cent of our patients are Protestants"

The Mother Superior takes the position that a blanket denial of any such statement cannot be given because it is impossible to know all that happens in such a large institution. She limits her denial by the phrase "to my knowledge," and today added to this, "to the knowlenge of any of us."

PETERBOROUGH COUNTY LOST HER CHANCES

It is now claimed that the deal, made by the late Laurier Government, practically selling the power at Perry's Creek, Burleigh Falls, at ten cents a month, as first noted in The Times, means the loss of a sum sufficientto pay off the entire debt of the County of Peterborough. There is another phase of this deal. There is no doubt, but what those selling so important a water power, a power that will soon be turning wheels in factories, many miles from the rock-bound streams of Burleigh, did not dispose of it just for fun or entirely for their health. As a deceased resident of this city, but formerly well known here, remarked, a few months ago, "There's the biggest graft that this part of Canada has ever seen." Of course, without corroboration evidence, we cannot say anything as to graft. We can only say there was time for a change.

SHOT SCHOOL GIRL WHO JILTED HIM

San Francisco Murderer Was Caught After a Short but Swift Chase.

San Francisco, June 4.—Bernice Lillian Godair, a 15-year-old high school student, was shot and killed on the front porch of her home here last night by Charles H. Bonner, 19 years old. Bonner was captured after a chase of four blocks by a policeman.

Miss Godair had just returned hom in company with her aunt and an escort when she was called to the door by Bonner.

"You turned me down, and I'm going to kill you," he cried, and then fired. The deed was witnessed by the aunt, Mrs. Mary Breaux, and Samuel Houghton.

Bonner tried out his revolver in a park near the girl's home before the tragedy, shooting three times at the target.

In his cell at the city prison, Bonner declined to discuss the shooting further than to say he had been jilted by his victim.

ENRAGED BY ELECTIONS, MOBS ATTACK JESUIT CONVENTS

Belgium Threatened by Revolutionary Mobs--Victory of Clericals at the Polls Leads to Serious Rioting ---Gendarmes Charge Crowds.

Brussels, Belgium, June 4.—The post-election riots in Belgium have taken on a revolutionary character. Following last night's troubles at Liege and other places the Socialist Central Committee declared to-day that it would proclaim a general strike to-morrow.

In addition to the troubles at Liege and Verviers, where gendarmes fired upon a crowd, killing or wounding over fifty persons, among whom were two children, there were less serious rioting yesterday and last night at Bruges capital of the Province of West Flanders, Tournai, capital of an arrondisement in the department of Hainaut, Ghent capital of Louvain, fifteen miles northeast of Brussels, at Antwerp, and in this city.

A number of Jesuit convents and Catholic institutions were attacked by mobs, and the windows of the buildings smashed. The gendarmes charged the rioters with broadswords.

ENQUIRING INTO CONDUCT OF WOMEN TITANIC SURVIVORS

London, June 4.—J. Bruce Ismay's appearance before the Titanic Court upon reassembling to-day was, purposely or not, so little known that few of the general public were present. The Government's knowledge that he would be called was shown by the presence of Mr. Lloyd-George and daughter and Mrs. Asquith.

Before hearing Mr. Ismay, the court listened to fresh evidence upon the question of the chivalry of the surviving women passengers. The Countess of Rothes, it seems, has been much concerned by the statement that she objected to the boat going back to pick up survivors. Alfred Crawford, a first-class bedroom steward, in his evidence to-day, said his boat had 35 passengers, all women. There was room for 20 more four men were at the oars and the Countess of Rothes steered. Answering Mr. Lewis, barrister for the British Seafarers' Union, the witness said the suggestion was made that, as they could not reach the lights towards which Captain Smith told them to steer, they should return to the Titanic. The men agreed, but the ladies objected, saying, "Why not obey the captain's orders?"

Lord Mersey reading from the statement of the seaman named Jones, which was put in by Mr. Lewis, asked the witness if it were true that most of the ladies objected to going back, and the witness agreed that it was so. The Attorney-General, interposing, said it might be necessary to go more fully into this matter as it did not agree with the statement made by Lady Rothes, and she was much concerned about it. The witness added that he did not hear Lady Rothes object to going back. Cries were heard when the Titanic Sunk, but they were a long way off.

An American Ship with British Flag.

Mr. Ismay's entrance into the witness box made a great stir of interest. He admitted the Titanic was in substance an American ship, which flew the British flag, because having been built in this country it could not fly the American flag. The American trust controlled five British and two American companies. He had no interest in Harland and Wolff who built the ship. No limit was placed on the cost of the Titanic. He admitted that Captain Smith handed him on Sunday before lunch a marconigram from the Baltic reporting ice. Captain Smith said nothing while he, Ismay, glanced at it casually and put it in his pocket.

Lord Mersey sharply reprimanded Ismay when he hesitated in answering questions about reports that the Titanic did not slacken speed after receiving wireless ice warnings from three other vessels. Ismay finally declared heatedly that it was not to be expected that Captain Smith should slow down after receiving the warnings, saying that "any captain was justified in running at full speed through the ice field when his lookout could see far enough ahead to clear the ice."

Lord Mersey Told Ismay to Answer.

Ismay insisted that he had nothing to do with the navigation of the ship, but Sir Rufus Isaacs continued to press him regarding the speed of the Titanic, and the warnings of ice in her path which were received. The witness' answers were not always clear, which led Lord Mersey to remark sharply: "Answer the questions."

The Attorney-General also complained that the witness was not Frank. The Attorney for the White Star line protested that Sir Rufus' remark to this effect was uncalled for. Ismay said that he had not attached importance to the captain's action in handing him the message from the steamer Baltic regarding the ice, and that he had not any conversation with respect to the message.

"Why did the captain hand it to you?" asked the Attorney-General.

"For my information," was the reply.

Examined as to speed with a view to show that he had something to do with it, Ismay persisted that he had spoken to no one about the speed after his conversation with the chief engineer of Queenstown. He admitted that the vessel had not been slowed down after the warnings of ice had been received, and said that he had not expected the captain to slow down so long as there was nothing to prevent the men seeing the ice.

Sir Rufus: "What was the use of going at full speed through the ice at night?"

Mr. Ismay: "I suppose they wanted to get out of the ice. They would not want to wait and take a chance of fog coming down. They were justified on a clear night in going through as quickly as possible and even might have increased the speed to get out of the ice field."

Bishop Makes Onslaught Upon Catholic Liberalism

Montreal, June 3.—Catholic Liberalism, political and social radicalism in general and certain political tendencies in Canada are all severely condemned in a circular letter to his clergy by Bishop Archambault, Jolliette. He says in part:

"The ideas of Catholic Liberalism were comprised in the political program of a political party in this country a good while since, or, at least it was the program of many leading members of that party, yet, thanks to the breadth of view possessed by its leaders later on, these dangerous doctrines were put aside."

Still, he adds, many Catholics without realizing it are influenced by those principles. His Lordship scores the pleasure-seeking school. The Catholic mentality, he says, is not so strong as twenty years ago.

His Lordship says that "Catholic Liberalism bows before the church, salutes her not only as a religion, but a veritable society organized hierarchically; yet at the same time it seeks to take away one by one every right properly belonging to a free and independent society. While Catholic Liberalism declares that a perfect entente should exist between Church and State, it exaggerates the rights of the State to such an extent as to wish the Church placed under her absolute domination. Catholic Liberalism rends in two the conscience of the citizens, which, as a matter of fact, is one."

PINE TAR CORDIAL

NUGENT'S SARSAPARILLA—PRICE FOR large bottle, 100 full doses, 85c, and well worth it, too. It's better to take a medicine at all than to depend upon cheap concoctions that are compounded to sell at a low price and a big profit just because there is a large demand for certain remedies at certain seasons of the year. There are so-called Sarsaparillas offered to us to sell to our customers at 75c a bottle that would bring us a larger profit than Nugent's Sarsaparilla sold at 85c. Nugent's Sarsaparilla purifies the blood, arouses the torpid liver, drives out all impurities, cleanses and tones up the system, and helps Nature throw off the dullness that comes from the indoor life of winter. It arouses energy, brightens the eye, clears the brain, gives lightness to the movements. Nugent's Sarsaparilla is not the only thing you will find in this drug store. We make a specialty of Nugent's Remedies. Nugent Drug Co., 386 George St. directly opposite Creaman's store.

GO TO FLORIDA FOR HEALTH AND wealth.—The question is asked me repeatedly: Why, if all that is claimed for the climate and earning capacity of the land in Florida is true, how is it that only a percentage of the State's area is under cultivation? It is a fair question, and the answer is a simple one. After the war between the North and the South Florida found herself in a deplorable condition financially. The State Government leased hundreds of thousands of acres of its best prairie and timber lands for periods running as high as 66 years. This latter period tied up the great Kissimmee Prairie until recently. It is now, however, in the hands of a splendid colonization company, whose selling agent is the Hunter Land Company. Kissimmee Prairie is in the Southern portion of Osceola County, and is suited for its fertility and uniformity of soil. It is the healthiest spot in North America, and every day in the year is a growing day. Write for maps, illustrated literature, excursion particulars and any desired information. Address Alf. Law, [illegible], Manager, 45 Cecil street, Toronto. D-6 in J4

TESTED THE ANTS.

Experiments That Seem to Prove the Insects Have Memory.

Experiments are continually being made to test the memory of animals, such as the elephant, the dog, the bull, but it would seem a thankless undertaking to ascertain whether the ant has a memory. Nevertheless a scientist in South America thinks he has succeeded.

Isolating two of the largest specimens of tropical ants he could find, he so arranged their receptacle that they could get no food without climbing over a circular slant into another compartment. Over this slant when the food was not there he placed a crimson cord, and the ants very soon learned to interpret the signal and never attempted to climb over it.

Thinking after a time that there might be something in the color that repelled them automatically, as the bull is affected unpleasantly by red, he replaced the red cord by cords of varying colors, always with the same result after the ants had made a few excursions over the slant and come back hungry. Then he tried plain cloth and even paper, but the result was invariably the same. After a number of trials the ants refused to climb the slant when there was any sort of "signal."

Finally the scientist reversed the signal, having food beyond the slant only when it was visible, and after an infinite number of trials the ants accommodated themselves to the change.—Harper's Weekly.

LABOUCHERE'S COPY.

After It Was Finished He Lost All Interest in Its Fate.

It was a matter of absolute indifference to Labouchere what became of anything he wrote after he had written it. When he had corrected the proof or if he was away from England when he sent his copy to the post he took no further interest in it whatever.

Before I had discovered this trait in his character I used to write and apologize for cutting, perhaps six columns down to two, or sometimes offer an excuse for not using any of it at all. At last he wrote to me: "You need not sentimentalize about my stuff. I send it to you to do what you like with."

But one felt a lingering compunction long afterward about consigning the fruits of so much labor to the waste paper basket, and, after all, Labouchere was the proprietor of the paper. Once or twice, therefore, I have excused myself for "not sentimentalizing" about some article that he had sent.

One such occasion he writes: "Dear ——: I am the only person, I believe, on the press who does not care in the least whether his lucubrations do or do not appear in print. It has always appeared to me that the making of an art (article) requires two persons, one to write it, the other to cut it down, and generally to cut out what the first man most admires."—London Truth.

Wanted His Money Back.

A young man had taken his wife to a show, and as there was no one to look after the baby they had brought it along. It cried lustily all through the first act. At the close of the act an usher came down the aisle and informed them that if they could not keep the baby quiet they would have to go to the box office, get their money back and go out.

They succeeded in squelching the baby, and all went well for a time.

Then, five minutes after the last act had commenced, the young father leaned over and said, "How do you like the show?"

"Rotten!" was the reply.

He was silent for a moment, and then, leaning over again, he whispered: "Stick a pin in the baby."—Everybody's.

Carnegie's First Library.

When Andrew Carnegie was a mere lad in the employ of the Pennsylvania railroad he with the other boys of the old First ward, Allegheny, Pa., now the north side, Pittsburgh, had for many years the use of the private library of a Major Anderson. Mr. Carnegie, while speaking at the installation of his libraries, often said that much of his success was due to the influence of the books obtained in this library and that when he became wealthy the building of the Allegheny free library was one of his first acts.—New York Sun.

Their Difference.

"The baby likes to play with my hair."

"But you don't trust him with it when you are out, do you?" inquired her caller.

"No; why you do it."—Chicago Tribune.

"Told her it was just the thing a plain woman needed."—Judge.

"Did you find the play to be as artistic as it had been reported to be?"

"Yes. It was about the dullest three hours I ever lived through."—Chicago Record-Herald.

TO DETECT ICEBERGS.

Prof. Barnes of McGill Has Invented a Device.

In the realms of experimental physics Canada has produced some great men. On it, to [illegible] is bequeathed by other brilliant [illegible] have come and gone like birds of passage—men who, coming to Canada practically unknown, have found here the inspiration and the means which have laid firm and solid the foundations of great careers.

Just now the attention of the world of experimental physics is focused upon one who is essentially Canadian in upbringing, in tradition, in education, and also in the particular direction in which his genius is manifesting itself.

This man is Prof. Howard T. Barnes, D.Sc., F.R.S.C., the Director of the Physical Laboratories and the Macdonald Professor of Physics at McGill University.

Canada knows something about ice, and it seems peculiarly fitting that it should have produced a man who is now the greatest authority on ice that the world possesses. That, I think I can say, is the title that is generally conceded by the greatest scientific authorities to Prof. Barnes.

During the past few years Prof. Barnes has been devoting the best energies of his mind to experiments the express object of which has been to make impossible such a disaster at sea as that which occurred to the Titanic. He now has in his laboratory, as the concrete result of those experiments, an instrument, which he declares, and which his brother-scientists believe, should for all time prevent a repetition of such an accident.

This instrument he calls a microthermometer. It is, in fact, a thermometer of superlative sensitiveness, which, he declares, will infallibly detect an iceberg at a distance of not less than two miles on the windward side of it and seven miles on the leeward side.

Prof. Barnes' device is an adaptation of the electrical resistance thermometer—so sensitive that it will record a variation of one-thousandth of a degree. This thermometer is designed to be permanently attached to the ship under the water, and by means of wires leading from it to the chart room to make a continuous record in the chart room of the water temperature. So striking is this record that, whereas on an ordinary thermometer a single degree is usually represented by only one-eighth of an inch, the new thermometer represents a single degree by an interval of two feet.

He is still a young man, under 40 years of age, and thus not so very far removed from his student days. A glance at his face is sufficient to reveal him to the observant as a thinker. His dark eyes have in them that "inwardness," that steady, confident look which comes, not of arrogant self-assertion, but of the quiet strength of the intellectual power.

The instrument has already been tried with absolute success on the Government steamers in the Gulf of St. Lawrence. Prof. Barnes is now going to try it on a transatlantic trip. The steamship Royal George, outward bound from Montreal on May 1, was equipped with two of these thermometers, and Prof. Barnes directed its use, as he sailed on the ship to England to lecture, by invitation, on this very subject before that famous body of scientists, the Royal Institution.—Toronto Globe.

Expect Record Year.

The Canadian Pacific Railway are prophesying that this will be Canada's biggest year for immigration; 22,000 immigrants will arrive in Canada from Europe during one week. Of these 16,000 will be handled by the C.P.R.

"I should not be surprised this year to see immigration into Canada exceed 400,000," said a C.P.R. passenger agent who has just returned from the west.

"The C.P.R. returns, as well as those of other lines, show that the arrivals of newcomers from the United States for the past four months is between 75 and 80 per cent. in excess of the corresponding period of last year. There is also a big movement from the British Isles.

"To this may be added the fact that the western provinces were never before in such good condition for planting, and as a result an enormous increase in the acreage under cultivation is expected."

Carrots Four Feet Long.

Some remarkable giant vegetables were exhibited at the Horticultural Hall, London, Eng., a short time ago. There is keen competition for the championship in the art of vegetable-growing between the Duke of Portland and Mr. Vicary Gibbs, and at the exhibition referred to it was generally agreed that the Duke of Portland's exhibit has never been equalled. He showed some carrots four feet long, and as smooth and regular in taper as if they had been cast. Among other vegetables he also showed a number of beans 12 inches long.

Bavarian Burials.

Hearses or funeral cars are not used in Bavaria. The dead must be removed from the houses within twenty-four hours after death, the bodies being conveyed to the "dead house," with which every cemetery is provided. The removal is in charge of municipal officers, and by very plain casket wagons, which are owned by the municipalities. Private concerns have no interest in funeral arrangements every detail being under the control and direction of duly authorized municipal officials.

The Women of Carthage.

There is a grand old story told about the supreme devotion displayed by the women of Carthage. When their city was besieged by the Romans ropes were needed; but, as there was no flax to make them in the city, the women, headed by their heroic queen, came to the rescue. They one and all cut off their glorious tresses and made ropes of their hair.

Gone.

The tightwad went to the pastor. "Mr. Brown," he said, "through a blunder I dropped a $5 gold piece in the plate instead of a nickel."

"Ah, yes," said the pastor briskly, "a benevolent blunder. But I assure you it will count with us just as much in your favor as if you really meant it."

And he hurried away.

WM. J. BALDWIN, ESQ., Mayor of the Town of Aurora.
W. PERCY GILLESPIE, ESQ., W. Percy Gillespie & Co., Investment Brokers, Toronto, Ont.

In offering these shares for investment, we feel that we are inviting the public to purchase stock in an industry in which the profits are very large, and the demand for the product is ever increasing.

It is a well known fact that the shares of our Canadian Tanneries are very closely held, and the public seldom have an opportunity of procuring any.

On March 11th, 1912, the Burgesses of the Town of Aurora voted in favor of granting The Collis Leather Company, Limited, a cash bonus of Ten Thousand Dollars, the Company's property is exempt from Taxation for Ten Years (except school tax) and it has also been granted water from the Town free for all time.

The factory is now under construction, to be completed on or before the 1st Day of July, 1912, and will be 150 feet long by 50 feet wide, and four storys high.

The Company's specialty will be the manufacture of calf leather.

Mr. Walter Collis has had over Thirty Years' experience as a tanner, and thoroughly understands all departments of the business. Mr. Collis will have direct charge of the Tannery.

The capacity of the factory will be Eighteen Hundred calfskins per day, or an average of Eighteen Thousand Feet per day. A most conservative estimate of the net profit is one-half cents per foot.

Estimated Net Profits:

18,000 ft. per day, one-half cent per foot, $90.00, with 300 working days per year ...	$27,000.00
Less business insurance and depreciation per year ...	7,000.00
Or approximately 20 per cent on entire issued capital.	$20,000.00

The Company has purchased from Mr. Collis all his Tanning formula, and will issue in payment thereof One Hundred shares of fully paid up stock.

Of the total amount of shares offered for sale, the Directors have subscribed for more than one-third.

The terms are 25 per cent on application, 25 per cent in Thirty, 25 per cent in Sixty, and 25 per cent in Ninety days.

We reserve the right to allot only such applications, and for such amounts as may be approved the application lists may be closed without notice.

RUINED WORDS

A well-bred word occasionally goes astray, and thereafter loses its place in good philological society. This holiday recalls, as an example of that, the word "confederacy." For the first seventy years of this republic, "confederacy" was a synonym for it of frequent application. It was descriptive of the bond by which these states were united. But Mr. Jefferson Davis of Mississippi ruined the word, and it is doubtful if any publicist or text-book writer since Appomattox day has employed "confederacy" to describe our old republic.

The campaign now nearing a close has ruined another good old word. That is "progressive." Mr. Roosevelt's unctuous phrase at Columbus, "We progressives," betokening his desire to attach himself to the coat-tails of the newcomer from the west who had assumed that name — without authority of the probate court, has left an unfavorable connotation to the thing. Of course, every earnest and right-minded citizen is at heart progressive, but the attempt to copyright the word by a group of Republican insurrectos has made careful speakers and writers henceforth extremely cautious as to the term.

The original name of this western faction of the Republican party was "insurgent." Through several congressional fights they carried their banners under that designation, borrowed afresh from Cuba and the Philippines. But the western men, becoming too large for it, made a foray against the dictionary, carrying progressive away as their trophy. And it has gone.

A PEACE CENTENNIAL

Representative citizens of the Dominion have been invited to assemble in Ottawa to discuss plans for Canada's participation in the proposed celebration of the centennial of peace between Great Britain and the United States. It is likely that the gathering in the capital will result in the formation of a national body to co-operate with the British and United States committees. Aside from the Dominion's proximity to the big republic, the people of the Dominion have another interest in the project in the fact that Earl Grey, the Duke of Connaught's predecessor as Governor-General, is one of the most active of the promoters of the celebration, and is president of the English committee. The call for to-day's meeting in Ottawa was issued by Sir Louis Jette, Sir Alexander Lacoste, Sir William McKenzie, Sir W. R. Meredith, Sir William Mulock, Sir Thomas Shaughnessy, Sir Edmund Walker and Senators Cox and Bandman. This committee of nine is in active charge of Canada's preparations for the centennial.

Christmas eve of 1914 will be the actual centenary of the signing of the Treaty of Ghent, which brought to a close the war of 1812. Discussion of projects for observing the anniversary of this most importance peace pact was commenced several years ago, the pioneers in the movement being Col. Theodore Roosevelt, Andrew Carnegie, MacKenzie King of Canada, and the officials and members of peace societies of the United States and Great Britain. About three years ago Mr. King was a speaker at the commencement exercises at Harvard, and in his address urged that steps be taken toward appropriately observing the centennial. In 1910 a committee was formed in the United States under the name of "the National Committee for the Celebration of the 100th Anniversary of Peace Among English Speaking Peoples." Both President Taft and Col. Roosevelt, in the United States, and Earl Grey and Sir Wilfrid Laurier in Canada, gave vigorous support to the project, and Premier Borden has since joined heartily in the plans, as have several members of his cabinet. France, Germany, Holland, Norway, Austria, Italy and Sweden have been invited to take part in the observance but little Belgium will be honored above other Continental countries by reason of the fact that it was in Ghent, Belgium, that the treaty was concluded. "The cultivation of world-wide good will" is declared to be the keynote of the movement, but exactly what form the celebration will take is yet to be decided. Numerous are the ideas as to what would constitute a proper observance. Among the suggestions are these:

That for an agreed upon five minutes all industries and activities cease throughout the English speaking world that peace monuments be erected along the border between the United States and Canada, or in leading cities in the two countries; that the celebration be held in connection with the Panama Canal Exposition in San Francisco; an imposing merchant marine parade through the Great Lakes; identical monuments in London, Washington and Ottawa, and various other plans.

Editorial Notes

The Standard Oil octopus seems to have learned a trick or two from the cuttlefish.

The camels are still wearing their coats double-breasted in the back, and the poor kangaroo is this time really on his last legs.

To-day is one of the great national holidays of Denmark—the anniversary of the sanction of a new constitution by the king in 1849—but the observance will be tinged with sadness, owing to the recent death of Frederick VIII

Fifty years ago was a very dark hour in American civil war history. No one who lived through it, perceiving the perilous state of the Union, can have any doubt of the huge debt which the country to-day owes its defenders.

The death of Wilbur Wright has caused profound sorrow throughout France, where he was everywhere popular. The newspapers contain long eulogistic sketches recounting his first flights in France at the beginning of 1908. They generally agree that France's supremacy in aviation is due to the fact that the Wrights showed the way.

Boston wants schools to teach newspaper men to write. The Herald of that city says the prime concern is the base. And so long as newspaper men are more than breakfast table entertainers, so long as they try both to interpret the day's news as history in the making and to help the community see and solve its graver problems, special schools for their training can hardly be too thorough in method or too broad in outlook.

Forty-nine years ago to-day the three protecting Powers — England, France and Russia signed at London a protocol sanctioning the offer of the Greek crown to the present King, George I., who, if he lives until next year, will celebrate the semi-centennial of his reign over the Hellenes. King George is a brother of the late King Frederick of Denmark, and of Dowager Queen Alexandra of Great Britain and the Dowager Empress of Russia.

All Spaniards who can afford it go to the seaside in the summer time. Here the great feature is the bathing. A large wooden building is erected at some distance from the shore, inside of which the law demands that all the women must bathe, no men being allowed anywhere in the vicinity. During the bathing hours music is played in the inclosure, and refreshments are served on the premises. Of course, swimming is out of the question and drowning accidents unknown.

Careful Burglar Visited Police Inspecthr's Home

Toronto, June 3. That there is at least one burglar in the city who does not mind flying in the face of the police, and robbing the house of a police inspector while he sleeps, was shown early on Sunday morning, when some uninvited guests climbed through the pantry window of Inspector John Mulhall's house, at 14 Havelock street, ransacked the lower flat, unlocked the kitchen door and took the same French leave without troubling to awaken the inspector and give him any clues on which to trace them. There were clues left behind, but they consisted only of a few footprints in the soil below the window and a few scratches up the side of the brick wall. The prints indicated that the size of the shoe worn was about nines, and the only finger prints are on the sixteen dollar roll of bills which he didn't leave behind.

A Careful Burglar.

The burglar appeared to be one of very careful and methodical habits. He had reached up and removed the screen from the pantry window, picked various jars and receptacles from the sill, moved them over to the ledge of the next neighbor's fence, and then crawled through. None of this wakened any of the occupants of the house, of whom there were three, in addition to the police official. The inspector's door was closed, and the burglar did not venture above the lower flat. Perhaps he realized whose house he was in and so moved very quietly, but before he left he had broken into a desk, opened a fountain pen case, and stole sixteen dollars and some small change from Mrs. Mulhall's chatelaine, which was just inside the desk. On his way down the kitchen steps, the milk bottle looked so tempting that he tore off the lid, drank half the contents, and sauntered on his way across the street. Evidently it was money only that the burglar was after, as he had opened all the drawers of the buffet, looked over quite an array of silver knives, forks and other dishes, but didn't touch any of them. Had he taken the risk of going up-stairs, there was one big roll of bills which he might have taken, or he might not.

Robbed a Neighbor.

It seemed that the burglar was dissatisfied with his take, as he went directly across the street and repeated his operations in the house of Mr. Frank F. Roper, at 15 Havelock street. In this case a ladder was used to make his way through the dining room window. The screen had been removed in the same manner, and the kitchen door unlocked in the way to make his escape. The same kind of ransacking went on in the Roper home, but this, too, was confined to the lower flat. The drawers of the cupboards, buffet, etc., were opened, but no silverware was touched. The only raise the man made here was a pocket book containing about a dollar in silver, which had been left downstairs. He also tracked up the parlor carpet and left big footprints behind, but there was no peculiarity about them by which the burglar might be traced.

THE MARKETS

Liverpool and Chicago Wheat Futures Close Higher—Live Stock—Latest Quotations.

CHICAGO, June 3.—Irreparable damage, said to have been inflicted on thousands of acres of wheat in Kansas and Nebraska, sent the price of the cereal to-day to a much higher level. It was declared by experts that the rainfall which was supposed to have broken the drought had been altogether insufficient over a large portion of the two states named, and that moisture now for such districts would be without avail. The close was firm within a shade of the top figures reached, 1⅞ to 2c net advance. Corn finished ⅛d to ⅝c up, oats with a gain of ⅝c to 1⅛c, and provisions dearer by 27½c to 60c.

The Liverpool markets closed to-day ⅛d higher to ¼d lower on wheat, and corn ⅛d to ⅜d lower. Berlin closed ⅝c lower on wheat, and Antwerp unchanged.

The supply on the market this morning for sale consisted of 400 cattle, 125 sheep and lambs, 1500 hogs and 300 calves.

A stronger feeling prevailed in the market for cattle to-day and prices advanced 25 per cwt., owing to the fact that the run was 250 smaller than a week ago, which is due to the steadily increasing scarcity of finished stock thruout the country and the keen competition for the same between American and Canadian buyers.

There was no change in the condition of the market for hogs since last week, but prices are 25c to 50c per cwt. lower than they were this day week, owing to the increased receipts.

Submarines Will Play Much Greater Part In Wars

Malta, June 3.—The conference to decide Great Britain's future policy in the Mediterranean, which began here May 29, was concluded yesterday. Among those who participated were Premier Asquith, Mr. Winston Churchill, First Lord of the Admiralty, Viscount Kitchener, and Gen. Ian Hamilton. An official statement issued last evening says.

"The Lords and Commissioners of the Admiralty, having concluded an inspection of the Mediterranean fleet and naval establishments at Malta, desire to express their satisfaction at the efficiency of the organization. It is their intention to make full use of the facilities of this important naval base, the value of which to the British navy is of paramount character.

"They propose to assign such proportion of refitting and repairing work to the dock yards as will keep it in a normal condition of activity, and capable at all times of attending to the needs in peace or war of any fleet cruising or operating in the Mediterranean. Submarines will play an increasingly important part in the defence of the island."

Hons. Borden and McBride To Be Honored With Titles

Ottawa, June 3.—Much curiosity is evinced in political circles as to why there is no cable news as to birthday honors to-day.

It has been the practice in the past for such honors to be announced on the actual day of the sovereign birth; but so far there is no information as to whether there are, or are not to be any birthday honors at all this year.

The explanation may be that the formal celebration of the King's birthday, whilst ordered throughout the rest of the Empire to be held on June 3, was for some reason deferred in London until June 20th. It may be that the Sovereign has decided that the announcement of the honors shall be deferred until the actual day of celebration in London.

No information had reached Ottawa up till noon to-day of any honors having been conferred upon Canadians. As a rule, the first announcement of such honors comes by cable from London, and is generally confirmed by the Governor-General's secretary here, but now the royal Governor-General is in Quebec, and it is impossible to ascertain whether H. R. H. has any information on the subject.

Half a dozen prominent Canadians are expected to be in the list of honored. First is the Premier, the Rt. Hon. R. L. Borden; next comes Hon. Richard McBride, of British Columbia, and possibly Hon. R. P. Roblin the Premier of Manitoba. Then there are several Chief Justices and one or two Lieutenant Governors who would be entitled to recognition if they were treated as their predecessors were. There have been rumors that Mayor Geary, of Toronto, would also be honored.

But they will apparently have to wait until June 20 to learn whether they are or are not to be the recipients of the royal order.

"Labby" Wanted a Place.

It is hard to think of Henry Labouchere in any other occupation than that of hitting heads and making faces, in a good cause, to be sure, but still with much gusto and impish glee. But we are assured by G. W. E. Russell in the Cornhill Magazine that Labouchere for a time cherished that most bourgeois of ambitions—a place in the cabinet or in the high diplomatic service. When Gladstone organized his last cabinet, in 1892, Labouchere confidently expected that his valiant services to the party during six years of Tory ascendancy would be rewarded, but before Gladstone submitted his list of ministers to the queen he had received a direct intimation that the name of the editor of Truth must not appear there. On this point her majesty was reported to be "very stiff." Later Labouchere was an active candidate for the ambassadorship at Washington.

Old Time Delicacies.

Swans are coming back into favor as a dish for the table. This reversion to the tastes of our forefathers may lead to a demand for other delicacies once held in high esteem. In the thirteenth century the heron, the crane, the crow, the cormorant and the bittern were considered excellent food. But for some undiscovered reason the hare and the partridge were despised, and in the houses and of the nobles neither was ever seen. Another dish favored by our ancestors was dillegrout. This must have been a special delicacy, for the lord of the manor of Addington held his tenure on the condition of his presenting the king every year with a dish "called dillegrout, and if fat be added then it is called malpigeryum."—London Standard.

The Wayside Economist.

"I'll tell you what I'll do," said the brisk woman. "You go out and pick me two or three quarts of blueberries and I'll put some of them into a pie and bake it for you."

"Lady," replied Plodding Pete, "I'm afraid you don't read de paper. In dese days de producer of raw material an' de ultimate consumer is kickin' so hard dat I couldn't consider a transaction where I'd be both of 'em at once."—Washington Star.

Nothing Wasted In China.

The Chinese never waste anything. A shopman puts up parcels with half the paper and string used by Europeans. Servants collect and sell match boxes and things which seem to us to be useless. In the country you will see a boy in a tree beating down a single leaf with a stick for fuel. Women when too old for any work collect dry grass for the same purpose. A man collects his fowls and then beats old, damp mats or matting. Cockroaches and other vermin jump out, and the fowls have a meal that costs nothing. You give a coolie an old coat that you are ashamed to wear, and he will probably get a tailor to transform it for 30 or 50 cents into two pairs of excellent trousers for himself.—Detroit Free Press.

The Old School at Its Best.

It was in the early days of the railroad, and Aunt Ruth had boarded the train for her first trip. Her maid had neatly arranged her carpet bag, band box and reticule around her, but there was some trouble with the engine, so that the train did not start at once. Aunt Ruth had spread out her ample skirts like an open fan, and her little feet were daintily perched upon a footstool. Just then the conductor passed through. Touching him lightly upon the arm, she said: "You may tell them I am seated and am ready to go now."—Woman's Home Companion.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured.

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

Shreveport, La., June 3.—Mrs. Bitdie Beaulham, aged 21, and formerly a local telephone operator, who is reported to have been separated from her husband some time ago, died early Thursday from bichloride of mercury swallowed Sunday in a house of ill-fame, following a jealous fit because her husband was in company with another girl.

Her body was carried to Mena, Ark., by her mother, Mrs. W. H. Briggs.

TUNNELS UNDER RIVERS.

They Are Built on a Plan Taught to Man by a Worm.

There are now many great rivers with tunnels under them. Even when one is sunk to such a depth and carried so far along as the one under the Hudson at Storm King for the aqueduct it excites only a moment's wonder.

Such tunnels are generally driven under the water on the same plan, and that plan was taught to an engineer by a worm. The first attempt to make a tunnel under a river of any size was the Thames tunnel in London, which was built by the famous engineer Brunel. He had so much trouble with the water that oozed through that he came near giving up the job as impossible when he happened to see a piece of rotten wood into which a worm had bored under water.

As the worm ate its way into the wood it left a deposit like lime all around the hole, and this got quite hard and waterproof, so that the worm could always get out the way it came, and the hole remained true and firm.

Brunel did the same thing. He made large steel tubes and pushed them into the earth, and then he forced cement in between the tube and the wet ground about it, so that it set as hard as a rock. All tunnels under water are built on the same plan now.—New York Sun.

TEMPLE OF BAALBEK.

This Syrian Shrine Has the Largest Quarried Stones In the World.

Probably the largest stones ever used in any building are seen in the western wall of the great temple of Baalbek in Syria, and the problem is still unsolved as to the methods used in conveying them from the quarries and of placing them in position.

The quarries from which these blocks were undoubtedly cut can be seen about half a mile to the southwest of the temple. The three stones lie horizontally and form part of the outer wall of the building. They are not on the lowest part of the masonry, but are twenty-three feet above the first row of stones. Each stone is over sixty feet long, thirteen feet high and ten feet thick.

The most wonderful block of all still lies in the quarries, for something must have occurred to stop the work of separating it completely from the rock, and the great stone has lain there for centuries awaiting completion. This stone is seventy feet long, fourteen feet high and thirteen feet wide. The three sides and part of the fourth have been beautifully chiseled and are smooth and even.—San Francisco Argonaut.

Duties of the Claquers.

The claque has never flourished in English theatres, but is a powerful institution in France, where a "chief de claque" enjoys a recognized status and makes a comfortable income. It is a mistake to suppose that the only duty of claquers is to applaud. A well organized claque includes some members who have cultivated the art of infectious laughter. These "chatouilleurs" attend the lighter forms of drama and laugh so heartily and naturally that their neighbors join in and leave the house convinced that the play must be a funny one. Then there are the "pleureuses," who are paid to shake with sobs at the right moment during melodramas.—London Chronicle.

THREE FORMS OF WATER.

Either of Which Can Ever Be Changed Into One of the Others.

There are three forms of matter, solid, liquid and gas, and water is capable of taking any of them, just as the famous genie in the "Arabian Nights" could take various forms at pleasure.

We usually drink water in what is called its natural state. When we put the kettle on the fire to boil some water our object is simply to make it hot, but we still want the water to be water.

If we forget about the kettle and leave it on the fire too long we shall find the water all gone. The heat has turned it to gas, and it has floated off and mixed with the air.

But when we have a stove in the room and put a pan of water upon it we do not want the water. What we want now is the gas. As it boils away it restores to the air in the room the moisture that is dried up by the heat of the stove, so that the air is still fit to breathe.

In winter, when the skating season is on, we like to find some water that is neither liquid nor gas, but solid. The reason that it has turned solid and not gas is that instead of heat being applied to it all the heat has been taken out of it, but we can soon get it back to water again if we take a piece of ice into a warm room.

Water absorbs heat very quickly, and that is why it is easy to boil it. We use this absorbent quality when we sprinkle water on the floor in summer. It absorbs the heat and cools off the room. We pull down the shades to keep the heat out, because we know that the walls and the stone pavements make things hotter. Remember the scientific rule, "Solids, reflect heat; fluids absorb it."

No matter in what form we find water, we can always change it into either of the two other forms. When the water boils away we can hold a cold plate over it and see the vapor condense again into drops. We can take the drops out into the cold winter air and watch them freeze solid and then take the ice back into the room and thaw it and put it into the kettle again and see it rise in vapor once more.

Marriage Penalties.

Much is heard of the taxation of bachelors, but little is ever said of the communities wherein matrimony is deemed a punishable offence. Perhaps the most extraordinary ideas with reference to this subject may be said to be held at Oxford University in England. There, for instance, a fellow of All Souls College forfeits his fellowship if when studying the classics he should take unto himself a wife. In such event he must not only pay a penalty, but must also present his college with a memorial in the shape of a silver cup, with the further condition that on this cup shall be inscribed in Latin, "He backslid into matrimony."

There is an aristocratic club in London, the Bachelors' of Piccadilly, whereof the members who so far forgot their loyalty to the club as to marry are actually expelled and ostracised. The only saving feature of such expulsion is that by the payment of a fine of $100 the offending one may retain an honorary membership, but so far as active membership is concerned he is strictly out of it for the rest of his life.

There is a similar organization in Germany, the Junggesellen Club. Whenever there comes to the officials of this club any intimation that a member contemplates matrimony he is immediately summoned for trial in the club court, with the president as judge. The culprit is allowed to plead in extenuation of his offence, and upon his skill in presenting such plea depends the amount of his fine, which ranges from $100 to $1,000. The humorous feature of the fine consists in the application made. The money is devoted to a dinner, whereat all members appear in mourning attire. At the conclusion of the repast the president solemnly reads the sentence of expulsion, and the delinquent is led from the room amid the groans and lamentations of his erstwhile club members.

Summed Up.

The New Brunswick Legislative Assembly, during its sessions at the time of the Boer War, rose and sang "God Save the Queen" on every occasion that a British victory was announced.

Towards the close of the war the members were at all times prepared to sing. About this time the Hon. H. R. Emmerson, Premier of the province, was called to a Cabinet position at Ottawa. Mr. Tweedie fell heir to the Premiership, and Dr. Pugsley was to contest Mr. Emmerson's seat.

A French-Canadian member of a Nationalist tendency—now out of politics—a sharp-tongued wit, summed up the shift in speaking to the court stenographer:

"I hear dat Hemmerson goes on de Cabinet hat Hottawa, and dat Tweedie bees de new Premier, and dat Pugsley gets Hemmerson's seat—God save de Queen."—Canadian Courier.

LITTLE INVENTIONS.

Simple Devi[illegible] H[illegible]ve Earned Millions.

Keep your eyes open and do not regard the simplest contrivance as too insignificant for serious attention. That undoubtedly is the lesson which is to be learned from the history of inventions, many of which, although seeming but trifles in themselves, have earned fortunes for those who have been clever enough to evolve them.

Take, for instance, the crinkly hairpin. The man who made a fortune out of the idea—for millions of women bought them when they were once placed on the market—stood behind his wife one day while she put up her hair. The hairpins of those days were straight, smooth pieces of wire, which had an irritating way of coming out. The woman, in this case, was resourceful and bent her hairpins before putting them in. Her husband saw her do this, and it gave him an idea. The result was the invention of the crinkly hairpin.

And then there was the man who invented the patent dress-hook with a hump. Women had been fastening their dresses up with hooks and eyes for a generation, but hooks had a way of coming unfastened, much to the chagrin of the neat. Then came the wideawake man who bent one of these hooks so as to make a hump in it. He tried hooking it up, and found that it remained hooked, patented the idea, and the "See That Hump" hook advertisements, which are to be seen in every town, earned him a fortune.

The bath-towel was invented by accident. A towel manufacturer found that his machinery was not working right, and that his towels were suffering a vast tangling of ends. While adjusting the machine he used one of the towels to dry his hands. He found it pleasantly absorbent, and from the idea to which that gave rise was born the bath-towel and a fortune.

A man named Heaton noticed that much trouble was occasioned, especially to mothers, because the buttons would come off the children's boots. He thought out and patented the little metal staple that holds on the shoe buttons of to-day, and realized a fortune for his pains. Another man pasted little rings round the holes of tie-on labels and thus made an eye that would not tear. Thousands of travelers have been saved the inconvenience of luggage going astray through torn-off labels, and there are fewer unclaimed parcels lying at the postoffice since his little invention came into general use. This inventor also made a fortune.

The man who invented "tinned" edibles also made it necessary for someone to invent a tin-opener. A tin-opener is not a very difficult thing to use, yet the public will always pay for an invention that is still easier. So just recently an inventive genius brought out a patent "tin" with a seam just below the top. A smart blow breaks the seam, and the lid is off. A single packer ordered 10,000,000 of these tins as an experiment, and others followed suit.

Wearing the Wedding Ring.

Centuries ago women used to wear their wedding rings on their thumbs, then the custom changed and they wore them on their first fingers, and then again the custom changed and the method of to-day came into vogue. The custom of wearing the ring on the third finger originated through the ritual of the marriage service. The priest first put the ring on the thumb, saying, 'In the name of the Father"; on the forefinger, adding, "in the name of the Son"; on the second finger, repeating, "in the name of the Holy Ghost," and on the third finger, ending with "Amen," and there it stayed

Had No Kick Coming.

An old gentleman who was in the habit of imbibing too freely was sitting one day on the veranda of a village hotel at which he was a regular boarder. When dinner was ready the dinner bell, a large one such as are used on farms, began to ring. A large dog happened to be passing by just then, and, hearing the bell, he stopped and raised his head as high as he could and howled nervously until the bell ceased ringing. The old gentleman looked at the dog a moment as if disgusted with the noise he was making and then said:

"What are you howling about? You don't have to eat here?"

A Money Trap.

Hon. Robert Rogers, who is a well-known member of the Manitoba Club in Winnipeg, after dinner a few months since at the club, went to the cloakroom with a friend of his (who was his guest) to don their overcoats. The guest, somewhat to his surprise, heard a slight jingle, and on examination found in his pocket five or six fifty-cent pieces. "What am I to do?" said he. "They are not mine; some one has put them there by mistake. Perhaps I'd better leave them in the office."

"No," replied Mr. Rogers, with a twinkle, "don't do that, put the money in your pocket and set it again."

SKOBELEFF'S REVENGE.

Insulted by the Czar the Russian Hero Tamed His Master.

During the Russo-Turkish war the day after the passage of the Danube had been made good the Emperor of Russia crossed the river to congratulate and thank his gallant soldiers. In front of a long, massive line formed on the slope below Sistova, awaiting the coming of the great white czar, stood Dragomiroff, Yolohine and Skobeleff, the three generals who had been the leaders of the successful attempt.

Dragomiroff, the divisional commander, the Emperor embraced and gave him the cross of St. George. He shook hands warmly with Yolohine, the brigade commander, and gave him, too, a St. George to add to the decorations which this cheery little warrior had been gathering from boyhood in the Caucasus and central Asia. Then the Emperor strode to where Skobeleff stood, and men watched the little scene with interest, for it was notorious that Skobeleff was in disfavor with his sovereign, and yet of him the camps were ringing with the story of his conduct of the previous morning.

Would Alexander maintain his umbrage or would he make it manifest that it had been displaced by Skobeleff's heroism? For at least a minute the Czar hesitated as the two tall, proud, soldierly men confronted each other. You could trace in his countenance the struggle between disapproval and appreciation.

It was soon over, and the wrong way for Skobeleff. The Emperor frowned, turned short on his heel and strode abruptly away without a word or a gesture of greeting or recognition. A man of strong prejudices, he was not yet able to exercise from his mind the calumnies that had blackened to him the character of Skobeleff.

That officer, for his part, flushed scarlet, then grew deadly pale and seemed to conquer an impulse as he set his teeth hard and maintained his disciplined immobility. It was a flagrant insult in the very face of the army and a gross injustice, but Skobeleff endured it in a proud silence.

The time soon came to that gallant and brilliant soldier when he could afford to be magnanimous. As the campaign progressed he distinguished himself again and again, so that his name became a synonym in the army for splendid daring as well as for opportune skill.

On Sept. 3 Skobeleff after exploit on exploit devised and led the storm of the Turkish position in Loftcha and drove his adversaries out of that strong place. On the following night at his own dinner table in the Gorni Studen headquarters the Emperor stood up and bade his guests to honor with him the toast of "Skobeleff, the Hero of Loftcha" It is not given to many men to earn a revenge so full and so grand as that.

Miles of Films.

On the average of about 150,000 feet of film are placed on the British market every week, and this quantity is steadily increasing. It is computed that there are same 50,000 picture theatres scattered throughout the world, and as the number thereof is increasing daily, the supply of films has by no means yet reached the limits of the demand.

England's Coal Trade.

England produces in a normal year, 230 million tons of coal; it exported 64 million tons last year and imported only the trifle of 20,000 tons. Therefore its whole manufacturing industry, and its foreign trade to the extent of 1e2 1-2 million dollars a year, are dependent on the coal trade.

Heredity.

"Oh, hubby, dear, what do you think are the first words our baby will say?" gurgled Mrs. Matron.

"Well, if she takes after you they will probably be, 'This is a nice time to come home,'" said the brute.

CALEDONIA ∴ PARK ∴

TORONTO.

$14 to $25 Per Foot

Nothing better in a subdivision is being offered at the present time than CALEDONIA PARK.

Situated in the north-west section, where wonderful development is taking place, with a street car line nearing completion, stores and churches in the vicinity, and the new CALEDONIA SCHOOL on Innes Avenue, facing our property.

We are extremely modest in our statement, when we say that the prices we are offering these lots at TO-DAY should be doubled in 12 MONTHS.

A gentleman was telling us of the big mistake he made in not buying in the Canada Foundry section a few years ago. Everybody knows what advances have taken place there, and when looking down over the Canada Foundry section from the splendid elevation at "CALEDONIA PARK," one can figure out a great future for investment in our property. Already our sales total $60,000.00, and good purchases have been made by out-of-town clients.

NOTE the location: Close to the St. Clair car line, just west of Lansdowne.

TOLD OWN FATE.

In Tale, In 1892, Stead Pictured Collision Between Liner and Iceberg.

Intimate friends of William T. Stead, recall a story which he himself wrote in the Christmas extra issue of The Review of Reviews, London published in December, 1892, entitled "From the Old World to the New," a chapter of which tallies in almost every detail with the wreck of the Titanic.

Mr. Stead, in this chapter, which is called "Coincidents and Clairvoyance," describes an encounter with icebergs at sea. His characters are a group of English tourists. They are crossing the Atlantic on board the Majestic of the White Star Line. The steamship suddenly comes upon a great iceberg.

The great English writer, long known for his ideas on spiritualism, clairvoyance and mental telepathy, brings all into play in his thrilling story of the high sea, but when he describes the icebergs, fog and conditions of sky and sea and on board the Majestic it would seem that had he been able to send an account of what took place on that fateful Sunday evening recently it could not have been more identical.

"Jack" Compton, a passenger, has the power of automatic writing. Compton receives a telepathic message from John Thomas, a Scotchman, who is an old friend, and he (Thomas) has been saved in the wreck of the Montrose which was in collision with an iceberg. The messages continue to come. Meanwhile Mr. Compton has asked the captain of the Majestic to stop at the iceberg on arrival. The old captain scoffs at the idea. But then his own vessel comes within a hair's-breadth of being wrecked by an iceberg. He stops. Compton and "the professor" put out in a lifeboat and eventually reach John Thomas, finding him almost dead. They bring him safely to the Majestic just as it seemed that steamship would go under.

The setting of the story and the descriptions of the icebergs and the wreck tally with the tragedy of Sunday night. The time and place also agree with those of that Sunday's catastrophe. It also was on a vessel of the White Star Line, and the captain had under his care just two thousand souls and a cargo worth at least $2,000,000. Perhaps the only difference was that Mr. Stead's mental telepathy has been replaced with wireless telegraphy.

Striking sentences here and there from other writings of Mr. Stead are also recalled in which it might seem that he had some premonition of his own fate. Especially is this so of a comparison in his book, "How I Know the Dead Return," which has a paragraph beginning, "Let us consider the Atlantic Ocean as the grave." Then the author compares one shore with earth and the other with the Eternal shore.

Pure Food In Ancient Rome.

In Pliny there may be found an account of the manner in which the bakers of Rome were alleged to mix with their dough a white earth, soft to the touch and sweet to the taste, thus putting out a foodstuff that had weight and fine appearance, but little food value. The same writer also touches upon wine adulteration. Pliny says that not even the wealthy Roman noble could be sure that the wine he bought was pure. Indeed the most famous wines were doctored and wines from Gaul generally [illegible] artificially colored by [illegible]

CITY AND DISTRICT

DASHES HERE AND THERE BY TIMES REPORTERS.

Receipts Over $4000.

Over $4000 was taken in at Peterborough's Summer Fair toward maintaining a trained nurse for indigent tuberculous sufferers.

Interesting Address At St. Paul's.

The Elimentary Grade Union of the city Sunday Schools, held a meeting last night in St. Paul's lecture room. Dr. Park, of the Normal School addressed the teachers upon "Child Psychology," and Mr. Ferguson, of the Collegiate staff, presented the lesson for the following Sabbath to the junior grade.

Local Firm's Lindsay Branch Open.

The Lindsay store of the J. M. Greene Music Co., had a largely attended and successful opening. Many complimentary references were also made to the interior decorations. The woodwork was done in mission green while the walls were finished in rich paper of the same hue. The effect is strikingly beautiful.

The Fair's Last Word.

On Monday night, Peterborough's great Summer Fair was brought to a close. Every praise is due to the ladies who inaugurated the scheme, to those who waited on booths and spent hours of time for sweet charity's sake, to the Band, to the kiddies who took part, in short it would take too long to recite those to whom credit is due.

Roll Call at Baptist Church.

Last night the Park street Baptist church held their annual roll call in the parlour of that sacred edifice. There was a large attendance, testifying to the popularity of this particular local church. A large increase was shown in the congregation since last year, thus showing that the Park street church is growing in popularity and membership.

Cadets to Get Thorough Training.

Hon. Col. Sam. Hughes, Minister of Militia, has arranged that the regulations governing the cadet training camps throughout Canada this year are being drafted by the Department of Militia. While they are not as exacting as the regulations of the Canadian Militia, they will provide for a good deal of practical training. The work, however, is being made attractive for the boys and entertainment is not being forgotten.

Lindsay Coal Prices Lowered.

The following is taken from the Lindsay Warder: "Lindsay citizens will be interested in knowing that coal took a tumble this morning, the prices being lowered 25 cents per ton on nut coal, stove, egg, pea, mixed coal. The June prices are announced as follows by the local firms:

Nut coal	$7.50
Stove coal	7.25
Mixed coal	7.40
Pea coal	6.25

Scavengers Busy at Last.

A week ago to-day, a resident of the western part of the city, wrote a complaint to the Times. He noted that Sanitary Inspector Spence had insisted on boxes for his ashes, of a size as demanded by the city scavengers. Thus, he destroyed expensive receptacles, bought for fireproof purposes, and replaced them by boxes according to orders. Last night he called at The Times office to say that, after filling his boxes and waiting for nearly two weeks, a scavenger actually called and carried away the output of his kitchen and furnace. He remarked, "I'm just about $7 in money and $17 in patience over the garbage by-law."

Why Is Peterborough Coal Dear?

In an evening contemporary is a big type heading that says, "Coal is Higher." Now in another part of this issue is, or should be, a report of how coal has gone down ten cents a ton in Port Hope. The freight, per mile per ton, from Lehigh Valley or other Pennsylvania mines would not be one-tenth of a cent per ton more on coal for this city. Of course, Port Hope has the advantage of water transportation, during the season of navigation. This is, however, a negligible argument. Why should OUR coal dealers always advance prices at the same time, advertize the said advance, or sometimes a decrease? Why should Peterborough be soaked because——Well ——Because!

If I had a Million.

The Times proposes, in our Saturday's issue to print letters from correspondents answering the question as put in the heading. Here is a chance for you, Mister, Madame or Miss, to have a little excitement and fun. Not only is there a hunorous side of such a series of letters, but a great opportunity for practical suggestions on important matters. Let us hear, in a short letter, which costs nothing to print, what you would do if you had, or inherited a million dollars. Address letters to City Editor, Times, or leave them in the office.

Motor Boat Owner Declines Filter.

Yesterday the owner of a gasoline launch was offered, by a friend, the gift of a water cooler. The would-be donor explained that the cooler was a "double-decker," one part for ice and the balance of the receptacle for drinking water. The launch owner thanked his friend and remarked I'm much obliged, but all the water we need is that on which the boat rides! Those who have taken trips in motor boats can size up the whole situation.

SOCIAL AND PERSONAL

Miss Dorothy Hilliard, of Lakefield was in the city yesterday.

Mrs. F. J. Tate, of Lakefield, spent yesterday morning in the city.

Miss Josephine Strickland, of Lakefield, spent the morning in the city yesterday.

Greatest Invention Of Age For Hoarseness, Weak Throat

Nothing So Far Discovered is so Beneficial to Public Speakers, Ministers, Singers, Teachers As Catarrhozone.

Because of its strengthening influence upon the vocal cords, Catarrhozone cannot be too highly recommended as a wonderful voice improver. It almost instantly removes huskiness or hoarseness, thus insuring clearness and brilliancy of tone. Catarrhozone keeps the mucous surfaces in perfect condition, and its regular use absolutely prevents colds and throat irritation, thereby removing the singer's greatest source of anxiety—unfitness of voice. The most eminent speakers and prima donnas are seldom without Catarrhozone, and credit is no small degree their uniform strength and brilliancy of tone to its influence.

Singer Recommends Catarrhozone.

"For many years I have been a sufferer from that terrible disease known as CATARRH.

"Being a professional singer you can readily understand that Catarrh would be a serious hindrance to my professional skill.

"One year ago I read in the 'Progress' a convincing testimonial from one who had been cured of this disease through using your, God-sent invention Catarrhozone.

"Believing in the merit of Catarrhozone I tried it.

"Catarrhozone cured me and has been the means of my success.

"You are at liberty to use my name if it will help relieve some sufferer, and I will always remain.

"Bob Bixley, New Glasgow, N.S."

Mr. Bixley is one of the best known singers and entertainers in the Maritime Provinces. Everyone knows him, and his testimonial for Catarrhozone is the best sort of evidence of what great benefit Catarrhozone is to those suffering with throat weakness or Catarrh.

Complete outfit, consisting of a beautifully polished hard rubber inhaler, and sufficient liquid for recharging to last two months, costs one dollar. Sold by all druggists, or sent safely to your address by mail if price is forwarded to the Catarrhozone Co., Buffalo, N.Y., or Kingston Ont.

LITTLE LOCAL LINES

The small boy, and, incidentally, the small girl, of Peterborough, is looking forward eagerly to Circus day.

Lindsay Post gives the Howe's circus, that comes here on the 6th, a great send off. This bright paper says it is the best circus organized on the road to-day.

What is the matter with the Petes? They played good ball at Nicholls Oval, but there seemed to be a hoodoo over them. It is to be hoped this hoodoo will dissolve before the end of the season.

Lindsay Warder gives a long report of the arrival of Howe's circus in that burg and its report is very favorable. It is to be hoped that the weather here to-morrow will be auspicious.

Every resident of Peterborough no doubt, read with regret last night, that the Duchess of Connaught has been seized with appendicitis, during her visit at the Citadel at Quebec.

Well, there's one satisfaction! The wet weather of last night fooled old father probs, as far as Peterborough's Summer Fair was concerned. The Fair was over.

SCHOOL BOY EDITOR GIVES TIMES A CALL

Mr. Beresford Hamilton, representing the Grove School Chronicle, of Lakefield, was in the city yesterday. Accompanied by his brother Robert, he paid a visit to The Times office. Here Mr. Hamilton was greatly and intelligently interested in the presses the ruling machines, the folding machines, and all the rest of The Times big plant. However, Mr. Hamilton, who, by the way is a son of Mr. Miles Hamilton, manager of the Fenelon Falls branch of the Bank of Montreal, took special interest in The Times' big "Monolines." These are machines which set the type that you now read. Lead is poured into a receptacle, gas is turned on, the lead is made liquid. The operator at each machine has a keyboard like that on a typewriter. To the right of the mechanism, is a place, at an angle of 45 degrees, where the copy, or editor's written matter is held momentarily by a spring bar. The operator whacks away at the keyboard; Down fall "slugs," or, as the general public would call them, "lines," of lead type. Mr. Hamilton seemed to be much impressed with his visit through so large and modern a plant. He received and exchanged ideas with the City Editor, that may result in improvement for both The Times and The Chronicle.

THE GAME CALLED OFF

Nicholls Oval Was Like on Monday, Too Wet, and Riverside Park Flooded.

The ball game was called off yesterday afternoon. As noted in Tuesday's issue, in our report of the game between the "White Caps" and Brantford, the diamond at the Oval was so wet, so thoroughly saturated, that a couple of the Brantford players, seemingly in disgust, threw their bats at the green sward and there they stuck upright. Templin's aggregation of All-Star players seem to have a hoodoo on them. The god or goddess of illuck seems to have pursued the blue-legged, white capped representatives of Peterborough's ambition on the diamond. Still there are some forty more games yet to play. The Peterborough batteries and field may yet redeem their past hard luck and make a big fight, if not a success for the pennant. The Times hopes, with every patriotic son, daughter, father, mother or even the uncles, as there are no pawn shops in operation here, that Peterborough wins.

SCHOOL REPORT, S. S. NO. 17, OTONABEE.

The following is the report of S. S. No. 17, Otonabee, for the month of May:

IV Class—Hazel Chamberlain, Sadie Brown.

SITUATION CRITICAL

Americans Shut in Chihuahua Are in Danger of Their Lives

Juarez, Mex., June 3.—Private telegrams received here to-day indicate the situation about Chihuahua is critical, and that apprehension for the safety of Americans in the rebel zone is not unfounded. With the scarcity of ammunition in the rebel rank and the resentment stirred up against the United States for its embargo on the exportation of arms, a crisis has been reached in the revolution.

SISTER IS SAVED.

Boy of Ten, in a Plucky Rescue, Saves Sister's Life When Boat Upset.

Lollie, La., June 3.—Samuel Clark, aged 10, rescued his sister, Florence, aged 15, from probable drowning, when a flat boat in which they were crossing Black Bayou, was carried by the current against a tree with such violence as to throw the girl into the bayou.

The brother, with rare presence of mind, dropped the oars and running to the stern of the boat reached out and succeeded in pulling his sister into the boat.

HIT HUMAN MARK

Youthful Intruder at Bottling Works Received Serious Wounds.

Brookhaven, Miss., June 3.—Considerable of a sensation has been caused here by the wounding of Lockridge Byrne, a young man of this place, who received the charge from a spring gun set up in the plant of the Gay-Ola Bottling Company to repel marauders, who had committed frequent depredations there. Byrne was found suffering from serious wounds in the leg and hip and was removed to his home. At the plant the front door was found wrenched off, two other locked doors pried open and the beer chest also twisted off. Beer in bottles was strewn all around the floor.

A PLAGIARISM

Texas Prisoner Released for Poem Cribbed from Ohio Convict.

A poem in a Texas prison paper published over the name of a convict secured for the man a pardon and $10 from Gov. Colquitt. Now an Ohio prisoner brings forth proof of authorship and publication of the poem in a Buckeye state prison journal over a year ago. It serves the Lone Star executive right for willingness to turn loose on the country a man who tried to write poetry!

The average cup of tea or coffee contains from 1½ to 2½ grains of "caffeine" the drug that you read about here

Tea and Coffee drinkers often suffer from headache, nervousness, indigestion, billiousness, heart irritation and other symptoms of ill health — due to "caffeine," the drug in their tea and coffee.

The cause is often not understood until expert medical test shows up the bald facts

One can get relief from the ills caused by tea and coffee by quitting them for 10 days and using

POISON SQUAD MEMBER COLLAPSES UNDER TEST.

Philadelphia Student in Serious Condition for a Time, But Has Recovered.

COMPANIONS ARE SICK

Every Member of Band Suffers Nausea as Result of Caffeine Experiments.

Philadelphia, May 11.—Serious results have followed the feeding of caffeine, a drug lurking in chocolate as well as coffee, to the eight student members of the "poison squad" of the Hahnemann Medical College here. All have been subject to severe headaches and serious attacks of nausea while one member of the squad was in such a serious condition after taking the caffeine-laden water for the first twenty days that he had to be placed in a special ward in the hospital. He received constant attention, has recovered and at the college is said to have rejoined the squad.

"The poison squad" at the Hahnemann college was formed very quietly. It came into existence on March 1 and is under the direct supervision of Dr. Edmund T. Nesbit, director of the Hering laboratory at the college.

Dr. Nesbit called for volunteers from among the students. He said he wanted men who were willing to do something for the benefit of humanity at large, even though it might be to their own discomfiture. Twenty-five students volunteered. Of these fourteen of the most perfect physically were chosen, eleven as regular members of the squad and three as alternates. • • • • • •

For thirty days the members of the squad were given doses of caffeine while Dr. Nesbit and his assistants made personal observations, taking the pulses and temperatures of the members of the squad and making notes on their general physical condition. It was not until within the last few days that one member of the squad weakened under the experiment to such an extent that it was necessary to send him to the hospital. Dr. Nesbit refuses to reveal the name of the student who collapsed, but declares that through proper treatment immediately he soon rerecovered • • • • •

The caffeine was administered in a solution and was mixed with the water the squad drank. The students did not know when they were getting the caffeine. There were no stated times for giving it in order that the physical condition might not be changed materially through the action of the brain.

Before joining the "poison squad," each student had to sign a release against any action for damages against the college. • • • • •

The laboratory was organized about fifteen months ago with Dr. Nesbit as director, and almost immediately an exhaustive study was started to ascertain the destructive qualities of caffeine as used in food stuffs.

The students continued to live at the dormitories or at the boarding houses, but they were required to take their meals at the training table located in the hospital near the diet kitchen. Before each meal the temperature was recorded, the pulse and respiration were taken, and the blood pressure was tested. During the period the drug was administered only Dr. Nesbitt knew the amount apportioned to each man, and when and in what quantity it was administered.—New York Sun, May 12, 1912

TWO IMBECILES WERE MARRIED BY TORONTO MINISTER AFTER OTHERS HAD REFUSED

Ernest Robbins Met Mabel Wilson in Lalonde's Jewelry Store and They Were Married Soon After—Rev. A. L. Geggie and Rev. W. H. Sparks Refused to Perform Ceremony—Dr. Godfrey Says the Minister Should be Censured.

Toronto, June, 5.—Two weak-minded persons, who, in the opinion of the ministers who know them and a doctor who has examined the man, are unfit both mentally and physically to enter into matrimony, have been married by a Toronto clergyman, after several other ministers refused to marry them on the ground of imbecility. Ernest C. Robbins, who is better known in Parkdale as "Ernie Clayton," was married to Mabel Wilson, a former mentally deficient charge of J. J. Kelso, superintendent of neglected and dependent children, the latter part of last week by a West Toronto minister. Immediately after the ceremony the couple started to keep house in the northern outskirts of Swansea. Robbins becomes violent at times and for years has been balancing on the ridge between imbecility and insanity. For years he has been possessed with a mania to get a wife. He has offered himself to numerous girls, bought valuable engagement rings for them and finally had to be ordered away. He has stood on the Humber River bridge and stated that he would give anyone $50 who would secure a bride for him.

Sold the License.

The marriage license was sold to Robbins by Mr. Lalonde, the West Queen street jeweler, who introduced Miss Wilson to Robbins.

Ever since Robbins went to Swansea he has been in the habit of visiting the jeweler and buying engagement rings or other trinkets. According to Robbins' story, Lalonde was a good friend, and while in the store they would discuss the probabilities of Robbins getting a girl. Lately when the man went back, the jeweler introduced him to Miss Wil- who was working there. Robbins wanted to marry her there and then.

Mr. Geggie Refused.

The young man bought a license of Lalonde and took his bride-to-be to the residence of the Rev. A. Logan Geggie on Jamieson avenue. After talking with him for some minutes, the minister told Robbins that he could not perform the ceremony, because he and his fiancee were mentally deficient. The girl had been a member of Mr. Geggie's congregation and he knew her to be weak-minded.

Saw Dr. Godfrey.

On the following Sunday the two attended the St. Olave's Church in Swansea. When the Rev. W. H. Sparks stepped into the vestry to put on his robes, Robbins followed and demanded to be married. The clergyman put him off for the time being, and told him to go to some other minister. The next night Robbins called on Dr. Forbes Godfrey, M.L.A., at Mimico, and stated that he had been told he was crazy and asked the doctor to examine him. Dr. Godfrey had come in contact with Robbins and his family on several occasions, and from that experience knew him to be weak-minded. So as not to offend Robbins he asked him what was his trouble, and after the man had told him he had $10 to start house with the doctor advised him that he was crazy to do anything so foolish.

Upon the refusal of Mr. Sparks to perform the ceremony, the couple went to West Toronto and were married by a minister there.

HEARD MUSIC BY WIRELESS TELEPHONE FOR 500 MILES

London, June 5.—The Paris correspondent of the Daily News says: Remarkable experiments in wireless telephony are said to be proceeding at Toulon on board the yacht Hirondelle, belonging to Prince Albert of Monaco.

"By means of an apparatus invented by M. DeLepel, the 'Marseillaise' played at Algiers, was registered and definitely heard aboard the Hirondelle.

"The application of the discovery, which is said to consist in registering sounds instead of merely conventional signs, will prevent, it is claimed, the interception of messages and lead to the simplification of the transmitting and receiving apparatus.

"The opinions of two French scientists, M.M. Branley and Vivian, were sought by La Liberte. M. Branley, one of the discoverers of wireless telegraphy, declined to offer an opinion, on the ground that he knows nothing about M. DeLepel's apparatus or of the inventor himself. M. Vivian of the Marconi company, declares that similar experiments have already been carried out at a distance of 260 miles by two French officers, Jance and Colin."

The distance between Toulon and Algiers is about 460 miles.

WHITE CAPS CAPTURED GAME AT GUELPH YESTERDAY

The local baseball team with a rearranged line-up and with Firstbaseman Barthold in charge, defeated Guelph in that city yesterday afternoon by a score of 5—3. Tracey did the twirling for the Petes and Mooney worked behind the bat. Tully held down 3rd base, while Hartman played right field. The shake-up seems to have made an improvement in the team and it is expected they will add a few more victories to their list before returning home. Schaefer, pitcher, and Dolan, 1st baseman, have been released by the local management. It is expected that Templin's work at second will be improved greatly now that he has been relieved of the managing duties, although he has been playing a good brand of ball all along. Beham pitched for Guelph yesterday, while Daniels done the receiving. Umpire Davis.

CHEESE BOARD MET

2,288 Boxes Boarded—Highest Price Was 13 9-16 Offered by Mr. Gillespie.

The semi-monthly meeting of the Peterborough Cheese Board was held yesterday morning in the Board room. A large number of buyers and salesmen were on hand.

Considerable discussion arose concerning the number of factories that are accustomed to selling off the Board at the ruling price of the Peterborough market. This proved a detriment to the Board and these factories were not contributing towards the upkeep of the Board.

Buyers present were: Messrs. Gillespie, Cook, Watkins, Flavelle, Ayer Kerr, Weir and Morton. The number of cheese boarded was 2288 boxes.

Mr. Watkins opened the bidding at 13½c. Mr. Gillespie called 13 9-16c., and at this figure secured Keene, 56; Warminster, 103; Shearer, 86; Central Smith, 110; Selwyn, 120; Villiers, 100; Warsaw, 105; Westwood, 156; Ormonde, 100; Lang, 95; East Emily, 90; Trewern, 90; and Bensfort 40.

At 13½c. Mr. Gillespie secured Oakdale, 115; Young's Point, 90; Indian River, 85; North Dummer, 75, and Fleetwood, 106.

Daisy D., 80, Norwood 160 and Killarney 125, went to Mr. Gillespie for 12½c.

The following factories remained unsold: Warsaw, 105; Maple Leaf, 57; and Myrtle, 130.

THE COMING TWELFTH

Orangemen for Many Miles Around Have Been Invited to Attend Big Demonstration in Peterborough on July 12th.

Arrangements for the big demonstration on July 12th, the anniversary of the Battle of the Boyne, are progressing satisfactorily. The answers which have already been received by the Orangemen from the brethren throughout the district, give assurance of the affair being a huge success. The city will be filled to overflowing, and it will be no easy task to provide food for so many. It is expected that from 15,000 to 20,000 visitors will be here on that occasion. With the limited hotel accommodation which we possess other means will be taken to provide dinner for those who cannot get into the hotels.

The Times job department is issuing a fine three sheet poster, in two colors. These posters will be distributed throughout the district in a few days. They will be followed by other smaller posters, giving railway rates from different points to Peterborough and return.

Mr. Charles E. Wiley if the chairman of the committee, and Mr. Ernest F. Reid, secretary. The demonstration, if good weather conditions prevail, will be the greatest ever held under the auspices of the County Orange Association of Peterborough.

CENTRAL PARK WALKWAY

(Editor Morning Times.)

Sir.—On Saturday night I seen in one of the evening papers a piece about Central Park. This piece said "the expenditure is unnecessary, and it makes a street through the park." I think, sir, that the writer of that piece must be some dude who only wants pretty trees and long stretches of grass, with a vista leading through lines of Elm trees. How does that walk way hurt Central Park? The people walking through the park use it and are glad of it. People walking along George street do not notice it. But Mr., how about the poor people who have to hustle to work. They pay their taxes and I am sure pay more on the dollar than do the rich. Why should the workingman be shut off a short cut that saves him a long walk four or five times a day.

—Workingman

WORST IN CITY.

A CHARMING DANCE

The Members of the Marlborough Club Enjoy Themselves.

DANCING was the feature of the charming function held in the beautiful quarters of the Marlborough Club on Tuesday night, where the members of the club "tripped the light fantastic" until the we' sma' hours. It was estimated that about twenty-five to thirty couples were present and the affair was splendid and an unqualified success in every way. The Marlborough Club have held some very successful and popular dances during the winter and spring, the one on Tuesday evening probably being the farewell social event of the season.

The music was supplied by Miss Gladman, and was of the same delightful quality as her work in the past. The moon dance novelty was also introduced very successfully.

The club's quarters were charmingly decorated for the occasion, and dainty refreshments were served. The dance broke up shortly after midnight.

OUR CANADA

"The aim and purpose of the Canadian nation must truly accord with its opportunities and responsibilities. Among them I would include these—to realize the true ideas of democracy, to preserve harmony and equality among its people; to guard the purity of its institutions; to develop its boundless resources with prudence and foresight; to be a strength within the Empire in moral power, in political steadiness, and in the determination to preserve its unity and security; to be an influence among the nations for good neighborhood and peace."—Mr. R. L. Borden, in The Empire Number of The London Times.

AMATUER BASEBALL AT NICHOLLS OVAL

Lindsay Collegiates vs. Peterborough Collegiates at the Oval on Saturday—A Good Game Promised.

The local Collegiates have arranged for a return ball game with their brothers from Lindsay, and the contest is billed for two o'clock at the Oval next Saturday. When the locals went to Lindsay, the Central Park boys took the small end of 9—2 score, and vowed revenge in the return game. The Lindsay boys, however, are coming with the intention of repeating, so an interesting exhibition may be expected. Huycke and Hill will do the battery work for the Kennerites.

JUDGMENT IS RESERVED

Case of A. McFarlane vs. W. H. Collier Occupies Attention of High Court for Entire Day.

The action instituted by Andrew McFarlane, against W. H. Collier, the latter seeking to recover the sum of $4,300 as per the agreement which defendant is alleged to have entered into with the plaintiff, was completed and judgment reserved.

The defendant disclaimed knowledge of existence of the alleged agreement, and it was upon this point that the case was contested.

The agreement, it is alleged, stipulated that Mr. McFarlane was to remain with the Wm. Hamilton Company, Limited, for one year, commencing January, 1910, and in consideration thereof, was to receive a remuneration of $4,300.

Mr. F. D. Kerr and Mr. McElderry acted on behalf of the plaintiff, while Mr. R. R. Hall and Mr. S. T. Medd acted for the defence.

Chief Justice Britton who presided, reserved judgment.

DUCHESS IS DOING WELL, BUT THE DUKE IS WORRIED

Montreal, June 5.—After being brought to this city by special train last night from Quebec, where she was stricken with peritonitis, the Duchess of Connaught was immediately transferred to the Royal Victoria Hospital. The transference to this city was made in automobile ambulance of the hospital, the royal patient being conveyed from the train to the hospital on a stretcher.

A small crowd gathered at the Windsor street station, to which the train carrying the Duchess was brought, but the railway authorities decided to remove her Royal Highness from the coach at the freight yards, so as to avoid any unpleasant scene.

The Duke Superintended.

The Duke and the Princess Patricia who accompanied the Duchess on the special train from Quebec, entered a waiting automobile, and followed the ambulance to the Royal Victoria Hospital. The Duke himself personally superintended the removal of the stretcher both at the train and at the hospital.

When the Duchess had been placed in a private ward, Dr. W. W. Chipman was called in for a consultation with Dr. Garrow, the Montreal specialist, who was sent from here to Quebec when the Duchess was taken sick, and who came back on the train to Montreal yesterday, and Dr. E. S. Worthington, the private physician to the Governor-General and his family.

After the consultation a bulletin was issued announcing that the Duchess had stood the journey well.

Having seen the Duchess safely accommodated at the hospital, the Duke and the Princess returned to the home of Lord Strathcona on Dorchester street, which had been prepared for them.

Doctor Up All Night.

This morning before eight, the Duke walked up to the hospital and had a talk with Dr. Worthington, who had been in attendance on the Duchess all night. His Royal Highness did not stop long, and this is taken here to be evidence that the Duchess' condition is reassuring.

At 10.15 this morning the following bulletin was posted at Lord Strathcona's house:

"Her Royal Highness the Duchess of Connaught passed a comfortable night, having borne the journey from Quebec well. Conditions this morning was satisfactory, and does not give rise to undue anxiety.

(Signed)

A. E. Garrow, M.D.
W. W. Chipman, M.D.
E. S. Worthington, M.D."

Held a Consultation.

On their arrival here with their royal patient the doctor said: "It may be two or three days before we can say just how serious is her Royal Highness the Duchess of Connaught's condition. Her condition is so serious, however, that immediately following her removal to the Royal Victoria Hospital, a consultation will be held." The result is not yet known.

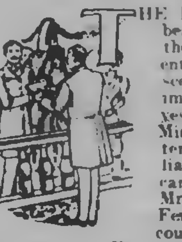
BURNED TO DEATH IN CELL FIREMEN WERE POWERLESS

Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., June 5.—Cooked to death in a caged westend lockup in sight of the fire fighters, was the fate which overcame an Austrian named Andrew Wropelwski, shortly after one o'clock this morning. The man had been put there in an intoxicated condition early in the evening to await his removal to the Central Police Station. Apparently he had dropped a lighted match which ignited the bed. On the arrival of the department the place was in flames, and the hapless man could plainly be seen first running about in the lockup and then attempting to crawl under the bed as the flames got to him. The outside door was securely locked also, and the only person with a key was the night-patrolman, who could not be found.

The charred remains have been removed to Simpson's morgue, and an inquest will open to-night. Members of the department say it was the most horrible experience in their career. At one time Wropelwski was seen to go on his knees to the firemen outside who could not bear to look at him.

WEDDING BELLS

Ferguson—Irwin.



THE Highlands, the beautiful home of the bride's parents, was the scene of a very important event yesterday, when Miss Eva, daughter of Mr. William Irwin, became the bride of Mr. W. Graham Ferguson, of Vancouver, son of Mr. W. G. Ferguson, of Peterborough.

There were present about 40 guests including a number of relatives. The ceremony took place under an arch of margeurites and lilies of the valley, and was performed by the Rev. Robert Pogue of St. Paul's Presbyterian church. Miss Elizabeth Irwin was bridesmaid and the best man, Mr. Ross Cameron, while Miss Agnes Jeffrey, of Milwaukee, and Miss Gwen Hall of Peterborough, acted as flower girls.

The bride, charmingly attired in white satin, trimmed with white rose point lace and carrying a bouquet of white orchids and lilies of the valley leaned on the arm of her father, by whom she was given away. The wedding march was played by Mr. Chas. Ackerman, and Miss Mary G. Chalmers sang, "O Perfect Love."

The bridesmaid wore a pale blue dress with hat to match, and carried a bouquet of American beauty roses, while the flower girls were becomingly attired in white. The bride's mother wore a handsome dress of mauve chiffon and carried a bouquet of mauve sweet peas, while the bridegroom's mother was becomingly attired in grey.

The groom's gift to the bride was a handsome platinum necklace with a diamond pendant, and that to the bridesmaid a pretty necklace with an acquamarine pendant.

After the ceremony a dainty wedding luncheon was served in a marquee on the lawn, which was also decorated with flowers, principally marguerites and lilies of the valley.

The bridal couple left on the 4.38 C.P.R. train for a short visit to the United States, the bride wearing a travelling costume of navy blue, with a tan hat. Mr. and Mrs. Ferguson will return to Peterborough for a couple of weeks and at the expiration of that time, will leave for Vancouver, their future home.

McMartin—Guerin.

A pretty wedding was solemnized in the Sacred Heart church early yesterday morning, when Miss Blanche Guerin, daughter of the late Mr. Orid Guerin, of Peterborough, and Mr. Jas. McMartin of McMartinville, were united in marriage by Rev. Fr. McCauley.

Miss Alexina Desautel was bridesmaid, and the best man Mr. Oliver Guerin.

Mr. and Mrs. McMartin left on the morning train for Toronto and other points, and on their return will reside on Perry street, Peterborough.

A SUCCESSFUL AT-HOME.

Took Place in the New Murray St. Baptist Church.

A very enjoyable "At-Home" was held in the new Murray street Baptist church on Tuesday evening, when the new church was thoroughly inspected, the congregation of Park street church being invited. Between 500 and 600 were present.

During the evening Mr. T. F. Matthews was called to the chair, and addresses were given by Mayor Bradburn, Rev. Mr. Webb, Mr. Stratton, Mr. Dumble and Rev. Mr. Bonner, congratulating the church and the city upon the happy result of their enterprise in adding another and one of the finest, to the many fine churches of the city.

During the evening a musical program was presented including solos by Miss Kidd and Mr. A. Huycke.

A pleasant feature of the evening was the presentation to Mr. George Cochrane, in trust, of beautiful photographic portraits of Rev. J. R. Webb, pastor, and of Mr. T. F. Matthews, chairman of the building committee. The presentation was made through an address read by Dr. Scott in which an appreciative tribute was paid to Mr. Cochrane's zeal and interest in promoting the building of the new church. The portraits are to be permanently hung in the church parlor, and Mr. Cochrane is to be their custodian. The pictures are the work of Mr. Fred Roy, and each bears gold plates, indicating the part taken by Mr. Webb and Mr. Matthews in the building enterprise.

The delightful and interesting evening closed with refreshments served, by Coleman Bros., caterers, in the basement of the church.

DIFFERENT NOW.

Since the Slugger, Coffee, Was Abandoned.

Coffee probably causes more biliousness and so-called malaria than any one other thing—even bad climate. Tea is just as harmful as coffee because it contains caffeine, the drug in coffee.)

A Ft. Worth man says:

"I have always been of a bilious temperament, subject to malaria and up to one year ago a perfect slave to coffee. At times I would be covered with boils and malarial poison, was very nervous and had swimming in the head.

"I don't know how it happened, but I finally became convinced that my sickness was due to the use of coffee, and a little less than a year ago I stopped coffee and began drinking Postum.

"From that time I had not a boil, not had malaria at all, have gained 15 pounds good solid weight and know beyond all doubt this is due to the use of Postum in place of coffee as I have taken no medicine at all.

"Postum has certainly made healthy, red blood for me in place of the blood that coffee drinking impoverished and made unhealthy." Name given by Canadian Postum Co., of Windsor, Ont.

Postum makes red blood.

"There's a Reason," and it is explained in the little book, "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs.

Ever read the above letter? A new one appears from time to time. They are genuine, true, and full of human interest.

PINE TAR CORDIAL

NUGENT'S SARSAPARILLA—PRICE FOR large bottle, 100 full doses, 85c, and well worth it, too. There are so-called Sarsaparillas offered to us to sell to our customers at 75c a bottle that would bring us a larger profit than Nugent's Sarsaparilla sold at 85c. Nugent's Sarsaparilla purifies the blood, arouses the torpid liver, drives out all impurities, cleanses and tones up the system, and helps Nature throw off the dullness that comes from the indoor life of winter. It arouses energy, brightens the eye, clears the brain, gives lightness to the movements. Nugent's Sarsaparilla is not the only thing you will find in this drug store. We make a specialty of Nugent's Remedies. Nugent Drug Co., 380 George St. directly opposite Cressman's store.

GO TO FLORIDA FOR HEALTH AND wealth.—The question is asked me repeatedly: Why, if all that is claimed for the climate and earning capacity of the land in Florida is true, how is it that only a percentage of the State's area is under cultivation? It is a fair question, and the answer is a simple one. After the war between the North and the South Florida found herself in a deplorable condition financially. The State Government leased hundred of thousands of acres of its best prairie and timber lands for periods running as high as 66 years. This latter period tied up the great Kissimmee Prairie until recently. It is now, however, in the hands of a splendid colonization company, whose selling agent is the Hunter Land Company. Kissimmee Prairie is in the Southern portion of Osceola County, and is noted for its fertility and uniformity of soil. It is the healthiest spot in North America, and every day in the year is a growing day. Write for maps, illustrated literature, excursion particulars and any desired information. Address Alf. CHANGED THE PLAY.

Peter the Great Turned the Comedy Into a Tragedy.

It is related that Peter the Great, that mighty czar of Russia, strolling incognito through the camp, came upon a party of noncommissioned officers and grenadiers enacting a comedy, which he paused to witness.

All at once his brow became clouded. In the play a soldier in the uniform of his guard commits at a certain moment a robbery. Nevertheless the emperor allowed the play to proceed. The court martial is summoned on the stage and the thief is sentenced to death. The spectators, composed of officers and men, showed the most lively concern in the performance and laughed at the grotesque contortions of the condemned culprit. The amateur actor played his part very well. Here come the squad that is to execute him. "Fire!" orders the lieutenant, and the amateur dropped down dead, his heart pierced by seven bullets—no make believe, but dead indeed.

Whereupon the emperor dropped his incognito and addressed those assembled: "A soldier of my guard who committed a robbery must die. If he did not steal why did he boast of it and soil his uniform? It is I who ordered the loaded rifles given to the men. I henceforth forbid my soldiers to ply the trade of mummers."—Argonaut.

PHILADELPHIA SCRAPPLE.

How to Prepare This Inexpensive and Highly Nutritious Dish.

Have your butcher clean a pig's head and split it in halves. Put it into a stock pot and cover with boiling water. Cook until meat falls from the bones. Remove the meat, strain the liquor and set aside to cool. Remove most of the fat, all gristle and bones. Chop meat fine.

Remove fat from liquor, place on range, bring to boiling point, add meat and one pound of beef liver previously parboiled ten minutes and cut in very small pieces. Season with salt, pepper and sage to taste. Add one cupful of buckwheat mixed with one cupful of cornmeal, letting it slip through the fingers of the left hand while you stir briskly with the right. Thicken with cornmeal until mixture is the consistency of cornmeal mush. Stir until free from lumps. Remove to back of range and simmer two or three hours. Use a heavy vessel to cook the mixture in. This lessens the danger of scorching.

Pour mixture into brick shaped bread pans previously wet with cold water. When cold cut in half inch slices and saute in a well greased hot spider. Brown on both sides. Serve for breakfast or luncheon. This is an inexpensive dish and is highly nutritious and will keep several weeks in cold weather.—National Food Magazine.

High Living In Germany.

The Lokal Anzeiger of Berlin publishes an urgent appeal to German society leaders to return to "simple eating." It says that the luxury era in Germany has caused an extravagance in dining which threatens financial impoverishment and digestive ruin. Carlsbad, Marienbad, Kissingen and other spas which cater to the needs of "penitent gluttons" are, says the journal, visited by numbers, annually increasing, who go there in spring and summer to make amends for overeating and overdrinking in winter. "It would be a genuine public service on the part of leading society personages if they would begin by practical example to wage war on the sensual luxuriousness of modern entertaining, as far as the culinary end of it is concerned. Only by a return to simple and sensible dinners can we avert genuine economic and physical perils."

Streets of New York.

"Anything in the line of luck can happen in New York city," observed a commercial traveler recently, "and some of the funniest stunts are accidentally pulled off. I saw something the other day quicker done than told. An automobile was going down Broadway. A woman dropped a magazine or book from it. A man picked it up—a man worse for poverty. As the chauffeur turned the vehicle this man threw the magazine or book into it, and the woman tossed a coin at him. Another man, running down Broadway, caught the coin and continued running. The man who had lost his tip started to laugh, and soon Broadway was laughing with him, although not knowing what it was laughing at."—New York Tribune.

Flat Woes.

"Was there a telephone call for me this morning?" I asked the West Indian bellboy.

"No, sir," he answered positively. "Dey ain't been no such call fuh you fuh two days, sah."

"Are you sure?"

"Yes, sah, pos'tive."

"Well, if one comes for me this afternoon say I'll be in later."

"Yes, suh—what's yoush name, suh?"—Toledo Blade.

Slim Chance.

"Is there any chance of a young man escaping loss the first time he goes into Wall street?"

"Well, it is a toss up if he escapes the bulls and a tight squeeze if he gets away from the bears."—Baltimore American.

So She Does.

"Dog watches are common on ships, but what can a cat do?"

"She comes in handy for a purr, sir."—Baltimore American.

Frost.

White frost is the ordinary frozen dew or hoarfrost. Black frost occurs when the cold is so intense as to freeze vegetation and cause it to turn black without the formation of hoarfrost.

Her Influence Outlived Her.

"Why did the widower break his engagement to be married?"

"He feared that he hadn't picked out the kind of woman to suit his first wife."—New York Press.

LOSS OF THE QUEUES

EFFECT OF HAIR CUTTING UPON THE CHINESE.

Celestials Without Pigtails Are Now the Rule Rather Than the Exception and It Is Very Dangerous to Enter Streets of Canton With That Ornament In Place—It Is Advertising Fact of Upheaval.

The man who has been following the market in wigs ought to be a better judge of the Chinese revolution than any diplomatist or newspaper correspondent, writes William Maxwell to The London Daily Mail. He alone can say whether the million of Chinese who have cut off their pigtails have parted with them for good or are hiding them against the day when a pigtail will be again the mark of a patriot. For a pigtail is easily replaced—when you have it. Even in pre-revolutionary days some people were content to fix them to their hats so as not to appear denationalized in public places.

I confess that the Chinaman without his pigtail is a severe disappointment. He outrages my sense of the aesthetic properties. I had fancied that he would carry the sacrifice as gracefully as some of my Chinese friends in the European Legations. I overlooked the saving grace of European clothes—even of despised frock-coat and tophat. To my infinite displeasure I find that the Chinaman in long blue padded coats looks undignified without his pigtail. And when he adds to the outrage a cloth cap, which is the present fashion—well, he is just hideous.

But every reform demands its penalty. Our Puritan ancestors set this example to the Chinese, and the victorious soldiers of Cromwell did not disdain to be known by the gay Cavaliers as "crop-ears." They, too, laid their hair—and sometimes their heads—on the altar of their country. Doubtless we shall get accustomed to the spectacle of the mutilated Chinaman just as we have ceased to regret the flowing ambrosial locks of bonnie Prince Charlie. But the transition is painful and the Chinese do not help us to bear the shock, for they insist on changing their clothes as well as their Government.

It is amazing how swiftly the south has discovered that the queue is a badge of slavery and not a national ornament that distinguishes the heaven-born from the barbarian of Europe and America. Those who did not leap to this conversion by the light of nature have been generously assisted by organized bands armed with shears. The pigtail that ventures into the streets of Canton, Shanghai, Nanking, and a hundred other cities must belong to a man who is weary of life and the new republic.

Who started the movement. From my infancy, which was nurtured on Æsop's fables, I have ever suspected the fox who turned missionary after losing his tail. China may not be acquainted with the great fabulist, but she has antiquaries who are writing letters to the newspapers to prove that before the Manchu Dynasty three centuries ago no self-respecting Chinaman wore a pigtail. "Hair plaits and lapel buttons on the left" was for 2,000 years the popular and official description of the hated Tartar. When the Manchus overthrew the Mings they rewarded their Chinese adherents by imposing on them the shaven forehead and the queue instead of the "topknot" of the defunct Mings.

As soon as the Chinaman had time to forget how he came to possess this appendix he began to cherish it as a woman cherishes the bracelet which is an ancient mark of slavery. It became more than a personal ornament. It was a visible sign of race, setting him apart from the outer-barbarian and the foreign devils. For a Chinaman to lose his pigtail was to lose more than "face"; it was to reduce him to the level of the barbarian and to disgrace his ancestors.

By the way, I wonder if it is the pigtail that has saved the Chinese from the baldness that afflicts our own short-haired civilization? Until this very day I had never seen a bald-headed Chinaman, and the public spectacle brought my rickshaw boy to a dead stop in the crowded street. He had a vision of the future, and it paralysed him. I felt that the circumstance was favorable to candid confession, and asked him what he had done with his discarded pigtail. Had he sold it?

"Me keepee home," he replied, with a knowing leer.

Just as I suspected. There has been no "slump" in the wig markets of Europe and America. The Chinaman is keeping his pigtail, and is safe in any emergency, whether Republican or Imperialist. If the Republican cause prevails he will continue to be queueless; if the Imperialists are victorious, he will bring out his pigtail and tie it to his hat or to his growing locks.

An observant philosopher wandering through China might measure the degree of revolutionary fervor by the length of the people's hair. In Canton, where Republicanism is rampant and aggressive, every man and male child is closely cropped. Even the aged have had to adopt the short-haired fashion, for bands of amateur barbers whose shears are supplemented with rifles parade the streets hunting for queues. In Shanghai it is the same. But in Nanking, the headquarters and capital of the Republic, I notice that many of the common folk are a little shy of a barber. There are no queues, it is true, but hundreds of people are letting their hair grow longer and untidier every day. This may be no proof of want of sympathy with Republican institutions. It is probably nothing more than an insurance against the return of the governor who a few months ago was in the habit of making the head follow the lost pigtail. There are still people in Nanking who remember the fate of the queueless reformers who ventured into the city before it surrendered to the Republican army.

Life's Realities.

Women must wonder occasionally that they don't meet any men like the hero in a fashionable novel. And that can also be played the other way across.—Atchison Globe.

WM. J. BALDWIN, ESQ., Mayor of the Town of Aurora.
W. PERCY GILLESPIE, ESQ., W. Percy Gillespie & Co., Investment Brokers, Toronto, Ont.

In offering these shares for investment, we feel that we are inviting the public to purchase stock in an industry in which the profits are very large, and the demand for the product is ever increasing.

It is a well known fact that the shares of our Canadian Tanneries are very closely held, and the public seldom have an opportunity of procuring any.

On March 11th, 1912, the Burgesses of the Town of Aurora voted in favor of granting The Collis Leather Company, Limited, a cash bonus of Ten Thousand Dollars, the Company's property is exempt from Taxation for Ten Years (except school tax) and it has also been granted water from the Town free for all time.

The factory is now under construction, to be completed on or before the 1st Day of July, 1912, and will be 150 feet long by 50 feet wide, and four storys high.

The Company's specialty will be the manufacture of calf leather.

Mr. Walter Collis has had over Thirty Years' experience as a tanner, and thoroughly understands all departments of the business. Mr. Collis will have direct charge of the Tannery.

The capacity of the factory will be Eighteen Hundred calfskins per day, or an average of Eighteen Thousand Feet per day. A most conservative estimate of the net profit is one-half cents per foot.

Estimated Net Profits:

18,000 ft. per day, one-half cent per foot, $90.00, with 300 working days per year ...	$27,000.00
Less business insurance and depreciation per year	7,000.00
Or approximately 20 per cent on entire issued capital.	$20,000.00

The Company has purchased from Mr. Collis all his Tanning formula, and will issue in payment thereof One Hundred shares of fully paid up stock.

Of the total amount of shares offered for sale, the Directors have subscribed for more than one-third.

The terms are 25 per cent on application, 25 per cent in Thirty, 25 per cent in Sixty, and 25 per cent in Ninety days.

We reserve the right to allot only such applications, and for such amounts as may be approved · the application lists may be closed without notice.

THE WRIGHT BROTHERS.

Just as Stephenson, the English country boy, foreman and engineer, invented in the "Rocket" the main principles of the steam locomotive, so Wilbur and Orville Wright, bicycle makers, country bred in Ohio, brought together in their biplane the cardinal features upon which all subsequent variations in flying machines depend. The great "Mogul" locomotive, which hauls up-grade on western roads a freight train half a mile long, is merely a highly differentiated "Rocket."

The swiftest monoplane of to-day is a monoplane and not a biplane, simply because its high speed engines make the super-imposed planes of the Wrights unnecessary for its support. Stephenson ran no risk of life in developing a locomotive from a stationary engine. It was more like progression than invention. He was laughed at, and discouraged by those who should have aided; but pluck won. The Wright brothers attacked a problem which had countless times been abandoned by others. The world had come to regard a man who talked of flying like a bird as unworthy of further serious conversation. The very nature of the problem called on them to risk life and limb for two or three years, often many times a day. Their first gliding flights at Kitty Hawk, in October, 1903, were made with a cautious regard for safety, a deliberation in experimenting, that has always been their formula for work. In December of the same year they tried a motor on their biplane glider, for by this time the questions of lateral and fore and aft equilibrium had been solved. From this moment progress was rapid. The world heard little about it; the press of the country took no notice of the daily flights that these men were making at Dayton, O., almost every pleasant day. Did this indicate the depth of incredulity? So far as the Wrights were concerned they cared little, and, in fact, invited no comment while waiting for patents to be granted. It was not until 1906 that they obtained any patent protection. In the mean time the jibes of their neighbors had ceased. The endless, disheartening failures were behind them. They had flown! They had buffeted strong winds and rain without personal injury of any kind.

PROTECTED TO DEATH

America seems to have an overdose of protection. Their fearsome duties have driven the American flag from the seas except for United States coast wise trade. The leading newspaper of New Orleans, in this respect, says:

A few days ago the New York papers published a dispatch from London to the effect that on May 8 a strange fact developed and it was that not a single merchant vessel flying the Stars and Stripes had arrived on the Thames from foreign ports for a year.

"Obviously enough," says The Brooklyn Citizen, "there is some force acting destructively upon the ocean-going traffic of the United States. There is no possibility of any such result as the dispatch calls attention to being due to either accident or lack of capacity on the part of our American merchants and seamen. Wherever the American is placed in fair competition with other men, he distinguishes himself for efficiency. He has a high capacity for engineering, his men of war are excelled by those of no other country, and the condition of our lake and seaboard shipping speaks to the same pleading purpose. Why then is it that the American commerce and passenger carrier has practically disappeared from the inter-ocean trade?"

That question was answered a short time ago by Rear Admiral Chadwick when he said that "our merchant marine has been protected to death, literally," and there is no hope of reviving it until the policy responsible for its condition is abandoned. As a matter of fact the protective tariff has increased the cost of American ships to nearly double what it is in England, and at the same time has added greatly to the cost of operating them, while prohibiting an American to buy his ships abroad, or to sail them under the American flag on the same terms that the English ship-owners are granted.

A WOMAN'S CARES DESTRUCTIVE TO HEALTH

ANAEMIA, BAD BLOOD, HEADACHES AND LASSITUDE VERY COMMON.

Mrs. Wilkinson's Letter Gives Advice that Every Mother Can Well Follow

From her home in Newton, where she resides with her large family Mrs Wilkinson writes: "For years I was pale, anaemic and lacking in vitality. I was a constant sufferer from indigestion, and the distressand pain it caused me, coupled with ever increasing anaemia, made me weaker day by day. Constant headaches, specks before the eyes, and attacks of dizziness made me feel as if life were not worth living. My constitution was completely undermined and the constant pallor and dullness in my eyes showed what a sick woman I was. I began to take Dr. Hamilton's pills and the improvement, although slow was sure.

"I gradually got back my strength and my appetite grew much stronger and I enjoyed my meals thoroughly. I felt happier and more contented, and the sickly pallor of my face was replaced by a bright, rosy color that proved that a strong medicine was at work. In a few months Dr. Hamilton's Pills brought me from a condition of deathly pallor to robust health."

You can obtain the same results by using Dr. Hamilton's Pills—beware of the substitutor that offers you anything except Dr. Hamilton's Pills, 25 cents per box, or five boxes for $1.00. at all dealers or the Catarrhozone Co., Buffalo, N.Y., and Kingston, Ont.

This is what ails our merchant marine, and the way to restore the American flag to the high seas is to repeal the restraints put upon our merchants and ship-owners in the interest of the highly favored shipbuilders.

PROTECTING THE PACKERS

From the point of view of the American meat packers and of Secretary Wilson and Solicitor McCabe the investigation now being conducted by the Moss committee should stop at once. But the inquiry must go on and into the activities of McCabe, in order to ascertain the reasons for his influence upon Secretary Wilson and the power that enables him to keep his place.

The country realizes that the proper inspection of food by the Department of Agriculture is not a political question, but a matter of the utmost importance to the health of the public. But in spite of this fact Secretary Wilson admits that he allowed 6,000,000 tainted carcasses to pass his department's inspection on the ground that to enforce the law would mean an enormous ~~money~~ loss and a hardship upon those who produced and sold the diseased animals.

He did not, however, manifest any concern for "the enormous" loss of human life or the "hardships" that may follow his failure to enforce the law. To permit the sale of tainted meat is criminal and to label it as "U. S. Inspected," is a lie. Most people will agree that tainted meat is much more dangerous than tainted money, and it is not the business of the Agricultural Department to add to the tainted money holdings of the men who deal in tainted meat.

Secretary Wilson is paid to protect the public and not to protect the packers, but as he seems to be unable to understand this fact the public have the right to demand that his job be given to some man who will do his duty instead of playing politics of a kind to discredit the administration of which he is a member.

Editorial Notes

Little old New York will probably worry along, provided the bartenders do not go on strike and walk out in a body.

It cannot be said that the portrait bust of Sir Wilfrid Laurier in the new Chateau is a flattering likeness of the right hon. gentleman.

The Italian premier predicts that the end of the war with Turkey draws near. He couples the prediction with the threat that unless Turkey submits, Italy will commence fighting in real earnest. This is a curious statement.

Land sales by the Calgary and Edmonton Land Co., in 1911 covered only 8,432 acres, compared with 12,281 in 1910; but the average price rose from $9.34 to $13.20 per acre. Mineral lands sales advanced from 129 to 3,909 acres, and the price from $1,935 to $58,490.

Coal dealers have not yet announced the price of anthracite coal for June. As the miners get an advance in wages of a little more than 5 per cent. under the new agreement, no summer discount, which ordinarily would be 30c during the month of June, is looked for this year.

According to reports, the Calgary School Board has decided to issue $800,000 school building and $175,000 site purchase 4½ per cent. 40-year debentures. The election held resulted in favor of the proposition to issue the $900,000 drainage system, $88,000 street improvement and $95,000 cemeteries and park debentures.

President H. Leone Miller, Salina, Kan., of the Winnipeg Salina and Gulf Railway, referring to the reported sale of bonds in Paris and London, writes: "We are fully assured by cablegram that our entire issue of bonds, amounting to $29,997,000, has been sold, and that the money will be paid in six equal parts, quarterly.

June interest and dividend disbursements by the railroad, industrial and traction companies in the United States are estimated at $97,707,000, as compared with $93,042,000 in the corresponding month last year. Disbursements by industrial companies in dividends will be about $2,000,000 less and by railroad companies about $800,000 more.

Now that the Chateau Laurier has been formally opened and its interior and exterior beauties can be appreciated by the public, perhaps some of the shortsighted people who denounced The Citizen for supporting the project for the erection of a $1,500,000 "eyesore" on the corner of Major's Hill Park, will feel inclined to admit that they were mistaken.

A new oil-burning vessel, the Indian, which will go into service on the Great Lakes as a freight-carrier, is nearing completion in the yards of the Clyde Shipbuilding Co. at Port Glasgow, Scotland, and will during the summer leave, under her own power, for America, just as the Toiler, a somewhat similar vessel for a like purpose, did last year. The oil engine has thoroughly established itself in favor on the Great Lakes, and the performance of the Toiler have been highly satisfactory.

HOW ENGLISH BEAUTIES KEEP FACES YOUTHFUL

Christian Miller, F. C. I., noted English health expert, attributes the early aging of American women mainly to the "national nervousness." The women of England, she says, can teach us the inestimable lesson of repose.

Another valuable lesson to be learned from the English woman is that she does not go in much for cosmetics, the continual use of which must ruin any complexion. The beauty devotees of King George's realm have the mercolized wax habit, a more wholesome method of keeping the face girlish-looking and healthy. Ordinarily mercolized wax, used like cold cream, rejuvenates the worst complexion. American women may easily acquire the habit, this wax being obtainable at drug stores generally in the United States. It is applied at night and washed off in the morning. One ounce is sufficient to completely renovate a bad complexion. It has a peculiar action in keeping the face free from the particles of dead and devitalized scarf skin, which are constantly appearing. —Women's Herald

THOUSANDS SEE GREAT CIRCUS

Big Tent Filled All Afternoon and Evening and Howe's Show Pleases All.

BEAUTIFUL HORSES A PLEASING FEATURE

Thrilling Performances of Acrobats—Every Act Clear and Clever.

St. Thomas, Ont., June 5.—Howe's Great London Circus, one of the greatest of the tented amusements found a substantial welcome in this city on Friday.

The big show came in on the C.M. R. lines from the west and commenced unloading at five a.m., many men, women and children witnessing the first procedure, which occupied the greater part of five hours time.

The customary parade, over a mile and a half in length, moved out on Talbot street, between lines of people, from far and near at 11.30 a.m. and the neat and well-arranged procession met all expectations, high though they were. Even the flame-buoyant circus bills posted in every available billboard and fence fell short of doing justice to the Howe's great enterprise, and it will always find a rousing welcome awaiting it in future years if its reception Friday was any criterion.

About 8,000 people turned out for the two big performances, afternoon and night.

The exhibition was of a very high standard and every act was clean and high-class.

As usual the clowns were about the first to start the afternoon's fun and their antics caused many side-splitting laughs, their work being purely of a fun-making variety.

There was an unusual display of horse flesh, and the equine acts have perhaps never been excelled in this city. Among the many were Arabian Beauties, Kentucky thoroughbreds, and English hunters. Dockrill, riding Rosedale, a blazing jet black English hunter of fine proportions was given a splendid reception. Rosedale, some will remember, was a leading feature of Barnum and Bailey's show for years. He has gained in intelligence and gracefulness of late and seemed to do everything but talk.

The performance of the Uyeno troupe of Japanese acrobats who have no peers in America, was exceptionally good. They went through their acts without a hitch, their seemingly impossible stunts on the swing and wire drawing round upon round of applause.

The Cahill troupe of three ladies—three daredevils some were heard to remark—have one of the most thrilling acts ever seen under a big tent in this city. ~~The~~ The audience simply shivered while they suspended on a revolving swing in mid-air, hanging by their teeth and did contortion feats that are regarded as wonderful when performed on terra firma.

There were many other meritorious acts upon the program such as balancing trapeze acts, tumbling feats, bareback riding, races, etc., which served to greatly please the large crowds.

It might be mentioned that the big enterprise carries its own Pullman sleepers, dining cars, where 1500 meals are served daily, laundry, general store, two blacksmith shops, paint shop, gas plant, harness shop, carpenter shop, tailor, dentist, two doctors, lawyer, three detectives and an attorney.

FIFTEEN YEARS OLD TO DIE

Youthful Murderer of Judge Thornton May Go to Electric Chair

Wytheville, Va., June 3.—After deliberating two hours and a half, the jury in the case of Claude Swanson Allen Saturday afternoon found the young man guilty of murder in the second degree for the killing of Judge Thornton L. Massie and recommended that his punishment be fixed at fifteen years in the state penitentiary at Richmond. Sentence was suspended in order that the prisoner may testify in the other cases growing out of the shooting up of Carroll County Court on March 14 last when five persons met their death at the hands of the Allen clan.

The verdict rendered Saturday does not mean that Claude Allen has escaped the electric chair. Four other indictments against him are pending on any one of which it is possible he may be found guilty of first degree murder and the prosecution taking advantage of this fact sprung a surprise on the defense when it announced that it would next go into the trial of Claude Allen for the murder of Sheriff Webb. The defence raised objection to this, and the objection will be argued and passed upon when court reconvenes July 1st.

Judge Staples gave instructions for the summoning of a venire to report on July 2, and remarked that he did not believe a jury could be secured from Wytheville County. The prosecution immediately moved a venire be summoned from another county, the defense objecting. After witnesses had been examined as to the probability of another jury being secured in Wytheville the court ordered a venire of one hundred to be summoned from Washington county.

The case went to the jury at 2:30 Saturday afternoon and the first ballot stood nine for second degree murder, two for first degree and one for manslaughter. The second ballot was unanimous.

Just before adjournment Judge Staples ordered that the prisoners be taken to the Roanoke jail pending the reconvening of Wytheville County Court and five of them left Saturday night under a guard of detective. Byrd Marion did not accompany them, being again released Saturday under a thousand dollar bond.

Wild Ride Over Mountains When Doctor is Bitten by Rattlesnake.

Hood River, Or., June 3.—His life saved by a wild ride over a rough mountain road, Dr. J. M. Waugh today is recovering from a rattlesnake bite received while he was in the hills alone.

The reptile's fangs, after sinking into the flesh of his arm, still held in his coat sleeve, and he had to seize the snake with his free hand and hurl it from him.

After cutting the wound and allowing it to bleed, he started his horse on a gallop for White Salmon, where his wound was attended to.

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

Literary Taste.

"Say," remarked the hasty individual to the young woman in the book department, "have you a novel about a girl with slate-colored eyes?"

"I don't recall one just now," she said, "but we have a very good novel by Harold Grinders about a girl with tawny hair."

"Is her picture on the cover?"

"Yes, sir; drawn by James Montgomery Twisty."

"Well, gimme that."

The Rocky Road.

"Some of those railway roadbeds are pretty rough," the commercial traveler remarked. "I remember on one occasion ordering some fried eggs for breakfast in the dining car. After I'd waited awhile the colored waiter returned and said: 'Sorry 'bout dem fried aigs, boss. De cook says de road's so rough dat ebery time he tries to fry aigs dey scrambles'."

Something Like a Coat.

A remarkable coat was that of Mr. Bright, an Essex (Eng.) grocer, who scaled 616 lbs. His size was such that the coat could easily be buttoned round seven full-grown men. Mr. Bright was one of the heaviest men ever born, and Daniel Lambert only beat him by 31 lbs.

THE KOLA NUT IN AFRICA.

It Plays an Important Part in the Lives of the Natives.

In the parts of Africa where it grows the kola nut is much esteemed by the natives on account of its stimulating and other properties, and it occupies a large place in African legends, as well as in ceremonies and cults. These tribes have been aware of its power as a stimulant from time immemorial, and it is also used as a remedy for marsh fever and other maladies.

It is used as a pledge of friendship or affection, as an offering to fetich men and also as money or for paying tribute. In the Bambara and other regions a young man sends a basket of white and red kola nuts to the father of a young woman whom he desires to marry. If the father consents he keeps all the nuts, but if not he keeps the white ones and returns the red.

The kola tree is much respected, and the belief is strong among the natives that if one of them plucks a flower it will bring him bad luck. Among the Bagas a tree is planted at each birth or notable occasion. In the Diorugu region when a chief goes through the ceremony of naming his child he plants a kola tree, and this afterward belongs to the child.

In the whole of the Sudan region the kola nut is a symbol of friendship, and as it is an article of luxury the act of offering it as a gift is taken as a mark of the wealth of the giver. Eating the kola nut together is a sign of friendship, and it would be a great offense to refuse to do this. Treaties, vows or compacts are made binding in the same way.—Chicago News.

A HUSBAND'S DUTY

He Owes It to His Family to Have His House In Order.

PROVISION FOR THE FUTURE.

A Few Very Sensible and Very Practical Suggestions to the Man Who Doesn't Stop to Think About What May Happen When He Is Gone.

There are any number of men who are the most indulgent of husbands and fathers, providing a good living for their families and who yet live up to the limit of their incomes, with never a thought for the future and never an effort to protect their loved ones and their homes in case of their death.

To such men, as well as to those who are provident, but who keep putting off the arrangement of their business affairs to meet such an emergency, the following sensible suggestions by Willis Frederick Dix in the New York Independent may be of interest:

Is your house really in order? Outwardly, perhaps, yes, since your wife is a good housekeeper, but how about your own personal affairs? Your lawyer has perhaps drawn your will for you, and your personal accounts are businesslike, but have you looked that will over recently, and in the case of your death is there some one in your household who is sufficiently familiar with your account book to understand your system?

Have you tried to imagine just what condition would exist in your family immediately after your death, and have you carefully provided for that condition? These and a number of similar questions must be answered satisfactorily before you can say that your house is really in order.

The following are a few practical suggestions which, if you think them over and act upon them, may be the means of saving you or your family from some seriously inconvenient plight or actual trouble and loss.

First of all, make a point of keeping your wife (or some member of your household) familiar with your system of personal accounts. Let her know where your safety deposit box is, where you keep the key, where your letter file relating to these business matters is kept and just what your relation to your business is. You know it is quite possible that you will die sometime.

Keep your fire insurance policies in your safety deposit box, where they will not be burned with your house, and keep in the same package with them, plans and specifications of your house, so that the fire insurance companies can know definitely just how much it would cost to replace it. With your furniture insurance policy keep a detailed inventory of your household effects, with statement of their values. It would be impossible for you to do this from memory after the goods have been destroyed, and much needless trouble would necessarily ensue without such a list. And do not rely wholly upon your agent to renew your policies as they expire. Keep a list of the dates of expiry in your account book, where you will see them frequently.

Suppose you should be run over and killed today. Have you looked into the law of your state to ascertain whether or not your safety box would be sealed, and if it would be sealed are there any documents in it which your family would need before it were officially opened by your executors in the presence of a state officer? Your executors may take a year to settle up your estate. How about ready money for the use of your family?

When a man draws up his will it is seldom that he appreciates the fact that his cash in bank and the interest accrued on his investments up to the date of his death become principal and cannot be used by his family to pay their current expenses following his death.

An excellent way for a man to be sure that his family, upon his death, will have ready money at once, free from all complications, is to take out, in addition to his regular insurance, a policy for say $1,000 or $2,000 in favor of his wife or some member of his family.

This sum will have nothing to do with the legal formalities necessary in connection with the settling up of the estate and can be immediately collected and put in use.

Pistoles and Doubloons.

The pistole was much used in Spain and Italy. Originally equivalent to about eleven old French livres, until about 1730 it seems to have been merely an irregular piece of gold. In common with the moidore, the sequin and the doubloon its value varied at different times and in different countries, usually being, however, about $3.75.

A Southern Antidote.

If Americans need an antidote for restlessness they can find it among the mountaineers of the south. It is said that when a native is asked to hurry he replies, "Don't forget there's a whole day tomorrow 'tain't been tetched yet."—Detroit Free Press.

Dutch Etiquette.

In Holland etiquette demands that an unmarried woman walk on the right of her escort, while a married woman takes her husband's left arm.

Lost time is never found again, and what we call time enough always proves little enough.

DOOMED BY THEIR BOOKS.

Some of the Authors Who Wrote Their Own Death Warrants.

In 1850 an Austrian pamphleteer named Teiki was shot at Gratz for writing and publishing a book reflecting on the good faith of Count Buol, the Foreign Minister. The work was published at 9 o'clock in the morning, at 10 it was ordered to be suppressed, half an hour later the unhappy author was being tried by drumhead court-martial, and before noon he had been pronounced guilty and executed.

Napoleon gave equally short shrift to writers who offended him, shooting some and hanging others with scarcely even the form of trial. One of the most notorious of these judicial murders was that perpetrated at the expense of poor Palm, a Nurnberg publisher, who was shot because he refused to give up the name of the author of a book attacking the usurper. Later the Bourbons had troublesome authors quietly "removed" by hired assassins. After this fashion died the gifted Paul Courier, whose foul murder on April 10, 1825, aroused to fury all lovers of liberty.

Edward Kelly, the friend and champion of Dr. Dee, had his ears cut off at Manchester for writing in defence of that notorious magician.

Daniel Defoe narrowly escaped a similar fate for his "Short Way With the Dissenters," and, as it was, he was three times stood in the pillory, besides suffering all the horrors then incidental to a long imprisonment in Newgate.

A sorry fate befell John Williams, who foolishly sent two samples of spring poetry to King James I.

For safety the unhappy poet inclosed the verses in an iron box, and James, who always feared assassination, jumped to the conclusion that the latter contained some sort of an infernal machine.

When the real nature of the contents came to light the timorous monarch and his counsellors became the laughing-stock of England, and James in revenge caused the unfortunate Williams to be hanged, drawn and quartered.

The Saw of the Mosquito.

The bill of the mosquito is a complex institution. It has a blunt fork at the head and is apparently grooved. Working through the groove and projecting from the angle of the fork is a lance of perfect form sharpened with a fine bevel. Besides it the most perfect lance looks like a band saw. On either side of the lance two saws are arranged, with the points fine and sharp and the teeth well defined and keen. The backs of these saws play against the lance. When the mosquito alights, with its peculiar hum, it thrusts its keen lance and then enlarges the aperture with the two saws, which play beside the lance until the forked bill with its capillary arrangement for pumping the blood can be inserted. The sawing process is what grates upon the nerves of the victim.

The Worst In the Country.

"Are you the landlord of this hotel?" asked the guest who had his baggage on the porch.

"I guess I be," answered the man with pale eyes.

"Well, I want to hand this little sentiment to you. Your hotel is positively the worst I have ever seen in this country, and I've traveled all over it."

"I know it," answered the landlord. "And I have a kinder pride in it. Lemme tell you something about it. Every time we git beat outer a board bill it's sure some satisfaction to know that we got the best of the feller that done it."

Heat From the Moon.

The moon is made of material supposed to be stone, since its specific gravity is about that of the rocks within reach here on earth. It reflects the light it receives from the sun to the earth, but in greatly weakened proportion. Therefore this light will affect plants in the same ratio. The effect is very small indeed. Heat energy sent from the sun to the moon is very nearly the same as that radiated to the earth, but the quantity sent from the moon to the earth is so small that it is negligible.

ADVERTISE IN THE TIMES.

KEATS' LOVE AFFAIR.

It Was But Another Disaster of the Last Days of the Poet's Life.

Keats' way of love was by no means a way of happiness. The object of his passion was a Miss Fanny Brawne, whom he had the fortune or misfortune to meet at the Dilkes' house. She has become fairly well known in Keats' bibliography as "a brisk and blooming very young beauty of the far from uncommon English hawk blood type."

Her affection for Keats seems to have been real, but limited by a rather shallow emotional capacity. His for her was enfevered with doubts and questionings not only about the reality of his feeling toward her, but about his failing health and his uncertain prospects. Disease had already weakened him when he met her, and between the fire of disease and the fire of love his vitality was rapidly consumed. Love proved to be but another disaster to heighten the tragic suffering of the last eighteen months of his life.

When, finally, he went to Rome, accompanied by the artist, Joseph Severn, he turned his back on love along with the rest of life. He died in February, 1821, and was buried in the Protestant cemetery, a place made so beautiful by the flowers that grow there the year through that it makes one "in love with death to think one should be buried in so sweet a place," as Shelley wrote not long before he, too, died.—New York Post.

Musical Conductors.

It is a significant fact that most of the great conductors have spent their apprentice years in mastering some solo instrument which they have used as a stepping stone to the broader and ultimate work of conducting an orchestra. Arthur Nikisch was at the beginning of his career a violinist in the royal orchestra at Vienna; Richard Strauss made his formal debut not only as leader of the Meininger orchestra, but as a pianist also, playing a concerto by Mozart. Felix Weingartner, Dr. Muck, Emil Paur, Rothwell and Oberhoffer were first pianists of distinction before becoming conductors. This list could also be carried back to Hans von Bulow, the prince of pianists and conductors, and to Felix Mendelssohn, who inaugurated the famous Gewandhaus concerts.

Spoiled the Sport.

A gentleman from London was invited to go for "a day's snipe shooting," in the country. The invitation was accepted, and host and guest shouldered guns and sallied forth in quest of game.

After a time a solitary snipe rose and promptly fell to the visitor's first barrel.

The host's face fell also.

"We may as well return," he remarked gloomily, "for that was the only snipe in the neighborhood."

The bird had afforded excellent sport to all his friends for six weeks.—London Answers.

He Was Sarcastic.

Clerk (to woman who has fingered over everything in the store without buying anything)—Excuse me, madam, but are you shopping here? Customer—Certainly. What would I be doing? Clerk—I thought perhaps you might be taking an inventory.—Woman's Home Companion.

THERE WAS NO ANSWER.

The Welsh Member's Question Was a Puzzle to Parliament.

Some years ago a question was under discussion in parliament as to the need of having county court judges in Wales who could speak the Welsh language. Some of the English members contended that there was not the slightest necessity for it. An English speaking judge would in all cases do exactly as well as a native, they said. Mr. Abraham, a Welsh member, hearing this, at once sprang to his feet.

"Very well," said he; "let us consider the matter. Here we are in the county courthouse at Ynyzymaengwyn. I'm the plaintiff. The attorney general is the county court judge. He, in the course of the case, asks me if I am prepared to swear that the boots delivered to the defendant, for the price of which I sue, were rights and lefts, or both lefts, as the defendant alleges.

"That is a delicate question which I, with my partial knowledge of English, do not trust myself to answer except in my native tongue. Therefore I say:

"'Cymmer daubwech, ar gwastad clawdd llueet twich; pen-dre pistyll bwlch dwy hafodtai lech wedd Yspytty?'

"Now," he thundered, while the house held its breath and a cloud of embarrassment stole over the face of the disturbed but very attentive attorney general, "what does the honorable and learned gentleman say to that?"

The honorable and learned gentleman had no further objection to make. —London Globe.

HARDY SERI INDIANS.

They Can Outrun a Horse and Go For Days Without Food.

From an ethnological standpoint one of the strangest peoples in the western hemisphere is that tribe known as the Seri Indians, living in the western part of the state of Sonora, Mexico, along the shore of the gulf of California and on the island of Tiburon in that gulf.

From time immemorial Seriland has remained practically unexplored, partly because it lies behind a desert barrier and partly on account of the warlike reputation of its fierce and bloodthirsty inhabitants.

These Indians are of superb physique, able to run down fleet game and to capture half wild Mexican horses without rope or projectiles; able to run across the desert, waterless and foodless, so rapidly as to escape pursuing horsemen; able to abstain from food and water for days; able habitually to pass barefoot through cactus thickets and over jagged rock slopes without thought of discomfort.

They speak a distinct language and strictly practice monogamous marriage. Their hatred for alien peoples is hereditary. The remains of ancient ruins in Seriland indicate that the inhabitants have always kept their country free from foreign invasion and that for centuries their customs and arts, which are crude and simple, have remained unchanged. —Detroit Free Press.

The Latin of It.

There is in a certain city a lady librarian with a fondness for Latin phrases that sometimes require more than a knowledge of Latin to fathom. Recently a visitor to the library inquired pleasantly how she had spent her vacation, to which the lady librarian replied idly, "Oh, I just took a little jaunt up to New York via train and came home vice versa."

"You returned—how?" gasped the visitor.

"Vice versa," repeated the lady librarian blandly. "By steamer, don't you know?"—Philadelphia Saturday Evening Post.

Vouched For.

Here's a conversation we actually overheard:

"Hello, Jim! How are you? Fine. How's your old friend James?"

"Doing nicely. He's gone in for a course in health culture."

"That so? Well, he can stand it. He always did have a magnificent constitution."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Nothing Left.

Stricken with remorse at his own rapacity, the taxicab driver said to the departing passenger:

"Sure you didn't leave anything in the cab?"

"No," said the man sadly, "I gave it all to you."—New York Press.

The Limit.

"He has a remarkable gift of self concentration, I am told."

"Yes, indeed! Why, he could sit and play solitaire in a woman's convention club."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

LAWS OF WAR.

Rules That Govern the Civilized Powers of the World.

As at present formulated by the civilized powers of the world, the "laws of war" forbid the use of poison against the enemy; murder by treachery, as, for example, assuming the uniforms or displaying the flags of foes; the murder of those who have surrendered, whether upon condition or at discretion; declarations that no quarter will be given to an enemy; the use of such arms or projectiles as will cause unnecessary pain or suffering to an enemy; the abuse of a flag of truce to gain information concerning an enemy's position; all unnecessary destruction of property, whether public or private.

These laws also assert that only fortified places shall be besieged, open cities or villages not to be subject to siege or bombardment; that public buildings of whatever character, whether belonging to state or church, shall be spared; that plundering by private soldiers or their officers shall be considered inadmissible; that prisoners shall be treated with common humanity; that the personal effects and private property of prisoners, except their arms and ammunition, shall be respected; that the population of an enemy's country shall be considered exempt from participation in the war unless by hostile acts they provoke the ill will of the enemy.—New York Press.

SHARING THE SORROW.

A Kindly Custom of the Arabs When a Baby Dies.

"Arabs east of the Jordan have a custom which shows a kindly feeling one toward another," writes a traveler. "If a man's horse dies (next to his eldest son, his best companion) his neighbor will bring in another horse and put it in the stall of the dead one and allow it to remain seven days, thinking in some measure to make up for the loss of the dead animal.

"The women also do something similar when a baby dies. A relation or friend will give the bereaved mother her own baby to nurse and care for during seven days. In that time the parent is supposed to become reconciled to her loss.

"Memory calls up a touching incident that occurred in our domestic life in Moab. Soon after our advent into that land my wife had the misfortune to lose a little one. It soon became known, and the women were very grieved about it. A day or two after a young chief that had always been kindly disposed toward us presented himself at our door. I asked him in. He entered and from under his cloak brought a tiny white lamb. He put it into my wife's arms, saying: 'I'm sorry for your loss and if I had a baby would have lent it to you to care for until you had got over your grief. I had this lamb, so have brought it for you to look after, feed and care for.'"

Buried Forests.

A writer in Gardiners' (London) Chronicle, describing the Kauri forests on the west coast of New Zealand, says that in places they have buried forests beneath them. It seems incredible that trees roughly estimated at 2,000 years old should have other still older trees under them. The sap wood of these buried trees quickly goes to dust, but the heart wood is perfectly sound, and much capital is invested by sawmills in getting the wood out. Kauri gum, which is now used extensively for special varnishes and other branches of the mechanic arts, is the product of these trees and is dug up like a mineral from swampy land where the trees have been buried and disappeared through ages of decay. The Kauri (Dammara australis) is a species of fir and a very valuable timber tree.

Probably So.

"What do you suppose is the real story of Danae's being killed by Jupiter with a shower of gold?"

"Oh, I suppose some husband in those days suddenly showed his wife enough real money to get a decent spring outfit and the shock brought on heart failure."

One of the Fallacies.

Clerk—As I am about to get married, I came to ask if you would not give me an increase of salary.

Employer—My dear sir, that is not necessary. You know, a young man always saves money by marrying.

Blooms Under Swiss Snow.

The soldanellas of the high Alpine meadows of Switzerland bore their way up through the coating of ice and snow by means of heat generated by the growing stem. Quite commonly, if the layer of snow is very thick, the flower will open without ever reaching the surface at all. The blossom is in no way affected by its strange surroundings. The space round the stem is, of course, thawed by the growing stem, which gives out heat.

CITY AND DISTRICT

DASHES HERE AND THERE BY TIMES REPORTERS.

Girls Wanted.

Girls Wanted by the Canadian General Electric Co. D—146.

Extra Police To-day.

The Chief of Police was authorized to employ special constables for today, on account of the circus.

A Liquor Case.

At the Police Court yesterday, a youth was fined $12.60 for giving liquor to a younger companion. He was given ten days in which to pay the fine.

Mr. W. F. Reason Honored.

A very pleasing event occurred at Marathon Lodge, No. 39, Knights of Pythias on Tuesday evening, in which Mr. W. F. Reason was made the object of a presentation, accompanied by a handsome pipe and case, the occasion being the eve of his departure for Woodstock.

Caterpillars Galore.

The attention of the Times was called to the trees standing immediately South of East Inverlea Park. The branches are fairly laden with caterpillar nests, with worms sufficient to stock a township. Steps should be taken at once to have the trees cleaned.

A Good Appointment.

Mr. G. C. Wainwright, manager of the Bank of Ottawa here, was in Ottawa this week, attending the meeting of the Canadian Peace Centenary Association which met in session in that city. He has been appointed a member of the committee chosen to represent Ontario.

New Counties' Directory.

Mr. W. H. Morrey, of the Union Publishing Company, Ingersoll, is in the city in connection with the new directory which the company are issuing of the counties of Peterborough Victoria, Haliburton, Hastings, and Northumberland and Durham.

Simcoe Street Gateman.

Mr. John McGinty has entered upon his duties as gateman at the G. T.R. crossing, Simcoe street. Mr. and Mrs. McGinty have moved to Peterborough from Omemee. For over fifty years they lived in the same home in Omemee and became acquainted with many local people. Mr. and Mrs. McGinty will reside at 362 Hunter street.

An Automobile Parade.

Mr. A. H. Stratton, who is always foremost in such matters, has suggested a good feature for the big Dominion Day celebration which is being arranged. It is to hold a gorgeous automobile procession in which all the automobiles in the city and district be asked to take part. Mr. Stratton, who is President of the Peterborough Automobile Association, is just the one to make this feature a success.

Sturgeon Point to Boom.

Lindsay Warder: A well known local citizen who spends considerable time at Stusgeon Point stated this morning that the popular summer resort would be largely patronized this season. Already a number of cottagers are filling up and it is expected that when school stops the cottagers will flock to the point in large numbers. The pretty summer resort is looking at her best at the present time, everything being out in bloom.

The Late Frank Flood.

The Times has received the following letter from an Apsley subscriber "There is an error in the statement in your local papers re death of John Flood. He was working in one of the summer camps for the Peterborough Lumber Co. He was quite well the night he died, partaking of his supper as usual. About 11.30 p.m. he awakened his companions and said he was ill. He complained of pains in his chest. He rapidly grew worse, and died about 1 o'clock a.m. Was ill only about 1½ hours. Death attributed to heart failure."

Expressions of Thanks.

Mrs. L. M. Hayes and Mrs. (Dr.) McNulty, of the Summer Fair, wish to greatly thank the following who donated towards the success of their booth: Mrs. Zepp, Turnbull & Co., Messrs. Robt. Fair, E. B. Clegg, D. Belleghem, B. Routley, A. Connal & Sons, Coleman Bros., Peterborough Hardware Co., Warne Bros., Hamilton Bros., Peterborough Creamery, Knox Soda Water Factory, Messrs. F. J. R. McPherson, Peter Connal, H. Bradshaw, W. J. Oke, L. Potvin, J. Haggart and T. H. Hooper.

Assistance Acknowledged.

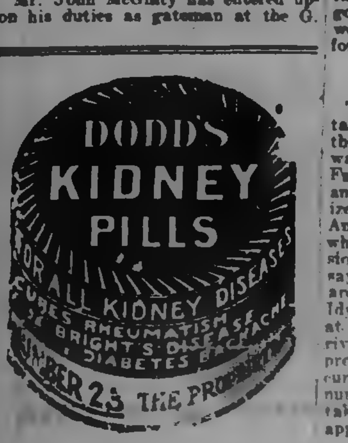
Miss Archer and the ladies of the Gypsy Encampment of the Summer Fair desire to express their thanks to the following Peterborough citizens, who so kindly contributed to their encampment: Kingan Hardware Co., Peterborough Hardware Co., T. C. Elliott, S. H. Knox, C. B. Routley, Grafton & Co., Barrie & Co., H. LeBrun & Co., Cressman Co., McDonald Estate, Miss Byers. Special thanks are due to Mr. J. J. Turner & Sons, who made and loaned the pretty tents used, and to Mr. Munro, of the Peterborough Light & Power Co., for wiring the Encampment.

Protecting Frogs

According to the Lindsay Warder, Mr. A. Bradshaw, fish and game inspector, thinks that the regulation regarding a close season for frogs instead of being for two years only, should be extended to ten years. When asked by the Warder concerning the effect of depleting the waters of frogs in relation to the destruction of the food supply of fishes said: "The fish have never been known to eat the larger Bullfrogs, being more particular in their diet and confining it mostly to the grass frog, but the bass were prone to feed upon the tad pole, which formed a large portion of their diet." The inspector considered the preservation of the frog was a good step, and its many merits would become known by a protection for some years.

C.G.E. Holiday.

The employees of the C.G.E. will take a holiday on Saturday when they will seek recreation in various ways. An excursion to Niagara Falls and Toronto has been arranged and will no doubt be largely patronized. On the same day the C.G.E. Anglers are going to Idyl Wyld for what promises to be the best excursion they have ever held, and that is saying a great deal. Already they are assured of a large sale of tickets. Idyl Wyld should be very beautiful at this season and the sail down the river on the "Stoney Lake" should prove delightful. With these two excursions, there should be a large number of Peterborough's citizens take the day off, for both trips will appeal to the citizens in general. The company, it is stated, is doing all in its power to enable the employees to take a holiday together. The 8th of the month is one of the dates on which the semi-monthly pay is made, but the employees will be paid on Friday, the 7th, it is reported, and the Bank of Commerce has arranged to be open between 7 and 9 o'clock that night. Thus, the vast majority of the employees should be financially equipped for either trip.



Lipuid Cough Mixtures Can't Cure Bronchitis

But the healing Fumes of Catarrhozone, Which are Breathed to the Furthest Recesses of the Bronchial Tubes, Bring Quick Relief and Sure Cure.

Every sufferer from coughs, colds, bronchitis and all throat and chest ailments needs a soothing, healing medicine which goes direct to the breathing organs in the chest and lungs, attacks the trouble at the source, disperses the germs of disease, and cures the ailment thoroughly. And this medicine is "Catarrhozone."

The germ-killing balsamic vapor mixes with the breath, descends through the throat, down the bronchial tubes, and finally reaches the deepest air cells in the lungs. All parts are soothed with rich, pure, medicinal essences, whereas with a syrup the affected parts could not be reached, and harm would result through benumbing the stomach with drugs.

"I have been a chronic sufferer from Catarrh in the nose and throat for over eight years. I think I have spent four hundred dollars trying to get relief. I have spent but six dollars on Catarrhozone, and have been completely cured, and, in fact, have been well for some time. Catarrhozone is the only medicine I have been able to find that would not only give temporary relief, but will always cure permanently.

Yours sincerely,
(Signed), WILLIAM RAGAN,
Brockville, Ont.

For absolute, permanent cure use Catarrhozone. Two months' outfit costs $1.00; smaller size, 50c., at all dealers, or the Catarrhozone Company, Buffalo, N. Y., and Kingston, Canada.

SOCIAL AND PERSONAL

Mr. Kenneth Crane, of the Bank of Commerce, Stratford, is spending his vacation at home.

Dr. and Mrs. Carmichael have opened out their cottage at Chemong Park for the season.

Revs. Messrs. Couch, Henderson, Cragg and Brown are attending the Bay of Quinte Conference at Cobourg this week.

Mrs. A. O'Connor and Mrs. T. Riley, of Haileybury, are visiting their aunt, Mrs. E. Tobin, 849 Water street.

Port Hope Guide: Mrs. J. A. Culverwell, Glenridge Park, Port Hope, left last week for ten days' motor trip from Buffalo to Albany and Boston, with Pittsburg lady friends.

Mr. Bert Hayes, son of Mr. J. E. Hayes, Peterborough, was one of the successful students to pass the recent examinations of the University of Toronto in the second year Faculty of Medicine.

Miss Edith Cochrane, of Toronto, and Miss Laura Wilson, of New Westminster, were present at the wedding of Miss Eva Irwin at the Highlands yesterday.

The many friends of Mrs. H. R. McConkey, of Selwyn, formerly of Byersville, will be pleased to learn that she is recovering from an attack of appendicitis.

The engagement is announced of Miss Anne J. Drummond, daughter of Mrs. John Drummond, Narnardo avenue, to Sidney Tryon, M.D., of New York city, the wedding to take place next autumn.

The Ladies' Aid of St. Andrew's church will meet to sew in the parlors of the church, this afternoon at 2.30 o'clock.

JAILED FOR BOOZE.

Men Breaking Prohibition Laws of Louisiana are Sent to Prison.

Lake Charles, La., June 3. — That the majesty of the prohibition law promises to be upheld as long as Judge Overton sits on the district bench was evidenced again Saturday when William Como, following his conviction of selling liquor without a license, was given a sentence of nine months in jail, one of the heaviest sentences imposed this term for a similar offence, but in line with similar sentences pronounced on this class of offenders, to whom Judge Overton has shown but scant consideration.

ALBANIANS REVOLT.

Attacks on Turkish Troops—Fortifying Both Sides of the Bosphorus.

Constantinople, June 3.—With trouble imminent throughout Macedonia, and Albania, war on a large scale is feared and the harassed Constantinople authorities fortifying both sides of the Bosphorus. It is reported that revolting Albanians are gathering in several sections, and attacks on Turkish troops already have occurred. It is said the Moslem Albanians are co-operating with the Bulgarian committee, which has distributed 34,000 rifles and a vast quantity of ammunition among the revolters.

MAY CLOSE BIG MINES.

Unemployed Laborers May Add to Number of Insurgents.

Washington, June 4.—State Department officials are somewhat disturbed at the impending closure of the big mines at Daiquiri, which would throw about 1500 men out of work. These unemployed laborers might easily be drawn into the revolutionary ranks. It is also apprehended that a corresponding number of skilled workmen may be affected in the steel works in this country which derive their ore from the Cuban mines.

The Cuban Minister, Senor Rivero called at the state department Saturday to secure permission for the purchase of 10,000 rifles to arm the volunteer corps now being raised in Cuba by the Government, and to enable the plantation owners to arm their employees and organize into guards. The request probably will be granted and the War Department will have an opportunity to advantageously dispose of a quantity of the discarded Krag-Jorgensen rifles. Some of these weapons were sent to Cuba about two years ago.

CIRCUS PLEASED ALL.

Pottsville Would Welcome a Return of Howe's London Shows.

(From The Chronicle, Pottsville, Pa. June 18, 1910.)

The two performances of Howe's circus yesterday were well attended. The closing of the public schools gave the children a chance to attend the afternoon performance, which they did in large numbers, the menagerie being found very instructive. Of special interest was the largest elephant and dromedary in existence, the baby orphan camel and the African flat-tailed sheep and the baby lions.

The performance includes a number of acts which are superior to anything carried by the Ringlings or Barnum. The Zanfretta Family are particularly good, and the Japanese troupe are said to be the best in the country.

The clowns were very amusing, one of them, who was dressed up as a woman, getting in some clever work before the performance by escorting male gallants of town to their seats. This clown made a particular hit when he grabbed hold of the arm of one of the Chronicle's bookbinders, whose wife happened to be out of town. The Chronicle man blushed up to the roots of his hair at the prospect of being seen by a huge audience in the company of a strange woman but he proved game, and gracefully accepted the escort of his merry petticoated companion. The sleek, blocky, well groomed horses, 300 in number, drew forth volumes of praise

This splendid circus will be seen in Peterborough Thursday June 6th.

The average cup of tea or coffee contains from 1½ to 2½ grains of "caffeine" the drug that you read about here

Tea and Coffee drinkers often suffer from headache, nervousness, indigestion, billiousness, heart irritation and other symptoms of ill health due to "caffeine," the drug in their tea and coffee.

The cause is often not understood until expert medical test shows up the bald facts

One can get relief from the ills caused by tea and coffee by quitting them for 10 days and using

POSTUM

A pure, palatable food beverage that tastes much like high-grade Java but is absolutely free from Caffeine or any other drug.

If the 10 days' trial shows you some facts, perhaps you may conclude it's worth more to be well than to drink tea or coffee—it's up to you to decide.

POISON SQUAD MEMBER COLLAPSES UNDER TEST.

Philadelphia Student in Serious Condition for a Time, But Has Recovered.

COMPANIONS ARE SICK

Every Member of Band Suffers Nausea as Result of Caffeine Experiments.

Philadelphia, May 11.—Serious results have followed the feeding of caffeine, a drug lurking in chocolate as well as coffee, to the eight student members of the 'poison squad' of the Hahnemann Medical College here. All have been subject to severe headaches and serious attacks of nausea while one member of the squad was in such a serious condition after taking the caffeine-laden water for the first twenty days that he had to be placed in a special ward in the hospital. He received constant attention, has recovered and at the college is said to have rejoined the squad.

"The poison squad" at the Hahnemann college was formed very quietly. It came into existence on March 1 and is under the direct supervision of Dr. Edmund T. Nesbit, director of the Hering laboratory at the college.

Dr. Nesbit called for volunteers from among the students. He said he wanted men who were willing to do something for the benefit of humanity at large, even though it might be to their own discomfiture. Twenty-five students volunteered. Of these fourteen of the most perfect physically were chosen, eleven as regular members of the squad and three as alternates. • • • • • •

For thirty days the members of the squad were given doses of caffeine while Dr. Nesbit and his assistants made personal observations, taking the pulses and temperatures of the members of the squad and making notes on their general physical condition. It was not until within the last few days that one member of the squad weakened under the experiment to such an extent that it was necessary to send him to the hospital. Dr. Nesbit refuses to reveal the name of the student who collapsed, but declares that through proper treatment immediately he soon recovered • • • • •

The caffeine was administered in a solution and was mixed with the water the squad drank. The students did not know when they were getting the caffeine. There were no stated times for giving it in order that the physical condition might not be changed materially through the action of the brain.

Before joining the "poison squad," each student had to sign a release against any action for damages against the college. • • • • •

The laboratory was organized about fifteen months ago with Dr. Nesbit as director, and almost immediately an exhaustive study was started to ascertain the destructive qualities of caffeine as used in food stuffs

The students continued to live at the dormitories or at the boarding houses, but they were required to take their meals at the training table located in the hospital near the diet kitchen. Before each meal the temperature was recorded, the pulse and respiration were taken, and the blood pressure was tested. During the period the drug was administered only Dr. Nesbitt knew the amount apportioned to each man, and when and in what quantity it was administered.—New York Sun, May 12, 1912

LATE MONARCH WISHED TO RETAIN HOUSE OF LORDS AS BULWARK

Biographer of King Edward Declares He Opposed Both Liberal and Conservative Plans For Reformation

SITUATION CAUSED HIM ANXIETY AND IRRITATION

New York, June 6.—A cable from London to The Times, says:—New light on King Edward VII. is thrown by the story of his life, written by Sir Sidney Lee, in the Supplement of the Dictionary of National Biography.

Sir Sidney had access to private sources of information which have enabled him to make important disclosures in regard to recent history.

It is often assumed that a constitutional monarch has no opinions. Sir Sidney Lee shows that King Edward, while acting strictly as a constitutional ruler, not only had opinions, but also did not hesitate to make them known in the proper quarters.

The much debated question as to the King's attitude to Chancellor of the Exchequer Lloyd-George's budget of 1909, and the action of the peers, is at least cleared up definitely. Sir Sidney says:

Bulwark of Hereditary Principle.

"The King demurred to any alteration in the statutes for the composition of the Upper House, which in his view, as in that of his mother, was a bulwark of the hereditary principle of monarchy. The proposal on the part of the Conservative peers to meet the outcry against the House of Lords by converting it, partly or wholly, into an elective body, conflicted as directly with the King's predilection as the scheme for restricting its veto. The King deprecated raising the question in any form.

"In the autumn of 1909 a very practical turn was given the controversy by the Lords' threat to carry their antagonism to the budget to the length of rejecting it. Despite his dislike of the budget, the King believed that the Lords were herein meditating a dictatorial error and he resolved for the first time to exert his personal influence to prevent what he judged to be political disaster."

Sir Sidney Lee relates how King Edward invited to Balmoral various peers and the Right Hon. A. J. Balfour.

CITY NOW UP AGAINST A BIG BILL OF EXPENSE

For Installation and Maintenance of a Sanitary Method of Treating Sewage---$15 a Day for Chlorine Alone

The city has a hard nut to crack in avoiding the threatened injunction by adjacent townships to stop emptying our sewage into the Otonabee river. The Council has promised to adopt sanitary measures and the problem now is to get a satisfactory sewerage system at the least possible cost of installation and maintenance.

The Board of Works had to handle last night a letter from Chief Provincial Health officer Dr. McCullough in which he advised the installation of Imphoff sedimentation tanks in East and West City for the treatment of sewage. In East City, he added, the present septic tank is practically useless, but could be used as a detritus chamber in connection with the new scheme. The treatment of the effluent from the tanks by means of 15 parts of available chlorine per million would be preferable and cheaper than the use of filters. This effluents could then be safely emptied into the river.

In connection with the foregoing it is interesting to learn that the use of chlorine would cost the city $15 a day, $5,475 per year. The cost of the Imphoff tanks, and a few and so forths, will be published later.

On motion of Ald. Gillespie, the Mayor and Chairman were appointed a committee to enquire into the engagement of an engineer for construction work in connection with installing an Imphoff sedimentation tank, or any other system for treating sewage, and report back to committee.—Carried.

ALD. BULLER'S WHITE ELEPHANT! WHAT WILL HE DO WITH IT?

At the City's Board of Works' session last night, a letter was read from Willis Chipman, the consulting engineer who assumed responsibility for constructing the Romaine street sewer, in which he insinuated that the City Engineer and Street Commissioner Evans are at fault in regard to the present blockage in Ald Buller's South City "White Elephant." Mr. Chipman wrote that when his man, Mr. Armstrong, left the work last January, he advised the City Engineer and Mr. Evans that there appeared to be a leak in the Aylmer street manhole, and to stop same with cement as soon as weather conditions would permit of the cement setting. This had not been done, and apparently the sand had been forced up through the leak from beneath the manhole, which had in consequence sank and sand had found its way through the pipes, causing present blockage.

It appears that in this connection the city is liable for heavy damages, the sand from the sewer having backed up into a private dwelling, finding its way even upstairs to the bedrooms.

His worship here asked Engineer Hay if Mr. Armstrong had told either he or Mr. Evans of a leak in the Aylmer street manhole.

The Engineer—"Yes."

His Worship—"Then why did you not fix it?"

The Engineer—"It was in January the coldest time of the year, when cement would not set."

The Mayor—"Then what's the use of the sewer? If too cold for cement to set, what is to prevent the water fromfreezing?"

The Engineer—"I told both Mr Chipman and Mr. Armstrong, that I would not interfere with their work."

Ald. Johnston—"And quite right, too; Mr. Chipman is the responsible man."

Ald. Buller—"I have spoken to concrete men on this question and they all say the excuse offered is all bosh; and that there is no reason why cement work in the sewer could not have been done as well in January as in July. In fact, the whole trouble has resulted from Mr. Chipman's carelessness."

Ald. Graham—"The trouble in fixing that leak last January was caused not by the cement not setting, but in its being forced up out of position by the pressure of water."

Ald. Buller—"Mr. Hay, Chipman is blaming you and Mr. Evans for this trouble, and I think, as an engineer, it is up to you to write him to the effect that you do not admit any responsibility in the matter. And if you can't put it strkng enough, get Mr. Evans to help you."

Ald. Johnston—"It's no use this fellow Chipman, putting up that sort of a bluff and shouldering the responsibility upon our officials. It is up to him to make good."

Mr. Evans—"Mr. Armstrong told me the manhole at the corner of Aylmer and Romaine streets was alright—I'll soon tell him who is to blame."

Mr. Chipman's balance of accoun he is anxious to collect was ignore pending eventualities.

TALK TO MILK VENDORS

Sanitary Inspector Spence Gives a Practical Address.

On Wednesday evening Mr. C. A. O. Spence, Sanitary Inspector, gave a practical address before the Milk Vendors' Association of the city on the importance of properly handling the milk. He explained that he had not come to impress upon them the importance of his official capacity, but rather to have them realize their own importance and the great responsibility resting upon their own shoulders as milk vendors. It was no exaggeration to say that to a great extentof the lives of the rising generation of citizens rested in their hands or rather in their milk cans, basing this statement on the facts that milk is one of the best mediums for the development and dissemination of germs, that typhoid, scarlet fever and diptheria are often traced to the milk supply, and that milk coming from a healthy cow is almost absolutely germless. Cleanliness, therefor, was of paramount importance, first, last and all the time, from the milking of the cow, to its delivery to the consumers. Personally, he would prefer milk testing only 2 per cent. fat, produced under cleanly conditions, to milk testing 5 per cent., but produced in insanitary surroundings.

Mr. Spence then described the ideal sanitary conditions necessary for the production of a pure milk supply, touching on the tuberculin test, water supply, stable instructions, cooling of milk and other details, and evoked a burst of applause when he said that if the public were assured that the milk they consumed was being produced under these conditions, little kicking as to the price would be heard.

After answering several questions put by the milkmen, a hearty vote of thanks was passed to Mr. Spence for his educative address.

PUBLIC LIBRARY BOARD IN REGULAR SESSION

A regular meeting of the Public Library Board was held last evening in the Library building. There were present Messrs. W. G. Morrow, chairman, E. H. D. Hall, D. Spence, J. Corkery, H. R. H. Kenner and H. Ritchie.

The minutes of the last meeting were read and confirmed.

Mr. Corkery presented the report of the Finance Committee as follows:

1.—We have received from the city a cheque for $5,306.12, being the unexpended balance of the money received from the sale of the property on Simcoe street, which was given to the city for Library purposes by the executors of the estate of the late Mrs. Nicholls, and we recommend that $5,000 of the City of Peterborough 4½ per cent. debentures be purchased, the revenue derived from the investment to form a part of the current income of the Library.

2.—That the following accounts be paid:

H. Edmondson	$1.00
Trebilcock Bros.	87.13
J. Ellam	7.05
R. J. Soden	4.20
Peterboro Hardware Co.	1.15
T. H. Adams	5.74
W. James	24.50
F. M. Dela Fosse	3.65
Bell Telephone Co.	5.50
Peterboro Examiner	2.50
Ontario Coal Co.	7.50
W. Briggs	1.08
Otonabee Power Co.	16.60
T. Rutherford	52.60

The report was adopted as read.

Mr. Ritchie, chairman of the Library Committee, reported that about $335 worth of books had been ordered to date, and that about $100 more would be expended in technical works, before the 1st July. He also reported that the number of books issued to date from January last, was about 24,000, while from February last year, the same date, the number was 14,024. There were at present 2,662 subscribers.

Several matters in connection with the building were considered and dealt with, and the meeting then adjourned to meet at the call of the chairman.

CENTRE OF COBALT FIRE SWEPT; LOSS $160,000

Fire Started In the Lyric Theatre And Spread To Business Blocks.

Latchford, Ont., June 6.—The most serious fire in Cobalt since the big conflagration of 1909 swept the heart of the business section last night. A conservative estimate places the loss at $160,000. The blaze was in that part of the town known as the square and it wiped out the Lyric Theatre building, the Cobalt Hotel, the Milton Carr building, the Goloska building, Harrington's restaurant, and other properties.

That no lives were lost and no persons injured is a miracle considered in view of the fact that the blaze started in the Lyric Theatre. The Cinderella moving pictult had just been shown and Ramsey and Weiss two midgets, were putting on their act when flames from an exploded oil stove burst through the floor in one of the dressing rooms. Stage manager Scott discovered the fire and at once notified manager P. J. Hart, who hastened to the front of the crowded house. The audience was informed of the fire and the act was then proceeded, while the piano player, Harry Brown, stuck to his post playing rag time until the last of the audience had filed out. Through the smoke he made his escape just as the flames shot up through the roof.

Aid From Outside.

The Cobalt fire department responded promptly but the intense heat and dense smoke made it impossible to cope with the flames. A call for aid was sent to Haileybury and a hose company responded. Another call to New Liskeard brought the department from that town with apparatus. Sixteen streams were played on the fire by the force aided by volunteers from the mines departments and four hours after the fire started it was under control.

Fell Down Stairs.

In the rush from the theatre, a number of people had narrow escapes but only one of these, Bert Miller, was injured. He secured some of his goods and started down the stairs when he was overcome by smoke and fell headlong unconscious. He was picked up and carried out by the firemen. His injuries consisted of burns on the face. Others made their escape through a window to the roof of an adjoining building and descended to the street through a skylight.

All wires out of Cobalt are down, and communication with the south is cut off.

HOWE'S CIRCUS THE VERY BEST

Gave Two Delightful Performances Yesterday to Slim Audiences

Howe's London Circus gave two performances yesterday in Peterborough, their large tents being pitched in the Agricultural Fair grounds. The attendance was not large, probably on account of the rain.

The procession was fairly good and consisted of several bands of music, mounted on the regulation band chariots, men and women on horseback, vehicles containing wild animals, clowns and the inevitable steam calliope.

The performance was fairly good, the acrobat and trapeze feats being quite up to the mark.

In the evening the tent was not more than half filled, the threatening rain no doubt preventing many from attending.

PAPERS REPUTE M.S. STORIES

Aspersions Cast on British Bravery Keenly Resented by London Press.

London, June 4.—The New York Times' editorial comment on the United States senate committee's report on the Titanic disaster, which is generally quoted in to-day's London papers, is the basis of a leading article in The Evening Standard. It is headed, "Is British Courage Gone?" The Evening Standard says: "In the present state of Lord Mersey's inquiry it is neither political nor fair to judge the Titanic crew. All we can say is that so far we can find no justification for the harsh, wholesale indictment of British courage, which certain American papers have thought proper to undertake.

"We decline to accept Senator Smith's report as a blow that will strike England in her tenderest and proudest spot. We will not agree that all those racial qualities, which it has been assumed, distinguished the Anglo-Saxon from the emotional races of Southern Europe and the heathen breed were wanting in the tragic test among ice floes."

Time Is Not Ripe.

"If the time were ripe we should like to ask the American papers for the evidence on which they base these bitter conclusions, but the time is not ripe. The British committee is still sitting."

The Evening Standard argues that the tradition of British bravery is still in evidence, saying: "During most of the nineteenth century England was well accustomed to the habit of war. In these days we have no practice of this kind. Mercifully we are spared the discipline of our grandfathers. Our nerve are weaker than theirs, yet do we subdue them of necessity."

The Evening Standard finds the answer to the question in the everyday life of London. With stories of rescue from drowining, from trains, from fire and motors, and concludes "We claim that if Englishmen are not craven in the every day affairs of London they have survived the readiest and a fairly complete test of courage."

Major L. M. Hayes, paymaster.
Major Duncan Walker, adjutant.
Major J. C. Davidson, chaplain.

Captain Carruthers, No. 5 Co.
Captain Richard Watt, No. 6 Co.
Captain W. Langford, No. 7 Co.
Captain Higgins, No. 8 Co.

The Regiment is accompanied by their fine brass band, and also a bugle band. They went by a special Grand Trunk train, and will camp on Barriefield Common, returning by a special train on Sunday evening.

TEAMSTERS WILL GET $4 A DAY BUT THEY MUST GINGER UP

No Right of Way Across the old Dickson Bridge. Board Of Works Cannot Afford To Put It Into a Safe State of Repair.

The City Board of Works met last night. There were present Mayor W. H. Bradburn, chairman Ald. Buller, Aldermen Gillespie, Anderson, Graham, Brown, Morgan, Duffus an Johnston.

Mr. W. H. Moore asked for a renewal of the old plank sidewalk on Crescent street, at the south end of the Little Lake, from George street to the cemetery. The petition suggested a 4½ feet cinder walk in place of either wood or concrete. Mr. Moore also wrote that the construction of a sidewalk on the south side of the street is practically prohibitive.

The City Engineer contended that owing to the position of the shade trees, there would be room for but a three foot walk on the south side, a major portion of the distance in question.

The Board, however, contended that the south side is the proper locality for this walk, and the City Engineer was instructed to investigate and report on the matter.

A petition for the widening of Babb's Lane, signed by 66 or 70 rate payers, was referred to the Mayor and Chairman Ald. Buller to look into the matter of securing options on properties necessary for such improvement.

Park Street Drain.

The Park street drain will be piped from the C.G.E. to Wolfe street as soon as possible. The sidewalk will be broadened over the drain thus filled in. The remainder of this drain will receive attention another year.

Street Paving.

Mr. Clarke, representing the Dolway Paving Co., of Ann Arbor, Mich. presented the merits of his firm's street pavement to the board. This pavement consists of a ½ inch bitumen surface laid over a six inch concrete base. It could be laid at a $1.50 a square yard, is non-slipping, and the life of the concrete base is practically indefinite. The maintenance of the surface would cost one cent a square yard per year; each 15 years the surface of bitumen could be renewed at a cost of 10 cents per square yard. This surface is proof against all weather; it does not soften in summer nor become brittle in winter. Mr. Clarke would not guarantee this pavement for more than two years at $1.50, but would give a five year guarantee at $1.65 per square yard. Thousands of yards of this pavement, which is a new one, has been laid in Ann Arbor, and the whole city will be practically covered with this pavement before next year. None has been laid in Canada yet, although the company is under contract for considerable work adjacent to Toronto.

This pavement will receive equal consideration with others.

London St. Bridge Question.

City Engineer Hay reported that it would cost $850 to creat a safe foot bridge out of the old bridge over theold Dickson dam at London street.

Ald. Buller said the Board has not the money to invest in this work.

Mr. Hay replied to his Worship that such a footbridge would not last na more than five years in his estimation.

Ald. Graham—"If you spend $850 on that old bridge, it may be away in six months; the bottoms of the piers are washed out."

It is understood that the Hydrantic Co. will prohibit travel over their dam, and remove the old bridge unless the city puts it in safe repair for pedestrian travel.

Ald. Anderson was anxious that something be done in this connection as it would be a serious matter for East City residents to be barred from crossing the river at this point.

Ald. Buller advised the committee to dream on some plan for crossing the river at this point, in keeping with the board's appropriation.

Wooden Sidewalk Granted.

Moved by Ald. Graham, seconded by Ald. Johnston,—That 116 feet of wooden sidewalk and crossing be laid on Park street, in compliance with Mr. Flower's request.—Carried.

Hang the Building By-law Anyway ?

Thos. Rutherford's request for permission to erect a building over the creek on Hunter street, for Mr. L. Eastwood, was dealt with. The proposition was to erect wooden walls, iron veneered, upon steel girders.

Ald. Johnston thought a stand should be taken to enforce the building by-law.

Ald. Gillespie offered that it would be only reasonable to follow procedure set by the Legislature, and give a little elasticity under certain conditions. This had been done by the city in similar cases to that at present under consideration. And he contended that if built under conditions similar to those upon which Green's music store on Charlotte street were was erected, the building asked for could be made perfectly safe and fireproof.

Ald. Gillespie moved that Mr Rutherford's request be granted, providing the walls are 14 inches for the first story, and the second 9 inches, with pilasters at such distance apart as recommended by the City Engineer.—Carried.

Too Many Poles.

The Bell Telephone Co. asked permission to erect two poles on west side of Harvey street north, to connect with Mr. Pringle's residence.

The Machine Co's poles are already on that side of the street, and the board took exception to those of another company being erected on the same side.

Moved by Ald. Johnston, seconded by Ald. Graham,—That the Bell Telephone Co. be notified to make arrangements to use the machine company's poles already on the same side of the street.—Carried.

Teamsters' Salaries.

The City teamsters' request for a raise in wages from $3.66 to $4 a day did not get through as smoothly as anticipated.

Twelve men signed the petition and Commissioner Evans reported that there are but six out of that number employed by the city.

His worship was surprised that others but those in the city's employ should have attached their names to the document. He did not believe, however, that $4 a day is too much for a teamster under existing conditions.

Ald. Anderson did not object to the increase, but offered that there is a feeling abroad that the city does not get as much work out of its teamsters as do private individuals, and when granted an increase they should ginger up a little.

Street Commissioner Evans—"The city gets the dirty end of the deal; Besides, in winter the same teamsters will haul ice for 30c an hour. He thought that were the increase granted, it should not apply to winter months.

Ald Duffus thought there is need for better management. "Instead of Mr. Evans assisting the city engineer in inspecting bridges, he should look after the city's men and Mr. Hay be given other assistance."

Mr. Evans—"One cannot follow a man from loading up place to the dump."

It here looked as though the increase would apply to the summer season only; but Ald. Johnston did not think that would be a square deal. "I give my men," he said, "the same pay summer and winter, and the teamsters should get the same consideration."

Ald. Buller concurred in this view, although he thought the city's employ good for "fattening teams."

Moved by Ald. Johnston, seconded by Ald. Gillespie,—That the teamsters get the increase asked all the year round.—Carried.

Moved by Ald. Graham, seconded by Ald. Anderson,—That $4 a day apply to the summer season's work only. Lost.

The teamsters will accordingly receive $4 a day the year round, dating from to-day.

CABINET MAY BE CHANGED

The Early Transition to the Lords of Premier Looked for in Some Quarters

RAISING SUGAR BEETS

British Peer Swindled—Reform in Army Uniforms May Result From King's Inspection.

London, June 3.—The early transition of Premier Asquith to the Lords is now accepted as an absolutely assured certainty, and it is not at all unlikely that he will at the same time relinquish the leadership of the Government and the Liberal party to a younger man. Mr. Asquith smiles at these recurring rumors, but they are known to have good foundation. He has carried such a tremendous load during the strenuous years that have marked his successful direction of the Liberals that it is a wonder his health has at all survived the strain. His physicians have frequently advised him to seek a temporary rest, so that he may give his splendid vitality a fair chance and extend his political life for the good of the country. Asquith has proved a Moses to the Liberals during a time of upheaval which called for unusual powers of suasion and action. Neither the great Gladstone nor the witty but otherwise mediocre Campbell-Bannerman could have solidified the mixed coalition elements as Asquith managed to do. Therefore, if the Liberal-Labor-Irish alliance is to continue after Asquith rests on his laurels, his successor will require a great deal of tact and not a little personal magnetism. One of the men who seem most likely to fill the bill is Winston Churchill.

Raising Sugar Beets.

The raising of sugar beets is proving a profitable industry in the southern and eastern counties of England. It was at first thought futile to attempt this addition to British agriculture, and the first experiments, conducted at the Government stations in Kent, Gloucester, Shropshire Devon and Essex attracted very little interest among the farmers or refiners. Now, however, it is found that even without sub-soiling a fair average production has been attained and commercially the proposition is an assured success.

The British Peerage.

The British peerage still provides a rich field for the scheming promoter. The conversion of demesne lands into productive farms and sales forced by the new land taxes has provided many of our elderly lords with money to invest and with consols fluctuating and unattractive the mind of the peer naturally turns to outside speculations. Of course, that term is never used but nothing could exceed the speculative character of some of the

PINE TAR CORDIAL

NUGENT'S SARSAPARILLA—PRICE FOR large bottle, 100 full doses, 65c, and well worth it, too. It's better to take no medicine at all than to depend upon cheap concoctions that are compounded to sell at a low price and a big profit just because there is a large demand for certain remedies at certain seasons of the year. There are so-called Sarsaparillas offered to us to sell to our customers at 75c a bottle that would bring us a larger profit than Nugent's Sarsaparilla sold at 65c. Nugent's Sarsaparilla purifies the blood, arouses the torpid liver, drives out all impurities, cleanses and tones up the system, and helps Nature throw off the dullness that comes from the indoor life of winter. It arouses energy, brightens the eye, clears the brain, gives lightness to the movements. Nugent's Sarsaparilla is not the only thing you will find in this drug store. We make a specialty of Nugent's Remedies. Nugent Drug Co., 386 George St. directly opposite Crossman's store.

GO TO FLORIDA FOR HEALTH AND wealth.—The question is asked me repeatedly: Why, if all that is claimed for the climate and earning capacity of the land in Florida is true, how is it that only a percentage of the State's area is under cultivation? It is a fair question, and the answer is a simple one. After the war between the North and the South Florida found herself in a deplorable condition financially. The State Government leased hundred of thousands of acres of its best priairie and timber lands for periods running as high as 66 years. This latter period tied up the great Kissimmee Prairie until recently. It is now, however, in the hands of a splendid colonization company, whose selling agent is the Hunter Land Company. Kissimmee Prairie is in the Southern portion of Osceola County, and is noted for its fertility and uniformity of soil. It is the healthiest spot in North America, and every day in the year is a growing day. Write for maps, illustrated literature, excursion particulars and any desired information. Address Alf. BUYING A FOUNTAIN.

The Water Had to Be Considered and Then the Pipe Also.

"There are some features of the South American trade that have changed very much in recent years," said a man who used to be in that line. "For instance, when a man in one of the Latin republics wants anything nowadays he not only knows just what he wants, but he has a fair idea as to just what he should pay for it. In the good old days it was not so.

"I recall, for instance, the time when the dictator of one of the South American republics was making improvements out on the country place he owned in one of the interior provinces. It was some distance from his capital, and I doubt whether he ever went back to the place more than once a year, and then only long enough to sleep there. Anyhow, he had decided to make a show place out of it. With that in view, he instructed his agent here to order for him one of the finest little fountains on the market. The agent came to me, and I took him around to a manufacturer of such things, and we went carefully over the stock. He chose one that was decorated with angels and such things, and the price was $250.

"'You may make out a bill for $500,' said the agent to me, and I, conversant with methods that obtained in his country, did as directed. Then a thought struck me.

"'What about water?' I suggested.

"'Water?' repeated the agent. 'I never thought of that.'

"'Of course they will need water for the fountain. How will they get it?'

"The agent said he did not know.

"'They will require water for the fountain,' I persisted. 'How far away from the general's place is the nearest water supply available?'

"The agent thought it over. Finally he said, 'I really don't believe there is any water nearer than seven miles.'

"'Then,' I suggested, 'you will need pipe.'

"'Yes,' he responded, 'we shall need pipe.'

"'Seven miles of pipe,' I continued.

"'Exactly,' he continued — 'seven miles.'

"'Any steamers running anywhere near the general's place?'

"'No.'

"'Or railroads?'

"'No.'

"'Then we shall have to saw the pipe into lengths that can be carried on muleback.'

"'Assuredly,' he said.

"And we did cut the whole seven miles of iron pipe into six foot lengths, and it made almost enough to fill a ship. The bill for the pipe was made out in the same way as that for the fountain, and the whole lot was shipped and the bill promptly paid. As a revolution broke out in that country soon afterward, I am inclined to think that that magnificent fountain and the seven miles of pipe that accompanied it are making junk to-day on the estate of the former dictator. But you can see that the agent used to get 'his'n' good and proper."

A Thoughtful Sentry.

When the sergeant of the guard came round on his visits the green sentry was nowhere to be seen. The sergeant was about to depart to make inquiries when there came a rustling noise from a heap of straw, and the sentry stood before him minus his boots and looking very sleepy. "Hello!" cried the sergeant. "Where were you when I came round just now?" "Marching round," was the sentry's reply, giving in tones of conscious virtue. "Marching round, were you? Why, you've got your boots off." "Yes, sergeant, I took 'em off so's I should not wake the 'orses."

Parnell and Thirteen.

Parnell was a believer in the thirteen superstition. There is a familiar story of his positively refusing during an election campaign with Tim Healy to occupy a bedroom numbered 13. While in Kilmainham there was submitted to him by his colleague the draft of a bill amending the Irish land act. On discovering that the clauses counted up to thirteen he threw down the manuscript with a gesture of terror and refused to have anything to do with it.

Modern Beauty.

A young man the other day said to his best girl:

"I visited that fashionable palmist this afternoon, and he told me I'd marry a blond."

The girl, who was very dark, said thoughtfully:

"Did he say when the marriage would take place?"

"Yes; in three months."

"Well, I can easily be a blond by that time, dear," said the girl with a shy smile.

Fish Surgery.

Although the fish doctor probably finds less demand for his services than the practitioner of any other branch of the medical profession, his duties are of a most important character, and his knowledge of the diseases and biology of the fish must be profound. Fish surgery is one of the least known of the various departments of surgical work. It requires a most delicate handling of instruments and a minute knowledge of the anatomy of the fish.

Two of a Kind.

"How did you ever come to marry, old man? Thought you'd determined to stay single?"

"I had, but I was introduced one day to a girl who had determined never to marry, and our thoughts seemed to harmonize so completely that—well, we married each other."

So Much For Mamma.

Papa—I hear you were a bad girl to-day and had to be whipped.

Small Daughter—Mamma is awful strict. If I'd 'a' known she used to be a schoolteacher I'd 'a' told you not to marry her.

Soft Iron Horseshoes.

In Spain very few horseshoers have forges in their shops. They make their shoes without the aid of a fire, a possibility largely due to the pure, soft, ductile iron primarily manufactured with wood and charcoal.

Sleep Spectacles.

Spectacles with a white spot in the centre of a black disk on each lens, the invention of an English doctor, are said to induce drowsiness in a wearer, curing insomnia.

PRESENCE OF MIND.

Ruse of a Woman Who Was Scared but Who Kept Her Wits.

The following is a true story of an incident that happened in an English village:

A husband had gone out for the evening and left his wife and child at home. The woman was about to retire for the night when, to her amazement, she perceived the foot of a man beneath the bed. Instead of calling for assistance, as some would have done, she coolly went to the child's cot and sat and sang till the child went to sleep. Two hours then remained before her husband came in. He was surprised to find her waiting up, but when his wife handed him an envelope, saying, "You might run and post this," the cause of her waiting was revealed. Instead of a letter the following was written on the envelope: "A burglar is under our bed. Run; fetch police." The husband returned in a minute with a policeman, and the man was arrested. The burglar when brought up before the magistrate remarked that he had come across a few brave women in his time, but this one must have had a nerve like iron, for she sat there for three solid hours. He had the impression that she didn't know he was there till the policeman pulled him out.—Exchange.

TALK TO YOUR HORSE.

It Will Make the Animal More Intelligent and More Friendly.

Talk to your horse and teach him to obey your voice as well as the reins. This may prove valuable if, as sometimes happens, the lines break or become unbuckled. Besides, the horse likes the sociability of it. He easily learns a dozen or more words, but be careful to use them only for exactly what you mean. For instance, "whoa" means to stop at once and stand perfectly still, "get up" to go straight ahead and at once, "back" to step backward, "easy" or "steady" to slow up.

These words the horse readily learns and takes kindly to. "Walk" means to change at once to a walk, and "all right," spoken in a calm, reassuring tone, means "don't be afraid—that won't hurt you," and it is wonderful to see what a calming effect it has. Speak firmly, but not sharply, to the horses, for they are nervous creatures. Talking to your horse will make him more intelligent and more friendly.—Spirit of the West.

Curious Power of Charcoal.

It has been found that the power of charcoal to absorb gases is vastly increased at very low temperatures, so that it can be employed for exhausting incandescent lamp bulbs and Crookes tubes and also for separating mixed gases. Experiment has shown that at the freezing point of water and at normal atmospheric pressure one gram of charcoal absorbs four cubic centimeters of hydrogen and eighteen cubic centimeters of oxygen, but that at 182 degrees centigrade, the temperature of boiling air, one gram of charcoal absorbs 135 cubic centimeters of hydrogen and 250 cubic centimeters of oxygen. When several gases are mixed the charcoal absorbs some of them much more freely than others, so that by multiplying the operation gases can be separated from mixtures in sufficient quantity for industrial uses.—Cincinnati Commercial Tribune.

Pieces of Eight and Doubloons.

The pieces of eight and the doubloon are indissolubly united with the traditions of the Spanish main and the old buccaneers. Pieces of eight were more properly called piasters — from the Greek and Latin, emplastron, "a plaster;" in the Romance languages, "anything spread out or flat, as a plate, a coin." The piece was silver and worth about $1. Being divided into eight silver reals, it was termed a piece of eight.

Doubloons were gold pieces, originally double the value of a pistole, and formerly coined in Spain and Spanish America. The name is derived from the Spanish doblon, "double." Prior to 1848 the doubloon was worth $15.75. The doblon de Isabel, coined in that year, was until 1868 equivalent only to $4.96.

Grocers Who Dressed In Colors.

In the early part of the fifteenth century it is recorded that the "grocers' guild appeared in livery of scarlet and green." A few years later scarlet and black were adopted. Funeral services of deceased members "were attended with much show of pageantry." At the burial of Sir Philip Sidney, who was a member of the grocers' guild, his worship the mayor, aldermen and other civic officials were present, "rydinge in purple."—London Telegraph.

THE COLLIS LEATHER COMPANY, LTD.

Incorporated by Letters Patent of the Province of Ontario.

Capitalization. - - Authorized $150,000 To Be Issued. $110,000

PAR VALUE $100.00 PER SHARE.

HEAD OFFICE AND FACTORY:—AURORA, ONTARIO

OFFICERS AND DIRECTORS:

T. HERBERT LENNOX, K.C., M.P.P., President The T. Sisman Shoe Co., Ltd., President.
WALTER COLLIS, ESQ., Leather Manufacturer, Toronto, Ontario, Vice-President.
W. G. FISCHER, ESQ., Commission Leather Merchant, Toronto, Ontario, Secretary-Treasurer.
WM. J. BALDWIN, ESQ., Mayor of the Town of Aurora.
W. PERCY GILLESPIE, ESQ., W. Percy Gillespie & Co., Investment Brokers, Toronto, Ont.

In offering these shares for investment, we feel that we are inviting the public to purchase stock in an industry in which the profits are very large, and the demand for the product is ever increasing.

It is a well known fact that the shares of our Canadian Tanneries are very closely held, and the public seldom have an opportunity of procuring any.

On March 11th, 1912, the Burgesses of the Town of Aurora voted in favor of granting The Collis Leather Company, Limited, a cash bonus of Ten Thousand Dollars, the Company's property is exempt from Taxation for Ten Years (except school tax) and it has also been granted water from the Town free for all time.

The factory is now under construction, to be completed on or before the 1st Day of July, 1912, and will be 150 feet long by 50 feet wide, and four storys high.

The Company's specialty will be the manufacture of calf leather.

Mr. Walter Collis has had over Thirty Years' experience as a tanner, and thoroughly understands all departments of the business. Mr. Collis will have direct charge of the Tannery.

The capacity of the factory will be Eighteen Hundred calfskins per day, or an average of Eighteen Thousand Feet per day. A most conservative estimate of the net profit is one-half cents per foot.

Estimated Net Profits:

Field Marshal Sir Evelyn Wood was greatly attached to a regiment of highlanders when the latter were stationed at Portsmouth. Sir Evelyn, then a captain, one day returned from London and with great hurry proceeded to array himself for parade. When he at last emerged he observed that the men were evidently at great pains to conceal their laughter, and he quietly questioned his subaltern as to the probable reason. "Well, sir," replied the latter, "you are dressed correctly as to kilt, sporran and all the rest of it, but you have forgotten to remove your tall hat."

A DESPERATE FIGHT.

What is now most feared by the Taft management is the effect of the Roosevelt victory in New Jersey in weakening their hold on a number of delegates in other States, especially in the Southern States, who are instructed for Taft or have expressed themselves in his favor, but who Roosevelt has persisted in asserting will flock to his own banner at the crucial moment. The fear is not disguised that money, of which Mr. Roosevelt seems to have an unstinted command, will be used wherever it can be used to deflect Taft delegates. The Taft people claim that they have found one glaring instance in South Carolina where four Taft delegates have sold out absolutely to the Roosevelt agents. They say they can show how and when and where the money was paid.

That there is more cause of apprehension of defeat than the Taft managers are willing to admit is indicated by the conflicting claims as to the strength of the candidates in delegates

While a number of newspapers that have endeavored to give an impartial count of delegates according to the information available have given Taft a considerable majority of the delegates chosen, the New York Tribune, which is a Taft supporter in its last Mondays issue, placed the relative strength of the candidates at 435 1-2 for Taft and 430 1-2 for Roosevelt, with 84 delegates in the contested list. If this calculation were approximately correct Roosevelt, with the New Jersey vote, would now have a majority of the uncantested delegates. But in this remarkable contest figures are confusing and unreliable.

The situation is one of intense interest and perplexity, and the perplexity and uncertainty do not augur well for Taft, who, with the administration and the National committee behind him, ought to make a stronger showing as a guarantee of success. He may personally still be strong in his confidence, but his friends are fearful. One thing is certain: there will be a desperate struggle at Chicago, and there is no telling yet what may happen.

SIR W. WHITE IN THE WRECK

The London Times recently published a letter from Sir William H. White, in which he reconstructed the disaster to the Titanic and discussed the causes of the sinking. In an editorial commenting on the letter, the Times speaks of the author as the "greatest living authority on shipbuilding," and refers to the letter as a "weighty contribution to the formation of a sane public opinion upon the question how best to guard against the perils of ocean travel, and to preserve human life in the presence of accidents which we can never hope altogether to eliminate." The author first takes up the question of the speed of the Titanic at the time of the accident. He finds this to be not less than 21½ knots, and says:

"A speed of 21½ knots corresponds to an advance of the ship of 36.3 feet per second, and represents mechanical 'energy' of over one million foot-tons for a ship weighing about 50,000 tons. The force of the blow which could be struck by the ship was equal to that which would be struck by a weight of 1000 tons falling through a vertical height of 1000 feet. The total energy was as great as that represented by the simultaneous discharge of a dozen of the largest and most powerful guns mounted in the most recent battleships. If the Titanic had struck the iceberg 'end-on,' and been stopped, this vast store of energy would have been to a great extent absorbed in the mechanical 'work' done in injuring and deforming her own structure and in shattering portions of the iceberg. Some witnesses expressed the opinion that if the impact had been direct—although great damage must have been done to the bows of the Titanic—she would, in all probability, have been kept afloat by the numerous transverse watertight bulkheads which would have still remained intact. There is nothing unreasonable in this opinion: unfortunately no practical interest attaches to the point, since it is certain that the ship only grazed the iceberg on her starboard side at a considerable depth below water."

With regard to the nature and extent of the injury to the ship, he finds, from comparing all the evidence before him, that the order to reverse the engines and to put the helm hard-a starboard were given simultaneously, and that the bow had begun to turn to port when the crash came. With regard to this important feature, the author says:

"The time in which the helm can be put over at a speed of 21½ knots can probably be given by surviving officers of the Titanic, or, if necessary, can be ascertained by experiment on the Olympic. With powerful steam steering engines such as the Titanic possessed, 20 to 30 seconds would probably have sufficed to put the helm hard over, and an allowance of 30 seconds additional would apparently be ample from the time required by the officer of the watch to receive the message from the lookout and to give orders to the helmsman. On that hypothesis, only one minute would have elapsed between the warning from the lookout and the collision. Yet in that brief period the Titanic would have traversed about 2200 feet; and the iceberg would have been reported by the lookout when at a distance of less than four-tenths of a sea-mile ahead of the ship.

Back Full of Aches Headaches and Depression

Much of Women's Suffering is Needless and can be Prevented by the Use of Dr. Hamilton's Pills.

That Stab-Like Pain in the Back is Sure Indication of Kidney Trouble

Mrs. Anna Rodriguez writes as follows from her home in Valencia:

"For a long time I suffered with failing strength and nagging headaches. My condition grew steadily worse, my limbs became bloated and shaky. I was sallow, and thin, felt rheumatic pains, dizziness and chills. I unfortunately didn't suspect my kidneys, and was nearly dead when I discovered the true cause of my sufferings. I read so much about the wonderful health and strength that comes to all who use Dr. Hamilton's Pills I felt sure they would help me. Such blessings of health and comfort I got from Dr. Hamilton's Pills I can't describe. They speedily put me right, and their steady use keeps me active, energetic, strong and happy. I strongly urge others to regulate and tone their system with Dr. Hamilton's Pills of Mandrake and Butternut."

No greater medicine exists than Dr Hamilton's Pills for the cure of indigestion, constipation, flatulence, liver, bladder and kidney trouble. Refuse substitutes for Dr. Hamilton's Pills, 25c per box, or five boxes for $1.00 at all dealers or the Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Ont.

Editorial Notes

Hon. Bill Taft made good his word that he would fight with his back to the wall, but while he was thus engaged a certain unscrupulous individual who wears eyeglasses and a set of ugly-looking teeth made a rapid detour and removed the wall. The Hon. Bill is now fighting with his back to the ground, and yelling for help.

Proprietors of "blind pigs" at Cochrane and South Porcupine were fined $3,050 a few days ago, the average penalty being $100. There must be money in blind pig keeping in that region. Only a good business could pay the Province the high fees its courts exact with considerable regularity from those who faithfully follow the industry.

Since 1885, when the system of land purchase now in effect in Ireland was established by Parliament (subsequently being improved) the British Government has advanced more than $186,500,000 in loans to tenants who are now buying their own farms. Payments are made in instalments running over 50 or 60 years, and the annual amount the tenants must pay is less than the old rents used to be. It is said that in another 30 years a large part of the Irish farmers will own their farms free from any charge.

UNFAIR TO MR. A. J. CULVEWELL

Who Purchased the Burleigh Falls Power in Good Faith

WAS THEN VALUELESS

Now That It Has Become of Importance Several Newspapers are Making Unfair Insinuations — He Had Faith in the Future of the Country and Got His Reward.

We notice that several newspapers are reflecting on Mr. J. A. Culverwell for the part he took in connection with what is known as the Burleigh Falls water power. Mr. Culverwell purchased a lease of the property at a time when it was generally regarded as worthless. But he had faith in the future of the country, and like a good, long-headed man that he is, secured the property, and hung on to it. People who claimed to know all about power matters in connection with the Trent waterway thought he was foolish, and did not refrain from saying so. If any one is to blame in this matter it is the government, which is supposed to guard the interests of the people. But no doubt the then Minister of Railways and Canals, took the people's view of it, and did not consider the property of any special value, the result being that Mr. Culverwell secured the property.

Government to Blame.

Government records on file at Ottawa show that in February, 1900, Mr. Culverwell obtained from the Department of Railways and Canals certain leasehold rights in the Trent Valley, with authority "to use water powers at Perry's Creek and to remove Government dams for that purpose." For these extensive privileges he was to pay one dollar a year "in advance," and the lease contained a renewal clause, making it good for sixty years, or until the end of 1959. In April, 1901, Hon. A. G. Blair, as Minister, assented to a transfer of the lease rights to the Central Ontario Power Company. In March, 1911, Hon. Geo. P. Graham initialed a further assignment to other parties "in trust." The departmental files give no indication as to how much was paid for these transfers, but it is commonly reported that Mr. Culverwell got $200,000 for the control of Government water powers for which he pays only sixty dollars, in annual instalments extending past the middle of the century. Unless the members of the late Government can furnish some adequate explanation of a transaction which on its face looks extremely wasteful, their reputation as conservers of the country's natural resources will suffer fresh diminution.

CABINET MAY BE CHANGED

baits which are eagerly bitten at by these ermined lambs flirting with the promoters on the outer fringe of Lombard street. Just recently one of the best known and most respected members of the house of lords contributed $750,000 towards the continental expenses of a smart young man who has just gone into the insolvent court with no assets to his name. The peer had extensive properties in Newfoundland and the clever young promoter of questionable morals showed him how by spending a little money there was a fortune to be got out of this land in timber and coal. The lord had never looked upon his own Newfoundland property Neither had the promoter, although he hailed from the Newfoundland side of the Atlantic. But he had a lovely assortment of maps and charts and little by little he bled his dupe of every dollar, almost, which the peer had in the bank, at the same time raising money on the Newfoundland properties under power of attorney.

Result of King's Inspection.

One result of the king's inspection of his troops at Aldershot will most likely be a complete transformation of military uniforms. King George agrees with the younger officers of the army that the time is ripe to modernize the regimental home and field dress so as to make Tommy more presentable and more comfortable. The royal military and naval tournament which his majesty opened just recently, and which is now drawing big crowds at Olympia gave the public an opportunity to contrast present uniforms with those worn in the days when Marlborough was winning victories in the low countries. The "Green Howards," as the Yorkshire regiment was known in 1750, are showing in manual exercises how loose and easy to walk in was the dress of the soldier in the days of the great Louis, John Churchill and Prince Eugene.

It was only after the ramrod influence of Frederick the Great became paramount in this county that stiff uniforms came into use. The Prussian example was reinforced by the desire to cut down expense by using as little cloth as possible. Then the loose coat with wide skirts made to button back was turned into a tight coat with ridiculous little tails, the warm waistcoat was done away with the soft neckcloth became a hard leather stock, and gaiters were cut down to "spats."

CATTLE MARKETS.

Montreal Live Stock.

MONTREAL, June 6.—The receipts of live stock at the Canadian Pacific market for the week ending June 1 were 750 cattle, 750 sheep and lambs, 1975 hogs and 1600 calves. The offerings this morning consisted of 500 cattle, 250 sheep and lambs, 900 hogs and 1500 calves.

There was no further change in the condition of the market for cattle, prices being firmly maintained at the recent advance noted, owing to the fact that the supply was small, for which the demand was good, and an active trade was done, as butchers generally were short of stock. Sales of choice steers were made at $8 to $8.25, good at $7 to $7.50, and the lower grades from that down to $5.50 per 100 pounds. Cows brought from $4.25 to $7, and bulls from $4.25 to $6.75 per 100 pounds.

The trade in small meats was active, but, as the offerings were none too large, a firm tone prevailed in the market, and prices showed no important change. Sheep sold at from $5 to $5.50, and spring lambs at $3 to $5 each, as to size and quality. There was a brisk demand for calves, of which supplies were ample to fill all requirements, and prices ruled steady at from $3 to $10 each.

Hogs were weaker owing to the fact that packers in most cases were well supplied for the balance of the week, and in consequence the demand was somewhat limited, which resulted in prices declining another 15c per 100 pounds, with sales of selected lots at $9.10 per 100 pounds weighed off cars, and in some instances as low as $8.00 was accepted, with sows and stags included.

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

OLD BERLIN.

It Is a Terrible Contrast to Much Lauded New City.

With 600,000 of the 2,500,000 population of the Kaiser's capital crowded into one-room dwellings at the rate of from five to ten persons to a room, the authorities of Berlin are seriously concerned with the problem that confronts them. Rapid as has been the building in Berlin, it has not kept pace with the growth of the city, and erection of new houses has been almost entirely confined to the better residence section of West Berlin.

Berlin is known the world over as the one large city without tenements. It is indisputably the most modern and up-to-date city of Europe. Visitors readily concede that the artistic exteriors of the blocks and blocks of flats, with their large inner courts, and the cleanliness of the streets, have not been exaggerated. Sociologists hold up Berlin as a model, particularly in America.

And so it is. Probably in no other city are the streets literally "scrubbed" daily. Electrically propelled water wagons with rotary thin wire brushes pass over the streets. The streets are flooded with the water; immediately behind come the stiff brushes.

Following the combined water and scrub wagons come men with long hand scrapers lined with rubber, similar to those used by window cleaners. These they push along before them, removing whatever water and dirt may have been left by the big rotary brushes.

When they get through the streets are as clean as a fine parlor floor. Small armies of men are employed in tending the trees and flowers, and in the parks.

But this is so-called "New Berlin." It is the Berlin of the very progressive municipal administration under the present Emperor. It is the Berlin that the visitors, tourists and sociologists see and praise. There is another Berlin which comparatively few tourists visit, and of which many sociologists do not know.

Across the river on the east and the north is "Old Berlin"—the Berlin of Frederick the Great. There the Berlin authorities have the same sociological problems that confront the authorities of other cities.

There are some 8,000 to 10,000 flats, ranging from two to nine rooms, in "New Berlin." In old Berlin as high as thirteen persons have been found living in one room. The construction of modern flat buildings has been confined to the new town, and they have been put up for dividends.

Fairly moderate as the rentals, ranging from $20 to $60 for three to six-room steam-heated flats, might be considered by Americans no German workman, street car or railroad employe, earning but $30 to $35 a month, can pay such rents.

Accompanied by a physician, the writer made a short tour of investigation on the north side. It was noon, but no one would suspect it in the dim light of the basement room into which we stepped. On a very soiled bed of rags was a woman and her young baby.

The rooms were kitchen, dining room, sleeping room and living room all in one. The family consisted of the husband, wife, four children, the oldest girl being sixteen. At night they divided the one room with two young workingmen, to whom they rented sleeping space on the floor.

On another street we came to a place in the second court back of one room and a tiny kitchen. They were occupied by a man and wife and eight children. There were three beds for the ten. There was no heat.

The two windows and the door were kept closed against the cold. Moisture ran down the walls. These two places were typical of a dozen that were visited. The death rate, is very high from these sections of the city. Privacy and morality is impossible under such conditions.

A proposition will be laid before the Diet to appropriate at least $1,000,000 for "small dwellings," to be rented at a rate within reach of the workingman.

Just How He Felt.

Mr. Meekins was habitually all that the first syllable of his name might imply, but a day came when the worm turned at last and spoke his mind freely to that other member of the domestic firm who had assumed leadership. Mrs. M. stood aghast and then remarked ominously:

"Timothy, you'd regret those words if you should suddenly lose your wife."

"Oh, I don't want to lose her," came the cheerful retort, "but there are times when I'd like very much to mislay her for a few hours."

The Turkish Bride.

The Turkish bride spends about a week in dancing and wild, happy life before her marriage. Then when she leaves her father's house she kisses his hands and feet. She goes to the groom's home and on his arrival kisses his hand. Then the paint with which her face has been daubed in the week of dancing and frivolity is wiped off and she drinks coffee with her husband—and they are happy ever after.

His First Intimation.

"How did you find out you could draw?" inquired the admirer of the celebrated illustrator.

"By the marks I received in school for the excellence and fidelity of my work," replied the eminent one. "My work was a caricature of my beloved teacher on the blackboard, and the marks came from the teacher's cane."

Disappointed.

"I dreamed last night that I went to your funeral."

"And that is why you are looking so glum? Good boy!"

"Yes—because it was a dream."

Team Work.

"How do Jack and Joanne ever manage to scrape a living?"

"Why, he makes the money first, and she makes it last."

Something Like a Coat.

A remarkable coat was that of Mr. Bright, an Essex (Eng.) grocer, who scaled 616 lbs. His size was such that the coat could easily be buttoned round seven full-grown men. Mr. Bright was one of the heaviest men ever born, and Daniel Lambert only beat him by 31 lbs.

CHANGED THE PLAY.

Peter the Great Turned the Comedy Into a Tragedy.

It is related that Peter the Great, that mighty czar of Russia, strolling incognito through the camp, came upon a party of noncommissioned officers and grenadiers enacting a comedy, which he paused to witness.

All at once his brow became clouded. In the play a soldier in the uniform of his guard commits at a certain moment a robbery. Nevertheless the emperor allowed the play to proceed. The court martial is summoned on the stage and the thief is sentenced to death. The spectators, composed of officers and men, showed the most lively concern in the performance and laughed at the grotesque contortions of the condemned culprit. The amateur actor played his part very well. Here come the squad that is to execute him. "Fire!" orders the lieutenant, and the amateur dropped down dead, his heart pierced by seven bullets—no make believe, but dead indeed.

Whereupon the emperor dropped his incognito and addressed those assembled: "A soldier of my guard who committed a robbery must die. If he did not steal why did he boast of it and soil his uniform? It is I who ordered the loaded rifles given to the men. I henceforth forbid my soldiers to ply the trade of mummers."—Argonaut.

PHILADELPHIA SCRAPPLE.

How to Prepare This Inexpensive and Highly Nutritious Dish.

Have your butcher clean a pig's head and split it in halves. Put it into a stock pot and cover with boiling water. Cook until meat falls from the bones. Remove the meat, strain the liquor and set aside to cool. Remove most of the fat, all gristle and bones. Chop meat fine.

Remove fat from liquor, place on range, bring to boiling point, add meat and one pound of beef liver previously parboiled ten minutes and cut in very small pieces. Season with salt, pepper and sage to taste. Add one cupful of buckwheat mixed with one cupful of cornmeal, letting it slip through the fingers of the left hand while you stir briskly with the right. Thicken with cornmeal until mixture is the consistency of cornmeal mush. Stir until free from lumps. Remove to back of range and simmer two or three hours. Use a heavy vessel to cook the mixture in. This lessens the danger of scorching.

Pour mixture into brick shaped bread pans previously wet with cold water. When cold cut in half inch slices and saute in a well greased hot spider. Brown on both sides. Serve for breakfast or luncheon. This is an inexpensive dish and is highly nutritious and will keep several weeks in cold weather.—National Food Magazine.

High Living In Germany.

The Lokal Anzeiger of Berlin publishes an urgent appeal to German society leaders to return to "simple eating." It says that the luxury era in Germany has caused an extravagance in dining which threatens financial impoverishment and digestive ruin. Carlsbad, Marienbad, Kissingen and other spas which cater to the needs of "penitent gluttons" are, says the journal, visited by numbers, annually increasing, who go there in spring and summer to make amends for overeating and overdrinking in winter. "It would be a genuine public service on the part of leading society personages if they would begin by practical example to wage war on the sensual luxuriousness of modern entertaining, as far as the culinary end of it is concerned. Only by a return to simple and sensible dinners can we avert genuine economic and physical perils."

Streets of New York.

"Anything in the line of luck can happen in New York city," observed a commercial traveler recently, "and some of the funniest stunts are accidentally pulled off. I saw something the other day quicker done than told. An automobile was going down Broadway. A woman dropped a magazine or book from it. A man picked it up—a man worse for poverty. As the chauffeur turned the vehicle this man threw the magazine or book into it, and the woman tossed a coin at him. Another man, running down Broadway, caught the coin and continued running. The man who had lost his tip started to laugh, and soon Broadway was laughing with him, although not knowing what it was laughing at."—New York Tribune.

"Was there a telephone call for me this morning?" I asked the West Indian bellboy.

"No, sir," he answered positively. "Dey ain't been no such call fuh you fuh two days, sah."

"Yes, suh, pos'tive."

"Well, if one comes for me this afternoon say I'll be in later.

"Yes, suh—what's youah name, suh?"—Toledo Blade.

ROOM 2, BURCHELL BLK. BRANDON

NEW YORK'S OLDEST HOUSE.

Built About 1692 of Dutch Brick Imported From Holland.

Attention is called in the real estate board of brokers' bulletin to the building at 122 William street, which is said to be the oldest building in New York city. It was built in 1692 or thereabouts of narrow Dutch brick imported from Holland and laid in cement. When the city opened the streets in the vicinity of the William street building it owned the property and placed restrictions in the deeds, such as some modern developers make, that the lots should be improved with buildings at least two stories high.

There is a shed in the rear of the building which, the bulletin says, marks the first spot of first bloodshed in the Revolutionary war. This section, then known as Golden hill, was the camp of the Sixteenth regiment of foot (British grenadiers), and almost two months before the battle of Lexington the Sons of Liberty attacked them, with a result of five British soldiers wounded and one American killed and three wounded. The event is down in history as the battle of Golden hill.

The building is on the east side of William street between John and Fulton streets. It has been owned for many years by the Gilford family.

Chinese Laundry Tickets.

The Chinese laundryman at the beginning of each week makes out a batch of checks in duplicate, to be used as wash tickets. He selects the name of some god or goddess or of some object, as the sun, the moon, etc. To this he prefixes a number, as "Moon No. 1," "Moon No. 2," and so on. In the space between the two legends—for the signs are repeated twice—he has his own name—as, for example, Wah Lee. When a customer takes a bundle of washing to the laundry the Chinese, first tearing a ticket in two in ragged fashion, puts one half of it on the packet for reference. The other half he gives as a receipt to the person who has brought the package of laundry. It must be presented when the laundry is demanded.—New York Herald.

Speaking Scotch.

The race of Scotch speaking people is passing away, and not many are left to tell the story in the rich brogue of the national tongue. And there was always a story to tell, so that one on this very subject comes in pat here. A youth who had been educated in England returned to his family in Scotland and was shown off by admiring friends

"Is he not charming?" remarked one to the young man's sister.

"Oh, yes, but he speaks English now," she answered in real distress.

An old lady being asked if a person she had lately seen was "Scotch" answered with much bitterness:

"I canna say. Ye a' speak sae genteel now that I dinna ken wha's Scotch."—London Mail.

Life's Realities.

Women must wonder occasionally that they don't meet any men like the hero in a fashionable novel. And that can also be played the other way across.—Atchison Globe.

Both Engaged.

Servant Maid (in breathless excitement)—Professor, there's a burglar in the dining room! Professor (deeply absorbed, without looking up)—Tell him I'm engaged.

SEVRES PORCELAIN.

An Artistic Flower Group That Deceived a French King.

The manufacture of Sevres ware is one of the oldest and most characteristic arts of the French. The Sevres potteries have long been under the direct control and patronage of the government and are in receipt of an annual subsidy.

A royal porcelain factory was first established at Vincennes in 1745 under Louis XV, and produced many notable pieces of ware, particularly bouquets. On one occasion, it is related, his majesty was the victim of a practical joke. One of the exceedingly lifelike bouquets having been placed in his greenhouse by Mme. de Pompadour, the king on his next visit to the place stooped and in all good faith attempted to smell the rare exotic.

The factory was transferred from Vincennes to Sevres in 1756, since which date it has sent forth works of almost inestimable value. Porcelain pastes, colored by metallic oxides, are now compounded there which resist the action of the most fiery furnace, and the enamels and glazes have a marvelous transparency and luster. Almost every tint which can be imparted to porcelain is here—white, turquoise, blue, all the greens, the delicate rose pink which has received the name of Du Barry and even scarlet, one of the most difficult colors to retain under the intense heat of the baking furnaces.

Sevres porcelain has always been an expensive production, for the most skilled artists have been employed in its manufacture. Formerly the finest pieces were made solely for royalty and were sold only by royal permission. The prices paid in modern times for some of these specimens have steadily increased until they have become startling.—Exchange.

Tennis the Game of Kings.

Tennis is the game of kings. The oldest of existing ball games—it is mentioned in the Arthurian romances—tennis was originally the pastime of the kings and nobles, and it was long before its descendant—lawn tennis—became popular with all classes. The game reached England from France and Italy, and by the time of Henry VII. we find a royal tennis court at Windsor. Henry VIII. was an expert at the game.—London Chronicle.

The Goat.

"Why do you insist on keeping that man as a member of your bridge club? He plays a wretched game."

"That's the point. Each of us is always hoping that he can be rung in as the other fellow's partner."—Washington Star.

"So you were successful in your efforts to break your uncle's will in which he left you only $20,000?"

"Yes, I won out easily."

"And how much did you finally get?"

"After paying the lawyers I took down $3,500."—Detroit Free Press.

Not So Bad.

"Did you tell the landlord what an awful leak there was in the roof?"

"Yes, I told him."

"What did he say?"

"He said he'd fix the roof as soon as you pay the rent you owe."

"Did he? I guess it ain't much of a leak."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

THE OLD LOG CABIN

(Published by Request.)

"Honor thy father and thy mother, that thy days may be long upon the land which the Lord thy God giveth thee."

Forget not the days when our fathers were ringing,
Their chorus of axes through woods rich and rare;
Remember the cabins where mothers were singing,
With hope in their hearts and hands full of care.

Like incense the voices of glad sons and daughters,
Arose with the smoke, from the clearing to Him,
Whose Garden of Maples, beside the sweet waters,
He gave us, and blessed our rich cup to the brim.

The dearest of homes was the cot in the wildwood,
No palace or castle in England or France
Could ever compare with the shanty of childhood—
Now its shadows recedes like an exquisite trance.

At "bees" or at "corners" they met their good neighbors,
They talked of old lands with a trembling voice;
And they gallantly shared with their oxen the labors,
Of hewing out homes in this land of their choice.

A shot from the door brought a buck to the table,
A spear thrust in water tossed a "lunge" to the fire.
Wild pigeons in millions o'erhead were no fable,
And Nimrods found here all their hearts could desire.

Say, Memory, where are thy johnny-cakes' riches,
Give back the molasses our maples distilled;
With pancakes of buckwheat and such divine dishes,
That kings, to obtain them, log houses would build!

What tongue has the power to tell of their sorrows?
What pen has recorded the lives gone before?
Their bitter to-days, and the mocking to-morrows,
And joys in that sacred log cottage of yore?

The noble old stock in their graves now lie thicker,
And children forget where their grandparents lie.
The forest and cabins fade farther and farther,
Oh, let not their virtues in us ever die.

Young Canada sports his white cuffs and high collars.
But grandmother spun all his father had worn.
Remember you boys, set with diamonds and dollars,
That in dear old log cabins our nation was born.

O, forest-bred children, wild nature caresses,
Gave you the hard bone, and the brawn and the brain;
Her sanctum sanctorum's most secret recesses,
Were bound to Log Temples by God's golden chain.

—William H. Taylor.

A Hotel Experience.

"There are two classes of arrivals who ask you to register for them," said a hotel clerk yesterday. "One is the woman with tight gloves who really cannot write. The other is the man who arrive after 11 p. m. and who says 'Just register (hic), old man, will you? Been carrying this grip and m' hand's so nervous I couldn't hold a pen.'"—New York Sun.

Speaking English.

Almost any one who speaks English might be put down successively in half a dozen places where English is supposed to be the mother tongue and hear as many dialects spoken, not one of which he would understand until it was interpreted. An old Lancashire worthy and a London lady were one day occupants of a railway carriage. The train had been waiting long at a certain station, and there was no appearance of it starting when the worthy remarked:

"They're a gly, tangiesome lot here."

"I beg your pardon," said the lady.

"I'm sayin' they're a gey daidlin' lot here."

"I really beg your pardon, sir."

"I'm observin' they are a vera dreich lot here the nicht."

"Really I must again beg your pardon. I don't comprehend you."

"I was just tryin' to say that the train was late."

"Indeed, sir, it is—very late," agreed the lady and then collapsed.—London Tit-Bits.

Orderliness Is Big Asset.

To teach children habits of neatness, system and order is to insure some degree, at least, of success. Yet they are often brought up amid disorder and confusion, allowed to throw things down just where they use them and to form slovenly and slipshod habits. They are not taught to put things where they belong, and consequently they grow up shackled with handicaps which they can rarely throw off.

If there is any delusion in the world it is that doing "things just for now," dropping things wherever one may happen to be temporarily, saves time. On the contrary, this is a great time waster and a great demoralizer of character. A bad habit not only tends to repeat itself, but to increase the tendency in that direction.

If you were not taught the beautiful lesson of orderliness in your youth, teach it to yourself now.—Success Magazine.

Needed a Sea Turn.

Captain Lane had retired from active pursuit of his beloved calling and had turned his attention to town affairs. Having succeeded in rousing the citizens to the need of a drinking fountain and also to the need of two coats of paint on the town hall, Captain Lane felt himself a valued and important person.

One day he was asked by a sojourner in the town to give his opinion of the present administration.

"It's pretty fair," said the captain slowly. "Of course there's things that could be different and would be better so, but on the whole 'tis pretty fair. But now I'll tell ye—I'm speaking from experience, you understand—things at the seat o' gover'ment won't be run as they could be run till the people o' this country make up their minds to stop confining their votes to landlubbers!"—Youth's Companion.

A Correction.

In a town of such size that every one knows every one else it is often customary to speak of people by their first names, even when one would not do so to their faces. The butcher is known as Joe Smith, the grocer as Frank Parsons, the lawyer as Will Andrews, and no offense is meant or taken. One day a friend was helping a teacher of the industrial school to put hats and coats on forty little members of the kindergarten class. Two little tow headed girls attracted her attention, and as she tied their hoods she asked:

"Are you Charlie Porter's little girls?" Two serious little blue eyes looked up as the elder replied:

"His name was Charlie when he was a little boy. He's Mr. Porter now."—Exchange.

The Moral.

"The persistency with which children see in a fable some other moral than the one which it is intended that they shall see is often distressing," remarks a Philadelphia instructor of the young. "I had recited to one little boy the story of the wolf and the lamb and had followed it up with the remark:

"'And now you see, Tommy, that the lamb would not have been eaten by the wolf if he had been good and sensible.'

"'Yes, I understand,' said Tommy. 'If the lamb had been good and sensible we should have had him to eat!'"—Lippincott's.

A Hint.

Pupil (to schoolmaster)—Sir, would you mind taking great care how you draw up my report? My parents suffer dreadfully from nerves.—Fliegende Blatter.

The usual fortune of complaint is to excite contempt more than pity.—Johnson.

Inexplicable.

"I can't understand it," sadly remarked the theatrical manager after he had again studied the figures, which showed that his loss amounted to $45,723.61.

"What do you refer to?" asked his general publicity man.

"The failure of 'Naughtie Nettie.'"

"It seems to me the thing can be explained very simply. The music didn't amount to anything, and the book was nothing but the stupidest kind of trash."

"I know all that; but, confound it, I brought it over from Europe, didn't I?"—Chicago Record-Herald.

CALEDONIA
⁚ PARK ⁚
TORONTO.

$14 to $25
Per Foot

Nothing better in a subdivision is being offered at the present time than CALEDONIA PARK.

Situated in the north-west section, where wonderful development is taking place, with a street car line nearing completion, stores and churches in the vicinity, and the new CALEDONIA SCHOOL on Innes Avenue, facing our property.

We are extremely modest in our statement, when we say that the prices we are offering these lots at TO-DAY should be doubled in 12 MONTHS.

A gentleman was telling us of the big mistake he made in not buying in the Canada Foundry section a few years ago. Everybody knows what advances have taken place there, and when looking down over the Canada Foundry section from the splendid elevation at "CALEDONIA PARK," one can figure out a great future for investment in our property. Already our sales total $60,000.00, and good purchases have been made by out-of-town clients.

NOTE the location: Close to the St. Clair car line, just west of Lansdowne.

You Can't Cure Catarrh By Swallowing Drugs

Cough Syrup, Tablets and Sprays Sicken the Stomach But Don't Reach the Germs of Catarrh—Hence Their Failure to Help.

To cure an ailment in the throat or chest, to route out Catarrh or Asthma, it is essential that the medicine be conveyed direct to the affected parts. This is why no other remedy has achieved such world-wide success as Catarrhozone, which alone can be breathed in one second to every air cell in the breathing organs. The healing vapors of Catarrhozone mix with the breath and descend through the throat, down the bronchial tubes to the deepest air cells in the lungs—all parts are saturated with the rich piney essences that ease, heal, and cure.

Catarrhozone has entirely displaced the old-fashioned remedies, such as cough syrups, sprays, tablets, and sedative powders. It contains none of the opium, chloral and drowsy narcotics so commonly found in liquid cough and catarrhal remedies.

Couldn't Breathe — "Catarrhozone" Cured.

"No one ever contracted a more obstinate attack of nasal catarrh than I suffered a month ago," writes Mr. G. F. Root, a well-known resident of Bridgetown, W.I. "My head ached terrifically, I sneezed about every three minutes, but still my nostrils were entirely closed and I couldn't breathe through them. Ten minutes inhaling Catarrhozone gave me a little relief so I continued to use Catarrhozone every hour, and before the day was out I had improved. Catarrhozone quickly cured me. I am well ever since."

There is no remedy so certain and safe as Catarrhozone, but being a good remedy it is imitated. Beware of the substitutor. Large Catarrhozone last two months, price $1.00; smaller sizes 25c and 50c. All reliable dealers, or the Catarrhozone Co., of Buffalo, N.Y., and Kingston, Canada.

Object to Garbage Dump.

The Times has received a strong complaint from an esteemed subscriber who resides near the garbage dump. He says that it is very offensive, and proposes to take steps to have it abated. This whole garbage question is one that the city authorities should deal with on a larger scale.

The members of Mount Hebron Encampment of Oddfellows, presented Mr. Fred Reason with an address accompanied by a handsome watch fob, on Wednesday evening, on the eve of his departure for Woodstock, where he has accepted a responsible position. Mr. Reason left for his new home yesterday.

Price of Coal in Lindsay.

Warder: Lindsay citizens will be interested in knowing that coal took a tumble this morning, the prices being lowered 25 cents per ton on nut coal, stove, egg, pea and mixed coal. The June prices are announced as follows by the local firms.

Nut coal	$7.50
Stove, egg	7.25
Mixed coal	7.40
Pea coal	6.25

An Example for Peterborough

The proprietor of one of the Toronto theatres has written to the Toronto papers that his theatre aims to give a "clean, bright and catchy" performance, and he says that on the stage and in the dressing rooms of his particular theatre are notices similar to the following: "Notice.—Any actors or actresses saying or doing anything indecent or vulgar on the stage of this theatre will be arrested. To Managers—If you can't give a clean performance, don't open your engagement here. Vulgarity will not be tolerated." That such a notice should be necessary, however, speaks volumes.

A Serious Operation.

A somewhat serious operation was performed at Nichol's Hospital on Mr. Albert Carpenter, who was the victim of a recent stabbing affray at the G.T.R. station. It was found necessary to split the arm and expose the nerve, for the purpose of treating it. The knife, which was a fine-bladed weapon, had, in some manner injured the nerve, rendering his arm useless. It is understood that the stabbing was purely accidental, and no maliciousness was intended. The patient is doing as well as can be expected, under the circumstances, and no serious results are anticipated.

Street Railway Extension.

Those residing in the extreme south end, in the vicinity of Browntown, and even further out, are eagerly awaiting the completion of the street railway extension to their locality. This is expected in the very near future. The company is now engaged in stringing the trolley wire. Brownton's population is around the two hundred mark and there is activity in building operations. Accommodation at May's school, for the future generation of Brownston is not all that could be wished for, but the officials have ordered more seats. This will relieve the situation. The school gives instruction to one hundred children.

Early Morning Noises.

The Times has a complaint from one of its readers regarding the early morning noises. He says that be lives next door to a man who keeps chickens, and is awakened about 3.30 each morning by the crowing of the roosters. He thinks protection should be afforded by the authorities. For the benefit of our friend we might say that the Farm and Fireside gives a remedy. It says: "Roosters cannot crow unless they throw their heads back and stretch their necks to the full length. Consequently the Farm and Fireside says that if the boisterous birds are put into low coops which will hold their heads down low, they will not be able to salute the approaching day." If this be so, let the Medical Health Officer pass an order which will save the roosters but prevent their noisy alarums.

Havelock is planning to put in a sewage system.

The new Grand Trunk management has assured Hon. T. W. Crothers that all the strikers will be taken back.

The post office clock which has been on strike for some days, resumed business again yesterday. In other words it begins to strike.

The Peters' inquest re-resumes tonight, in the Council Chamber. It will be remembered that Peters was drowned by upsetting out of a canoe a short time ago.

St. George's Choral Society are hard at work getting up "The Messiah." Mr. R. J. Devey is directing the rehearsals, which is a guarantee that it will be a huge success.

POISON SQUAD MEMBER COLLAPSES UNDER TEST.

Philadelphia Student in Serious Condition for a Time, But Has Recovered.

COMPANIONS ARE SICK

Every Member of Band Suffers Nausea as Result of Caffeine Experiments.

Philadelphia, May 11.—Serious results have followed the feeding of caffeine, a drug lurking in chocolate as well as coffee, to the eight student members of the "poison squad" of the Hahnemann Medical College here. All have been subject to severe headaches and serious attacks of nausea while one member of the squad was in such a serious condition after taking the caffeine-laden water for the first twenty days that he had to be placed in a special ward in the hospital. He received constant attention, has recovered and at the college is said to have rejoined the squad.

"The poison squad" at the Hahnemann college was formed very quietly. It came into existence on March 1 and is under the direct supervision of Dr. Edmund T. Nesbit, director of the Hering laboratory at the college.

Dr. Nesbit called for volunteers from among the students. He said he wanted men who were willing to do something for the benefit of humanity at large, even though it might be to their own discomfiture. Twenty-five students volunteered. Of these fourteen of the most perfect physically were chosen, eleven as regular members of the squad and three as alternates. • • • • • •

For thirty days the members of the squad were given doses of caffeine while Dr. Nesbit and his assistants made personal observations, taking the pulses and temperatures of the members of the squad and making notes on their general physical condition. It was not until within the last few days that one member of the squad weakened under the experiment to such an extent that it was necessary to send him to the hospital. Dr. Nesbit refuses to reveal the name of the student who collapsed, but declares that through proper treatment immediately he soon recovered • • • • •

The caffeine was administered in a solution and was mixed with the water the squad drank. The students did not know when they were getting the caffeine. There were no stated times for giving it in order that the physical condition might not be changed materially through the action of the brain.

Before joining the "poison squad," each student had to sign a release against any action for damages against the college. • • • • •

The laboratory was organized about fifteen months ago with Dr. Nesbit as director, and almost immediately an exhaustive study was started to ascertain the destructive qualities of caffeine as used in food stuffs.

The students continued to live at the dormitories or at the boarding houses, but they were required to take their meals at the training table located in the hospital near the diet kitchen. Before each meal the temperature was recorded, the pulse and respiration were taken, and the blood pressure was tested. During the period the drug was administered only Dr. Nesbitt knew the amount apportioned to each man, and when and in what quantity it was administered.—New York Sun, May 12, 1912

REV. DR. GRAHAM OF TORONTO DELIVERS A STIRRING ADDRESS

Pastor of First Avenue Baptist Church Addresses the Protestant Federation on "Jesuitism"

Last night Rev. Dr. W. T. Graham pastor of First avenue Baptist church, Toronto, delivered a stirring address at a meeting of the Protestant Federation. The Sons of England Hall, where the meeting took place, was crowded to the doors by members of the Federation and their friends. The chair was occupied by Ald. W. J. Johnston, President of the Federation, who introduced the speaker of the evening.

Rev. Mr. Graham, on rising received a warm reception. He began by complimenting the Federation on the splendid work it was doing, and the example they were setting to other places.

Rev. Mr. Graham after a few preliminary remarks, said that the founder of Jesuitism was born in 1491, and was a leader and controller of men. After giving details of the life of this wonderful man up to the time he organized the Jesuit Society, with only nine members, the speaker proceeded to tell of the development of the order, branches being formed throughout Europe and the East. Its growth was so great that in a few years it numbered over a million souls and possessed enormous wealth and power, all the while pleading poverty. Its doctrines spread throughout the known world. At his death, the founder of the order claimed over 700,000 converts as the result of his labours. If it were not for the zeal of the Jesuits, Rome would not now be able to boast of more than a third of her present following. Had it not been for the strenuous efforts put forth by them at the time of the Reformation and a few years subsequent to it. The triumphant march of Protestantism would have swept from off the face of the earth that it had so long cursed. From that time until the present day the Jesuits have been the strongest support of Rome and the greatest clog in the world's progress. Not only this, but it has controlled the inner workings of the Romish Church to such an extent, that the Papacy to-day is under Jesuit rule. In 1773 Pope Clement tried in vain to abolish the society, but they made it so uncomfortable for him that Pope Pius was forced in 1814 to restore the order. To what part of Europe can we turn and not trace the activity of the society? Their attitude towards education is destructive of our present system and diametrically opposed to the highest and best interests of the country. They maintain that the Romish Church should educate the youth of the land, and they are constantly working to bring all education under their direct control. Their interference in educational matters in our own Province proves this. We made a great mistake when we granted Separate schools.

The speaker referred to the educational system of Quebec and the Western Provinces, which were saddled with Separate schools. He thought the time had come when all should unite to end all compromise with the Heirarchy of Rome. It was only by a united effort that Quebec Province will yet be able to throw off the shackles of ignorance and oppression and become freemen, taking its place with sister provinces, and thus march triumphantly on toward that high and noble destiny which God has placed before our grand and glorious Dominion.

At the conclusion of Dr. Graham's address, a hearty vote of thanks was tendered him, which was briefly acknowledged.

Mr. Peck in the course of an excellent address, said that he was confident that the time would soon be at hand when two persons who wanted to get married, would be able to do so by duly qualified people, without the interference of any organization whatever, and under the protection of the laws of the nation.

Mr. J. H. Burnham, M.P., spoke upon the impending conflict between the trusts and the Socialists.

The meeting closed with the singing of the National Anthem.

IMMEDIATE UNION OF CHURCHES ALONG SOME LINES PROPOSED

Edmonton, Alta., June 7.—The Union committee of the Presbyterian Church placed before the General Assembly this morning at 10 o'clock a series of resolutions bearing on the question of Church Union which leaves no manner of doubt with reference to the attitude of the committee. Members of the committee stated to-day that there had been at no time since the negotiations were begun any opinion entertained radically different from those set forth to-day. From the first discussion of the matter it had been sincerely desired to consummate the change and it was practically certain there had been some misapprehension recently of the purpose of the committee, but there had been no misapprehension of this kind in the minds of the members of the committee.

Union Congregations at Once.

The views set forth in the remarkable statement of to-day had been held firmly all along. The statement laid before the assembly this morning affirms that organic union will be effected soon. It assured the members of the other communions interested of its sincere and ardent desire to complete the union within a brief period. It provides for the formation at once of union congregations to be supervised by the three churches jointly. It provides for a division of the mission fields and for complete co-operation pending organic union and it issues instructions to the colleges and boards of publications to combine their work so far as is possible.

CARS SMASHED, MEN BEATEN IN A RAILWAY STRIKE

Boston, June 7.—Violence marked the beginning of the strike of several thousand of the employees of the Boston elevated railway at daylight. Those who refused to work demanded recognition by the company of a recently formed union. The company's reply is that they have treated the men unusually well for many years, and refuse to deal with them other than individually.

The street railway service and the elevated road were being operated on about half time at 8 a.m. to-day and up to that hour five arrests had been made for assaults on motormen.

Came Suddenly.

Although the strike had been threatened for a week or more, it burst shortly after 4 a.m. with a suddenness, and a clash that surprised not only the company's officials but the police of Boston, Brookline, Cambridge, Somerville, Everett Chelsea, Maxford and Malden.

The men had been discussing the matter nearly all night at a mass meeting at Paine Memorial Hall, and as daylight was breaking it was decided to take a vote.

Passengers Driven Out.

As soon as it was seen that those in favor of going out were in the majority the gathering of nearly 2000 men began cheering and a rush was made for the first early morning cars. The first car was stopped, the trolley jerked from the wire, the windows were smashed and the motorman and conductor badly beaten. A number of passengers were rushed out of the car and although none were injured all seemed relieved when they gained the street. A few minutes later word of the strike had reached the vicinity of the North Station, and there two other cars were stopped, windows were smashed some of the gearing disabled and several passengers were slightly injured by flying glass.

Several arrests were made at this point.

A crowd in the form of a parade, coming from the direction of strike headquarters, encircled several cars on Adams square about 6 o'clock, and more violence was used. Two arrests were made here. One of those going into custody was charged with assault on a policeman and the other was charged with inciting a riot.

In Cambridge conditions were very nearly the same, not only on the surface lines but in the tunnel and also on the recently opened viaduct. The outbreak in Charlestown was almost as severe while similar occurrences took place in Everett and Chelsea. It was announced during the forenoon that the actual vote in favor of a strike was 1,389 to 6.

Almost Unanimous.

The strikers' committee claims that up to the time of calling the strike 3,200 men had signed union papers and had paid the initiation fee.

UNION JACK TO BE USED ON ALL OFFICIAL OCCASIONS

Government and Cities of Canada Will Have to Spend a Lot of Money in Substituting Jacks For the Red Ensign.

Ottawa, June 7.—The decision of the Colonial Secretary that the Union Jack is the only flag entitled to be floated in Canada as the official flag will cause the expenditure of a lot of money in the purchase of Union Jacks by those whose flag equipment consists of chiefly the red ensign with the Dominion arms in the corner.

While no official order will be issued as to the use of the Jack, it is taken for granted that the various Governments, Federal, Provincial and municipal, will obey the order and provide themselves with Jacks forthwith for use on all ceremonial occasions.

It is interesting to note what will become of all the red ensigns, hundreds of thousands of which are scattered all over the country. They cannot be used on ships because there are not enough ships to go round. They cannot be used on the public buildings without disregarding the express wishes of the British Government, but they can be used for decoration purposes.

The Otonabee Council met on May 30th, when the following business was transacted: A deputation was present requesting that a ditch be excavated along the road between lots 17 and 18, concession 13. The Reeve and Councillor Deyell were appointed a committee to investigate and report to the Council.

Owing to damages done to the roads and culverts by the spring freshets and expenditure on the town hall last summer, it will be necessary to increase the rate for township purposes from 22-10 mills to 24-10 mills.

A petition was received from the rate payers of the east half of concession 13, south of lot 17, to the river Otonabee, to detach their names from polling division No. 7, and place them in No. 6.—Granted.

The following accounts were passed: J. G. Drummond, repairing Lang water tank pipe, $4.74; Geo. Scullie, care of water tank for three years, $3.75; Mr. Edwards, digging and spikes, $7.90. drain. $1.75; Fred Stewart, cedar Shot Sweetheart.

San Francisco, Cal., June 6.—Bernice Lillian Godair, a 17-year-old high school student, was shot and killed on the front porch of her home here by Charles H. Bonner, 19 years old. Bonner was captured after a chase of four blocks by a policeman. Miss Godair had just returned from the theatre in company with her aunt and an escort when she was called to the door by Bonner. "You turned me down and I'm going to kill you," he cried, and then fired. The deed was witnessed by the aunt, Mrs. Mary Breaux, and Samuel Houghton. Bonner tried out his revolver in a park near the girl's home before the tragedy, shooting three times at a target. On his cot at the city prison Bonner declined to discuss the shooting further than to say he had been jilted by his victim.

THE CATHOLIC REGISTER

Another Broadside of Hot Stuff for Protestants—Rev. C. O. Johnson is Fiercely Attacked.

The following from the Catholic Register, Toronto, needs no comment:—

"Rev. Dr. Milligan, having gone to Rome and duly examined the Catholic Church, finds that she is quite harmless, and need not be worried about. Then why will not he and his brother ranters do what she wants them to do—leave her alone, and mind their own business, if they have any legitimate business on hand at all?

o0o

"We read in the World that an Orange meeting in Toronto "was presided over by the Right Worshipful Grand Mistress Miss Mary Cullin!" Ye Gods and little "fushes"! And they talk of the "titles and trappings of the Roman Heirarchy"! The loyal order of Gadarine Grunters waxed mediaeval. And to think of what the Cullens have come to, any way!

The Globe devotes its front page Monday to a column of Johnston ravings about the Catholic Church and a mean and silly attack on St. Michael's Hospital and some priest, whom the veracious C. O. takes care not to mention. The Globe knows that whilst this man Johnston is himself beneath notice and could win applause only from the Orange turnout, such as he addressed Sunday, it is doing a poor service to decency and the peace and good will of its readers by featuring on its most prominent page a pulpit performance so decidedly degrading and scandalous. The attempt to injure defenceless religious and an institution which has rendered this city invaluable services, by making charges of religious interference, has been tried before by fanatics of the Johnston type. Those who know the hospital will scarcely afford it a passing comment.

1. Protestant. A Catholic neighbor tells me that there are lots of Catholics who have no Bible. Don't you think it would be a good idea for the Catholic Church to start a Bible Society?

Ans.—Catholics do not regard the reading of the whole Bible as being a necessity for salvation. Our Lord Himself tells us that they will be saved who keep the commandments. Now, people can learn the commandments and the essential truths of Christianity without being able to read or write. All Protestants will agree with this proposition. The Church believes in reading the sacred Scriptures, and holds that the devout perusal thereof will be of great spiritual benefit, but inasmuch as a knowledge of what must be done in order to be saved can be acquired without reading the Bible, she does not make it obligatory upon her members either to keep it or read it. Bible-reading without the proper guidance has led to an immense number of different sects amongst Protestants, and from the present state of Protestant Christianity it looks as if some people read it altogether too assiduously.

BOY KILLED IN LAKEFIELD

Was Playing With Companions With Empty Cars and Was Crushed to Death—Son of Mr. W. Robinson, Carpenter.

A sad accident occurred in Lakefield yesterday afternoon by which a young son of Mr. Wm. Robinson, carpenter, eight years of age, lost his life. It appears that a number of boys were playing in the yard of the lumber company, pushing an empty lorry up grade and riding down on it. The boys were on their way home from school and entered into the sport with enthusiasm, as boys usually do. The car on which the lads were riding ran into a loaded car, the shock of which threw some of them off. Young Robinson in some way fell between the cars, having his chest crushed. The man in charge of the yard was on the spot at the time, and picked the lad up and took him to Dr. J. R. Frazer's office, where he breathed his last almost immediately.

A pathetic circumstance is that Mr. Robinson left a short time ago for Regina, having only reached that city and got to work.

SHOTS FIRED AT HUNGARIAN LEADER HOUSE OF DEPUTIES

All of Them Went Wild--Deputy Kovacs, the Assailant, Then Turned Revolver on Himself, Ending His Life--Count Tiszar Was Uninjured and Ordered the Proceedings to Continue.

Budapest, June 7.—Count Tisza, the Government leader in Parliament, to-day was shot at but not injured, in the Chamber of Deputies by M. Kovacs, an Opposition deputy, who then turned the revolver upon himself and fired two bullets into his head, dying instantly.

Kovacs was one of the Opposition deputies excluded from the Chamber on May 31, following a near riot, in which the Emperor and Government officials were bitterly assailed by the Opposition.

The disgruntled Kovacs, who, it was said, brooded over what he considered humiliation until his mind became affected, entered the Chamber unobserved to-day, and walked into the box provided for newspaper correspondents before his presence was known. Standing at the rail, he drew a revolver from his pocket and fired three shots at Count Tisza in rapid succession, but his aim was bad, and the three bullets went wide.

Instantly there was wild disorder, as deputies, parliament officers, and newspaper men rushed towards Kovacs, thinking he might fire again, but the would-be assassin forestalled them by killing himself.

Count Tisza remained calm, and did not leave his place during the turmoil. As soon as the body was removed from the Chamber, he ordered that the proceedings be immediately resumed.

What Caused Trouble.

The attack upon the count is a direct outcome of the agitation which has been persisted in since his election as Speaker on May 22. Tisza is an opponent of universal suffrage and on this issue his election was contested with a bitterness that culminated in violence in the Chamber and bloodshed in the streets. He succeeded L. Navay, who resigned because of party troubles. Free fights occurred around the voting urn and finally the whole Opposition party left the Chamber, and Tisza was elected by the Government party.

That same night the Socialist Union decided to proclaim a strike of all unionist workmen in Budapest, with the exception of municipal employees. During the next two days there was much rioting and many persons were killed by the soldiers and police. The whole affair took a revolutionary character, and the Government was compelled to compromise with the Socialists by inducing the manufacturers involved in the strike to make certain concessions, thus appeasing the popular feeling.

TO GET SAMUEL COMPERS THROUGH CLARENCE DARROW

Los Angeles, Cal., June 7.—Bert H. Franklin testified yesterday on cross-examination in the trial of Clarence S. Darrow for alleged bribing of jurors that he had made his first confession of guilt at the office and in the presence of Oscar Lawler, special United States Government Prosecutor in the dynamite conspiracy investigation; that he had first been approached with a view of getting him to turn State's evidence by a deputy United States Marshal and that later he had applied for employment to the Merchants and Manufacturers Association which took a prominent part in the McNamara prosecution.

Franklin was on the stand all day, but his ordeal at the hands of Chief Counsel Rogers for the defense was broken several times by verbal controversies between counsel, one of which included a denunciation of William J. Burns, by Rogers.

Trying to Strike at Gompers.

In connection with his attack on Burns, Rogers accused the prosecution o trying to strike at Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor, and declared one of Burns' detectives who had attended every session of that trial had sought to reach the ears of a juror with remarks made while seated in the section occupied by members of the press. The latter charge caused a half hour recess for the purpose of investigation, at the conclusion of which the detective was exonerated by Rogers in open court.

Rogers' denunciation of Burns grew out of continual objections by the prosecution. He had asked the witness if he had not been told to bring Gomper's name into his testimony whenever the opportunity arose.

The District Attorney insisted that Burns had nothing to do with the prosecution and that no one sought to implicate Gompers in the Darrow trial.

RECTOR RETAINS GOOD NAME

After Fourteen Years Proved Innocent of Girl's Charge

After Fourteen Years Proved Innocent of Girl's Charge—Freed at Last by Man's Confession—Has Applied Himself to Mechanical Pursuits.

Washington, June 6.—Sunday, for the first time in fourteen years the Rev. Gilbert Fearing Williams, formerly rector of the Old Christ Church, in the southwest portion of Washington, entered his chosen house of worship with uplifted head, free of the grave suspicion that has rested upon his name all these years.

The records of births in the District of Columbia show that on Jan. 26, 1898, a son was born to Nettie Denham, 16 years of age, and unmarried. Miss Denham sang in the Christ Church choir and took part in various activities of the church and its societies. On March 16, 1898, an ecclesiastical court, consisting of six Episcopal clergymen formally found that Mr. Williams was the father of this child born out of wedlock. Williams was unfrocked, despite his protestations of innocence, being unable to present convincing proof. Mr. Williams applied himself to mechanical pursuits and made some money by inventions, the principal one being a device for better ventilation of houses and railway cars.

As the years rolled by, a son of a prominent officer under the Government made a deathbed confession. Several women who had knowledge as witnesses, present when the child was born, and who at other times were with the girl, told what they knew, and the proof of the innocence of Mr. Williams was at last made clear. The facts were laid before Bishop Harding, the successor of Bishop Satterlee, and the case was reopened.

After a careful examination of all the facts as legally set forth from depositions and sworn statements, Mr. Williams was formally reinstated as a clergyman in good standing in the diocese at the Bishop's chapel last Monday. Mr. Williams is now 64 years old, with hair as white as snow. He does not think of returning to his old calling, and will probably never have charge again of a pastorate. The woman who placed the false charge upon him, and who is said by members of her family and by those who knew her well, was several years older than the age given at the time afterward married a United States marine and now lives in another city.

PINE TAR CORDIAL

NUGENT'S SARSAPARILLA—PRICE FOR large bottle, 100 full doses, 85c, and well worth it, too. There are so-called Sarsaparillas offered to us to sell to our customers at 75c a bottle that would bring us a larger profit than Nugent's Sarsaparilla sold at 85c. Nugent's Sarsaparilla purifies the blood, arouses the torpid liver, drives out all impurities, cleanses and tones up the system, and helps Nature throw off the dullness that comes from the indoor life of winter. It arouses energy, brightens the eye, clears the brain, gives lightness to the movements. Nugent's Sarsaparilla is not the only thing you will find in this drug store. GO TO FLORIDA FOR HEALTH AND wealth.—The question is asked me repeatedly: Why, if all that is claimed for the climate and earning capacity of the land in Florida is true, how is it that only a percentage of the State's area is under cultivation? It is a fair question, and the answer is a simple one. After the war between the North and the South Florida found herself in a deplorable condition financially. The State Government leased hundred of thousands of acres of its best prairie and timber lands for periods running as high as 66 years. This latter period tied up the great Kissimmee Prairie until recently. It is now, however, in the hands of a splendid colonization company, whose selling agent is the Hunter Land Company, Kissimmee Prairie is in the Southern portion of Osceola County, and is noted for its fertility and uniformity of soil. It is the healthiest spot in North America, and every day in the year is a growing day. Write for maps, illustrated literature, excursion particulars and any desired information. Address Alf. A HUSBAND'S DUTY

He Owes It to His Family to Have His House In Order.

PROVISION FOR THE FUTURE.

A Few Very Sensible and Very Practical Suggestions to the Man Who Doesn't Stop to Think About What May Happen When He Is Gone.

There are any number of men who are the most indulgent of husbands and fathers, providing a good living for their families and who yet live up to the limit of their incomes, with never a thought for the future and never an effort to protect their loved ones and their homes in case of their death.

To such men, as well as to those who are provident, but who keep putting off the arrangement of their business affairs to meet such an emergency, the following sensible suggestions by Willis Frederick Dix in the New York Independent may be of interest:

Is your house really in order? Outwardly, perhaps, yes, since your wife is a good housekeeper, but how about your own personal affairs? Your lawyer has perhaps drawn your will for you, and your personal accounts are businesslike, but have you looked that will over recently, and in the case of your death is there some one in your household who is sufficiently familiar with your account book to understand your system?

Have you tried to imagine just what condition would exist in your family immediately after your death, and have you carefully provided for that condition? These and a number of similar questions must be answered satisfactorily before you can say that your house is really in order.

The following are a few practical suggestions which, if you think them over and act upon them, may be the means of saving you or your family from some seriously inconvenient plight or actual trouble and loss.

First of all, make a point of keeping your wife (or some member of your household) familiar with your system of personal accounts. Let her know where your safety deposit box is, where you keep the key, where your letter file relating to these business matters is kept and just what your relation to your business is. You know it is quite possible that you will die sometime.

Keep your fire insurance policies in your safety deposit box, where they will not be burned with your house, and keep in the same package with them, plans and specifications of your house, so that the fire insurance companies can know definitely just how much it would cost to replace it. With your furniture insurance policy keep a detailed inventory of your household effects, with statement of their values. It would be impossible for you to do this from memory after the goods have been destroyed, and much needless trouble would necessarily ensue without such a list. And do not rely wholly upon your agent to renew your policies as they expire. Keep a list of the dates of expiry in your account book, where you will see them frequently.

Suppose you should be run over and killed today. Have you looked into the law of your state to ascertain whether or not your safety box would be sealed, and if it would be sealed are there any documents in it which your family would need before it were officially opened by your executors in the presence of a state officer? Your executors may take a year to settle up your estate. How about ready money for the use of your family?

When a man draws up his will it is seldom that he appreciates the fact that his cash in bank and the interest accrued on his investments up to the date of his death become principal and cannot be used by his family to pay their current expenses following his death.

An excellent way for a man to be sure that his family, upon his death, will have ready money at once, free from all complications, is to take out, in addition to his regular insurance, a policy for say $1,000 or $2,000 in favor of his wife or some member of his family.

This sum will have nothing to do with the legal formalities necessary in connection with the settling up of the estate and can be immediately collected and put in use.

Pistoles and Doubloons.

The pistole was much used in Spain and Italy. Originally equivalent to about eleven old French livres, until about 1790 it seems to have been merely an irregular piece of gold. In common with the moidore, the sequin and the doubloon its value varied at different times and in different countries, usually being, however, about $3.75.

A Southern Antidote.

If Americans need an antidote for restlessness they can find it among the mountaineers of the south. It is said that when a native is asked to hurry he replies, "Don't forget there's a whole day tomorrow 'tain't been teched yet."—Detroit Free Press.

Dutch Etiquette.

In Holland etiquette demands that an unmarried woman walk on the right of her escort, while a married woman takes her husband's left arm.

Lost time is never found again, and what we call time enough always proves little enough.

Wants a Rainy Wedding Day.

The Swedish girl prays for a rainy day on which to get married. Then before she goes to the ceremony attired in her wedding clothes she milks the cow, feeds the calf and steals a breast feather from the hen. That is to bring her husband good luck. The Swedish bride wears loose shoes, unbuttoned and untied, at her wedding. In one is a silver coin, in the other a gold one. This is to bring her the necessaries and luxuries of life.

TESTED THE ANTS.

Experiments That Seem to Prove the Insects Have Memory.

Experiments are continually being made to test the memory of animals, such as the elephant, the dog, the bull, but it would seem a thankless undertaking to ascertain whether the ant has a memory. Nevertheless a scientist in South America thinks he has succeeded.

Isolating two of the largest specimens of tropical ants he could find, he so arranged their receptacle that they could get no food without climbing over a circular slant into another compartment. Over this slant when the food was not there he placed a crimson cord, and the ants very soon learned to interpret the signal and never attempted to climb over it.

Thinking after a time that there might be something in the color that repelled them automatically, as the bull is affected unpleasantly by red, he replaced the red cord by cords of varying colors, always with the same result after the ants had made a few excursions over the slant and come back hungry. Then he tried plain cloth and even paper, but the result was invariably the same. After a number of trials the ants refused to climb the slant when there was any sort of "signal."

Finally the scientist reversed the signal, having food beyond the slant only when it was visible, and after an infinite number of trials the ants accommodated themselves to the change.—Harper's Weekly.

LABOUCHERE'S COPY.

After It Was Finished He Lost All Interest In Its Fate.

It was a matter of absolute indifference to Labouchere what became of anything he wrote after he had written it. When he had corrected the proof or if he was away from England when he sent his copy to the post he took no further interest in it whatever.

Before I had discovered this trait in his character I used to write and apologize for cutting, perhaps six columns down to two, or sometimes offer an excuse for not using any of it at all. At last he wrote to me: "You need not sentimentalize about my stuff. I send it to you to do what you like with."

But one felt a lingering compunction long afterward about consigning the fruits of so much labor to the waste paper basket, and, after all, Labouchere was the proprietor of the paper. Once or twice, therefore, I have excused myself for "not sentimentalizing" about some article that he had sent.

One such occasion he writes: "Dear ——: I am the only person, I believe, on the press who does not care in the least whether his lucubrations do or do not appear in print. It has always appeared to me that the making of an art (article) requires two persons, one to write it, the other to cut it down, and generally to cut out what the first man most admires."—London Truth.

Wanted His Money Back.

A young man had taken his wife to a show, and as there was no one to look after the baby they had brought it along. It cried lustily all through the first act. At the close of the act an usher came down the aisle and informed them that if they could not keep the baby quiet they would have to go to the box office, get their money back and go out.

They succeeded in squelching the baby, and all went well for a time.

Then, five minutes after the last act had commenced, the young father leaned over and said, "How do you like the show?"

"Rotten!" was the reply.

He was silent for a moment, and then, leaning over again, he whispered:

"Stick a pin in the baby."—Everybody's.

Carnegie's First Library.

When Andrew Carnegie was a mere lad in the employ of the Pennsylvania railroad he with the other boys of the old First ward, Allegheny, Pa., now the north side, Pittsburgh, had for many years the use of the private library of a Major Anderson. Mr. Carnegie, while speaking at the installation of his libraries, often said that much of his success was due to the influence of the books obtained in this library and that when he became wealthy the building of the Allegheny free library was one of his first acts.—New York Sun.

How and Why It Rains.

Rain is an accumulation of the tiny particles of the vapor of the atmosphere into drops. These drops, first small of size, attract others of their kind and become drops of such magnitude that they fall to the earth because of their weight. There is a limit to the quantity of water which the air is capable of absorbing and retaining as invisible vapor. Warm air is able to hold more than cold air; hence when the air which is saturated with moisture becomes cold for any reason whatever it can no longer retain its moisture. A portion must under such condition accumulate into drops. These fall to the earth in the shape of rain.

Lost Days.

"You used to say," she complained, "that you counted that day lost when you did not hear the sound of my voice."

"Yes, I know," he replied, "and I shall never cease to long for those dear lost days."—Chicago Record-Herald.

Can Aid.

The farmer viewed the battlefield by cannon ripped and torn.

"Them soldiers is a help," he said. "They've went and shelled my corn."—Dallas News.

This Interesting Letter is Addressed to YOU

SIR :—

It is a favorite form of mental culture with many people to trace results back to causes. Have you ever applied it to the growth of a city?

Travel was the original cause of our modern Canadian and American cities. Travel by the early pioneers of civilized nations, often at the cost of their lives.

Years ago, one of these pioneers of the western plains crossed a river at a time when the North-West Territories formed the grazing grounds for buffalo and antelope. While making the crossing his primitive wagon broke down. He made his repairs with rope and the jaw of a moose found by the side of the trail. His Indian companions called the spot "The place where the white chief mended his cart with the jaw of a moose."

A frail cause seemingly, for great results. But the prosperous city of Moose Jaw, Saskatchewan, stands as the result of the pioneers accident. Not all at once, but through various stages, each more important than the last. The traveller talked probably of the good water and the grazing land. These all important factors to the settler became known. Others began to investigate, a settlement formed, and Moose Jaw came into existence.

In the year 1902 a great rush of settlers to the west took place. This movement has been called the "American Invasion," but it included thousands from the Eastern Provinces of Canada. News of the Great West had spread, the Soo Branch of the Canadian Pacific Railway from Portal on the Southern Canadian Boundary line had been completed, and the great wheat belt of Canada began its period of prosperity.

The city of Moose Jaw, Saskatchewan, in the heart of this area, was the point chosen as most suitable for this great artery to meet the trans-continental main line. Over this route thousands of cars of effects owned by settlers from the United States are carried yearly.

Suddenly other railway corporations discovered that the Canadian Pacific Railway had the monopoly of the business of Moose Jaw, and the wealthy territory behind it. They saw the Canadian Pacific Railway make Moose Jaw its chief divisional point in Saskatchewan with the greatest yards west of Winnipeg, costing with other improvements, over $1,000,000.

Competition for the great volume of business was aroused, until to-day there are eleven lines either completed, under construction, or chartered.

The soil has attracted the settler—great freight, cattle, and grain shipments have attracted the railway companies, and as a final result Moose Jaw has in a few years become a city with possibilities unsurpassed in the West.

While this result has been accomplished, you can judge the effect on Real Estate values. But the increase in values in this city will be greater in the future than in the past.

Had that pioneer settled at the river crossing, and owned the townsite of Moose Jaw he could have been a millionaire to-day—but he missed an opportunity. You have your pressing opportunity in our unique residential sub-division, Boulevard Heights. Do not miss it. Big sales are reported daily, prices are going up, and you can have a share in this profit taking. A payment of $10.00 forwarded to-day will secure you an interest in a sound investment, to which there is no interest.

Dr. Shearer's View.

Rev. Dr. J. G. Shearer, general secretary of the Moral and Social Reform Council of Canada, says that evangelization, law and education must all play a part in purity and reform work.

"Parents," he says, "have the first and chiefest responsibilty; next to them, physicians, preachers, pedagogues, pressmen." And in connection with this work, Dr. Shearer introduces a new term to describe a necessary Christian virtue. "The queen of all virtues in this relation," he says, "is sanctified pigheadedness. We must be undiscourageable. We must have buoyancy that will not down."

In offering these shares for investment, we feel that we are inviting the public to purchase stock in an industry in which the profits are very large, and the demand for the product is ever increasing.

Had No Kick Coming.

An old gentleman who was in the habit of imbibing too freely was sitting one day on the veranda of a village hotel at which he was a regular boarder. When dinner was ready the dinner bell, a large one such as are used on farms, began to ring. A large dog happened to be passing by just then, and, hearing the bell, he stopped and raised his head as high as he could and howled nervously until the bell ceased ringing. The old gentleman looked at the dog a moment as if disgusted with the noise he was making and then said:

"What are you howling about? You don't have to eat here!"

CATHOLICS SUPPORT TAFT.

It will be interesting to see what part the Roman Catholic Church will play in the present great struggle for the Presidency in the United States. President Taft has been decidedly ostentatious in the courtesies he has paid the Roman Church, and there are not a few Protestants who could not be accused of bigotry who think he has given them unwarranted concessions. Mr. Roosevelt, on the other hand, has not gone out of his way for Romanism, and ever since the notorious Rome incident he has been anything but a persona grata to Catholics.

WILL NOW GO TO TRIPOLI.

Italian immigration into America is about to cease. The "banana man" will no more be heard in our streets. Instead of coming to America the Italian emigrant is to be headed for Tripoli, there to build up an African Italy. So says Commander Luigi Luiggi, Inspector-General of the Royal Italian Engineers, now on a visit to America. The Italian Government will thus be able to retain its citizens within its own territory. But will they go to Tripoli? Perhaps they will. Just at present, however, we think the climate in Canada is somewhat preferable to that of Tripoli, not to mention the troublesome Arab.

THE MILLERS AND THE MARKET

According to the officers of the Millers' National Federation, composed of practically all the big milling concerns in the United States, the flour industry in America is "in the slough of despond." Five hundred millers, in session in Kansas City, are trying to devise a means for putting the industry on a more substantial footing. The expression of opinion is that the last year has not been a prosperous one for the millers. Contrary to the custom of former years, mills have been unable to book shipments in advance. The export trade has declined and almost the entire domestic production has been forced into the home market.

It is probable that had the people of Canada last September endorsed the reciprocity agreement there would now be a free exchange of natural products between the United States and the Dominion and Western Canada wheat would be competing with the wheat of American farmers in the American markets. The situation of which the United States millers are now complaining would be aggravated, since to the over-production of American wheat would be added the surplus wheat of Western Canada. And as this wheat must find its way to the mills, there to be ground into flour, if the farmer is to find a market at all, the opportunity for ready sale depends entirely upon the selling capacity of the millers themselves. At this time the United States millers are unable to make inroads on the foreign markets and the home market is glutted.

The Winnipeg Telegram thinks that no more illusory prospect was ever held out to the grain grower of Western Canada than that he could compete successfully in a market, whether it be one of "ninety millions" or nine in which the home production was more than sufficient for home needs. The American millers are not buying wheat for storage purposes; they buy it to make into flour and to sell at the shortest notice possible.

Under reciprocity, of course, they could have graded their flour with the finer Western Canada wheat for export purposes, but they would have taken the profit from this transaction. The Western Canada grain grower would have had to take his chances with the grower of American wheat and the greater volume of grain in the American market would have operated to depress prices in prosperous periods in a time of stagnation such as the United States millers are now experiencing the failure of reciprocity as a stimulus to the industry in Western Canada would have lamentable illustration.

The pay of the British sailor has increased from 38 cents a day in 1852 to 40 cents per day in 1912, a jump of two cents in sixty years. What can he do with all that money?

Although Taft admits that reciprocity is dead, the U. S. house of representatives refuses to repeal the reciprocity act at the behest of the senate. Is the corpse to remain unburied?

The patronage abuse is coming in for considerable condemnation by both the Conservative and Liberal press. Nobody likes it, but the Laurier government had not the nerve during its fifteen years of office to improve matters. LORD HYDE NOW CANADIAN

Is Working a 300 Acre Farm In Ontario.

The Family Will Spend Each Spring and Summer in Canada and Return to London for the Winter—A Delightful Family.

To become a real, sure-enough farmer, able to discuss crops with the most expert of the whiskered sons of the soil, is the ambition of Lord George Herbert Hyde Villiers Hyde, who will some day be a belted earl, as he is the only son and heir of the fifth Earl of Clarendon. Ontario has been chosen as the field of the agricultural activities of Lord Hyde, who is to-day celebrating his thirty-fifth birthday. His Lordship is the proud owner of 200 fertile acres near the village of Pickering, twenty miles from Toronto. On his arrival in Canada not long ago he was accompanied by his young wife and their two children, the Hon. George Villiers, aged six, and the Hon. Joan Villiers, three.

Lord Hyde has declared that his intention in the premises—said premises, as previously remarked, being in Ontario—is to become a bona fide tiller of the land and make a living for his family. The little son and daughter were among the principal reasons for the emigration to Canada, as both Lord and Lady Hyde believe that farm life will best conserve their health.

"We are going to bring up our children to forget the titles of aristocracy and become acquainted with hard work," was the way Lady Hyde explained it. She added that it was her intention to do her own work at the farm house, while His Lordship will work in the fields with his one "hired hand."

Lord Hyde is one among a dozen or more men of title to emigrate from England to Canada, the United States and South Africa within the last year or so. "The present system of taxation is responsible for the exodus," asserted Lord Hyde, and explained: "I am a tariff reformer. I hold that Joseph Chamberlain advocated the only practicable thing for the real Englishman."

There are to be no fads and frills about the Hyde farm. He expects to raise wheat, fruits, and garden truck, and, when he has become a real farmer, to add to his acreage.

Lord Hyde was born on June 7, 1877. The title of Baron Hyde dates from 1756, while the Earldom of Clarendon, to which Lord Hyde is the heir was created about forty years later. The fifth Earl of Clarendon was born in 1846, and became prominent in the army, as well as being aide-de-camp, and later lord-in-waiting to Queen Victoria. Lord Hyde's mother, who died in 1894, was Caroline, the eldest daughter of the third Earl of Normanton. Lord Hyde has a considerable estate in Herefordshire, and is heir to about 5,000 acres in Herts and Warwickshire.

Lady Herts, who became the wife of His Lordship in 1905, was Adelina Verena Isabel Somers Cocks. Her brother, a young man of twenty-five, was the purchaser of the farm since taken over by the Hydes. He is Arthur Herbert Tennyson Somers Cocks, sixth Baron Somers, who succeeded to the title upon the death of his great uncle, the fifth Baron Somers, in 1899.

The Hydes will return to London for the Winter, but expect to spend each Spring and Summer in Canada. Lord Hyde predicts that the "back to the soil" movement that is now well under way will attract thousands of Englishmen to Canada within the next few years. The higher interest rates prevailing in the Dominion also offer inducements to men of wealth, and this was one of Lord Hyde's reasons for seeking first-hand information about Canada's agricultural resources.

BRITISH LADY IN THE TOILS

Lady Skyes Charged With Forgery

RESCUED MY FRIENDS

Lates News of Importance From the Old World—Secret Conference In London—Other Old World News.

London, June 6.

The death is announced of Lady Sykes, wife of Sir Tatton Sykes, whom she married in 1874 when she was 18 years old. Lady Sykes had a remarkable career. She was an authoress and editor of a newspaper, and a hospital nurse in South Africa during the Boer war. She was formerly Miss Christina Cavendish-Bentinck, daughter of the late Right Hon. George Augustus Cavendish-Bentinck.

Lady Sykes, who was a relative of the duke of Portland, was charged on August 2, 1897, with obtaining by false pretences checks of the value of $26,500. The prosecution was stopped when it was learned that Sir Tatton Sykes, who had been separated from his wife for twenty years, had agreed to meet her liabilities. In October of the same year Lady Sykes was charged with forging her husband's name to bills for $50,000, but the charge was dismissed. Later she was sued on a note for $79,700, purporting to be signed by her husband. The jury pronounced the signature a forgery. Friends came to the rescue, paid the money and the prosecution was dropped. Sir Tatton Sykes is now 84 years old.

Wireless Telegraphy.

The second international conference on wireless telegraphy opened here today with twenty-five nations represented. The British government is acting as host of the conference, with the postoffice department in active charge of the proceedings. All of the sessions will be secret, but it is known that the chief problems discussed will be concerned with better wireless conditions at sea. Of the nations represented, all have sea coasts and the use of wireless by vessels since the initial conference in Berlin six years ago has increased to such an extent that new regulations are needed. According to a high official of the British postoffice, the problem of securing uniform wave lengths, whereby there may be no repetition of the confusion which prevailed at the time of the Titanic disaster, will be one of the leading matters discussed by the conference. It is considered likely that international action will be recommended to compel the various systems of wireless now in use to co-operate with each other in the case of disaster and weather messages.

Fifteen Thousand Homeless

Constantinople, June 6. — The fire which broke out in the Mohammedan section of the city called Stamboul yesterday burned itself out at midnight. A thousand residences, four mosques, seven schools and three Moslem theological seminaries were burned out. Several women and children are missing and 15,000 persons are without shelter. The fire is believed to have been incendiary, a builder having avenged himself on the owner of a house in the course of construction regarding which there had been a dispute.

NUN AND PRIEST CITED BY REV C. O. JOHNSTON

Extraordinary Scene Witnessed in a Leading Toronto Methodist Church.

The Times has been requested to publish the following, which appeared in The Toronto Globe a few days ago:

Punctuated by demonstrations remarkable in their character and intensity, Rev. C. O. Johnston made serious charges of religious intolerance and interference against St. Michael's Hospital from the pulpit of Queen Street Methodist Church on Sunday. The pastor was preaching to the Northern District Orangemen, who attended the church in a body and filled the centre aisles, while the congregation occupied the sides and galleries. The scene was unique. As the speaker proceeded with his vigorous arraignment of the Roman Catholic Church, the sympathy of his congregation became more and more manifest, despite the day, the place and the occasion. Toward the conclusion the gathering gave itself up frankly to its sentiments and repeatedly broke into rounds of applause. When the preacher concluded he was accorded an ovation with both hands and feet which would have made the heart of a politician glad.

"Because I have dared to speak the truth," concluded Mr. Johnston, "I have been subjected to all the petty persecution of which they were capable. I have not lied about a single Catholic, but they have told ten thousand lies about me. Stacks of letters have reached me by every mail, charging and threatening me with everything. Every crime on the calendar has been laid at my door. They have sought to pursue me with vituperation falsehood, hatred and revenge. Has it come to this: That the Catholic Church denies to a man in Canada, under the British flag, permission to preach what he believes to be the truth? They had their redress. They didn't take me into court. They didn't dare to. (Applause.) They say they are forcing me out of town. A bigger lie was never told. I am returning to Hamilton because I promised to do so notwithstanding the fact that two other churches in the city have been offered to me. But these statements do not influence me. I know that what Father Burke would not say in that line would not be worth saying." (Prolonged applause.)

Case at St. Michael's

Mr. Johnston had dealt with the ne temere decree and the manner in which Protestants in Ontario were menaced by it. "Let me give you an illustration which came under my observation first-hand, and which I have looked into and secured the statements of those concerned. A woman of Catholic faith was married by a Protestant minister in Toronto to a man who was a Presbyterian. She was taken sick some time ago and was removed to St. Michael's Hospital. While there in a condition of health in which worry and anxiety were specially to be avoided, she was visited unsolicited by a nun, who asked her if she was married to a Protestant. She replied that she was and was then asked if a priest had performed the ceremony. The patient replied in the negative. 'Then,' said the woman, 'you are not married at all.' The patient was much upset and was afraid to tell her husband. The next day she was visited by a priest, who told her that she was living openly in sin." Mr. Johnston gave the name of the nun, and said: "I have the name of the priest, and I am prepared to make it public any time I am challenged to do so. (Cheers.) Fortunately the patient then pieces of gauze and sponge left in persons after operations were made at the meeting of the surgical section of the American Medical Association which is meeting here to-day. Dr. Ingersoll Olmsted, of Hamilton, startled the surgeons with an account of some surgery that showed how carelessness of the operator had not resulted fatally merely because nature had happily stepped in and saved the lives of those who might have died under the treatment of men who had not performed their work properly.

Dr. Olmsted reported three cases, two of which had to do with gauze left in the abdomen, which caused tumors. The third case was still more serious. Dr. Olmsted was called into consultation to find out what caused an obstruction in the intestines of a man of prominence in the Canadian Government. He had been treated by a prominent medical institution in Toronto, and one of the surgeons of that hospital had operated on him for the relief of his symptoms.

After the operation the patient did not improve but developed a tumor which could not be explained. After an X-ray examination Dr. Olmsted advised an operation, as with the previous experience he had learned that sometimes even surgeons are careless. As soon as the abdominal cavity was opened the tumor was exposed, and it was found to contain a sponge that would soon have developed poisoning had it not been removed.

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

told her husband, and he had her forthwith removed from the hospital. If I were not a minister and the patient had been a relative of mine I would have made that man run or get down. (Prolonged applause.)

"Think of a priest being so fanatical as to dare to say such a thing in the Province of Ontario! One would think that the old man who sits on the Papal throne in Rome ruled in Canada instead of our beloved King George. Let me say this: that we don't want any of our people to go to St. Michael's Hospital if that is the kind of thing that goes on there." (Renewed applause.)

Need for True Religion.

The opening devotional exercises were conducted by Rev. Dr. Perry, who, in the course of his invocation, prayed that Orangemen might follow worthily in the steps of the great exponents of civil and religious liberty, such men as Martin Luther, John Knox, John Wesley, Mackenzie Bowell and N. Clarke Wallace." Rev. Mr. Johnston took his text from Matthew vii.,—21. He pointed out that the greatest need of the world was true religion. It mattered not how beautiful or expensive a house was, if it were built upon the sand it must come to grief. It was true that false religion had continued generation after generation and century after century, but this was "because it appeals to the sensual, the material, the fleshly and the lust of life." It would inevitably be wiped out when the storms came and the sand shifted. There was no evidence of truthfulness in numbers. Mohammedism, with its blood-dripping sword, had thousands of followers.

Would Keep Catholics from Office

In Romanism, Mr. Johnston maintained, the place of God had been usurped by the priesthood. He referred to the history of the reformation and the "murders and persecutions carried on by cowled monks" at the time of the inquisition. But the faith had stood. The greatest danger to Christianity and to Protestantism was prosperity. There was just as much need for sound and virile Protestantism to-day as there was in the time of William of Orange. He charged that Romanism was a false religion, false in spirit and false in results. He dealt with recent developments the ne temere decree and the decree that prohibited a priest being brought into the courts of law. The latter decree was exceedingly dangerous to the body politic as it was binding upon all Catholics. "If it is carried into effect there would appear to be only one thing to do, and that is to keep Roman Catholics out of every office and tell them why," said Mr Johnston, amid another outburst of applause.

The pastor concluded with an earnest exhortation. "The best way to stand out against false religion," said he, "is to stand true to the real religion."

MAKES APPEAL TO POPE

Morganic Wife of Austrian Heir Putting Up Big Fight for Her Rights

Rome, June 6.—The Duchess Sophie Von Hohenberg, the morganic wife of Archduke Francis Ferdinand, heir to the Austrian throne, has appealed to the pope. The duchess, who was born Countess of Chotek and was a maid of honor to an Austrian archduchess, begs his holiness to use his influence with the aged Emperor Francis Joseph to secure for her equal rank with her husband and all imperial rights, including the right of succession to the throne to her two sons. The pope has instructed Mgr Scarpinelli the new papal nuncio at Vienna, to confer with the Emperor.

The Countess married Archduke Francis Ferdinand in 1900. She was a Hungarian of noble but not royal birth, and when the archduke took her as a wife he renounced all rights on behalf of their children to succeed to the throne. Recently the emperor recognized her as the legal, not the morganic wife of the archduke. She and her adherents claim that their status is perfectly legal now because of the titles of royal and imperial highness and duchess given to her, and because of her official standing in the courts of other nations. All her husbands relatives have frowned on her pretensions and indeed have snubbed her publicly when they plucked up courage.

LYNCHERS NOW THIRST FOR NEGRO'S BLOOD

Black Made Two Separate Attacks On Maryland Girl, and if Caught Will be Killed.

Salisbury, Md., June 6.—Sheriff Tull, of Somerset, having in custody Wesley Miles, a negro, 45 years old, who is alleged to have twice attempted to assault the 14-year-old daughter of Wm. J. Phillips, of Princess Anne, Md., has apparently succeeded in eluding a mob that was after the prisoner Monday night and early on Tuesday, with the avowed intention of lynching him. Word was received here that the sheriff boarded a train at Seaford, Del., Tuesday morning, and is believed to be on his way to Baltimore.

According to the girl's story the negro attacked her Monday, and had made another attempt last week.

Miles has been in the employ of Mr Phillips, who conducts a store. After the first attack the girl says Miles threatened to kill her if she told on him. When she made the second attempt Monday she informed her mother.

A Measure of Grief.

Knoxville, Tenn., June 6.—His son killed, his store destroyed by fire and his wife taken seriously ill was the measure of grief meted out to J. F. Johnson, of Lonsdale, a suburb, in the twenty-four hours ending last night. Awakened at an early hour yesterday morning he found his place of business at Lonsdale on fire and watched the flames consume the building and stock. Later in the day his wife was stricken. Last night the lifeless body of his 17-year-old son was found at the bottom of an elevator shaft at the candy factory where he worked. None saw the accident, but it seems certain he fell several stories.

A MISERABLE GRIEF

More Bomb Explosions in New York—Killed by His Son-in-Law—Other News From Across the Border.

New York, June 6.—Folke E. Brandt was taken back to Dannemora prison to-day. For several weeks the former valet of the banker, Mortimer L. Schiff, has been in the city on a writ of habeas corpus, which was obtained on the ground that he was sentenced after he had served five years of at thirty-year term given him after pleading guilty to burglary committed in Mr. Schiff's house. Brandt's final appeal on the writ of habeas corpus is expected to come before the court of appeals tomorrow. Brandt was taken from the Tombs to the Grand Central station in a taxi-cab, in charge of a confidential agent of Superintendent of Prisons Scott. Brandt will reach Dannemora at 7 o'clock to-night. In case Brandt's appeal goes against him, it will be still possible to obtain another writ of habeas corpus on the ground that he is illegally confined because in open court a few weeks ago Judge Rosalsky revoked his thirty-year sentence and recommended a new trial.

DOCORS MUST BE QUALIFIED

In Order to Confirm to New Health Laws

NEW HEALTH DISTRICTS

Five Depots to be Created in Older Portion of Ontario and Two in North Country — Inspectors in Charge to be Free of Local Control and Responsible Only to the Provincial Board—Doctors to be Appointed Must Pass Rigid Examination and Devote Entire Time to Work.

The Province of Ontario, for the purpose of safeguarding the public health, has been divided into seven districts. The decisive action, based upon legislation passed last session, was taken by the Government yesterday. The older portion of the province is given five of the districts, and Northern Ontario the other two. The exact boundaries of the various divisions have not been announced, nor the names of the seven district health officers who will be placed in charge, but the headquarters for each district have been made known.

The District Headquarters.

London is the central point for the western district, which, of course, will include Middlesex, and presumably the rest of the counties running down the peninsula to Essex. Huron, Bruce and Grey and the surrounding counties will likely form the district for which Palmerston has been selected as headquarters. Hamilton will be headquarters for the third district, which presumably takes in the Niagara peninsula in addition to Wentworth and other counties. The fourth health centre will be at Peterboro', and the eastern one at Kingston, these two serving as operating points for the eastern half of the province.

The Northern Districts.

North Bay and Fort William will be the points from which the district health officers will work in the north, indicating the dividing line there. Temiskaming, with its epidemic producing mining camps, will be carefully watched from North Bay.

Big Men for "The Job."

The men upon whose shoulders will fall the bulk of the responsibility for protecting the public health will be big enough for "the job." The Government have taken a strong stand upon that point. In addition to selecting their doctors with the greatest deliberation, Hon W. J. Hanna, and Dr. J. W. S. McCullough, Provincial Health Officer, have given careful attention to the means by which their work can be made most effective.

Each one of the seven appointed will be required to take a six months' course of instruction in public health, and pass an examination prescribed by the University of Toronto.

Must Take Special Course.

The University has at the request of the Government arranged a special course for the district officers. It will include chemistry, bacteriology, water and sewage, epidemiology, and general public health and sanitary matters.

But this will not be all. Before they are placed in charge of their respective districts the men will be given a thorough schooling in practical work. They will during their term of study be attached to the Health Department, and will be sent out from time to time to get a first-hand knowledge of epidemics, sewage problems, and similar matters which will come within their province later on.

No Private Practice Allowed.

The district officers will receive a salary of $2,500 a year and expenses, and they will not be permitted to engage in private practice.

Their duties will not be light. The success of the somewhat radical changes made in the Public Health Act last session, from which the Government expects much, will largely depend upon the work of these men. To leave them free to do this the Government has removed them entirely from local control. They will act under the supervision and control of the Provincial Board and report daily to the department.

Does Not Affect Big Cities.

According to the provisions of the Act passed last session the health districts scheme will not touch cities of 50,000 population and over. Toronto, Hamilton and Ottawa all have efficient health departments.

EVERY PLACE ON THE WIDE PRAIRIES

TELLS OF CURES BY DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS.

Thos. Griffin, of Peace River Landing, tells how he got rid of his rheumatism — honestly earned popularity.

Cold Springs, Peace River Landing, Alta., June 7.—(Special.)—Just why Dodd's Kidney Pills retain their wonderful popularity is easily shown by a trip across the prairies. Every town, village and post office has at least one man or woman who is ready to tell of pains relieved and health restored by the Great Canadian Remedy. Let Thos. Griffin of this place add his statement to the hosts already published.

"When I came to this part of the country" says Mr. Griffin, "I was troubled with a bad back and rheumatism in my shoulders and hips. I sent for six boxes of Dodd's Kidney Pills and they gave me relief at once. I also recommended them to my eldest son who was confined to his bed from rheumatism.

"Now I know that Dodd's Kidney Pills are the best medicine for rheumatism and the Kidneys. I recommend them to every person I hear complaining of not feeling well."

Dodd's Kidney Pills made their popularity by keeping on curing sick kidneys.

FIVE CENT MILK

Why is a Reduction Not Made in Peterborough ?

Some time ago the milk dealers of Peterborough raised the price of milk to seven cents per quart, claiming than an increase was necessary owing to the scarcity of food. Evidently from the dairyman's standpoint feed has never since been plentiful, as the price has not been reduced. The men selling milk seem to have the idea that the people will pay any price they feel like asking, because they have to have milk. It would be well for them to disabuse their minds of this misapprehension. It would be cheaper for milk buyers to keep a cow and supply their own milk than to pay seven cents a quart for it. An advertisement which appeared in one of the Toronto papers a short time ago stated that milk dealers in that city, or at least some of them, would sell milk at five cents a quart after the first of May. If they can sell milk at five cents a quart in Toronto, we do not see why it cannot be done here. It would be cheaper to ship it in from Toronto at the present rates.

A DESERTED BABY.

Six Weeks' Old Baby Left on Cordova Door Step.

Cordova, June 6.—A six weeks' old baby was left on the door step of Mr Geo. Vilneff's house at Cordova recently, and Mr. and Mrs. Vilneff have been taking care of the forsaken infant ever since. The little one was nearly perished from exposure when found, and will be taken in charge by the Children's Aid Society.

Swearing on the Street.

People are often shocked at the profanity of the street. There should be an effort made to stop it. In Cornwall the other day the Chief of Police had a man before the police magistrate for using bad language on the streets, and before the magistrate's session was over, it had cost the offender no less than $22.85. The Chief, says the Freeholder, is bound to put a stop to the practice, and will deal similarly with all cases which comes under his notice.

Three More Bombs.

New York, June 6.—Three bombs were exploded almost simultaneously early to-day in the vicinity of Eighth street and Fourth Ave, in the lower east side. No one was injured, but considerable property damage was done. The police as yet have not fixed responsibility for any of the explosions. The first bomb flew out of the front of a cigar store at 85 Fourth avenue. While the police were investigating this there was a second explosion, a short distance further up the avenue, where the front of a paint shop was blown out and much of the contents of the building damaged. Shortly after this a third bomb was set off a few blocks away, shattering all the windows in front of a cafe. A watchman in the building was blown from his bed, but was uninjured. To-day's explosions add to the already long list of similar outrages which have been committed in this city in the past two years. It is estimated that upwards of 125 bombs have been set off in New York in that time. Some of these have been attributed to participants in a so-called "gambling war," and others to the Black Hand.

A Mass of Flames.

Glenn Falls, N.Y., June 6. — At 2 o'clock this morning the village of Leedsville, eighteen miles north of here, was a mass of flames. Efforts to secure details of the fire proved futile, as the telephone wires were down. Leedsville is without fire protection.

MILLIONAIR SAYS HE ENJOYED JAIL LIFE

Wealthy Los Angeles Orange Grower Completes Ten-Day Terms in Prison — Rather Likes It.

Los Angeles, Cal., June 6. — City Jailer Shand lost his wealthiest and most notable guest when Geo. C. Fetterman, the millionaire real estate man and orange grower of Los Angeles, and Duarte, was released.

Fetterman served ten days for speeding. He took a street car home, not daring to trust himself in an automobile. Fetterman was arrested in December, pleaded guilty to exceeding the thirty mile limit and was sentenced to ten days. He appealed to a higher court after serving two days, and was denied a re-trial.

"Had I known the jail life is what I found it here, I never would have contested the decision of Judge Chambers. I did everything in my power to set aside the sentence, spending $1200 in my efforts," Fetterman said. "I peeled potatoes in the kitchen and acted as head waiter. I did not get any better treatment than the other prisoners. I ate the regular meals. We all had the same service and same food and sat at the same benches. To be real candid, I enjoyed it.

"Jail is not such a bad place after all. I have eaten in restaurants that were much worse. Give the jailer your best efforts and you will receive the best the jail has to offer. Jail is not a place for a nervous man, but it beats a lot of rest cure sanitoriums.

"Work in jail is much the same as work in a mining camp. It is all work."

RINGLING CIRCUS.

At Toronto—Great Spectacle of Joan of Ark Added to Their Show.

Ringling Brothers' Circus, and the newly added $500,000 spectacle of "Joan of Arc," will exhibit in Toronto on Monday June 17th. The spectacle in itself is an attraction that should bring thousands of visitors from the surrounding country. It is beyond question the greatest production of its kind ever seen in America.

The world's most skillful scenic artists, costumers, property-makers, chorus directors and stage managers were engaged to mount the production. A stage bigger than a hundred ordinary theatres was built and made portable so that it could be conveyed from town to town and erected each morning in the main tent. Thus the circus proprietors have made it possible for those who live in contributory towns, as well as in the large cities to see this magnificent wordless play with its cast of 1,200 characters, a ballet of 300 dancing girls, a grand opera chorus of 400 voices, 600 horses and a train load of special scenery, costumes, properties and mechanical devices for producing such stage effects as thunder, lightning, storms, fires and the sound of battle.

In the old market place of Rouen, France, there now stands a monument by which the French of to-day have sought to redeem their part in the execution of Joan of Arc, who on May 30, 1431, was burned to death on the false charge of heresy after having delivered her country from the English and having restored the crown to Charles VII. History records but the meager facts of this strange heroine of eighteen years, who led the armies of France victorious through English invasion, and then, deserted by all, even the indolent monarch whom she preserved, died by the cruelest torture known with the name of the Master upon her lips. Unsung in poetry the name of this simple peasant girl has come down through the ages to be revered as that of a saint and whose wonderful powers and whose bravery are verily believed to have been of divine inspiration.

On the triumphant incidents, the victorious engagements, the final defeat of the English armies, and the coronation of Charles VII, all achieved by the frail Maid of Orleans, has been founded the inspiring spectacle which gives Ringling Brothers' circus a new significance and makes an attraction such as the world in searching for amusement has never before found.

The regular circus programme is more than ever attractive. Its company of 375 foreign artists, its double menagerie, and its new street parade will prove a great surprise to those who attend from this city. The event is one that should not be missed.

SOILED POSTAGE STAMPS.

If They Are Ink Splashed They Won't Do to Put on Letters.

"How dirty can a postage stamp become and still retain its usefulness in the eyes of the government?" was a question propounded to muddle the already overworked brain of a busy man. Happening to meet a postman who was collecting mail, the man handed him a stamped letter.

"That won't go," said the postman. "Stamp's dirty."

As was his wont on special occasions the busy man resorted to sarcasm.

"Since when," he demanded, "did the United States government become so immaculate that it requires none but unsullied stamps stuck on its letters?"

"Well, they've always been pretty particular," returned the unperturbed postman, "but there are some kinds of dirt that count for more than others. That stamp's got ink on it. Inky stamps don't go because an ink spot could be used to disguise a canceled stamp."

"Then I suppose every stamp I happen to drop a speck of ink on is wasted?"

"Oh, no. Turn it in to the office where you bought it, and after a certain period you will get your money back."

"How long will that take?" the man asked.

"About three months."

"I'm afraid I can't wait," said the man, and over the discredited stamp he stuck a spotless stamp.—New York Times.

SCARS THAT STAY.

They Come From Cuts That Go Down to the True Skin.

There are people who tell you that everything in the body is changed every seven years and that there is no part of it which was there seven years ago. This does not mean that we slough the whole thing off at once, as a snake does its skin or a deer its antlers, but simply that the innumerable and tiny atoms which are used up by the daily wear and tear are replaced by fresh atoms supplied by our food and drink, which keeps the body going, just as coal and water keep the steam engine at work.

But these changes are so minute and gradual that the form of the body remains the same, although such things as scars take a long time to disappear, and sometimes they remain for life, although they always lose a great deal of their prominence.

You have noticed that if you cut your finger slightly it will soon heal up and the scar will soon disappear, just as the marks of a superficial burn will gradually go away, but if the cut is deep the scar remains. This is because it went down to what is called the true skin. Any cuts or burns on the outer skin are gradually pushed up and worn or washed off, just as the hair on the back of your head wears off without your cutting it and grows again, but anything that goes down to the true skin, like tattoo marks, always remains.—New York Sun.

First Come, First Served.

A woman was in a New York elevator which also had some men passengers.

"Ninth," said one of the men after the car was fairly started.

"Sixth," said the woman.

The car sped by the sixth floor and was halted at the ninth.

On the way back the woman asked:

"Why didn't you stop at the sixth floor? The sixth floor is lower than the ninth."

"I know that," said the elevator boy. "But the man said ninth first."—Ladies' Home Journal.

Expect Record Year.

The Canadian Pacific Railway are prophesying that this will be Canada's biggest year for immigration; 28,000 immigrants will arrive in Canada from Europe during one week. Of these 16,000 will be handled by the C.P.R.

"I should not be surprised this year to see immigration into Canada exceed 400,000," said a C.P.R. passenger agent who has just returned from the west.

"The C.P.R. returns, as well as those of other lines, show that the arrivals of newcomers from the United States for the past four months is between 75 and 80 per cent. in excess of the corresponding period of last year. There is also a big movement from the British Isles.

"To this may be added the fact that the western provinces were never before in such good condition for planting, and as a result an enormous increase in the acreage under cultivation is expected."

THRIFT IN FRANCE.

The Saving System That Is Directed by the Government.

The resources of the French people have always been a surprise to the rest of the world. The country has repeatedly recovered from most exhausting wars apparently through the very small savings accumulated by its lower classes. The peasants of France are landowners to an extent hardly equaled in any other country. The saving system known as the Credit Foncier, which is sanctioned and directed by the French government, is to a certain extent responsible for the thrifty spirit shown throughout France.

The plan provides that a man may borrow on his land very close to the complete value by arranging in advance the number of years that he will take to pay back the loan. His interest payments are then arranged at so much per year, the amount being greater or less, depending on how soon he intends that these payments should completely pay off his debt. If the payments are to continue for fifty years the payments are very small. If the whole mortgage is to be paid off in a shorter period the yearly payments are larger.

There is an added feature which would not be considered possible in this country—viz, an occasional lottery drawing, by which the man who draws the lucky ticket has his mortgage entirely canceled. The system provides an absolutely safe means of saving and is an encouragement to buy and pay for real estate. Against these bonds and mortgages the Credit Foncier issues its bonds in small amounts bearing interest at 3 per cent or less, which are sold in large quantities to investors of moderate means.

We have had nothing like it in America, and as a result our people have grown up to a very careless scale of expenditure.—J. Wray Cleveland in Leslie's Weekly.

FREAKS AMONG FISH.

Weird Sea Life In Bartlett's Deep, Off the Cuban Coast.

Cuba ends to the south in a huge hammer of mountains 8,000 feet high and steeping sheer into the sea. The wall does not end there, but continues its precipitous descent into the 700 mile long abyss called Bartlett's deep. This gigantic submarine valley is nearly four miles deep and eighty miles wide.

At a mile and a half the pressure of the water is nearly two tons to the square inch. The ooze that comes up from such a depth, though the equator runs overhead, is cold as hoarfrost. It is ten times certain that no vegetation can grow there.

As in our world none but the vegetables are able to make food, it ought to follow that in the depths of the sea there should be no animal life. As a matter of fact, these glooms are inhabited by the most grotesque and chimerical of all fishes. It would seem as though in the darkness life had taken every imaginable license to be ugly and bizarre. Cannibalism is evidently the only method of life, and its equipment runs to every kind of extravagance.

There are fish with teeth so long that they cannot close their mouths, fish that draw their stomachs over prey larger than themselves, fish with no more mouth than a leech and getting their living as leeches, fish with huge myopic eyes and fish frankly blind. Probably none of them comes from depths quite beyond the region of light, though a great many of them go poking about their ghoulish business furnished with lanterns of the glowworm type.—London Nation.

Old Time Prices.

Perhaps the housewife of today with a turn for economics would like to know what the quaint Dutch vrouws paid for their household supplies in 1675, when bears roamed over Manhattan island not far north of the present city hall and lambs bleated in the meadows around Wall street. Well, pork was 3 pence a pound, beef 2 pence, butter 6 pence, beer 2 pence a mug. Lodging was 2 pence a night, meals 6 pence and board by the week 5 shillings. But then it must be remembered that labor brought only 2 shillings 6 pence a day.—New York Tribune.

Punishing Bachelors.

This punishment of the bachelor has been common in many ages and countries and extended down to the early days of our own history. In Connecticut in 1636 a law was passed which would not "allow any young unmarried man to keep house," and Hartford taxed "lone men 20 shillings a week" for the "selfish luxury of solitary living." In 1682 a special town order gave permission for two bachelors to keep house together, "so they carry themselves soberly and do not entertain idle persons to the evil expense of time by day or night," while as late as the eighteenth century a general statute of Connecticut forbade any householder under penalty of a fine to "give entertainment or habitation to single persons without special allowance of the selectmen."—Forum.

How Times Have Changed!

In these days of elections and rumors of elections it is interesting to glance back to the time when there wasn't so much election machinery in Canada. For instance, on March 29, 1862, The Victoria Colonist had the following account of the election proceedings as Esquimalt.

At 12 o'clock yesterday the returning officer, Sheriff Naylor, proceeded to the election of a member to represent the town of Esquimalt in the assembly. There were about fifty persons present in front of the Royal Oak Hotel. After the usual preliminaries, the returning officer called upon the electors to nominate their candidates, whereupon W. Sellick, Esq., nominated Thomas Harris, Esq., as a fit and proper person to represent the town of Esquimalt. F. Williams, Esq., seconded the nomination with a few appropriate remarks. No other candidates being proposed, the returning officers declared Thomas Harris, Esq., duly elected a member of the assembly, which announcement was received with cheers.

The member-elect then mounted the platform and addressed the electors, pledging himself to further the interests of his constituents in particular, and the colony in general. He also assured the electors that whenever there was any public question raised, in any way affecting their interests, he would call them together and take their views upon it in order to fully represent them in the Legislature. His remarks did not occupy in the delivery more than ten minues, but were warmly received, ending in loud cheers.

A Canadian Invention.

A most original and valuable invention, which will benefit the children of the elementary and secondary education classes, was demonstrated at the Royal Astronomical Society of Canada at a recent meeting.

The invention consists of three globes, representing the sun, earth and moon so mounted and mechanically fixed that by simply turning a handle not only the correct motions of the heavenly bodies are automatically produced, but what is the most striking feature of all, the phenomena resulting therefrom are most beautifully represented. For instance, the observer actually sees the correct position of the sun at any time of the year, the sun or moon partially or totally eclipsed day or night, changes in the length of day or night at all places on the earth's surface, the phases of the moon and all the other related phenomena.

The simplicity of this instrument, its completeness, and its effectiveness may be realized when it is seen that all these motions and phenomena are brought about by the simple method of turning a handle.

Numerous attempts have been made by inventors to perfect an instrument simple and automatic for the teaching of astronomical, mathematical and physical geography in schools and colleges and the demonstration proves that a Canadian in Mr. Park of Brantford has at last succeeded where others have failed.

Paternal Confidence.

The Young Man (with some embarrassment)—There is one question you haven't asked me yet Mr. Hurpop. You haven't wanted to know whether or not I think I can make a living for your daughter.

The Other Man—That isn't necessary, Henry. She'll see that you make the living, all right, if she's at all like her mother, and I think she is.

Fond of Their Own Music.

"I should think some of these speechmakers would get tired of hearing themselves," said the proprietor of the village store.

"Human nature's the same in politics as 'tis anywheres else," replied old Joe Struthers. "A man don't mind listenin' to the worst noise a cornet kin make, provided he's the feller that's doin' the practicin'."

Troublesome Account.

"My husband has given me a checking account."

"Isn't that lovely? Now you can buy anything you want and just write out a check for it."

"Yes. I'm rather sorry on one account, though. It seems such a lot of trouble to have to write out a check for one's car fare, especially when the cars are crowded or when you have to pay as you enter."—Chicago Record-Herald.

The Lynx.

The lynx is a great yellow, long legged cat nearly the size of a collie dog, with a stumpy tail and camel's hair pencils on the tips of his ears. His weapons are his claws, and they are terrible weapons, sharp as razors and so large that the imprint of a lynx's paw in the snow is actually almost the size of that of a bear.

Utah's Lofty Mountains.

The Uinta range is one of the most impressive in the United States. King's peaks tower above great canyons and capacious amphitheaters, reaching a height of 13,496 and 13,498 feet. Mount Emmons is but slightly less elevated, with an altitude of 13,428 feet, while many other peaks rise above 13,000 feet. Considered in its past and present, the region of the Uinta mountains is a wonderful country, deeply interesting geologically, of great economic importance, picturesque and beautiful. Traveling westward after long miles of commonplace scenery, the Uintas loom up grandly, while features of beauty are the innumerable lakes and meadows made possible by the glacial scouring. From the summit of Bald mountain, for instance, four great basins extend before the eye. Nestling among the pine forests at least seventy lakes may be counted. Scattered throughout the forests there are also numerous meadows. Above the forests rise some of the most majestic peaks of the Uintas.—Guy Elliott Mitchell, United States Geological Survey, in Leslie's.

Flexible English.

Some of the peculiarities of the English language are amusingly shown in the following little dialogue:

"You'll get run in," said a pedestrian to a wheelman without a light.

"You'll get run into," savagely responded the cyclist as he knocked the pedestrian down.

"You'll get run in, too," said a policeman, stepping from behind a tree.

And just then another scorcher came along without a light so the policeman ran in two.—London Mail.

"It's got a red cover," he said, "an' th' last book in a red cover I read was punk. Ain't you got nothin' in green?"

The Late Mr. Allen.

The funeral of the late Mr. George Allen, of Smith, whose demise was recorded in yesterday's issue, will take place at 2 o'clock this afternoon. The Rev. C. H. Coon will conduct a service at the house at 1.30, after which the cortege will proceed to Little Lake cemetery for interment.

A Long Winded City Council.

Let us hope and pray that the City Fathers of Peterborough will not borrow the modus operandi of the Belleville Council. The City Fathers of that burg met at 7.30 on Monday night and did not adjourn until 4 a. m. Tuesday. During their session they passed fifty-seven by-laws.

Greatest Invention of Age For Hoarseness, Weak Throat

Nothing so far Discovered is so Beneficial to Public Speakers, Ministers, Singers and Teachers as Catarrhozone.

Because of its strengthening influence upon the vocal cords, Catarrhozone cannot be too highly recommended as a wonderful voice improver. It almost instantly removes huskiness or hoarseness, thus insuring clearness and brilliancy of tone. Catarrhozone keeps the mucous surfaces in perfect condition, and its regular use absolutely prevents colds and throat irritation, thereby removing the singer's greatest source of anxiety—unfitness of voice. The most eminent speakers and prima donnas are seldom without Catarrhozone, and credit is no small degree their uniform strength and brilliancy of tone to its influence.

Singer Recommends Catarrhozone

"For many years I have been a sufferer from that terrible disease known as CATARRH.

"Being a professional singer you can readily understand that Catarrh would be a serious hindrance to my professional skill.

"One year ago I read in the 'Progress' a convincing testimonial from one who had been cured of this disease th[illegible] your God-sent invention, Catarrhozone.

"Believing in the merits of Catarrhozone I tried it.

"Catarrhozone cured me and has been the means of my success.

"You are at liberty to use my name if it will help relieve some sufferer and I will always remain.

"Box Bixley, New Glasgow, N.S."

Mr. Bixley is one of the best known singers and entertainers in the Maritime Provinces. Everyone knows him and his testimonial for Catarrhozone is the best sort of evidence of what great benefit Catarrhozone is to those suffering with throat weakness or catarrh.

Complete outfit, consisting of a beautifully polished hard rubber inhaler, and sufficient liquid for recharging to last two months, costs one dollar. Sold by all druggists, or sent safely to your address by mail if price is forwarded to the Catarrhozone Co., Buffalo, N.Y., or Kingston, Ont.

English Visitor at Gospel Hall

The meeting at Gospel Hall next week will be particularly interesting. Mr. Douglas Russel, of Weston Super Mare, will arrive to-night via C.P.R. in time to address an open air meeting at the corner of Brock and George streets. He will give four evening addresses at Gospel Hall next week.

Picture Show Crowded

The attention of The Times was again called to the crowd in the vestibule of one of the moving picture shows the other night. If a panic through fire or other cause should take place at such a time it would be a serious matter. The police should see to it that the law is rigidly enforced.

Funeral This Afternoon.

Interment of the late Mrs. Alex. Reid will take place this afternoon from the family residence, 716 George street. Service will be conducted at the house by the Rev. Robt. Pogue, who will officiate in the absence of Rev. J. Rollins. At 3 o'clock the cortege will proceed to Little Lake Cemetery for interment.

A Musical Evening.

A vocal and piano recital by the pupils of Mrs. W. A. Greenslade will be held on Tuesday evening next, June 11th, in the Conservatory of Music Hall. Thorty progressive young pupils will take part, during the evening. Mr. Frank Whitehouse, the clever violinist, has kindly promised to assist.

To Hold Summer Fair.

The visit of the Belleville ladies to the Peterborough Summer Fair has borne good fruit as a Summer Fair for Belleville is announced to be held for three days, June 26, 27, and 28. Some of the manufacturers have already reserved space for booths and others are supplying articles. There is to be a special program each of the three nights.

Half Holiday at Library.

During July and August the Public Library will be closed on Wednesday afternoons and evenings. This was decided upon at a meeting of the Board held on Thursday night. The Library will close at 12.30 p.m. each Wednesday. This includes the reading room, as the directors desire to allow the entire staff enjoy the half holiday during these two months.

Dolway Co's Pavement.

The wording of our reference to the Dolway Co's system of street paving submitted to the Board of Works, Thursday night, was not as clear as it might have been in regard to Mr. Clarke, who explained the pavement. That gentleman is Mr. Clarke of the well-known and reliable firm of Toronto contractors Clarke & Monds, who constructed the Auburn dam and power house, in this city.

Mr. Jay's Business Growing.

The many friends of S. Jay, whose place of business is 390 Aylmer street, will be pleased to learn that his business has grown to such proportions that he has been obliged to acquire the house north of his store. This is now being renovated and will shortly be opened by Mrs. and Miss Jay, as a store for the sale of new and partly used ladies' and children's clothing of all descriptions. Our good wishes go with them.

To Locate at Saskatoon.

The Quaker Oats Company are preparing an agreement with the City Council of Saskatoon, whereby the company purposes to erect a mill in that city that will employ one hundred hands and have a daily capacity of 250 barrels of oatmeal and 550 barrels of cereal. The company asks a free site, railway sidings, reduced rate for power, sewer and water connection, fixed assessment, &c. If the conditions are arranged, building operations will be begun in August.

Annual Picnic.

The Mission Band of Murray street Baptist Church will hold its annual picnic at Jackson Park this afternoon at two o'clock. All the parents and friends of the Mission Band are invited and no more enjoyable time could be desired than that arranged by these young people. There will be games, races, etc., and the young ladies will have a sale table, where home-made confections can be secured. The only expense is a free-will offering for missions.

Murray Street Church.

Dr. Thomas Trotter, of Toronto, who comes as the special preacher to Murray street church for to-morrow, is sure to be heard by large congregations, morning and evening. His name and reputation is well known in Peterborough. He is one of those pulpit orators who with his earliest sentences secures a hold on his hearers which he keeps throughout the sermon. The ushers have arranged for extra chairs in the hope that none will be turned away from either services. Dr. Trotter while in the city will be the guest of Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Routley, Stewart street.

Preservation of Fish.

Lindsay Post. A motion of scope and usefulness was made by Reeves Morrison and Southern at the county council this morning, asking that a representation be made to the Ontario government to take measures for preserving the fish of the north lakes from suffocation caused by the severe winters of snow and cold. It is suggested that inspectors be instructed to drill holes in the ice for air vents and people should be allowed to spear net or hook suckers, eels and catfish, owing to their destructive habits of eating the spawn of bass, maskinonge and trout.

A Backyard Hint.

A ramble through the unfrequented streets of the city reveals more about the inhabitants than many people imagine. Some back yards are as neat and tidy as industrious hands and willing hearts can make them, while others would put to shame the premises surrounding the old log house of primative settlers. No doubt back yards are a pretty correct index of the habits and characters of the occupiers. Haven't you noticed that sometimes the front yard will present a neat lawn, and many beautiful flowers, while the backyard contains slop barrels, old tins, scrap iron broken bricks, etc. An ill-kept back yard is not only an eye-sore but is a menace to public health. Let everybody tidy up and be happy.

Whitby Power Rates.

Whitby Chronicle: Two representatives of the Seymour Power Co., Messrs. Peeling and Mulholland, the latter a director of the company, were in town on Tuesday for the purpose of making an agreement with the town for a flat rate on the electric power. By recent legislation of the Ontario Government all rates for electric power are subject to the ratification of the Hydro-Electric Commission. The Seymour Power Co. report a certain amount of friction with the commission, and therefore were anxious to fix a monthly rate for their power. The Water and Light Commissioners met on Tuesday afternoon and an arrangement was made with the Seymour Company for 90 horse power, at a rate which will amount to about $200 a month until October 1st. The agreement may be terminated at any time on due notice being given by either party.

SOCIAL AND PERSONAL

Rev. Dr. Graham, Toronto, was in the City yesterday, and gave The Times a call.

Mrs. L. Loose, of Minneapolis, is the guest of her sister, Mrs. W. H. Waram, Charlotte street.

Miss S. Davies, of Toronto, is spending a few days with the Misses Rae, before leaving for a month's visit with her grandmother.

Mrs. Parott of Odessa, is in the city, visiting her sister, a nurse in training at Nicholls Hospital, who is staying with Mrs. McCoy, Pearl avenue.

The Times had a visit yesterday from Mr. T. E. Boddy, of Toronto, formerly C.P.R. ticket agent. Mr. Boddy is the guest of Mr. W. Snowden while in the city.

Mrs. J. Gilbert Scott, of Brantford, announces the engagement of her youngest sister, Alice Beatrice Woods, of Peterborough, to Mr. Gilbert Bruce Hopkins, Fairmount.

LITTLE LOCAL LINES

The membership of the Public Library now exceeds 2500.

It is proposed to erect a first class summer hotel at Sturgeon Point. There is no doubt that a good hotel, properly equipped and managed, would be a paying proposition.

The pulpit of George street Methodist Church will be occupied to-morrow by Rev. Isaac Couch, the pastor, who has been attending the Methodist Conference in Cobourg.

Mr. George Brosseau, the Brock street tonsorial artist, a subscriber to and faithful reader of The Times, has had the interior of his barber shop embellished with a handsome layer of expensive paper and otherwise decorated.

The White Caps have four games scheduled at home for next week, playing Berlin on Monday and Tuesday, and London on Wednesday and Thursday, but in all probability these will be transferred.

The local Collegiates deserve a full house when they play the Lindsay Collegiates at the Oval to-day.

In an exhibition game at Bowmanville, Beith, who was seen here in Midland League games, struck out 16 Oshawa batters.

Bill Schaeffer is hardly good enough for the Berlin champions. He replaced Schuyler, and went to the bench in the eighth, Bartlett succeeding him.

Lowe has been watching Herbert, the Ottawa pitcher, for the past week, but does not think enough of him to pay the price demanded by the Ottawa Club. "Herbert is a likely boy, but in need of about two years' schooling, and this prevents us paying the price asked," was Lowe's comment.—Hamilton Spectator.

Lindsay Club To-day.

The Collegiate students assure a good game of baseball at the Oval this afternoon, when the senior team will meet the first nine of Lindsay Collegiate Institute at three o'clock.

The Lindsay team has been practicing all along and have of late had several games with home aggregations. The locals too have been working out at Central Park and are in good shape for a hard struggle. Huycke will do the heaving for the Kemerites, and will be held up by Hill. This is a strong battery. The infielders are Long 1b, Moran 2b, Dixon ss., and Smith 3b, while the outfield is Matthews, Adams and Huycke.

Lindsay will bring their strongest line-up. Mr. J. J. Thompson will umpire.

Games Here Next Week.

The fans can rest assured that everything possible will be done in order to have the White Caps home games played here next week. There are two strong attractions in London and Berlin and while Riverside is not available, other grounds may be secured.

Berlin Champions with Bartlett and Schaeffer, two ex-Peterborough players, are scheduled to play here next Monday and Tuesday with manager Bowerman's Londoners coming for Wednesday and Thursday.

FRENCH SUBMARINE CUT IN TWO BY LARGE BATTLESHIP

Tragedy During Practice Manoeuvres Near Cherbourg---French Fleet Unlucky, Having Already Lost Six Submarines---Men Drowned, With No Chance to Escape.

Cherbourg, June 8.—During the practice manoeuvres of the French fleet to-day, the battleship Saint Louis collided with the submarine Vendemiaire. The smaller craft immediately disappeared and it is believed to have been cut in two and to have carried to their death the entire crew and twenty-six men

The accident occurred between Aurigny Island and Cap Hague, in the Race of Alderney, where violent tidal currents prevail.

The battleship was probably about to be attacked by the submarine, which, however, made the mistake of coming right up under the bows of the warship. There was no time to avoid a collision, and the next moment the stern of the Saint Louis struck the submarine with terrific force, driving the latter below the surface. The engines of the warship were quickly reversed, but when she was brought to a stop the submarine had disappeared, and only a threshing of the waters showed where the under-the-surface fighter had gone down.

The Vendemiaire was commanded by Lieut. Prioul, a young ensign, and had a crew of 25 men. She was launched on July 7, 1910, and was the ninth vessel of the Plaviouse type added to the French navy. She was 167 feet in length, with a beam of 16 feet.

The captain of the Saint Louis at once communicated with Admiral Kiesel, maritime prefect of Cherbourg, and the latter hurried to the scene on board the destroyer Catapulte, and accompanied by despatch boats and tugs and barges provided with complete salvage apparatus. Word was also sent to the Government at Paris, and a message later received here stated that the Minister of Marine, M. Delcasse, was leaving this afternoon for Cherbourg. ...

This latest loss to the French navy has caused great distress not only throughout the service, but among the public generally, which has had so frequently to mourn naval disasters. No other navy has been so unfortunate in the matter of submarines. The Vendemiaire is the sixth craft of this type to be lost by the French.

A Glimmer of Hope.

There was a glimmer of hope this afternoon that some of the Vendemiaire's crew might survive, but owing to the depth of the water in which she sank, 25 fathoms, the general feeling is pessimistic. Cherbourg is plunged in mourning.

When the wrecking vessel reached the scene preparations were made for an effort by divers to reach the submarine and attach chains to the rings in her hull with the purpose of raising her to the surface.

The manoeuvres last night were those of the third squadron. The submarines of the Cherbourg station had received orders to attack the warships, and it was during one of these attacks that Vendemiaire made the fatal error of getting directly in the path of the Saint Louis. Later word was received that the accident occurred at seven o'clock this morning.

BOY DROWNED IN THE CANAL

A Thirteen Year Old Lad Loses His Life.

Another sad drowning accident occurred yesterday afternoon in the canal near the Norwood road, in which a thirteen year old son of Mr. John Hartley, of 567 Concession street, East City, was the victim. It appears that a number of boys were playing on the steamer Manita, which is moored at this point, when the unfortunate lad fell into the water. A couple of men happened to be nearby, and as quickly as possible got the lad out. For two hours those who came to the spot worked with the lad, but all to no purpose. Life evidently had become extinct before he was taken from the water. Much sympathy is felt for his father and mother in their great affliction.

THE SCOTT MINISTRY MAY MEET THERE WATERLOO

Ottawa, June 8.—Hon. Dr. Roche, Secretary of State, left last evening for Winnipeg and Regina to attend a big Conservative banquet at Regina on Monday, when Hon. Messrs. Rogers and Roche will begin their public part in the Saskatchewan elections.

Politicians say it is possible the Minister of the Interior will make the public declarations that unless the Province returns a majority of Haultain candidates, the public lands will not be handed over to the Provinces as promised by Mr. Borden prior to the general elections.

It is also believed that Wr. Rogers will spring a surprise in the form of some new scheme of Government operation of elevators with a view of securing some plan by which the Federal Government will be responsible for the payment to farmers for their grain immediately it is placed in warehouse.

There is no doubt every means possible at Mr. Roger's disposition will be used in Saskatchewan to, if possible, defeat the Scott Government. Advices received here from Regina Liberals state that they have no doubt as to the result, and that they are betting that Scott will have 2 to 1 in the next Legislature.

BIG BRITISH WARSHIP BEATS ALL RECORDS

London, June 8.—All speed records for Dreadnought battleships were smashed yesterday when H.M.S. Conqueror, on an eight-hour trial at full power, made a speed of 23.25 knots, instead of 21 knots as stipulated in the contract.

The fastest British battleship hitherto, was the Vanguard, which did 22.1 knots on her trial two years ago.

The fastest German Dreadnought, is the battleship Oldenburg, which had her trial this week and attained a speed of 22.4 knots.

MINISTER ACCUSED.

Lutheran Accused of the Death of His Father-in-Law.

New Sweden, June 8.—On a charge of murder, Rev. Charles Emelius, a Lutheran minister, was arrested here to-day. He is accused of having killed his father-in-law, Edgar Jacobson on June 12, 1911. The local authorities at the time pronounced Jacobson's death a case of suicide, but representatives of the Attorney-General's office maintained that he had been murdered.

SENTENCED TO BE HANGED, AUGUST 9TH

Montreal, June 8.—Found guilty of the murder of his wife on Nov. 21, and sentenced to be hanged on Aug. 9, was the fate of John Cumming, who was on trial here yesterday.

Maintaining his composure to the last, the prisoner on hearing the sentence, bowed to the judge with a "Thank you, your Honor," and turned to the jury with a "Good evening gentlemen."

He then made a brief speech, admitting that he did the shooting, but recounting the circumstances and telling how his mother-in-law, whom he had brought out from Scotland at his wife's request, had first brought trouble into their home by telling his wife that he already had another wife in Scotland. "That woman is not fit to be a mother of children," said the prisoner.

Maniac Runs Amuck.

Peoria, Ill., June 8.—An unknown man who boarded an excursion boat at Henry, Sunday, became violently insane and ran amuck among the 900 passengers. He was finally overpowered, locked in a galley and shortly afterwards jumped through a porthole and was drowned. Although the maniac carried a big knife, no one was hurt. The mate was severely bitten on the arm during the scuffle.

GUARDIANS OF THE PEOPLE

New Organization in United States to Fight Rome

DISTINCTLY PATRIOTIC

Country Menaced by the Encroachments of the Church of Rome — Patriotic Movement Will Yield a Powerful Check.

This is a new organization in the United States, which is distinctly patriotic, formed to maintain the liberty and free citizenship which have been the boast of the United States people ever since the war of independence, and which is now menaced by the secret and insidious encroachments of the Church of Rome. Under pressure brought to bear by millions of people the Order was formed by some of the leading men of the Republic, men of character and ability such as Hon. Charles D. Haines, ex-Congressman, Lieut.-Gen. Nelson A. Miles, U.S.A. retired; Major-General D. E. Sickles, Rear-Admiral G. W. Beard, etc. The Converted Catholic (New York) says these men "are determined to stand as true and faithful soldiers, and to battle for those rights and principles which, through the will and grace of God, were bequeathed as a divine heritage to the citizens of the United States."

The Guardians of Liberty is neither political or religious, but aims to

DOMINION DAY CELEBRATION

Strong Committee Appointed to Take Charge.

At a meeting of those interested in the celebration of Dominion Day, the following gentlemen were appointed chairmen of the general committee and sub-committees:

Mr. Duncan Walker was appointed chairman of the general committee, and Mr. W. R. Morris was chosen as secretary.

Mr. A. H. Stratton was made chairman of the Advertising and Program committee, and Dr. McPherson chairman of Sports committee.

A meeting is called for Tuesday night, next, when further details will be taken up.

The general nature of the celebration is unchanged, but everything points to a great day.

The automobile parade is likely to go. Many auto owners have expressed their approval of this idea, and Mr. A. H. Stratton has already secured figures, showing the cost of a number of prices that should be acceptable to the winners. The idea is to decorate the cars with patriotic designs, bunting or whatever the owner wishes and to hold a parade in conjunction with the morning parade on that day.

THE WEATHER.

Fair and a little higher temperature.

DR. LI YUIN TSAO

Dr. Li Yuin Tsao, a demure Chinese woman, who is in St. Louis supplementing her medical education with surgical work at the Bethesda Hospital, believes that opportunities for women physicians and surgeons are even greater in China than they are in America. She will return to her native land this fall and will work there as a Christian medical missionary, teaching and practising medicine in an effort to aid her fellow countrymen and to help generally the progressive movement in the new republic.

THREE CASES TO BE HEARD

Docket of Civil Cases for the General Sessions

Following is the docket of civil cases to be tried at the Court of General Sessions, which opens in the court house to-morrow:

Hall vs. McBain—The plaintiffs, Richard Hall & Son, claim from defendant, Mr. J. McBain, executrix, and Sarah McPherson, the amount of an account of goods supplied to Sarah McPherson. The defendant executrix, denies that her estate is liable. The other defendant denies her liability, and set up the liability of the estate.

Collier vs. Brown—The plaintiff, H. B. Collier, claims from defendant, Andrew Brown, $400 for return of $150 commission paid by plaintiff to defendant in respect of a certain real estate deal in which the plaintiff's property was turned over as part of the consideration for property taken by the plaintiff in the deal, and for $150 which the defendant received as commission from the party with whom the plaintiff made the deal the plaintiff alleging that the defendant acted as his agent and received from plaintiff $150 commission, which the plaintiff seeks to get back, and from the other party to the deal, $250 commission, the plaintiff alleging that he was unaware of the defendant receiving the $250 commission from the other party to the deal and that therefore he is entitled to recover from the defendant the commission the plaintiff paid and also the commission paid the defendant by the other party to the deal.

SAY CONVENTION WILL PROBABLY NOMINATE TAFT

That Is Impression Gaining Ground Among Republicians at Chicago For The Past Few Day's

Chicago, June 9.—The crux of the entire situation in connection with the Republican National Convention to-day rested with Col. Theodore Roosevelt. Accepting as a fact that he will reach here next week and immediately enter on the active management of his fight for the Republican nomination, his leaders to-day rested on their oars. They said that the air had been cleared by the determination of the National Committee to seat none but Taft men, and that now they would concentrate their strength on the unopposed delegates.

The Taft leaders were doing the same thing. With the record of the ninth Alabama before them, they stated that under no circumstances would a single Roosevelt delegate be seated with the possible exception of Washington, and there were some Taft men who insisted that the "steam roller" would be a vital adjunct in disposing of that particular contest. So both sides sent their most trusted men out to grapple with the delegates as they rolled in.

The Taft leaders frankly admitted that they were "stiffening" the weaker members, while the Roosevelt chieftains simply declared that, as they could get nothing from the National Committee, they were forced to see if they could not get something from the delegates themselves.

Roosevelt to Be Beaten.

The belief is now a concrete one with both sides that Roosevelt will personally assume charge of his fight immediately on his arrival here next week, that he will be defeated in his skirmish for position, and that he and his followers will hold a convention of their own. They will absolutely deny that they are bolters. Instead, they will insist that they are the Simon-pure Republicans of the country. In every state where the Progressives are in control they will demand that their nominees be considered regular, and as such given the place on the official ballot to be voted next fall, that the regular Republican candidates usually occupy.

And they privately declared to-day that they would carry their point on this question.

WOMAN KILLED ON GRAND TRUNK

Collision Near Lindsay on Saturday Evening

A serious accident occurred on the Grand Trunk Railway at Grass Hill Station, a short distance from Lindsay, by which a woman, said to belong to Lindsay, was killed and several others seriously injured.

It appears that a heavy way freight drawn by two engines, was on its way west when the "Coboconk Mixed," which leaves Lindsay about six o'clock, overtook it at Grass Hill, where it had stopped to drop some cars and do some shunting. The Coboconk train ran into the end of the heavier train, with the above result. A special was quickly despatched from Lindsay, and the injured brought to the Ross Hospital, where everything possible is being done for them.

SITE FOR WEST CITY'S NEW SCHOOL NOT YET ACCEPTED

Not a Quorum Present Saturday to Act Upon Building Committee's Report. New School to be Opened September, 1913.

The Board of Education was to have met in special session Saturday evening to receive its building committee's report in regard to a site on which to erect the new twelve-room school in West City. There were not, however, sufficient members present to form a quorum and consequently nothing was done. The trustees present were chairman John Crane, Messrs. W. H. Hill, T. H. Adams, R. Fair and Dr. Morrison—one member short, the number required to legalize the transaction of any business.

As a site for this new school there appears to be nothing available but properties in North Monaghan, immediately west of the boundary road. Mr. Geo. Hatton is offering six acres for $10,000, or five acres for $9,000, immediately south of the continuation of Weller street into North Monaghan; the Toronto Savings and Loan Co., originally offered four acres o. the Cox property, north of Weller street, for $9,500; but they have subsequently made another proposition which has not yet been given out for publication, and which was to have been reported on Saturday evening. In connection with the Hatton property there would be a 90 foot avenue south of either site, not included in the five or six acres, but of which the school would enjoy practically exclusive benefit.

The Times is not in a position to say just which proposition the building committee will report in favor of; but it is to be hoped the board will not repudiate its own recently advanced policy that a twelve room school requires six acres of land to meet present day and future requirements. This contention was freely advertised in connection with East City site, and no matter which of the West City properties under consideration is accepted, the trustees will court adverse criticism unless equal conditions regarding acreage apply to both wards.

The new schools are to be finished by next June, and opened the following September, 1913. The building committee has wisely decided to give the structures a couple of months in which to dry out before admitting therein any scholars.

MISTAKES OF NATION BUILDING.

(Editor Morning Times.)

Sir.—In the year 1759, when Wolfe what we now call Quebec had a population of about sixty thousand French-speaking people. From the date of the conquest until 1774 the country was chiefly under military rule; but in 1774 the British government passed the "Quebec Act," which gave the French the right to use their own language and also a great many privileges. This can be taken as another illustration of the activities of the Roman Church, for the British government at that time were face to face with the American Revolution, which broke out in 1775; and certain privileges had to be granted to the French in Canada to secure their loyalty to the British Crown in the coming conflict with her American Colonies.

Now in the year 1803 the American Government purchased Louisiana from France, which then had a French population of about sixty thousand—same as that of Canada at the time of the British conquest forty-four years before. The American Government introduced the English language exclusively in the schools of Louisiana, and consequently the whole state of Louisiana has become English-speaking, while we have in the Province of Quebec nearly two million French-speaking people. Therefore I think this was one occasion in which the American policy was far superior to the British policy.

But, o course, the people of to-day are not to blame for Britain's mistakes of a hundred and fifty years ago; although we are confronted in Ontario to-day by abuses dating back to the English conquest in Canada. The principle one being two distinct nationalities, caused by the French being allowed the use of their language in the schools of Quebec.

Not content with being complete masters of Quebec, they are now using every means within their power to drive the English language out of Ontario by means of what are now called bilingual schools. Then it becomes us, as loyal English-speaking citizens of Ontario, to see that bilingual schools are stamped out in this province, and also in other parts of the Dominion. And I am sure that the action of the present Government of Ontario will be closely watched by every loyal citizen in regard to bilingual schools, which is by far the most important question confronting the Province of Ontario at the present day.

An idea of the magnitude of the question may be gathered from the actions of the Premier and Leader of the Opposition in the closing hours of the last session of the Legislature. One would naturally think that both these leaders were afraid of French influence. If that is the case, then the sooner the bilingual schools are stamped out the better; if Ontario the banner Province of the Dominion is to remain English-speaking.

—Alfred W. Dennison.

Uncle Sam's Finances.

Washington, June 8.—Large customs and internal revenue receipts cut the deficit of the Federal Government nearly in half during May. The deficit for the fiscal year is now only $6,462,000, as compared with $12,560,000 a month ago. This is the lowest deficit for several months. A year ago the deficit amounted to $6,866,000. The deficit, it is expected, will be entirely wiped out during June, by the payments of the corporation tax and the treasury given a surplus of several million dollars.

GO TO FLORIDA FOR HEALTH AND wealth.—The question is asked me repeatedly: Why, if all that is claimed for the climate and earning capacity of the land in Florida is true, how is it that only a percentage of the State's area is under cultivation? It is a fair question, and the answer is a simple one. After the war between the North and the South Florida found herself in a deplorable condition financially. The State Government leased hundred of thousands of acres of its best prairie and timber lands for periods running as high as 66 years. This latter period tied up the great Kissimmee Prairie until recently. It is now, however, in the hands of a splendid colonization company, whose selling agent is the Hunter Land Company. Kissimmee Prairie is in the Southern portion of Osceola County, and is noted for its fertility and uniformity of soil. It is the healthiest spot in North America, and every day in the year is a growing day. Write for maps, illustrated literature, excursion particulars and any desired information. HE WAS A BIG MAN.

Editor Pays Eloquent Tribute to the Late Judge Mabee.

The first and dominant impression made by Judge Mabee, as presiding officer and directing genius of the Railway Commission was one of power. A man of magnificent physique, with a keen intellect and a faculty for epigrammatic expression; he was master of his court, and of every question and situation which came before it. Patient and considerate with the untried lawyer or the litigant without counsel, he was merciless in tearing to pieces any sophistical argument presented to him by counsel learned in the law. Lacking something perhaps of the patient industry and talent for analysis which distinguished his predecessor, the late Judge Killam, he brought to the work of the commission much of the spirit which animated the latter during his brief service and supplemented this with a boldness and originality peculiarly his own. He thoroughly grasped the underlying purpose of the railway act, namely, the establishment of a sympathetic tribunal to adjudicate the grievances of the plain people and the municipalities against the great public utility corporations.

While Judge Mabee, on the bench, brushed aside technicalities and stood in little awe of precedents, he was laborious and exact in all his investigations and many of his written opinions will long remain as monuments to his industry. His great faculty, however, was his immediate instinctive sense of right and justice. He was to some extent handicapped by the failure of Parliament to establish standards and principles for the guidance of the commission and was often compelled to limit his judgments by the somewhat arbitrary rates and classifications so elaborately built up by the railways of this continent and sanctioned by the United States Interstate Commerce Commission, a body also handicapped by the timidity of the national legislature. On the other hand, in certain cases, notably in the case of the Toronto viaduct, he entered decrees, knowing them to the ultra vires of the Railway Act, being confident that Parliament would ratify the same by curative legislation.

One of his last decisions was that rendered at Ottawa on April 16, which placed upon the railway companies the onus of justifying higher freight rates in the west than those prevailing in the east of Canada.

He last sat in the commission at the hearings in Toronto on April 29. He presided with his usual force and ability, holding counsel well in hand and expediting the business before him. One matter which came up was an application from a citizen in Locust Hill, who had several complaints to make about the railway company.

"This man," said an official, "has written about twenty letters making all sorts of complaints."

"Oh well," said the chairman smilingly, "he is evidently an Irishman and he is entitled to write all the letters he wants to."

It will be hard to replace Judge Mabee. When Judge Killam died many felt that the Government had a hard task before it in choosing his successor, but the Laurier Government measured up to the task superbly when it selected the late chairman.

There will be no division of sentiment throughout the country. He was a big man in every sense of the word, brave, able, and public-spirited. He adorned the bench and shed lustre upon the Railway Commission. —The Toronto World.

An Interesting Cemetery.

How many people know, asks The Standard of Empire, that in St. Paul's Cemetery, Halifax, is one of the most interesting graves in the continent of America? For there lies buried the remains of the man who captured Washington, the capital of the Federal Government of the United States.

Here is the inscription:—

Here
on the 21st Sept., 1814, was consigned
to the earth the body of
MAJOR-GEN. ROSS,

who, having distinguished himself in all ranks as an officer in Egypt, Italy, Portugal, Spain, and America, was killed at the commencement of an action which resulted in the defeat and flight of the troops of the United States near Baltimore on the 12th September, 1814.

A gallant army under his conduct attacked and dispersed the Americans at Bladensburg, on the 24th August, 1814, and on the same day victoriously entered Washington, the capital of the United States.

G. P. G.'s Experience.

Even before the Hon. George P. Graham was known throughout Canada as a great after-dinner speaker, he showed his wit and resourcefulness. When the Hon. George (it was plain "George" then) was married, he found himself in the embarrassing position of being called upon for a speech without being prepared.

He was perplexed, but not dismayed, for his ready wit did not desert him. He said that he could not express himself better on this occasion than he did at the old Methodist experience meeting, when he said: "It is good to be here."—Star Weekly.

Our Hatcheries.

Hatching fish by artificial means to stock the waters of Canada is engaged in on a large scale by the Dominion Government. In 1909 the Dominion fish hatcheries planted no fewer than 1,024,253,000 fry in various waters throughout the country. In 1900 only 271,896,000 fry were planted by the Government fish hatcheries. The number of hatcheries has increased from 12 to 37. Of the 37 hatcheries now in operation, British Columbia and Quebec have eight each, Nova Scotia, New Brunswick and Ontario five each, and Manitoba and Prince Edward Island each have three.

Wore Wedding Duds 50 Years Old.

David Bayne, of Arnprior, Ont., dressed in the suit he was married in, with his wife, celebrated their fiftieth wedding anniversary recently.

Half Holiday at Library.

During July and August the Public Library will be closed on Wednesday afternoons and evenings. This was decided upon at a meeting of the Board held on Thursday night. The Library will close at 12.30 p.m. each Wednesday. This includes the reading room, as the directors desire to allow the entire staff enjoy the half-holiday during these two months.

SKOBELEFF'S REVENGE.

Insulted by the Czar the Russian Hero Tamed His Master.

During the Russo-Turkish war the day after the passage of the Danube had been made good the Emperor of Russia crossed the river to congratulate and thank his gallant soldiers. In front of a long, massive line formed on the slope below Sistova, awaiting the coming of the great white czar, stood Dragomiroff, Yolchine and Skobeleff, the three generals who had been the leaders of the successful attempt.

Dragomiroff, the divisional commander, the Emperor embraced and gave him the cross of St. George. He shook hands warmly with Yolchine, the brigade commander, and gave him, too, a St. George to add to the decorations which this cheery little warrior had been gathering from boyhood in the Caucasus and central Asia. Then the Emperor strode to where Skobeleff stood, and men watched the little scene with interest, for it was notorious that Skobeleff was in disfavor with his sovereign, and yet of him the camps were ringing with the story of his conduct of the previous morning.

Would Alexander maintain his umbrage or would he make it manifest that it had been displaced by Skobeleff's heroism? For at least a minute the Czar hesitated as the two tall, proud, soldierly men confronted each other. You could trace in his countenance the struggle between disapproval and appreciation.

It was soon over, and the wrong way for Skobeleff. The Emperor frowned, turned short on his heel and strode abruptly away without a word or a gesture of greeting or recognition. A man of strong prejudices, he was not yet able to exercise from his mind the calumnies that had blackened to him the character of Skobeleff.

That officer, for his part, flushed scarlet, then grew deadly pale and seemed to conquer an impulse as he set his teeth hard and maintained his disciplined immobility. It was a flagrant insult in the very face of the army and a gross injustice, but Skobeleff endured it in a proud silence.

The time soon came to that gallant and brilliant soldier when he could afford to be magnanimous. As the campaign progressed he distinguished himself again and again, so that his name became a synonym in the army for splendid daring as well as for opportune skill.

On Sept. 3 Skobeleff after exploit on exploit devised and led the storm of the Turkish position in Loftcha and drove his adversaries out of that strong place. On the following night at his own dinner table in the Gorni Studen headquarters the Emperor stood up and bade his guests to honor with him the toast of "Skobeleff, the Hero of Loftcha" It is not given to many men to earn a revenge so full and so grand as that.

A Queer Town.

Distasteful Taffy.

The late Senator Hoar of Massachusetts was dining at his hotel in Washington when an effusive stranger sat down near him. The stranger introduced himself to Senator Hoar and immediately launched into a eulogy of the senator in the most glowing terms. He taffied the senator for ten minutes, much to that statesman's apparent discomfort.

Finally he said:

"Why, only the other day, senator, a man with whom I was traveling told me you are the greatest patriot and the greatest orator and the greatest statesman New England ever sent to the senate. He was a well informed man. I met him only the other day when he was on his way—on his way—to—odd, I can't remember—on his way to"—

"A lunatic asylum!" snapped Hoar.—Saturday Evening Post.

The Oldest Bank.

The Palazzo San Giorgio on the Piazza Caricamento, Genoa, has played an important role in the history of this Italian city and of the world of business. It was built in 1260 by order of Guglielmo Boccanegra, captain of the republic of Genoa, and, after serving as his residence, was the headquarters of the celebrated company and bank of St. George. Our modern system of banking sprang from this historic edifice, and the Societa delle Comprere di San Giorgio was the first limited liability company. The architect of the place was a monk named Oliviero. Although its architecture has undergone a number of changes the facade still speaks eloquently of the thirteenth century. Its arcades with pointed arches and its windows formed of little columns are exceedingly charming.—Wide World.

When Leather Was Money.

Leather was very early used as a currency, the Romans employing it for this purpose before either gold, silver or brass came into common use. History is full of references showing that leather was used by the ancients as a sort of circulating medium of exchange. It is said on good authority that so late as during the reign of Louis XII. of France the country became so impoverished and as a consequence money was so scarce that little pieces of leather with a small silver nail driven through each were in general use as money. Some few specimens of this leather money are still in existence, but are only to be found in the possession of numismatists, by whom they are highly prized.

This Interesting Letter is Addressed to YOU

SIR:—

It is a favorite form of mental culture with many people to trace results back to causes. Have you ever applied it to the growth of a city?

Travel was the original cause of our modern Canadian and American cities. Travel by the early pioneers of civilized nations, often at the cost of their lives.

Years ago, one of these pioneers of the western plains crossed a river at a time when the North-West Territories formed the grazing grounds for buffalo and antelope. While making the crossing his primitive wagon broke down. He made his repairs with rope and the jaw of a moose found by the side of the trail. His Indian companions called the spot "The place where the white chief mended his cart with the jaw of a moose."

A trail cause seemingly, for great results. But the prosperous city of Moose Jaw, Saskatchewan, stands as the result of the pioneers accident. Not all at once, but through various stages, each more important than the last. The traveller talked—probably of the good water and the grazing land. These all important factors to the settler became known. Others began to investigate, a settlement formed, and Moose Jaw came into existence.

In the year 1902 a great rush of settlers to the west took place. This movement has been called the "American Invasion," but it included thousands from the Eastern Provinces of Canada. News of the Great West had spread, the Soo Branch of the Canadian Pacific Railway from Portal on the Southern Canadian Boundary line had been completed, and the great wheat belt of Canada began its period of prosperity.

The city of Moose Jaw, Saskatchewan, in the heart of this area, was the point chosen as most suitable for this great artery to meet the trans-continental main line. Over this route thousands of cars of effects owned by settlers from the United States are carried yearly.

Suddenly other railway corporations discovered that the Canadian Pacific Railway had the monopoly of the business of Moose Jaw, and the wealthy territory behind it. They saw the Canadian Pacific Railway make Moose Jaw its chief divisional point in Saskatchewan with the greatest yards west of Winnipeg, costing with other improvements, over $4,000,000.

Competition for the great volume of business was aroused, until to-day there are eleven lines either completed, under construction, or chartered.

The soil has attracted the settler—great freight, cattle, and grain shipments have attracted the railway companies, and as a final result Moose Jaw has in a few years become a city with possibilities unsurpassed in the West.

While this result has been accomplished, you can judge the effect on Real Estate values. But the increase in values in this city will be greater in the future than in the past.

Had that pioneer settled at the river crossing, and owned the townsite of Moose Jaw he could have been a millionaire to-day—but he missed an opportunity. You have your pressing opportunity in our unique residential sub-division, Boulevard Heights. Do not miss it. Big sales are reported daily, prices are going up, and you can have a share in this profit taking. A payment of $10.00 forwarded to-day will secure you an interest in a sound investment, to which there is no interest.

A Money Trap.

Hon. Robert Rogers, who is a well-known member of the Manitoba Club in Winnipeg, after dinner a few months since at the club, went to the cloakroom with a friend of his (who was his guest) to don their overcoats. The guest, somewhat to his surprise, heard a slight jingle, and on examination found in his pocket five or six fifty-cent pieces. "What am I to do?" said he. "They are not mine; some one has put them there by mistake. Perhaps I'd better leave them in the office."

"No," replied Mr. Rogers, with a twinkle, "don't do that, put the money in your pocket and set it again."

WHERE WILL THE END BE ?

The German Reichstag has been forced into the scheme of a new squadron which will mean the construction of three new battleships and two cruisers before 1920, an average yearly outlay of over $25,000,000. And there is to be a corresponding increase in the army. And Admiral Mahan, of the United States, insists that his country will have to build two battleships every year or Germany will break down the Monroe doctrine. And so the insane and suicidal rivalty goes on.

CANADIAN IMMIGRANTS FOR 1911

The report for the year ending March 31st, 1912, shows that the year's immigration figures reached a total of 354,237. Of these 138,121 were British, 133,710 came from the United States, and 92,406 came from other countries. This means that practically 75 per cent. of our immigrants were English-speaking, for which we have reason to be thankful. There were 972 immigrants rejected at the ocean ports and 2,204 at the ports of entry from the United States. These rejections were mainly on account of either trachoma or lack of funds. There were 959 deportations, of which 348 were from Ontario. The ocean ports gave us 72,928 farmers, 61,752 laborers, 24,133 mechanics, and 18,390 domestics. The United States sent 59,560 farmers, 44,777 general laborers, and 10,795 mechanics. This year's immigration means that the church in Canada has the equivalent of another good sized city to care for. We need more effort, more men, more money, more prayer.

PENSIONING MOTHERS.

The State of Illinois now has a law, which becomes operative in the counties on their initiative, granting pensions to mothers who are left with little children to take care of, either by the death, desertion or disabling of the husband and father. The law has been accepted in several counties, and it is expected that it will extend throughout the state, notwithstanding the opposition to it on account of its socialistic character. We have a theory that any mother of children has the right to a chance of bringing them up in some measure of comfort to good citizenship and a good opportunity for life. And if the natural provider of that chance is no longer available, it is perfectly legitimate that the state take his place. This is not paternalism, but simply a good square deal both for the mother and the children. After all, mothers are the greatest bulwark of the state, and they ought to be one of its greatest cares. The theory that somehow it is better for the state that such a mother go out washing for a livelihood while her little children are left untended at home does not seem to have any very solid foundation. The fear of pauperizing such mothers has been so great that we have robbed the children of their legitimate right to a mother's supervision. To avoid one unwise thing we have done something still more foolish.

THE HEELERS

The city of Halifax has two representatives in the Dominion Parliament the Hon. Mr. Borden and Mr. McLean, a Liberal. When Mr. Borden took on his shoulders the responsibility of government it was one of his very first acts—and a truly honorable and consistent one—to secure the impartial distribution of federal patronage in his own riding. For this purpose there was appointed a commission of five members, Mr. A. B. Crosby former Conservative member of Parliament; Mr. R. P. Proctor, President of the Conservative Association; Mr. F. P. Bligh, Mayor of the city; Mr. T. F. Tobin and Mr. E. M. Walker. The Montreal Witness thinks that this committee has been altogether too impartial for the large number of party heelers in Halifax. With hungry maw the sharks swarm open-mouthed looking for bait. It is a horrid sight. They would tear at the very heart of their own party to obtain an easy and secure living. This demonstration of four hundred Conservatives against one of the best acts of their leader is as fine a commendation as he has had since coming to office. All over the country in federal and provincial politics there is a rabble composed of followers of both parties that spend their best energies looking for government 'soft snaps' both in the way of appointments and in the way of contracts. It is on the basis of these people who are at all times willing to defraud their country that McBridism, Mercierism, Rogerism has been built up. The low moral tone of the people must always be a temptation to their rulers. While a Pelletier may traffic with it, a Borden stamps on it. Mr. Borden promised to extend the civil service act to the outside service. Had he done so earlier he would not now have to stand the humiliation of having to support a Post Master-General who has dismissed a postmaster four years dead for excessive partisanship. We hope yet to see Mr. Borden extend the civil service. While his experience in Halifax will be discouraging he may rely on it that the complaint of these disgruntled heelers will bring more support to his standard than the insignificant loss he would endure were the whole four hundred to desert him.

THE TROUBLE IN CUBA.

The so-called revolution in Cuba is nothing more than a kind of guerilla warfare conducted by small bands of negro criminals for the purposes of robbery, hence the United States has dispatched marines to Guantanamo in order to afford protection to Americans and their property, but the situation is not such as to warrant the belief that it will be found necessary for this government to impose military rule on the island.

It is true that we have the right of intervention under the Platt amendment accepted by Cuba as part of her constitution, for "it explicitly states that we may interfere for the restoration of order when in the judgment of the administrative officers of the United States such action is necessary. American troops have twice been landed in Cuba, since the war with Spain, and after our soldiers had suppressed the disorders they were withdrawn and the government of the island given back to the Cubans, hence our course with respect to the new republic has been beyond criticism.

The Cubans now fear, however, that disgusted because of their frequent outbreaks we may make our next intervention permanent, but they have no basis for such a fear because the Platt amendment not only did not anticipate such a course on our part, but definitely declared that it was not our purpose.

MEN WHO DON'T EXERCISE

SUFFER FROM INDIGESTION, HEADACHES, POOR APPETITE, SLEEPLESSNESS

Nothing so Sure to "Set Up" a Man Make Him Feel Brisk and Vigous, as Dr. Hamilton's Pills.

Lack of exercise and overwork are the causes that combined to almost kill Samuel S. Stephens, Jr., one of the best known citizens in Woodstock

In his convincing letter Mr. Stephens says:—

"A year ago I returned home after a long trip, complesely worn out. I was so badly affected by chronic biliousness, so much overcome by constant headaches, dizziness, that I despaired of every getting well. I was always tired and languid, had no energy and spirit, found it difficult to sleep for more than five hours. My appetite was so fickle that I ate next to nothing, and in consequence lost weight and strength. I was pale and had dark rings under my eyes, that made me look like a shadow.

"It was a blessing that I used Dr. Hamilton's Pills. In one week I felt like a new man. The feeling of weight and nausea in my stomach disappeared. My eyes looked brighter, color grew better, and, best of all, I began to enjoy my meals. The dizziness languor and feeling of depression passed away, and I last regained my old time vigor and spirits. To-day I am well, thanks to Dr. Hamilton's Pills."

For health, strength, comfort, and good spirits there is no medicine like Dr. Hamilton's Pills. Beware of substitutes, and don't let any dealer palm off some other pill on which he can make more money. 25c per box, or five boxes for $1.00, by mail from The Catarrhozone Company, Kingston, Ont.

Editorial Notes

Ontario has floated a loan of $1,000,000 at a shade over par. This will cast a shadow over the young lives of the financial gentlemen who announced that Ontario's credit would be picturesquely ruined as a result of the hydro-electric proposition.

The Plumbers' Association of Ontario has passed a resolution that the name of "plumbers" should be dropped and that they should be called "Sanitary and Heating Engineers." This is all right as far as it goes, for though plumbers may be anything but sanitary, we have often seen them make many people good and hot.

WAITED MESSAGE FROM DEAD

Wife Refused to Allow Fat Man Buried.

WELL KNOWN FAT MAN

Wife of Chauncey Morlan Refused to Allow His Cremation or Burial Till she Heard from his Spirit.

Indianapolis, Ind., June 9—Unless the spirit of Chauncey Morlan, thrusting aside the barrier between life and death, communicates to the grief-stricken widow soon a message giving his wishes as to the disposition of his body the health authorities of Elwood Ind., where Morlan died, May 26, will ignore the wishes of Mrs. Morlan and compel the burial of the corpse.

For more than a week Mrs. Morlan fearing that ghouls would desecrate the new-made grave has been sitting beside the body of her husband, refusing to permit the funeral to take place, and awaiting a message from the world beyond the grave. Tuesday the authorities delivered their ultimatum.

Morlan was for years the fat man with Barnum & Bailey's circus and was known throughout the United States. Although previous to his death he had expressed a wish that his body be cremated Mrs. Morlan would not agree to it. Since last Sunday, a week ago, she has remained inconsolable in grief. Mrs. Morlan told the authorities Tuesday that if she does not hear from her husband Tuesday night she will bow to their wishes and allow his body to be buried Wednesday.

None but the undertakers who embalmed the body and members of fraternal orders have been permitted to see the corpse.

NAKED CHILDREN WILL WALK THE STREETS OF CHICAGO

Chicago, June 8.—Naked children, children by the score, will, it is planned, appear in the streets, through the congested quarter in the West side of the city next week as a striking protest against the suffering brought to women and children by reason of the high cost of Kosher meat. This was decided upon at a meeting of Hebrew mothers in a west side hall to-day. It is designed to attract the attention of the public, they say, to what they characterize as unnecessarily high prices fixed both by the wholesalers and retailers upon the only meat they may eat.

GUARDIANS OF THE PEOPLE.

promote loyalty to the Government, and to take liberty with any church or other organization interfering with established American institution and civil government, and stands unalterably for the complete separation of Church and State. Those who join the Order are to be faithful to following principles:

First—We declare it to be our unalterable purpose to preserve, defend and forever hold sacred the blood bought legacy of liberty inherited from our forefathers.

Second—We unite as a non-sectarian non-partisan moral force for the enactment and enforcement of such laws as will abolish class legislation. We oppose granting to any corporation or combination of individuals preferential rights or privileges that stifle competition, sacrifice the independent business man, or monopolize the trade and transportation.

Third—We stand unalterable for the complete separation of Church and State.

Fourth—We unite to protect our country and its free institutions from the efforts of any religious-political organization which may attempt to manipulate or influence the political or social development of our country.

Fifth—We concern ourselves with no religious faith, but we take issue with any church or other organization interfering with established American institutions and civil Government.

Sixth—We maintain it to be the right of the State to give free education and public instruction, but the religious instruction of children we hold to be the exclusive duty and prerogatives of parents.

Seventh—We are opposed to the use of public funds, local or National, for any religious purpose whatever.

Eighth—We maintain it to be inconsistent with and destructive of free government to appoint or elect to political or military office any person who openly or secretly concedes superior authority to any foreign political or ecclesiastical power whatsoever.

In commenting on the above, our talented contemporary, the Orange Sentinel, adds that the public will recognize in the above platform a common ground of action with the Orange Association, and at the same time an offset to the papal Knights of Columbus, and the Ancient Order of Hibernians.

The arrogant assumptions of the newly appointed American Cardinals, Farley, of New York, and O'Connell, of Boston, doubtless had a strong influence upon the patriotic people behind this movement. With the lack of humility—the self-assertion and despotism characteristic of Roman Catholic dignitaries where they have the power—Cardinal O'Connell, at the St. Patrick's Day dinner in Boston, insisted on occupying the seat next to the President, whereas by right the Governor of the State, Mr. Foss, should have had the second honor. Governor Foss rightly resented the allotment and absented himself from the banquet.

Another conspicuous case of arrogance was the claim that the Duke of Connaught, when he visited New York, should have paid his first call on Cardinal Farley, since, as a Roman Catholic writer in a Chicago paper said, the Cardinal as a "prince of the Church," was his equal in rank, and the Duke was the most recent arrival.

The Converted Catholic, commenting on the episode said: "Such disgusting claims should be their own correction. That a man, because his false and pretentious church calls him a 'prince,' should claim to be equal in rank to the Governor-General of a country, is as ridiculous as it is amusing."

The Converted Catholic continues: "When we read of such declarations as these it is time for all genuine American patriots who love civil and religious liberty to arise in their outraged dignity and demand that this thing shall stop before it gets going too fast and too far and there is no doubt that such actions by prominent Roman Catholics are largely responsible for the organization of 'The Guardians of Liberty,' whose first object will be to prevent any undue influence being exerted in behalf of the Roman Church in congress or elsewhere."

The Guardians of Liberty have a mission and a good field to work in. The organization is in the line of a Portestant federation, and will without doubt have a wholesome influence upon the affairs of the nation.

THAW LEAVES MATTEAWAN.

Goes to White Plains, Where Effort Will be Made to Secure His Release.

Matteawan, N.Y., June 8.—"I only want a ticket one way. Hope I will not need the return part," said Harry K. Thaw to-day when he started to White Plains, where his attorneys are about to make another effort to free him from confinement here in the State Hospital for Criminal Insane.

Pursuant to a Supreme Court order, Thaw's residence during the trial of his suit will be the White Plains' Jail. He seemed in excellent spirits this morning. One of the hospital attendants accompanied him.

Young Astor Has Them Burned in Bundles Weekly—Some Contain Business Advice.

New York, June 8.—Vincent Astor, who when he becomes of age next November will be the master of an estate of possibly $100,000,000, has been the subject of great solicitude to several thousand correspondents. Letters by the bushel have poured in upon him, ranging from scarlet-hued missives of passion to sober effusions of advice as to the best manner of spending his money.

Mr. Astor is retiring almost to the point of shyness and this sudden wave of proffered affection has overwhelmed him.

Mr. Astor orders the letters burned weekly in bundles.

SIX YEARS FOR PRESIDENT

New York, June 8.—Herbert T. Jennings, president of the defunct Mount Vernon National Bank, was found guilty of misapplication of the funds of the bank, and was sentenced to six years' imprisonment in the Federal Penitentiary at Atlanta, Ga.

Samuel K. Raymond, cashier of the institution, who was jointly indicted and tried with Jennings, was found guilty, but his sentence was suspended.

The jury returned a verdict about midnight, after deliberating since 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon. The Government alleged that the two prisoners had obtained about $400,000 from the bank.

GIRLS KISSED TITANIC HERO.

New York, June 9—Just before Captain A. H. Rostron, of the steamer Carpathia, the savior of the Titanic survivors, sailed for Mediterranean ports Tuesday, he was stormed by a host of pretty girls, who blushed less rosily than the captain as they begged for the customary blessing of a hero. Captain Rostron stood gallantly on the bridge and gave away kisses as fast as the girls could file past him. Two of them came bearing a gift in the shape of a coal-black kitten as an omen of extra good luck for the Carpathia and her commander.

CANADIANS IN AVIATION

THE DOMINION HAS PRODUCED ENTHUSIASTIC BIRDMEN.

An Anglican Clergyman, Whose Name Has Been Forgotten But Who Lived at Three Rivers, Was One of the Pioneers In Aerial Experiments Back In 1840—Perron's Researches—Dr. Bell's Work.

Many years before the venerable Trowbridge had given to the world his "Darius Green and his Flying Machine," actual experiments, which had anticipated those set forth in this poem had been carried out in the particular field of gliding aerotechnics at Three Rivers, Que., by an Anglican clergyman, whose name is, unfortunately shrouded in mystery, and the exact date of his experiments is also unknown, although it has been determined that they took place sometime between 1835 and 1845.

This clergyman commenced his work by studying the flight of birds, and finally decided that it was well within the sphere of possibility, for man to successfully emulate the example of his feathered friends.

Accordingly he commenced by making experiments with gliders and plane surfaces, and gathered an immense amount of valuable data which, unfortunately, has been lost. From verbal accounts of some of these experiments, it seems possible, that he discovered the method of building aerofoils, according to the system later laid down by Phillips, and which method has been extensively introduced by the leading European manufacturers during the past year.

After having made numberless model gliders, this clergyman constructed a full sized glider, with which he succeeded in making a number of flights. In the lost notes he stated, that after he had accomplished his he felt certain that the air was destined to be navigated by heavier-than-air machines, and that it was not only possible, but highly probable before the close of the century. He stated also, that before anything could be done to accomplish this much desired end, a motor sufficiently powerful and yet sufficiently light would be required, and in many ways he forecasted the present day internal combustion motor. How truly his prophesies have come true, is familiar to everyone.

In 1872 a French-Canadian inventor in Quebec, by the name of Perron, made some experiments in aerotechnics, consisting of flights with gliders. What particularly distinguished the efforts of this man was the excellent workmanship which has come to be such a necessary factor in the construction of aeroplanes to-day. It is recorded that this inventor incurred the displeasure of some of his devout neighbors, because they thought he was endeavoring to prove false an old French-Canadian adage, that "pigs might fly," which was employed to urge the impossibility of a useless undertaking. He, however, ultimately gave up his experiments, partly on account of the opposition of his friends, who thought that he was making an effort to break into the realm of the occult, and partly, perhaps, because he was compelled to discontinue his efforts more from the necessity of an efficient motor which did not exist in his day. It is stated, however, that he was firmly convinced of the future of the aeroplane, and, like his clergyman predecessor, in the same field of endeavor, prophesied that power driven air craft would be a common sight within fifty years. No further effort or any importance to conquer the domain of the air was made in Canada until within the last ten years.

Away back in 1908, which is, indeed, ancient history in the development of the aeroplane, a society, which was known as the American Aeronautical Association, was formed which had for its object aero-technical experimentation. The organizer of this society was Dr. Alexander Graham Bell, the inventor of the telephone. Now Dr. Bell was by no means a young man, when he undertook this new work, and it was necessary for him to gather about him men younger in years and possessed of adequate practical and technical knowledge. The members of this society, which has long since been dissolved, have each become famous by their individual exploits in the aviation world. Two Canadians were J. D. McCurdy and J. A. Baldwin.

With a sound scientific mind like Dr. Bell's, who was a master, not only of the technical aspect of aerodynamics, but also a practical scientist to guide these two young men, it is no wonder that the researches which were made at Dr. Bell's summer residence at Baddeck, Nova Scotia, Cape Breton, should have borne such excellent fruit subsequently.

A whole summer was passed and many thousand dollars were spent in the construction of aeroplanes, according to the plans which were worked out by the members of the Association. Dr. Bell, with the aid of his young assistants, at last had an opportunity to try thoroughly his theory with regard to tetrahedral cells, which unfortunately did not work out in practice as he had anticipated. When, however, the celebrated inventor saw that it was not a success, he abandoned further experiments, and he and his assistants then directed their attention to the perfection of the simple plane type of machine.

The first machine which was built, was a somewhat crude looking apparatus, but it was found to be a step in the right direction, and was followed by several others, each of which was a distinct improvement over the other. The last one which was built by the association, before they were finally dissolved, made at least sixty successful flights over the frozen surface of the Bras d'Or lake. This machine was a biplane in type, and had a supporting surface of about five hundred square feet.

LAWS OF WAR.

Rules That Govern the Civilized Powers of the World.

As at present formulated by the civilized powers of the world, the "laws of war" forbid the use of poison against the enemy; murder by treachery, as, for example, assuming the uniforms or displaying the flags of foes; the murder of those who have surrendered, whether upon condition or at discretion; declarations that no quarter will be given to an enemy; the use of such arms or projectiles as will cause unnecessary pain or suffering to an enemy; the abuse of a flag of truce to gain information concerning an enemy's position; all unnecessary destruction of property, whether public or private.

These laws also assert that only fortified places shall be besieged, open cities or villages not to be subject to siege or bombardment; that public buildings of whatever character, whether belonging to state or church, shall be spared; that plundering by private soldiers or their officers shall be considered inadmissible; that prisoners shall be treated with common humanity; that the personal effects and private property of prisoners, except their arms and ammunition, shall be respected; that the population of an enemy's country shall be considered exempt from participation in the war unless by hostile acts they provoke the ill will of the enemy.—New York Press.

SHARING THE SORROW.

A Kindly Custom of the Arabs When a Baby Dies.

"Arabs east of the Jordan have a custom which shows a kindly feeling one toward another," writes a traveler. "If a man's horse dies (next to his eldest son, his best companion) his neighbor will bring in another horse and put it in the stall of the dead one and allow it to remain seven days, thinking in some measure to make up for the loss of the dead animal.

"The women also do something similar when a baby dies. A relation or friend will give the bereaved mother her own baby to nurse and care for during seven days. In that time the parent is supposed to become reconciled to her loss.

"Memory calls up a touching incident that occurred in our domestic life in Moab. Soon after our advent into that land my wife had the misfortune to lose a little one. It soon became known, and the women were very grieved about it. A day or two after a young chief that had always been kindly disposed toward us presented himself at our door. I asked him in. He entered and from under his cloak brought a tiny white lamb. He put it into my wife's arms, saying: 'I'm sorry for your loss and if I had a baby would have lent it to you to care for until you had got over your grief. I had this lamb, so have brought it for you to look after, feed and care for.'"

ADVERTISE IN THE TIMES.

Buried Forests.

A writer in Gardiners' (London) Chronicle, describing the Kauri forests on the west coast of New Zealand, says that in places they have buried forests beneath them. It seems incredible that trees roughly estimated at 2,000 years old should have other still older trees under them. The sap wood of these buried trees quickly goes to dust, but the heart wood is perfectly sound, and much capital is invested by sawmills in getting the wood out. Kauri gum, which is now used extensively for special varnishes and other branches of the mechanic arts, is the product of these trees and is dug up like a mineral from swampy land where the trees have been buried and disappeared through ages of decay. The Kauri (Dammara australis) is a species of fir and a very valuable timber tree.

TOLD OWN FATE.

In Tale, in 1892, Stead Pictured Collision Between Liner and Iceberg.

Intimate friends of William T. Stead, recall a story which he himself wrote in the Christmas extra issue of The Review of Reviews, London, published in December, 1892, entitled "From the Old World to the New," a chapter of which tallies in almost every detail with the wreck of the Titanic.

Mr. Stead, in this chapter, which is called "Coincidents and Clairvoyance," describes an encounter with icebergs at sea. His characters are a group of English tourists. They are crossing the Atlantic on board the Majestic of the White Star Line. The steamship suddenly comes upon a great iceberg.

The great English writer, long known for his ideas on spiritualism, clairvoyance and mental telepathy, brings all into play in his thrilling story of the high sea, but when he describes the icebergs, fog and conditions of sky and sea and on board the Majestic it would seem that had he been able to send an account of what took place on that fateful Sunday evening recently it could not have been more identical.

"Jack" Compton, a passenger, has the power of automatic writing. Compton receives a telepathic message from John Thomas, a Scotchman, who is an old friend, and he (Thomas) has been saved in the wreck of the Montrose which was in collision with an iceberg. The messages continue to come. Meanwhile Mr. Compton has asked the captain of the Majestic to stop at the iceberg on arrival. The old captain scoffs at the idea. But then his own vessel comes within a hair's-breadth of being wrecked by an iceberg. He stops. Compton and "the professor" put out in a lifeboat and eventually reach John Thomas, finding him almost dead. They bring him safely to the Majestic just as it seemed that steamship would go under.

The setting of the story and the descriptions of the icebergs and the wreck tally with the tragedy of Sunday night. The time and place also agree with those of that Sunday's catastrophe. It also was on a vessel of the White Star Line, and the captain had under his care just two thousand souls and a cargo worth at least $3,000,000. Perhaps the only difference was that Mr. Stead's mental telepathy has been replaced with wireless telegraphy.

Striking sentences here and there from other writings of Mr. Stead are also recalled in which it might seem that he had some premonition of his own fate. Especially is this so of a comparison in his book, "How I Know the Dead Return," which has a paragraph beginning, "Let us consider the Atlantic Ocean as the grave." Then the author compares one shore with earth and the other with the eternal shore.

Pure Food in Ancient Rome.

In Pliny there may be found an account of the manner in which the bakers of Rome were alleged to mix with their dough a white earth, soft to the touch and sweet to the taste, thus putting out a foodstuff that had weight and fine appearance, but little food value. The same writer also touches upon wine adulteration. Pliny says that not even the wealthy Roman noble could be sure that the wine he bought was pure. Indeed, the most famous wines were doctored and wines from Gaul, generally held to be of the best, were as a matter of fact artificially colored by aloes and other drugs.

Explained.

"What do those letters stand for?" asked a curious wife of her husband as she looked at his Masonic seal.

"Well, really, my love," he replied encouragely, "I presume it is because they can't sit down."—New York Journal.

NORSEMEN NEEDED.

New Ontario Requires the Scandinavian Peoples.

'Ontario is now obtaining a larger proportion of the right sort of men and women from the United Kingdom whom we require; this result is largely due, I think, to the good accounts that are sent 'home' by those who have settled in the most British province of the Dominion since we established headquarters in London and organized a campaign throughout Greater Britain." Mr. C. C. James, C.M.G., former Deputy Minister of Agriculture in the Ontario Government, made these remarks to a representative of the press not long ago. "Now that the superior opportunities Ontario can offer various classes of intending emigrants are becoming better appreciated, we hope to use the machinery of our agencies on this side more effectually in sending the right people to the right localities. For instance, my visit to Norway, Sweden, and Denmark has confirmed an impression I formed on my first short visit to these areas two years ago that there is a large Scandinavian population who will find in the prolific virgin soil of the newly-opened areas of Northern Ontario, climatic and other conditions similar to those in which their present persevering, intelligent hard work leaves them only a bare subsistence. While I should be very careful as to what British agriculturists I advised to settle in Northern Ontario, I think it would be difficult to make a mistake in encouraging Scandinavian emigrants to these areas, and the more of this class of foreign settlers we can get into Northern Ontario the better it will be for the province, and, indeed, for the Dominion as a whole.

"Ontario has become a great manufacturing province, by far the largest in Canada, and her growth in this regard is increasing more and more. The one thing in which Ontario has been deficient, and for which she has had to depend upon the adjoining states, is coal, but the great water powers, and the distribution of electric power will soon make the province well-nigh independent of the coal fields of Pennsylvania. That Northern Ontario also has its part to play has been shown by the recent mining developments in the Cobalt area and the Porcupine district; its local markets will in time be unexcelled. For the present we advise the British newcomer to spend a year or two in Southern Ontario before taking up land in the area more remote from conditions as to schools, neighborly intercourse, and general routine than those he has been accustomed to in Britain. Toronto, our capital, it should always be remembered, is within seven days' reach of London, and in the centre of the most thickly populated area of all Canada. Our manufacturing industries are growing so rapidly in the area that the agriculturist is sure of his market. But speaking as Deputy Minister of Agriculture, responsible for advice to the emigrant, it is to the agriculturist, the domestic servant, and the prudent investor, that we hold out the most inducements."

As illustrating the extent of the organization of Ontario's Department of Agriculture, for the benefit alike of the new-comer and the native born, it may be mentioned that it has fifteen district representatives in various parts of the province, and there are eleven separate branches, managed by experts in dairying, live stock, fruit growing, or co-operating with farmers' institutes, agricultural societies, and women's institutes.

"The latest addition to the Agricultural Department," concluded Mr. James, "is a veterinary college, which will shortly have a new building in Toronto, and add to the opportunities afforded at Guelph, at Kingston, and Toronto, for the most practical education to be given upon reasonable terms, to the sons and daughters of those who decide to cast in their lot with the prospering Province of Ontario."

Mr. James was recently appointed a Companion of the Order of St. Michael and St. George, upon the recommendation of the Governor-General, Earl Grey, as a recognition of his general services in promoting the scientific promotion of agriculture in the Dominion.

Biggest Thing in the World.

"'Fighting Bob' Evans," said a naval veteran of Washington, "had, like most fighters, a tender heart.

"'Fighting Bob' had a specially tender heart toward children. I once heard him say as he held his little grandchild's hand:

"'A child is the biggest thing in the world. A ragged, emaciated hungry child is to me bigger than a battleship.'"—Exchange.

Anaesthetics.

"The anaesthetics don't seem to have any effect on old Battersby, sir. He won't drop off."

"Hum! Ah, I have it! Send for his pastor and his barber. Between them they ought to put him to sleep."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

The Habitual Drunkard

A new clause recently added to the Municipal Act says that any habitual drunkard who is arrested for intoxication twice within three months may be sent to the Industrial farm, and there detained on an indeterminate sentence for a maximum period of two years.

"Labby" Wanted a Place.

It is hard to think of Henry Labouchere in any other occupation than that of hitting heads and making faces, in a good cause, to be sure, but still with much gusto and impish glee. But we are assured by G. W. E. Russell in the Cornhill Magazine that Labouchere for a time cherished that most bourgeois of ambitions—a place in the cabinet or in the high diplomatic service. When Gladstone organized his last cabinet, in 1892, Labouchere confidently expected that his valiant services to the party during six years of Tory ascendancy would be rewarded, but before Gladstone submitted his list of ministers to the queen he had received a direct intimation that the name of the editor of Truth must not appear there. On this point her majesty was reported to be "very stiff." Later Labouchere was an active candidate for the ambassadorship at Washington.

Old Time Delicacies.

Swans are coming back into favor as a dish for the table. This reversion to the tastes of our forefathers may lead to a demand for other delicacies once held in high esteem. In the thirteenth century the heron, the crane, the crow, the cormorant and the bittern were considered excellent food. But for some undiscovered reason the hare and the partridge were despised, and in the houses and of the nobles neither was ever seen. Another dish favored by our ancestors was dillegrout. This must have been a special delicacy, for the lord of the manor of Addington held his tenure on the condition of his presenting the king every year with a dish "called dillegrout, and if fat be added then it is called malpigeryum." —London Standard.

The Wayside Economist.

"I'll tell you what I'll do," said the brisk woman. "You go out and pick me two or three quarts of blueberries and I'll put some of them into a pie and bake it for you."

"Lady," replied Plodding Pete, "I'm afraid you don't read de paper. In dese days de producer of raw material an' de ultimate consumer is kickin' so hard dat I couldn't consider a transaction where I'd be both of 'em at once."—Washington Star.

The New Dove Cote.

"They tell me you have planted your suburban place beautifully. Have you any creepers about the house?"

"Yes; twins."—Baltimore American.

Orderliness Is Big Asset.

To teach children habits of neatness, system and order is to insure some degree, at least, of success. Yet they are often brought up amid disorder and confusion, allowed to throw things down just where they use them and to form slovenly and slipshod habits. They are not taught to put things where they belong, and consequently they grow up shackled with handicaps which they can rarely throw off.

If there is any delusion in the world it is that doing "things just for now," dropping things wherever one may happen to be temporarily, saves time. On the contrary, this is a great time waster and a great demoralizer of character. A bad habit not only tends to repeat itself, but to increase the tendency in that direction.

If you were not taught the beautiful lesson of orderliness in your youth, teach it to yourself now.—Success Magazine.

A Hint.

"Yes. It was about the dullest three hours I ever lived through."—Chicago Record-Herald.

A Backyard Hint.

A ramble through the unfrequented streets of the city reveals more about the inhabitants than many people imagine. Some back yards are as neat and tidy as industrious hands and willing hearts can make them, while others would put to shame the premises surrounding the old log house of primative settlers. No doubt back yards are a pretty correct index of the habits and characters of the occupiers. Haven't you noticed that sometimes the front yard will present a neat lawn and many beautiful flowers, while the backyard contains slop barrels, old tins, scrap iron broken bricks, etc. An ill-kept back yard is not only an eye-sore but is a menace to public health. Let everybody tidy up and be happy.

Sentence Suspended.

William Peterson, of the township of Belmont, appeared before Magistrate Edmison in the County Court Saturday morning, charged with unlawfully abandoning a child under two years of age, whereby its life was endangered, on the 25th May, contrary to the provisions of Section No. 245 of the criminal code. Bring Good Prices.

Bobcaygeon Independent: Mr. Jopling, of Bridgenorth, accompanied by Mr. T. G. Murphy bought three team of horses last week, and took them to Peterborough, the prices ran high from $300 to $500 per team, they made an offer to a south Verulam farmer, but owing to being the only team he had, refused. The six horses were the very choice of the district and they certainly were some class. Mr. Jopling has a contract to build a piece of railroad and is in need of a few first-class heavy horses.

Both Were Fined.

At the police court on Saturday, an Indian appeared, charged with being drunk. He pleaded guilty and was assessed the usual $2 or ten days. After a trip to some of his friends the money was forthcoming.

At Murray Street Church.

The special services in connection with the opening of the new Murray street Baptist church, were continued yesterday, the pulpit being occupied morning and evening by Rev. Dr. Trotter, of Toronto. Dr. Trotter is well known in Peterborough, where he has many warm friends.

There are some in Peterborough who have endeavoured to get into the services on a Sunday, but could not for the crowd. Rev. Mr. Lindsay came to the city on the invitation of Rev. Mr. Keith and he will give an address this evening on Scotland's National Poet.

Work Begun on Chambers St.

Operations on the paving of Chambers street begun Saturday. The south end of that thoroughfare was barricaded from public traffic on Saturday. Whilst this may mean an expense for a little side street, the condition in Peterborough demand this expense, which is evidently justified. When the street is paved, merchants and residents along the street will surely be prevented from placing garbage and ash pails, piles of imflammible merchandise in boxes outside their respective places of business.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured.

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

The [illegible] success of their work, was only one of those frequent examples of what the ladies can accomplish when they all unite on an object. They have as good administration ability as men, and they have more enthusiasm, dash, and unflaging energy than most men.

Toronto Syndicate Buys Otonabee.

Barrie Advance: Mr. H. D. Jamieson, acting under instructions from the Toronto syndicate which has purchased Big Bay Point, last week completed arrangements for the purchase of the steamer Otonabee for use on Lake Simcoe. The inspector states that the boat is thoroughly sound in every particular, with good engines, and that she would stand any storm on Lake Simcoe. The purchase price is said to be $12,000 cash. At the present time the boat is being re-calked and newly painted from stem to stern, and when she steams into Barrie she will present a handsome appearance. It is expected that this work will be completed in time to bring her up to Barrie by June 20th, and the season will start on July 1st. The Otonabee will make regular trips from Barrie to Big Bay Point and from the Point to Jackson's. The late train on Saturdays and holidays will be met, and the early train on Monday morning and the day after holidays.

FORMER CITIZEN SPEAKER

Mr. R. F. McWilliams Delivers Stirring Address to Winnipeg School Pupils.

Mr. R. F. McWilliams, B.A., formerly of Peterborough, delivered an address on Empire Day to the pupils of the Winnipeg schools. He said:

"The boy is father of the man. The boys in the schools of Winnipeg to-day are the fathers of the men who will direct the fortunes and govern the affairs of Winnipeg twenty-five years hence. What sort of boys they are in school and out of school, and most of all, on the playground, will determine the character of this city when it has a million people. The history of the British people should be familiar to every boys and girl for it tells why we have become the first among the nations. The story of the sailors who first made England great in the days of Elizabeth, the story of Cromwell's Ironsides, of the men who fought under William and Marlboro, of the men who conquered in all the regions of the earth, and built the Empire of to-day is full of adventure and daring and courage in the pursuit of duty, more interesting than any novel. To the girls, the stories are of equal interest for it was in the days of the great Queens Elizabeth and Victoria that Britain saw her greatest achievements.

"The history of Western Canada is equally full of great deeds. There is no more thrilling story than that of the voyageurs of Quebec and of the Hudson's Bay Co., as they pierced the wilderness over river and lake and prairie to the great mountains and beyond to the Western sea, risking their lives every day and winning a new empire for the Union Jack.

"What is it made the British race so great and so victorious? Not because their blood was pure in stock, but because they were the product of the best of the old races of Angles, Saxons, Danes, Normans, Scotch and Irish. We in Canada inherit all that splendid record and rich blood with opportunities greater than any our fathers had. We are gathering the brightest and most ambitious from all the nations of Europe with histories of great deeds and noble leaders rivaling our own. They have not had, like our British people, liberty and just laws and self-government for two hundred years, but, with the new opportunities and new freedom of Canada, their children will prove themselves worthy rivals and comrades of those of British stock. When we have moulded all these into one vigorous united Canadian people, we shall have made Canada the most powerful part of the greatest of Empires and the men and women of the western prairie will be the first among the people of the mighty Emperor-King."

Games Here This Week.

The Peterborough team is billed for a game every day this week.

According to the schedule Berlin will play here on Monday and Tuesday and on Wednesday and Thursday London should come and meet the White Caps in this city. On Friday and Saturday the White Caps play the London team at London.

It is not yet fully decided whether or not the games can be played on the Oval, though it is likely such will be the case if the present sunny weather continues.

The Game for the Flour.

The challenge issued in these columns is creating much interest among local amateur ball players. Mr. V. Fowler of the Orientals, has already been approached by a team comprised of players selected from the tonsorial artists. "Sweet Charity" will get a barrel of flour and they Orientals say they will hang the barbers' scalps to their belts. Shortstop King, Pitcher Graham and 3rd baseman Guerin are out every morning getting into shape. Teddy Kane will act as mascot. The exact date of the match has not yet been settled, but will be published in the Times this week.

WEDDING BELLS.

Kaufman—Reesor.

A wedding of interest to Toronto, Markham and Peterborough people was that of Miss Carrie Reesor, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Reesor, Markham, and Dr. Stanley Kaufman of Toronto. The ceremony took place in the Methodist Church, and was conducted by Rev. J. E. Wilson, Secretary of the Toronto Conference. Miss May Kaufman, of Toronto, sister of the groom, was bridesmaid; Miss Jean Macdonald, Toronto, maid of honor, and Mr. Emmerson Reesor, Toronto, brother of the bride, best man. The ushers were Messrs. Walter Reesor, Earl Fairy and Elmer Staebler, all of Toronto. The bride was in white satin with a veil of silk chiffon and embroidered pearls and wore the groom's gift, a necklace of pearls. The bridesmaid was in blue satin, and the maid of honor wore pink satin. Miss Marion Wallwin, Toronto, presided at the organ, and Miss Agnes Irene Gray of Myrtle, sang sweetly. After a reception at the home of the bride's parents, "The Pines," Dr. and Mrs. Kaufman motored to Toronto, where they took the boat down the St. Lawrence. In a few weeks they will leave for their home in Strathcona, Alta. The groom's gift to the bridesmaid was a mesh purse, to the maid of honor, organist and soloist, bar pins and to the best man cuff links.

The bride was for a number of years soloist in the George street church choir, of this city.

Nesbitt—Jones.

In St. Paul's church, Brighton, on June 5th, a wedding took place, when Mr. Edwin J. Nesbitt, only son of Mr. Sam. Nesbitt, M.P.P., and Mrs. Nesbitt, and Miss Nellie Foster Jones, daughter of the late Rev. R. N. Jones and Mrs. Jones, were married. The bride was given away by her mother, the Rev. E. C. Cayley, of St. Simon's church, Toronto, officiating, assisted by the bride's brother, Rev. R. S. Jones. Mr. Arthur Jones, a brother of the bride, played the wedding march. The bride wore white satin and tulle veil and orange blossoms, and carried a white prayer book, the gift of her godfather, the Rev. Canon Grout, Kingston, and a shower bouquet of white roses and lillies of the valley. She was preceded up the aisle by the ushers, Mr. George Jones, brother of the bride, and Mr. Will Nesbitt, and her bridesmaid, Miss Edith Nesbitt, who was gowned in pink satin veiled with chiffon, and a white plumed hat. The best man was Capt. M. L. Butler. The bride's mother held a reception at her residence afterwards, when she was wearing a gown of black and white, black hat with white plumes and carried a bouquet of mauve sweet peas. The bridegroom's mother wore a black satin gown with lace and jet tunic, black and white hat with plumes, and carried a bouquet of red roses. The house was decorated with lilacs. The church was decorated by the friends of the bride with garlands of flowers and white ribbons, and a beautiful bell of white lilacs, under which the bride and groom stood. The out-of-town guests were:—Mrs. J. W. Beaty, Mr. Dickens, Miss Kathaleen Green, Mr. George Jones (Toronto); Miss Gladys Roy (Peterborough); Mr. Chas. Jones (Belleville); Rev. R. S. Jones (Russell). Mr. and Mrs. Nesbitt left on a trip to Winnipeg and Chicago and on their return will reside in Brighton.

The bride is a niece of Mrs. R. M. Roy, of Peterborough, and has a large circle of friends and acquaintances in this city.

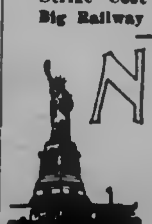
WOMEN WAR ON BUTCHERS SHOPS

They Are Pledged to Fight Against the High Food Prices.

WINDOWS SMASHED

Bombs in Gamblers' War — Boston Strike—Cost of Living Growing—Big Railway Deal.



NEW YORK, June 9.—Women pledged to a war on high prices of staple goods started a campaign of violence in Brooklyn, directing their efforts against meat shops. There were riotous scenes on DeKalb avenue, when the plate glass door of one shop was shattered while 500 women screamed approval. In three or four other shops militant housewives attacked customers, knocking them to the floor, snatching their parcels of meat and trampling upon it in the street until it was unfit for use. Dealers were warned against continuing to offer meat for sale. A canvass of the district disclosed that eight shops had obeyed the orders of the housewives, removing all meat and promising not to make any further sales until they could do so at lower prices. The scenes of disorder were limited to two sections in Brooklyn, which are foreign quarters. The shops attacked were those in which kosher meat is sold exclusively.

Cost of Living Jumping.

Boston, June 9.—From baked beans to strawberry shortcake, lunch in the downtown restaurants is costing the business men and women of Boston several thousand dollars more a day owing to the increased cost of living. Boston's staple diet of baked beans has been advanced from 20 cents a plate to 25 cents. Chopped chicken sandwiches, which for years have been sold at 10 cents, are now 15 cents. The popular corned beef hash has jumped from 20 cents to 25 cents, and hot roast beef sandwiches from 20 to 30 cents per order. The mug of cold coffee has been reduced one-third in size. An extra charge is made in many places for any style of potatoes, and many places are charging extra for bread and butter, but one of the hardest blows to the restaurant patron at this time of year is the advance of strawberry shortcake from 20 to 25 cents.

Violent Strike.

Boston, June 9—Violence marked the beginning of a strike of several thousand of the employes of the Boston elevated railway at daylight. Those who refused to work demand recognition by the company of a recently formed union. The company's reply is that they have treated the men unusually well for many years and refuse to deal with them other than individually. The street railway service and the elevated road were being operated on about half time at 9 a.m. to-day, and up to that hour five arrests had been made for assaults on motormen.

As soon as it was seen that those in favor of going out were in the majority, the gathering of nearly 2000 men began cheering, and a rush was made for the first early morning cars. The first one was met on Tremont street, one hundred yards from the hall. The car was stopped, the trolley yanked from the wire, the windows were smashed, and the motorman and conductor badly beaten. A number of passengers were rushed out of the car, and although no one was injured, all had to get out. Similar scenes took place in all parts of the city.

Bombs in Gamblers' War

San Francisco, Cal., June 7.—The fifth explosion in a series that began last Friday night occurred last night in a garden in the rear of the house occupied by Tom Corbett, a brother of James J. Corbett. Corbett was out at the time, but his blind niece and a woman friend were in the house. There appears to have been no attempt to damage the house, but only to frighten or warn its tenants. Last Friday three bombs were exploded in an attempt to wreck as many pool rooms, one of them Corbett's. Wednesday night a stick of dynamite was exploded in a vacant lot adjoining another pool room. The explosions are now believed to be part of a gamblers' war.

Big Railway Deal.

New York, June 9 — Announcement was made here last night of the purchase by S. Davies Warfield, president of the Continental Trust company, Baltimore, of a large block of stock in the Seaboard Air Line railway, whereby control of the railroad will pass to Mr. Warfield and a group of financial interests associated with him. The transfer, it is said, marks the practical retirement of Thomas F. Ryan from the Seaboard.

ROUGH RIDERS FOR ROOSEVELT TALK OF COMPROMISE CANDIDATE

T. R. Denies That Special Train Is Ready At Moments Notice To Move On Chicago--Cementing His Forces For Final Contest--"Steerers" For Taft

Chicago, June 10.—The possibility of the arrival in Chicago of Colonel Roosevelt within the next few days furnished the chief topic of discussion at both the Roosevelt and Taft headquarters with the beginning to-day of the final week of preliminaries for the Republican National Committee. This and the question of what effect such action by Col. Roosevelt would have upon the pre-convention situation held the foreground to the exclusion of many other matters of importance. Roosevelt leaders did not agree in their opinions as to what the former President will do. A number maintained that Col. Roosevelt will not be in Chicago at any time prior to the convention, while others stoutly asserted that they had received positive information that he would be here by Wednesday or Thursday at the latest. None of them, however, would talk for publication on this debated point.

PRESBYTERIAN ASSEMBLY WILL PRESS FOR CHURCH UNION

This Was Decided At The Synod At Edmonton. Queen's Bill Approved.

Edmonton, Alta., June 10. The committee on Church Union, augmented by leading opponents of the movement, in accordance with Principal MacKay's motion last Thursday, is expected to bring its report before the General Assembly some time to-day. Principal Gordon, the chairman, left the city yesterday afternoon, and the report will be presented by Rev. Dr. Clark, of Montreal.

Despite the fact that some strong opponents of Church Union have a place on the enlarged committee, it is understood that an agreement has been reached which will in all probability be acceptable to the Assembly, and that any discord at present existing will be removed. In order to prevent a misunderstanding, a further conference with the various sections of the Church is provided for to take the difficulties under advisement. Later a conference will be held with the committees of the Methodist and Congregational churches, after which the question will again be submitted to the Presbyterian body politic.

While the conscientious objections of the minority have been recognized in the committee's finding there is no suggestion that the movement for organic union should be abandoned. The committee has agreed to a thorough canvass of the situation, and it is believed that many of the difficulties in the way of union will disappear. The present opposition to Church Union is variously estimated at from 5 to 20 per cent. of the Assembly's strength. Principal MacKay will second Dr. Clark's motion for the adoption of the report.

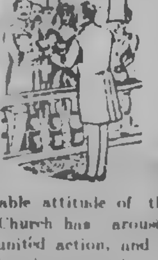
MARRIAGE LAW BADLY NEEDED

"Saturday Night" Has a Strigent Article.

POSITION IN QUEBEC

No Law in Quebec Which Affords Permanent Protection to the Woman Who Happens to Get Married in Disobedience of Papal Decree.



THE public have almost had a surfeit of marriage law discussion in the newspapers during the past few months, but until a complete remedy is forthcoming the agitation will continue. The intolerable attitude of the Roman Catholic Church has aroused Protestants to united action, and a general marriage law is as certain to follow as the sun is to set. The following article, taken from the last issue of "Saturday Night," is well worth perusing. Our contemporary says:

"If other proof was needed of the necessity of a Federal marriage law in Canada, it was provided by the recent argument before the Supreme Court of Canada as to the right of Parliament to enact the Lancaster Bill framed to that end. Both judges and lawyers seemed hopelessly at variance, and even at sea, as to what constitutes a marriage in the province of Quebec; and as to what standing marriages in other parts of this country have in the oldest province of Canada. So far as the layman could digest the arguments from the necessarily condensed reports in the newspapers, the contention of the counsel representing the province of Quebec was that any marriage in that province of Catholic persons is only valid under the tenure of the latest Vatican decree—and, that there is no law in Quebec which affords permanent protection to the woman who happens to get married in disobedience thereto. The curious argument was put forward that under the laws of the province, a husband whose marriage had been dissolved might marry again, but that the children of his first alliance would nevertheless remain legitimate. And the Government of the Province of Quebec actually employed eminent counsel to plead that this state of affairs should continue! The stand taken by the Province of Ontario, which refused to argue the technical questions involved at all, but simply declared for a Federal law which would clear the atmosphere and solve this vexed question, is one that will commend itself to reasonable people from the Atlantic to the Pacific. It is quite evident that the

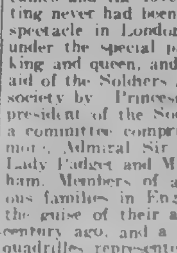
OLD TIME BALL OF SPLENDOUR

Magnificent Function Never Surpassed In London.

A GERMAN WAR SCARE

The Unrest in Britain Causing Serious Uneasiness — Old Country News of Importance.

London, June 8.



DANCING was never more in vogue in London than at present. The Royal Albert Hall was the scene the other night of the greatest function of the season, the ball of a hundred years ago. All the notable figures of English society were present and the splendour of the costumes and the loveliness of the setting never had been surpassed by any spectacle in London. The ball was under the special patronage of the king and queen, and was organized in aid of the Soldiers and Sailors' Help society by Princess Christian, the president of the Society, assisted by a committee comprising Lord Chelsmore, Admiral Sir Albert Markham, Lady Fadget and Mrs Dick Cunningham. Members of all the most famous families in England appeared in the guise of their ancestors of a century ago, and a series of brilliant quadrilles represented the court society, the government, and the navy and army clubs of 1812, the year made memorable by Napoleon's Russian campaign, the Peninsular War, and the war between Russia and Turkey. The Duchess of Richmond's famous dance before the battle of Waterloo was danced again, the glories of India in the days of the nabobs were lived once more, and the ladies of the peerage brought to life the pictures of their stately predecessors and the fashions, uniforms, jewels, and beauties of 1812 glowed once more in a stage setting representing the lawn before Brighton pavilion in the palmiest days of the regency.

In the Waterloo quadrille the Countess of March appeared as the Duchess of Richmond in a dress which was a reproduction of that worn by the Duchess of Richmond at the famous ball on the eve of Waterloo. For this quadrille Sir Charles Hartopp represented Napoleon and Lord Hardinge Wellington. Prince Alexander of Teck danced in the society quadrille. Lady Minto's Indian quadrille had the advantage of the beautiful costumes which she brought home from

LOCAL BOY'S SUCCESS

Dr. J. H. Stevenson, a Graduate of Peterborough High School, Now Professor of Oriental Languages in Tennessee University.

The Times was favored with a call yesterday from Dr. J. H. Stevenson, a former resident of Peterborough, and a native of Norwood. Dr. Stevenson received his early education in Peterborough, passing through the High School in 1877. He then taught school in Warsaw, where he also served as correspondent for The Times. After two years' residence there Dr. Stevenson entered McGill University, where he secured the degree of Bachelor of Arts, proposing to devote his life to the ministry. After preaching two years he went to Nashville, Tennessee, where he was appointed by the faculty of that great educational institution to the chair of the Oriental Languages, a position which he has held continuously since 1893. In 1899, Dr. Stevenson received, from the Chicago University the degree of Ph.D., being a well deserved tribute to his worth as an educationalist.

Dr Stevenson is accompanied by his son, Master Alex. Stevenson. They are on their way to the Mattawan, where they have a summer cottage, and where they have been spending their holidays for some years. They left yesterday for their summer home. While in the city they were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Kidd, Benson street.

$3,500 FOR GARBAGE COLLECTION FROM NOW TILL NEXT JUNE

A. B. Downer Agrees To Enter Into a Contract At Above Figures---Citizens MUST Have Their Refuse Convenient For Collection.

The City Council met last night in special session to take up the garbage collection problem. Since Mr. Scriver threw up his contract, A. B. Downer has been temporarily put in charge of the work pending definite arrangements being arrived at by the Council.

There were present Mayor W. H. Bradburn, Aldermen Gillespie, Graham, Brown, Anderson, Johnston, Buller, Gordon and Duffus.

His Worship advised his colleagues that Mr. Downer would enter into a contract with the city to collect the garbage and ashes within the district outlined for $4,000 a year and not a cent less. (With the revenue provided for from garbage collection the city would be $200 short of $4,000.)

Ald. Graham—"That's the best we can do; men have told me they would not undertake the work for less than $5,000 or $6,000."

Ald. Johnston thought Scriver had been discouraged by reason of citizens loading him up with garbage, ashes, etc., gathered together prior to May 1st.

Mr. Downer bases his tender on his experience in collecting the past few days.

Sanitary Inspector had reported that the work could be done for $12 a day by men in the city's employ.

If given the contract at $4,000 Mr. Downer said he would supply a dumping ground for garbage.

The lack of a dumping ground for garbage is a hitch in the city undertaking this work by day work.

Mr. Downer here put in an appearance, and said he could not see his way clear to accept less than $4,000 for this year anyway; it would take a year to get citizens educated up to making things easy for the collector.

Ald. Johnston thought that when the work was thoroughly systematized, Mr. Downer would get over the work in short order.

Mr. Downer—"I'm figuring on the shortest order; a certain amount of stuff has to be turned and I've had a man kept busy taking care of that alone. I drew myself eleven loads in one day.

Subsequently Mr. Downer offered to accept $3,500 for the work up to May 1st, providing the garbage, etc. is put in proper vessels and left convenient for collection; he would not open any gates, or go on a tour of investigation around back yards after garbage.

To Ald. Gillespie, Mr. Downer said he would not include the work he had already done in the $3,500.

This offer of Mr. Downer's is practically at the same rate as $4,000 a year, there being but ten and a half months and four days from May 1st when the garbage by-law came into force.

Mr. Downer here absolutely refused to consider a contract at $3,500 for a full calendar year, that is from now until June first next year.

After a little further weighing of the pros and cons of the situation, Mr. Downer finally agreed to accept the contract at $3,500 a year from to-day until the first of June, 1913.

Moved by Ald. Graham, seconded by Ald. Anderson, That an offer from A. B. Downer to remove and dispose of the garbage in the defined district from now until June first, 1913, for the sum of $3,500, providing he gives acceptable sureties for the satisfactory execution of his contract. Carried.

The by-law provides that citizens shall leave their garbage, etc., in convenient positions approved of by the Sanitary Inspector, and in proper receptacles. Ashes and garbage MUST be kept separate. And it is intended that the by-law shall be strictly enforced in this respect.

Water Conservation.

The City Council will attend in a body, the address under the auspices of the Ontario Water Conservation Association, to be given in Peterborough Collegiate Institute Assembly Hall next Friday.

Appointed to Board of Health.

On motion of Ald. Johnston and Ald. Graham, ex-Ald. Metheral was appointed to succeed Dr. McNulty (resigned) on the local Board of Health. A by-law to this effect carried.

ENGLISHMAN'S FAMILY KILLED HIS CATTLE STOLEN BY MEXICANS

Phoenix, Ariz., June 10. With a story of how his wife and two babies were burned in their home near Tepic, by roving band of rebels, George Meinold Brown, an Englishman, passed through Phoenix Sunday on his way to Los Angeles, where he will take his case before the British Consul. Brown said the rebels set fire to his ranch near Tepic during his absence and his entire family perished. The rebels then either killed or drove off all of Brown's live stock. He said conditions in and around the city of Tepic and in the State of the same name, were horrible.

AUSPICIOUS OPENING OF NEW W. O. W. ROOMS

The woodmen of the World held an auspicious opening last night when their new and spacious lodge rooms were for the first time since their completion used for a general meeting of the fraternity. A number of prominent Woodmen from other cities were present for the occasion and Mayor Bradburn as well as Aldermen Gordon, Gillespie, Brown, Anderson and Johnston attended the meeting and made brief congratulatory speeches.

Dr. Harrison, of Toronto, head Councillor, Mr. Clair Jarvis, Head Clerk, of London and Mr Cinnamon, of Lindsay, were present and took part in the celebration and ceremonies.

Three new members were initiated into the brotherhood of the society.

Mr. Cinnamon in his address drew attention to and congratulated the local camp upon the progress in membership that they had been making and expressed himself as certain that the policy of energetic work would be continued in the future with results as satisfactory as they had been in the past both to the local and the general fraternity of Woodmen.

The rooms were nicely finished, spacious and appropriately furnished, and are fine lodge rooms, being a credit to the committee who supervised and planned the work. The Woodmen had spared no expense in the fitting of the rooms for the purpose of using them for their grandest occasion and the result must be very gratifying to them.

The attendance was large at the formal opening last night and the meeting was enthusiastic over the prospects of the order. As well as demonstrating the earnestness and sincere interest of the men in their work the opening showed very plainly the perfect suitability of the new quarters for the regular gatherings of the Woodmen of the World who are already proud of their newly finished rooms.

During the evening dainty and appetizing refreshments were served.

PINE TAR CORDIAL

NUGENT'S SARSAPARILLA—PRICE FOR large bottle, 100 full doses, 35c, and well worth it, too. It's better to take no medicine at all than to depend upon cheap concoctions that are compounded to sell at a low price and a big profit just because there is a large demand for certain remedies at certain seasons of the year. There are so-called Sarsaparillas offered to us to sell to our customers at 75c a bottle that would bring us a larger profit than Nugent's Sarsaparilla sold at 35c. Nugent's Sarsaparilla purifies the blood, arouses the torpid liver, drives out all impurities, cleanses and tones up the system, and helps Nature throw off the dullness that comes from the indoor life of winter. It arouses energy, brightens the eye, clears the brain, gives lightness to the movements. Nugent's Sarsaparilla is not the only thing you will find in this drug store. We make a specialty of Nugent's Remedies. Nugent Drug Co., 380 George St. directly opposite Crossman's store.

GO TO FLORIDA FOR HEALTH AND wealth.—The question is asked me repeatedly: Why, if all that is claimed for the climate and earning capacity of the land in Florida is true, how is it that only a percentage of the State's area is under cultivation? It is a fair question, and the answer is a simple one. After the war between the North and the South Florida found herself in a deplorable condition financially. The State Government leased hundred of thousands of acres of its best prairie and timber lands for periods running as high as 66 years. This latter period tied up the great Kissimmee Prairie until recently. It is now, however, in the hands of a splendid colonization company, whose selling agent is the Hunter Land Company, Kissimmee Prairie is in the Southern portion of Osceola County, and is noted for its fertility and uniformity of soil. It is the healthiest spot in North America, and every day in the year is a growing day. Write for maps, illustrated literature, excursion particulars and any desired information. Address Alf. Law, Ontario, Manager. 69 Cecil street, Toronto. D-6 in J4

IN A REBEL'S GRAVE

TOMB OF AMERRY GIROD IS IN HEART OF MONTREAL.

Where Sherbrooke Street Crosses St. Lawrence In the Busiest Part of the Commercial Metropolis Is the Burial Place of the Swashbuckler, Whose Rebellion Was Crushed 75 Years Ago—A Strange Career.

This story tells of the tragic end of a remarkable man whose remains have mouldered into dust in the strangest grave ever dug on the island of Montreal. Two of the great thoroughfares of the Montreal of to-day are Sherbrooke street, running through the heart of the finest residential quarter, and St. Lawrence street, which, running in from the country to the northwest, cuts the city in two and crosses Sherbrooke street at right angles. Beneath the pavement where these streets cross is the grave of this remarkable man, who played the game of rebellion and lost, and then dying a suicide, was buried, according to the custom of the time, at this cross-road. Seventy-five years have passed since that strange burial took place, and the traffic of a great city passes over the grave. The man buried there has long since been forgotten, but the story of the closing scene of his chequered career can be gleaned from history, and it is briefly retold here.

His name was Amerry Girod, and he came to Canada about the year 1827, or ten years before the breaking out of what is commonly called the Papineau rebellion. Whence he came no one precisely knew. By some his birth-place was in Switzerland, by others in the Province of Alsace, then part of France, now part of Germany. He claimed to have passed his youth at a model school of agriculture, and subsequently to have served as an officer of cavalry in Mexico. He was an excellent linguist, speaking not only English and French, but German, Italian and Spanish as well. He seems to have been a soldier of fortune.

Coming to Quebec he won the friendship of Mr. Perreault, prothonotary of the district, who placed him on one of his properties to establish a model farm. The end of the enterprise was heavy debts, which Mr. Perreault had to pay, and the ingratitude of the man whom he had befriended.

Girod then came on to Varennes, on the south side of the St. Lawrence and only a few miles below Montreal. There he found favor with one of the great men of the village, Dr. Duchesnois, a great supporter of Papineau. At Varennes Girod married Dr. Duchesnois' sister-in-law, the daughter of Mr. Ainse, Seignior of St. Therese, and from that time the adventurer lived on the property of his father-in-law, and devoted himself principally to the trade of a political agitator.

It is not proposed to trace the course of that agitation, or of the rebellion in which it culminated, but simply to follow the fortunes of Girod through the bloodiest chapter of the drama—the chapter which tells of the uprising to the west of Montreal, which was crushed at St. Eustache, on December 14, 1837.

One of the earliest overt acts of the St. Eustache insurgents was to plunder the Indian mission of Two Mountains where guns and ammunition were carried away from the Government stores and a small cannon, belonging to the superior of the mission. Girod was one of the party, and he employed his best cunning to persuade the Indians to give up the arms in their possession and their two small cannon. The Indians showed such determination to resist any attempt to remove their property that Girod and his companions departed without the arms they had demanded.

During the two weeks of turmoil that preceded the battle, Girod was one of the principal agitators. At times he seems to have dominated the situation and to have influenced for the worse Dr. Chenier, whom some historians have made the hero of the uprising. Girod was practically the general in command. He forbade the priests to leave the village, and he practically detained them several days as prisoners. He sent men to destroy the bridge at St. Rose,and his men succeeded in making the bridge impassable. He harangued the crowd, but no attempt was made to drill them or to prepare them to resist the troops that would be sent against them. In fact, the misguided insurgents were told that the troops dare not come to St. Eustache, and that the insurgents would take Montreal without drawing a trigger.

But the troops came, and soon all was over. On Dec. 13, Sir John Colborne set out from Montreal with what was a small army in comparison with the force it was going to attack.

On the following day the force reached St. Eustache and at once began the attack, the artillery opening fire upon the church. The battle lasted only a short time and Girod, the swashbuckler, was found when the insurgents surrendered to have gone for reinforcements. The loyalists started out on his trail. Girod's wanderings lasted four days, with his pursuers always on his tracks and ever drawing nearer. He turned northward and then circled to the east, making for the St. Lawrence River. He succeeded in reaching the outskirts of the village of Pointe-aux-Trembles, about eight miles below Montreal.

Finding himself surrounded, Girod drew his pistol and with it he blew out his brains.

Girod's body was at once brought up to Montreal, and the authorities ordered that it should be buried "at what was then called Cote a Barron, in the middle of the cross-roads of the St. Lawrence Main street and Sherbrooke street."

"And so do things pass away like a tale that is told."—The Montreal Standard.

Here's a conversation we actually overheard:

"Hello, Jim! How are you? Fine. How's your old friend James?"

"Doing nicely. He's gone in for a course in health culture."

"That so? Well, he can stand it. He always did have a magnificent constitution."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

PAYING THE DUTY.

Custom House Officials Have Some Queer Experiences.

PASSING A SEALSKIN COAT.

The Way the Matter Was Fixed Up With an Appraiser and the Surprise That Awaited the Owner—A Bride, a Ring, a Husband and a Bluff.

The general impression is that the life of a customs inspector is a very dull routine of hardship, but such is not always the case.

The average person believes there is a little romance about the life and unquestionably the tang of the sea, but it almost never occurs to him that it is one of the funniest businesses in the world. The element of humor never enters into the general appreciation of the customs man, but it exists nevertheless.

There is a deputy collector now in the custom house of New York whose experiences in several years are really humorous. He is a grave, solemn looking man, thus bearing out the traditions, but that does not prevent him from enjoying the odd incidents that bob up in his line of duty. Speaking of them, he said:

"I had an odd experience the other day. A young man from an office in Wall street had gone to Europe to be married. In London he bought his wife a ring. He had put it in his declaration at a value of $1,000. He brought his bride to me, and she held out her pretty little pink hand that I might examine the ring. It flashed and sparkled beautifully, but the flashes and sparkles didn't seem quite right, so I asked to be allowed to examine it more carefully. The bride blushingly pulled the ring off and handed it to me. I showed it to an expert appraiser, who promptly declared that it was a fake piece of jewelry worth about $10.

"I sympathized with the young man, and when I got a chance I told him the truth. 'Oh, yes,' he replied, 'I know. You see, I didn't have much money with me, so I bought this for £1 6s., but I had to ring in a bluff on my wife. Don't give me away.' The poor fellow was willing to pay several times the value of the ring to make his bluff good, but we fixed it up for him without his bride knowing the truth.

"Another laughable experience, but more serious for the passenger, happened not long ago. When I boarded a big steamship from Europe I was approached by a man who introduced himself as one who had formerly been collector of one of the most important western ports. I knew him very well by reputation. He was returning from abroad with his family. He explained that he was very wealthy and did not want to evade paying all the duty necessary, but he confided in me that he had a sealskin coat, bought in Paris for his wife, which he had not included in his declaration, knowing that sealskins could not be imported. Nevertheless, just because we were both members of the same fraternity, he wanted to know if there was not some way in which he could get the coat into the country.

"I would have been glad to help him, but didn't see how it could be done. However, I told him I would put the question up to the appraiser at the pier and if the matter could be arranged I would fix it up. The appraiser looked the coat over and told me to put it on the declaration as an imitation sealskin valued at $75. The western man was delighted.

"'That's what I call clever,' he said.

"A few days later I got a letter from this man asking me to call upon him at one of the most fashionable uptown hotels. I went to see him and had luncheon with him and his family. When luncheon was over he made a little golden cone on the table. It consisted of a twenty dollar gold piece, a ten, a five, a three, a two and a half and a one, all in gold. He shoved the stack over to me.

"'Just a souvenir, a reminder of your cleverness in getting that seal coat through for me,' he said.

"I refused to take it, but he tried to press it on me and told me to give it to the appraiser, but I refused. Later, when his family left us, I asked him how much he had paid for the coat in Paris. He said he had paid $1,000. He could hardly believe it when I told him that we had not falsified the declaration, that the coat was an imitation and that $75 was its outside value. He called a bellboy then and there and sent the coat to a furrier to have it appraised. The furrier sent back word that he would sell him all he wanted just like it for $65 each."—New York Herald.

Mirror, Crystal and Sword.

The three symbols of the imperial house of Japan are the mirror, the crystal and the sword, and they are carried in front of the emperor on all state occasions. Each has its significance. "Look at the mirror and reflect thyself," or, in other words, "Know thyself," is the message of the mirror. "Be pure and shine" is the crystal's injunction, while the sword is a reminder to "Be sharp."

A Custom of the Tyrol.

In the Tyrol it is the custom for women and children to come out into the open when it is the latter's bedtime and sing. Their husbands, fathers and brothers answer them from the hills on their way home.

The injuries we do and those we suffer are seldom weighed in the same balance.—Simmons.

Gold is proved with fire, friendship in need.—Danish.

A Troubled Conscience.

"I had a horrible dream last night," said Huddleston when he came down to breakfast the other morning.

"What was it?" asked his wife.

"I dreamed that I was in purgatory and was made to do all the things I had told my friends I would do if I were in their places."

This Interesting Letter is Addressed to YOU

SIR :—

It is a favorite form of mental culture with many people to trace results back to causes. Have you ever applied it to the gowth of a city?

Travel was the original cause of our modern Canadian and American cities. Travel by the early pioneers of civilized nations, often at the cost of their lives.

Years ago, one of these pioneers of the western plains crossed a river at a time when the North-West Territories formed the grazing grounds for buffalo and antelope. While making the crossing his primitive wagon broke down. He made his repairs with rope and the jaw of a moose found by the side of the trail. His Indian companions called the spot "The place where the white chief mended his cart with the jaw of a moose."

A frail cause seemingly, for great results. But the prosperous city of Moose Jaw, Saskatchewan, stands as the result of the pioneers accident. Not all at once, but through various stages, each more important than the last. The traveller talked—probably of the good water and the grazing land. These all important factors to the settler became known. Others began to investigate, a settlement formed, and Moose Jaw came into existence.

In the year 1902 a great rush of settlers to the west took place. This movement has been called the "American Invasion," but it included thousands from the Eastern Provinces of Canada. News of the Great West had spread, the Soo Branch of the Canadian Pacific Railway from Portal on the Southern Canadian Boundary line had been completed, and the great wheat belt of Canada began its period of prosperity.

The city of Moose Jaw, Saskatchewan, in the heart of this area, was the point chosen as most suitable for this great artery to meet the trans continental main line. Over this route thousands of cars of effects owned by settlers from the United States are carried yearly.

Suddenly other railway corporations discovered that the Canadian Pacific Railway had the monopoly of the business of Moose Jaw, and the wealthy territory behind it. They saw the Canadian Pacific Railway make Moose Jaw its chief divisional point in Saskatchewan with the greatest yards west of Winnipeg, costing with other improvements, over $1,000,000.

Competition for the great volume of business was aroused, until to-day there are eleven lines either completed, under construction, or chartered.

The soil has attracted the settler—great freight, cattle, and grain shipments have attracted the railway companies, and as a final result Moose Jaw has in a few years become a city with possibilities unsurpassed in the West.

While this result has been accomplished, you can judge the effect on Real Estate values. But the increase in values in this city will be greater in the future than in the past.

Had that pioneer settled at the river crossing, and owned the townsite of Moose Jaw he could have been a millionaire to-day—but he missed an opportunity. You have your pressing opportunity in our unique residential sub-division, Boulevard Heights. Do not miss it. Big sales are reported daily, prices are going up, and you can have a share in this profit taking. A payment of $10.00 forwarded to-day will secure you an interest in a sound investment, to which there is no interest.

In offering these shares for investment, we feel that we are inviting the public to purchase stock in an industry in which the profits are very large, and the demand for the product is ever increasing.

GERMANY'S MARINE VENTURE.

German pride in the possession of the largest ship in the world, the Imperator, launched last week in Hamburg, may be qualified, somewhat by the thought that since the Titanic disaster the world reposes less confidence than it once did in big ships and is much less enthusiastic about them. For the time being, indeed, big vessels are unpopular and it is not unlikely that the plans for the Imperator would have been held in abeyance had construction work not been well under way when the Titanic met its doom in the Atlantic.

But if the Titanic disaster proved several things, one of the things it did not prove was that the size of ships necessarily increases the danger. The same fate which overwhelmed the White Star liner might as easily have overtaken a ship of smaller proportions. The loss of life would have been smaller, because of the more limited number of passengers carried, but that fact in itself constitutes no sweeping indictment against large ships.

The Imperator will not only be the largest ship afloat, but it will be the safest, if it is within human power, profiting by the lesson of the Titanic, to make it so. There will be no claim that it is unsinkable. It will be many years before such a claim is again seriously put forth concerning any vessel.

The launching of the Imperator and the Smith committee report have renewed discussion of the Titanic disaster and means for the prevention of another such horror. Apparently to add to the sense of the hopelessness of solving the problem, the Westminster Gazette recalls that after the loss of a ship many years ago a special commission was appointed to investigate the question of life-saving apparatus. The floating deck scheme was not tried, but the floating raft idea was; in addition there was a vastly increased number of lifeboats aboard the ship which the company to which the lost vessel belonged built. Nevertheless, after having been equipped with all the improvements recommended, the vessel disappeared on her first voyage and was never heard of again.

Meanwhile, no one has criticized the idea first suggested, so far as The Telegram is aware, in these columns and endorsed by Joseph Conrad, the well known author, himself a master who has made many voyages, that the steamship companies should when possible, arrange to have steamers travel in pairs. These ships fully equipped with short wave wireless apparatus, would travel within easy distance of each other. In case of mishap to one, the other would be on hand within an hour or so to lend assistance.

A PANAMA CANAL QUESTION.

More than one journal in the United States has pointed out that the strongest objection to the action of the house at Washington in voting that no tolls should be charged United States vessels engaged in coastwise trade for passage through the Panama canal is that it violates the Canal Treaty between the United States and Great Britain. The treaty declares:

"The Canal shall be free and open to the vessels of commerce and of war of all nations observing these rules, on terms of entire equality so that there shall be no discrimination against any such nation, or its citizens or subjects, in respect of the conditions or charges of traffic, or otherwise."

The wrangling over this very clear and precise clause of the treaty has been extensive, but it is a difficult clause to interpret in any sense but the obvious one. Mr Mann, of Illinois, seems to have expressed the predominant opinion of the house in saying that he did not care if the treaty was violated. That stern old moralist, ex-Speaker "Joe" Cannon, took the same lofty view.

Thus is applied to international treaties the theory of the constitution which was so engagingly given expression to by the Tammany politician to whom Governor Cleveland, when he was Governor of New York, explained that a certain thing which the politician wanted done could not be done, because it would be unconstitutional. "What's the constitution between 'friends?'" said the Tammany representative.

CAN SOCIALISTS BE CITIZENS?

United States District Judge Hanford, of the State of Washington, has decided that they cannot, and he has cancelled the naturalization papers of one Leonard Oleson because he "admitted that he is a Socialist." This drastic action of the judge has attracted wide comment, mostly unfavorable. If the judge's point of view should happen to be sustained by the higher courts, and were to be carried into effect, it would practically disfranchise about 1,000,000 citizens who claim to be Socialists. The judge argues that the Socialist party has for its main object the complete elimination of property rights in the United States, and this, in his opinion, is opposed to the article in the United States Constitution which forbids deprivation of life, liberty, or property without due process of law. The man whose naturalization papers were cancelled declared that he was willing for people to retain their money, but he insisted that all land, buildings and industrial institutions should become the common property of all the people if the ballot should so decide. The point seems to be that the Socialist believed that he could better the Constitution of the United States, and was willing to try. This, the judge thinks, effectually bars him from citizenship. But it will seem to most that in this the judge is not correct, and that any citizen is free to amend the Constitution in any way, so long as he does it constitutionally. The rights of the people are more sacred than the Constitution, and the latter must adjust itself to the former, and every age must hold itself free to write its own charter of liberty. Democrats, Republicans, and Socialists have each a right to their own views and to the privileges of citizenship providing they obey the law.

The active pains in my stomach and the dizzy headaches I had to endure almost set one wild. Sometimes attacks came on so severely that I had to go to bed. I would feel so worn, depressed and utterly miserable that for hours I wouldn't speak to my family. My system was poisoned with wastes, and nothing helped me till I used Dr. Hamilton's Pills. Without this grand system-cleaning remedy I would be sick, but each day brought me better health and spirits. MANY GOING TO CIRCUS

Ringling Bros. Attract Unusual Interest With Many Big Features

Ringling Brothers' circus is attracting unusual interest this season because of its many new features and the new aspect given the show by the addition of the great spectacle, "Joan of Arc." The circus will be seen in Toronto on June 17, and this city and surrounding country will be well represented, as it always is when Ringling Brothers are within excursion distance.

There will be a new parade in the forenoon three miles in length. The menagerie is practically twice as big as it was last year and contains many specimens of strange animal life new to American zoos. Audiences will be entertained by 375 of the greatest of Europe's circus artists. Chief among the artists who are exploiting novelties and sensational acts are The Ty-Bell sisters, known as "The Human Butterflies," whose remarkable aerial performance was the talk of Europe last winter; Carlos Caesaro, known as "the man with the iron head"; the great Rooney family of equestrians, the Castrillon, the Hines-Kimball and the Florence families of acrobats; Joseph La Fleur, who does a backward dive from the dome of the tent, the Schuman performing horses, three herds of trained elephants that are new to this country, and Capt. Huling's two troupes of trained seals and sea-lions. There are many more big acts. Novelty and freshness are the keynote of the performance and there are fifty clowns to keep the audience in constant merriment.

The great feature of the show is of course, the newly added spectacle of "Joan of Arc," with a trainload of special scenery, costumes and stage properties, and a cast of 1,200 characters. There is also a ballet of 300 dancing girls, a chorus of 400 voices, and an orchestra of 100 soloists. This is the greatest dramatic and spectacular production ever presented in America, enacted on a specially built stage bigger than a hundred ordinary theatres. It is made portable so that it can be erected in the main tent each morning. This great entertainment is given as an introductory to the regular circus performance and entails no extra charge of admission.

"Joan of Arc" tells a masterful story from French history in a thrilling and dramatic way and with the wonderful illusion of tons of scenery and stage devices. In the great battle scene the audience is held spellbound by the realism of the scene, while the enactment of the coronation of Charles VII is beyond question the most sumptuous and inspiring stage picture ever seen.

FONG'S HAPPIEESS SHORT.

Hamilton, June 9 - Fong Young, the Chinese restaurateur who went to all kinds of trouble to get a wife recently, has lost his better half. Fong, it will be remembered, was married in Toronto by Rev. J. D. Morrow to a young girl named Louie Fraser. The minister was tried on a charge of performing the ceremony after 10 o'clock at night during prohibited hours. Finally the minister was acquitted and it was decided that Fong and Louie were married. They were seen about the streets here for some time, but within the last few days there has been trouble. An ad. was inserted to the effect that Fong's wife had left his bed and board of her own free will and he would not be responsible for any debts contracted by her.

There are [illegible] Arabian horses, [illegible] Bombay monkeys and 7,000 singing birds, chiefly canaries. The ship comes from [illegible]

AGED, WRINKLED FACES EASILY REJUVENATED.

(From the Beauty Seeker.)

An aged face is often only a mask to a comparatively youthful person. Beneath is a countenance young and fair to look upon. It's a simple matter to remove the mask. Ordinary mercolized wax, to be had at any drug store, gradually absorbs the worn-out surface skin; in a week or two the user has the loveliest pinky white complexion imaginable. An ounce of the wax usually is sufficient to complete the transformation. It is put on at night like cold cream and taken off in the morning with warm water.

This remarkable treatment is invariably effective, no matter how muddy, sallow or discolored the complexion. Freckles, moth patches, liver spots, pimples, blackheads and other cutaneous blemishes naturally vanish with the discarded skin.

To remove wrinkles and flabbiness, here is a recipe that cannot be too highly recommended: Powdered saxolite, 1 oz., dissolved in ½ pint witch hazel. Use as a wash lotion.

lesser provinces are equally favorable to this solution, for in their case silence gives consent. The text of Ontario's statement of its position, as read before the court by Mr. Edward Bayley, K.C., is worth reprinting. It runs as follows:

"'While of opinion that it is difficult to give an unqualified yes or no to any one of the questions submitted in this case, and that the law on the subject is difficult to determine, the Province of Ontario favors a uniform general marriage law for the Dominion, if so framed that the Legislative authority of the provinces in relation to the solemnization of marriage is not thereby violated, and the Province of Ontario adopts so much of the argument of counsel for the Dominion as is consistent with the view above expressed and no more.

"'The Province of Ontario considers that an Act of Parliament which renders valid throughout the Dominion marriages performed in a province by persons legally authorized by such province would result in consolidating and perfecting provincial authority throughout Canada, and on this view the passing of such an Act by the Dominion Parliament would enlarge rather than encroach upon provincial jurisdiction.'

"It will be seen that while not committing itself to any sweeping invasion of provincial rights, the Government of Ontario recognizes the situation as one that demands a remedy, and without offending any religious body suggests an Act whereby all marriages by persons legally authorized to perform them shall be placed on an equal footing and shall be valid in all parts of the Dominion. The man who cannot see in this a fair and honorable mode of settling the question is one of beclouded mind. The principle to be recognized first of all is that a man's citizenship, in what is supposedly a free country, shall not be limited or controlled by any religious body—no matter where, or in what faith he may happen to be born."

Plans have been formed for a box factory and a wire working plant.

Two new hotels, one to cost $30,000, and the other considerably more, are being constructed.

The C.P.R. is to build a new station at Huntingdon

The B. C. Electric is building a customs bonded warehouse and immigration office at Huntingdon.

Two Power Co's in competition—B. C. Electric and Slave Lake Power Co., thus assuring cheap power.
The Bank of Quebec has opened a branch at Huntingdon.
The Provincial Government has graded and has made a wide and fine thoroughfare of Huntingdon's main street.

Huntingdon's Remarkably Rich "Back Country"

ENGLISH IS THE DIPLOMAT'S TONGUE

American Legation in France Will Now use This Language in Official Business with the French Government.

Paris, June 10.—For the first time in 35 years the diplomatic business of the United States in France is being conducted in English. The predecessors of Ambassador Myron T. Herrick used French.

There is not only a precedent upholding the new ambassador's change but actual instructions from Washington demanding the use of English at the embassy here. Not being as familiar with the French language as he should like, and as he hopes to be, Ambassador Herrick buckled in true democratic form when friends suggested he learn a set speech in French to deliver before President Fallieres, when handing in his letters of credence. He spoke in English.

Looking up precedent in the matter, the lawyer instinct getting the upper hand, the ambassador found he was a [illegible] actual instructions from his home government.

Official documents passing from the embassy to the French foreign office, are written in English. French translations accompany these documents, but the translations are unofficial, and in case of misunderstands, etc., the democratic but official English originals are resorted to. The ambassador is in thorough accord with the French officials, who seem to like the innovation rather than otherwise.

IRISH PRINCE MAY RESULT

Home Rule May Be Marked by Creation of a Prince of Hibernia

Dublin, June 10.—Dublin hopes soon to welcome the young Prince of Wales. It is expected that his younger brother will come with him, and thereby hangs a tale which is tearing Irish society into shreds. It is understood that King George is discussing with some members of the Cabinet the question of whether it would not be well to revive interest in the dynasty by creating a Prince of Ireland, the title to be borne by the second son of each succeeding monarch, and to be held by such son after a change of reign until the next in line attains a certain age.

Signalize Passing of Home Rule.

The idea is to signalize the passing of the Home Rule bill and the giving of Royal assent by some act which shall show the personal interest of the sovereign in his Irish subjects and bring the court at Cork Hill up to a standard of real royalty.

The Welsh got their own special prince as a sop to Cerberus for the extinction of Owen Glendower. It was England's principal pledge of peace between the Hill Celts of Wales and Border warriors. It proved a most excellent bargain, and no title in the roll of British nobility blazons with more brilliant associations than those of "Ich Dien" (I serve), the motto plucked by the warlike Edward with the three plumes snatched from his Poiters captive, John, the Blind King of Bohemia

THE KING'S SERGEANT.

He Is Quite an Important Official When His Majesty Travels.

The Sergeant Footman at Buckingham Palace is an important personage, he is the chief of the indoor footmen, and acts as an independent official, taking orders only from the Master of the Household.

His ordinary duties consist in detailing the footmen for duty at the palace entrances and for daily attendance in the ante-rooms of the personal apartments of the King and Queen, and in the morning-rooms of the equerries and ladies-in-waiting. The Sergeant Footman—he is, by the way, addressed by all members of the Household as "Sergeant"—is usually in attendance at the equerries' entrance to the palace, where he shares a waiting-room with the palace steward.

At one o'clock half the staff of footmen come off duty for dinner, and go on duty again at two, when the other half come off duty until three. When the footmen come on duty they must report themselves to the Sergeant.

The Sergeant Footman has to look after the footman accompanying a royal visitor, allot them rooms in the servants' apartments, arrange whether they are to "mess" with the royal servants or by themselves—a matter left usually to the choice of the visiting servants—and settle precisely the hours at which they will be in attendance on their royal master and mistress. Supposing, for example the footmen of a visiting royalty desires to be freed from attendance between three and [illegible] in the afternoon, the Sergeant Footman would have to detail a certain number of the palace footmen to take their place during these hours.

At Buckingham Palace the electric bells in any of the royal visitors' rooms can be directly connected with any of the servants' rooms. This is done by means of what is called a transfer switchboard, which is placed in the Sergeant Footman's office. On the switchboard are marked the numbers of all the royal visitors' apartments and opposite these are the numbers of the servants' rooms, from 1 to 100.

[illegible], supposing the Kaiser were to use Room No. 4 in the royal visitors' suite of rooms for a bedroom, as he usually does, and his personal valet were to occupy No. 30 in the servants' rooms, the Sergeant Footman would connect these two rooms on his switchboard, so that when the Kaiser touched a bell in Room 30.

The Sergeant Footman and one of his assistants always travel with the King. The former occupies a compartment next to the royal saloon, and acts as attendant to his Majesty during the journey. Among his duties the Sergeant has to see that Buckingham Palace is kept properly lighted.

The electric light in all the corridors at Buckingham Palace must be switched on at a certain hour every day, that varies, of course, according to the time of year, but in dull, foggy weather the light may possibly have to be switched on early in the morning, and the Sergeant has to take care to see that this is done if necessary.

Eight of the indoor footmen are on duty at Buckingham Palace when the King is in residence throughout the night. The Sergeant Footman himself goes off duty usually at midnight. The footmen for night duty are changed every week

OUR MOST HYBRID WORD.

"Remacadamizing" Can Boast of Having Five Language Parents.

The most hybrid word in the English language, according to Professor A. F. Chamberlain of Clarke university, writing in the Popular Science Monthly, is "remacadamizing." Professor Clarke points out that this word is derived from five languages—Latin, Gaelic, Hebrew, Greek and English. He resolves it into its factors as follows:

First.—Re, a Latin prefix, signifying a repetition or doing over again.

Second.—Mac, a Gaelic word for son, in common use as a prefix for genealogical purposes.

Third.—Adam, the representative in many European languages of the Hebrew name of the first man, according to the Mosaic account of the creation as given in the book of Genesis.

Fourth.—Is (or ize), the modern English representative, through the French, iser of the Greek verbal terminal izein.

Fifth.—Ing, the English suffix of the participle present, verbal noun, etc.

The root of this word, "macadam," illustrates in another way the vitality of our English speech and its ability to draw new words into its vocabulary whenever the need arises. The term "macadam" is really the family name of the man, John Macadam, who in 1819 devised the now common method of paving roads with small broken stones, etc. Celtic and Semitic had already combined to produce macadam meaning "son of Adam," which the English language then took up and further molded to suit its genius.

There are many such hybrids, but this is probably the worst.

NOT A FAMILY QUARREL.

It Was Simply a Clever Ruse of a Daring Parisian Thief.

A traveler remarks that the Parisian swindler is the subtlest and the most indomitable one in the world. He was one day strolling through a fashionable French shop.

A woman entered and proceeded to purchase a costly set of silver dishes, and meanwhile a well dressed man lingered at the doorway as though waiting for her.

The woman, her purchase concluded, counted a number of bank notes and advanced to the cashier's desk holding them in her hand. Then of a sudden the man rushed upon her.

"You wretch!" he exclaimed. "Didn't I tell you that you shouldn't have those dishes?" And he slapped her upon the cheek, tore the bank notes from her hand and stalked indignantly out of the shop.

The woman fainted. It was ten minutes before she was brought to, and meanwhile those in the shop, believing that a family quarrel was in progress, did nothing. On her recovery the manager of the place said regretfully:

"We are sorry, madam, for this occurrence. Your husband"—

"My husband! That was not my husband!" the woman cried. "He is a thief!"

She had never seen the man before.—Exchange.

Violet For Mourning.

It was not by accident that violet was chosen by many nations as the exclusive color for mourning and by us also for half mourning. Painters suffering from hysteria and neurasthenia will be inclined to cover their pictures uniformly with the color most in accordance with their condition of lassitude and exhaustion. Thus originate the violet pictures of Manet and his school, which spring from no actually observable aspect of nature, but from a subjective view due to conditions of the nerves. When the entire surface of walls in salons and art exhibitions of the day appears veiled in uniform half mourning this predilection for violet is simply an expression of the nervous debility of the painter.—Nordau's "Degeneration."

NELSON'S COOLNESS.

A Dangerous Fire Aboard His Ship Didn't Excite the Admiral.

Two or three days before the battle of Trafalgar a boy on the Victory carelessly set fire to a bottle of ether. The result was that the flames extended to some sails and also to a part of the ship. There was a general confusion—running with buckets and what not—and, to make matters worse, the fire was becoming dangerous, as it was rapidly extending to the powder magazine.

During the hubbub Lord Nelson was in the chief cabin writing dispatches. His lordship heard the noise—he could not do otherwise—and so in a loud voice he called out:

"What's all that noise about?"

The boatswain answered:

"My lord, the loblolly boy's set fire to an empty bottle and it's set fire to the ship."

"Oh!" said Nelson. "That's all, is it? I thought the enemy had boarded us and taken us all prisoners. You and loblolly must put it out and take care we're not blown up. But pray make as little noise about it as you can or I can't go on with my dispatches." And with these words Nelson went to his desk and continued his writing with the greatest coolness.

THE PARIS OF PERSIA.

Teheran Is One of the Dream Cities of the Orient.

According to a Persian proverb, "Ispahan is beautiful, Shiraz is lovely, but Teheran is most beautiful of all." The Persians call Teheran the "Paris of Persia." This city lies on a sandy level. There are gentle hills to the north, and far in the distance one may see a range of mountains crowned by a majestic and snow covered peak.

The features of Teheran that attract the traveler's attention first are its city walls and its hundred towers that stand at intervals in the wide circle of the ramparts. In the center of the town is the great square of the arsenal, where an enormous number of now obsolete arms are stored. The great Boulevard des Ambassadeurs, as the French would call it, which is near the arsenal, is one of the finest to be found outside Paris.

If this part of the town has a modern aspect the southern part of the city has retained its oriental character, and here palaces, bazaars and mosques jostle one another, surrounded by narrow, winding, mysterious streets. Teheran is one of the dream cities of the east.—London Family Herald.

Ministerial Perquisites.

Not only stationery office officials, but cabinet ministers, used formerly to enjoy sundry little perquisites now no longer legitimate. At one time, for instance, each secretary of state received on his appointment a silver inkstand which he could retain and hand down as a keepsake to his children, but Mr. Gladstone when chancellor of the exchequer abolished this little perquisite, and the only token of office an outgoing minister can take with him is his dispatch box. The wife of a minister who had long occupied an official residence on being evicted said with a pensive sigh, "I hope I am not avaricious, but I must say when one was hanging up pictures it was very pleasant to have the board of works carpenter and a bag of nails for nothing."—London Chronicle.

Not the Same.

It was in the smoking car, and the two fat men were talking.

"Well, I have a good deal of trouble with my kidneys," said the first. "Can't seem to get 'em just right. How about you?"

"Oh, my kidneys are generally all right; it's liver with me," said the second. "Been running wrong all season."

"Excuse me for butting in," said the drummer for a patent medicine house, "but if you gentlemen will take Peterkin's Pepper Pellets For Peevish Patients they will relieve you instantly."

"What's that got to do with us?" asked the fat men simultaneously. "We ain't sick; we're retail butchers."—Harper's Weekly.

Meridians Run Due North and South.

A man "following the absolute line of the tenth meridian east from the north to the south pole" would travel due south and never southeast or southwest so long as he remained on the meridian upon which he started. If on the tenth meridian east, for instance, his angular distance from the meridian of Greenwich does not change. He is always 10 degrees east of that meridian from one pole to the other. He could only travel southeast or southwest by departing from that meridian on one side or the other.—New York American.

FORCED HIM TO SING.

An Occasion When Abell Made Up His Mind in a Hurry.

It is probable that on no occasion has any other musician had to practice his art under more disagreeable circumstances than that in which Abell, a singer of the seventeenth century, once found himself.

It appears that while Abell was rambling through Poland he was sent for to go to court, and after evading the request by excuses for a short time he was commanded to attend. At the palace Abell was placed in a chair in the center of a spacious hall and suddenly drawn up to a great height. The king, with his attendants, appeared in a gallery opposite him as he sat thunderstruck in his suspended chair. At the same instant several bears entered the hall with their keepers.

As the singer gazed in horror at these ferocious creatures the king calmly inquired whether he preferred to sing or be let down among the bears. The singer's choice, of course, was quickly made, and he afterward declared that in spite of his terror he never sang better in his life, although he admitted he might have introduced a few more "shakes" than usual in his songs.—New York Press.

Fata Morgana.

The kind of mirage known as fata morgana is seen across straits or lakes in southern Europe and shows in calm weather such images in the air as those of towns, castles and palaces. On the Lake of Geneva it is sometimes seen on fine afternoons of spring or summer. F. A. Forel, the well known Swiss investigator, has been giving some attention to the curious apparitions and concludes that they are due to a peculiar distribution of temperature in the air over the water. In the morning, the air being cooler than the lake, the opposite bank seems to be depressed, exaggerating the earth's rotundity, and late in the afternoon, the air having become hotter than the water's surface, the opposite bank apparently rises above the true horizon and the earth's circumference is enlarged. For a few moments only, at the change from one condition to the other, the fata morgana may be seen.

Why He Had to Have an Office.

An inherited fortune and the disposal of an organized business enabled a well known Chicagoan to retire. He had the inclination for leisure, but could not surrender the idea of having a definite business abiding spot. He rented an office in a lofty building and went to Europe. After a six months' absence he returned, looked the building over and went to South America. Then after again verifying the report that the building was not crumbling, he took a jaunt to Japan. Not long ago one of his old cronies said:

"Frank, why don't you give up your office? You don't need it."

"That's true," said Frank. "I would give it up, but I don't know what to do with the rug."—Chicago Post.
